New York, Jan. 30.—Six Republican governors are enrolled in a self-appointed committee to advocate the nomination of Roosevelt for the Presidency, according to Governor W. R. Stubbs of Kansas. The committee, unofficial but active, includes: Governors Bass of New Hampshire, Aldrich of Nebraska, Hadley of Missouri, Glasscock of Virginia and Osborn of Michigan—all rated as leaders of the "progressive wing."

Who Owns Islands?

Washington, Jan. 30.—Rumors that Great Britain intended to take possession of Palmyra Island (in reality a group of fifty inlets), lying about 600 miles southwest of Hawaii and almost in a direct line between Australia and the Panama Canal, resulted in the subject being made a matter of enquiry unofficially at the State Department yesterday. Officials professed ignorance of any issue being raised as to the ownership of the islands, but admitted title was vague.

Palmyra Island was discovered in 1862 by an American shipmaster, was proclaimed part of the kingdom of Hawaii in 1889, and was annexed by Great Britain in 1889.

The question at issue is whether the British annexation cancelled the prior Hawaiian title, for if it did not, then Palmyra Island would probably be held to have been annexed to the U. S. in 1898.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Dyspepsia, Gas and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly written on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why Diapepsin always relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigest ion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever get a little for Ingestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was much quieter than on Saturday, but cables were firm and prices bid in some cases were 1d per quarter higher. There was a good enquiry for oats, but, as buyers fail to respond to the advance in prices here, no sales were made. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour is fairly good and bids were another 2d per sack higher in some cases. A good local trade continues to be done in all grades. The demand for all lines of millfeed is good. Cheese is quiet. Butter and eggs fairly active and strong. Potatoes have advanced 10c per bag, owing to the increasing scarcity.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 125 cars—2495 cattle, 677 hogs, 335 sheep, 54 calves and 17 horses.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought for Swift & Co. 600 others for London, 1550 lbs. each, at $6.65, average price, or a range of $6.60 to $7; also 13 steers for Liverpool, 1350 lbs., at $6.37, average, or a range of $6.30 to $6.40.

Butchers.

Prime picked butchers sold at $6.60 to $6.75; good, $6 to $6.35; medium, $5.75 to $6.10; common, $4.50 to $5; inferior, $4.75 to $4.25; good cows, $4.75 to $5.25; medium cows, $4 to $4.50; common cows and canners, $3.25 to $3.75; bulls, best quality, $5.50 to $5.75; fair to good bulls, $4.75 to $5.25; common, light bulls, $3.75 to $4.25.

Milkers and Springers.

There were 30 milkers and springers of fair to good quality, which sold at $50 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves were steady, at $6 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $5 to $5.50; rams, $4.50 to $4.75; lambs, $6 to $6.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston reported hog prices unchanged at $6.50 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.15 f.o.b. cars.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 27 were 2150 cattle, 2075 sheep and lambs, 3250 hogs and 400 calves, while the offerings this morning were 1200 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1650 hogs and 300 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was much larger than was expected, yet the tone of the market was very firm, and prices showed no important change, owing to the fact that the percentage of good to choice steers and bolders was small, for which there is good demand. Common and inferior grades are not wanted, as the market is still well supplied with this cattle, for which the demand is limited.

In spite of the continued very cold weather there was a large gathering of buyers, and, altho business, in some cases, showed several advances in the forenoon

POSSIBILITIES OF ELECTRICITY.

For home use, electricity is still in most localities comparatively expensive, but it will be less so when it comes into more general use. If the electric companies would follow the example of the gas companies in renting cooking ranges it would be a great stride forward. In England some of the companies charge a special low rate for electric cooking, because it is done mostly in the daytime, when there is little demand for the current for lighting purposes. But the most radical way to reduce the cost will be to combine the electric range with the fireless cooker.

Thousands of families that could not pay for an electric current five or six hours a day could easily afford one for the 15 minutes necessary for heating the food before it is put into the box, besides the few minutes needed for crisping roasts, browning coffee or toasting bread. It is quite likely that the electric range can be so constructed in part that no separate cooking box will be needed; and then the culinary millenium!—Century.

A.D. GRAHAM LEAVES FOR WEST

Ald. Graham left for Calgary this morning, in response to a telegram announcing the serious illness of his son, Harold, in that city. He will travel via Chicago, thereby cutting the journey short by one day, in which case he will reach the bedside of his son by Thursday evening. Both Ald. Graham's sons, Harold and Percy, are residing in Calgary, and are engaged in the contracting business. Harold left Peterborough last summer, to join his brother, in business. His many friends here will regret to learn of his illness.

A PRESENTATION AT MT. PLEASANT

MOUNT PLEASANT, JAN. 28.—At the annual business meeting of the Presbyterian church at Mount Pleasant on Tuesday evening, the congregation took occasion to present their organist with a watch and the following complimentary address:

Master Herman McLean.—We, your friends and admirers of the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church desire to express to you our appreciation of your services as organist. We believe true worth should be acknowledged wherever it is found, and especially in a person so young would we give every encouragement in the good work to which you have thus given yourself.

When we were in need of an organist, you came to the rescue and intimated your willingness to do your best without any promise of monetary reward. You have exceeded the most sanguine expectations. By your willingness, your faithfulness and your quiet, unassuming manner you have won for yourself a warm place in the hearts of all. We ask you to accept this watch as a slight token of esteem and appreciation. We trust it will serve you well, not only for a timepiece, but also to remind you that time passes rapidly and its precious moments should be spent wisely and well, not only for self-improvement but for the good of others and the glory of God. Our prayer is that God will bless you and as the years go by you may always be found using your talents in His service.

Signed, Rev. D. H. Carrie, pastor; T. W. Jamieson, Rebt. T. Boyd for the congregation.

Dr. Thompson of Omemee, is attending Mr. John W. Thexton, who met with a painful accident by falling against a door latch, which tore the skin from the eye upward, necessitating the putting in of several stitches. We hope the sufferer will soon be convalescent.

Mr. C. Morden has taken over the business lately controlled by Mr. R. Graham.

A pleasant dancing party was given by Mr. J. W. Thexton on Friday evening. There were many merry-makers present from a distance as well as a large local contingent, and they tripped the light fantastic toe till the wee sma' hours.

The continued cold weather has made the fuel problem imperative in its demands. Many choppers are busy.

APPLICATIONS WILL BE CALLED FOR THE POSITION OF PERMANENT ASSESSOR

Committee of the Whole Council Decides to Advertise for an Official, Who Will Hold the Position as Long as Satisfaction is Given.

COUNCIL HAS BUSY SESSION

The committee of the Whole Council held a meeting on Monday night with Mayor Bradburn presiding and the following members present: Alds. Buller, Duffus, Brown, Gordon, Johnston, Morgan, Duncan, Anderson and Gillespie.

Mr. Wm. Cochrane, on behalf of the Belmont Club, asked the Council for permission to stretch a banner across George street opposite their club rooms, advertising a minstrel show, which they intend to produce on Feb. 15th and 16th. Their request was granted on motion of Ald. Buller and Duffus.

Mayor Bradburn then introduced the question of the appointment of a permanent assessor, the first of a lengthy list of topics he had written on his slate. "I think it is time the city made a permanent appointment to the position of assessor," the Mayor began; "it is a question that needs attention at once and I think the appointment should be made right away. It seems to me we need a man to devote his entire attention to the work the year round, and I believe it would work out to the best interests of the city."

Secure Equalization.

Ald. Duncan, Morgan and Anderson expressed agreement with the idea, the opinion being that the careful study of valuations could be made, and any increase in assessments resulting therefrom would provide for any difference in salary, should there be one.

Ald Brown—"Some have received snaps by recent valuations, I have heard. The property sold to the government for a dock was valued at $300, yet it was sold at a price much in excess of that figure."

The Mayor and several of the aldermen considered that this property was well worth the amount paid for it for the purposes it was wanted. Continuing the Mayor said a permanent assessor would be employed all the year, whereas in the past the assessor made his assessments, turned in the roll and completed his work when he attended the Court of Revision.

Ald. Duffus asked if the assessor would have to engage help.

"I think he would," the Mayor replied, "at least for about two months in the year.' His Worship said he had been told of some property that was valued at $400 an acre and was assessed at only $60 an acre, and remarked that a permanent official should remove such conditions. "I think the merchants on George street are paying all they can afford."

Ald. Johnston remarked that the question of assessments touched the pockets of everyone, and was therefore important. "I would like to see a man appointed who knows the values of property. If we can secure a man for $1400 let him make his own choice of assistant."

Ald. Brown—"If the cost of the two assessors in the past was $1400, can we not get one for less than that sum?"

To this, however, Ald. Johnston returned the axiom, "It pays to get the right man and have the work done right."

Ald. Buller remarked that if the assessor raised the assessment on vacant land there would be less vacant property and few such cases as those mentioned by the Mayor. Ald. Gordon said there should be a greater income tax and felt that there was quite a number of people in Peterborough who were not being assessed for the right amounts.

"Wouldn't a man who was working twelve months in the year be in a better position to look into such conditions," asked the Mayor.

"I think a great deal of the Mayor's suggestion,' 'was Ald. Gordon's comment, the only question being as to whether the city had arrived at the stage for a permanent assessor.

Ald. Duncan said he would like to see the assessor with an assistant in order that if anything happened to the former the office would not be crippled. After a desultory discussion regarding the ability required of the proposed assessor, Ald. Johnston moved that the Council take the necessary steps to secure a permanent assessor.

"No, I think a man might be appointed by the Council," Ald. Johnston replied.

Ald. Morgan asked if any applications had been received. The Mayor had one before him, but said he would not consider it until the Council decided its course in the matter.

Then arose the question of remuneration and it was decided not to

PERFECTLY EASY POSITION

While the Council has only begun the discussion of the appointment of a Sanitary Inspector for the city, last night's meeting brought to light a few of the duties which it is believed, will fall to his lot. A glance over the list will show that the position promises to be a sinecure. These are a few of the things which have been thought out, and the more imaginative Aldermen may have a few other incidentals to engage the official in his spare hours, should he be appointed. There is the examination of the premises of the milk vendors; the supervision of the manner in which it is brought to the city, and under which it is sold; the inspection of yards, etc., in the Spring, and the duty of seeing that his orders in this regard are carried out; the supervision of the examination of foods displayed for sale in summer, and, indeed, at any time of the year; the examination of cows for tuberculosis in connection with a pure milk campaign; the garbage by-law, if it ever materialises, might also receive his attention, and so on. Of course, nothing has been decided upon, but these are a few of the suggestions that were made by various aldermen. With another week for further thought on the subject, the list should be considerably augmented, and a perfectly easy position should be the result.

RURAL DEANERY MEETING BEING HELD IN THE CITY

Prof. Cosgrave, of Toronto, Preached Opening Sermon at St. Luke's Church Last Night---Proceedings of To-day's Sessions at St. John's Church.

The opening session of the Rural Deanery meeting of Northumberland and Peterborough was held last evening in St. Luke's church.

The local clergy were well represented, while there were also a number of visitors. The address was delivered by Professor Cosgrave of Trinity College, Toronto, who chose for his text the fourth chapter of the Epistle of St. Paul to the Romans, 4th verse, "The Faith of Our Fathers."

"Patriarch Abraham," he said, "takes an important place in religion. Other men before Abraham had no doubt a dim apprehension of the story of God, but faith really first started in Abraham. He was called a friend of God and that is what gives us a true notion of faith. We see in Abraham faith in a rudimentary form and yet in spite of that we cannot fail to recognize the same faith that prevailed so long afterwards. Faith comes down to us to-day after a long, long history. Like almost every other friendship, there have been misunderstandings. God, the good friend, has been ever spending Himself in recovering the friendship in man and strengthening it. Faith is old to-day. It is idle for us to object to the complexity of the Christian creed.

Let us for a moment class the faith of Abraham with that of St. Paul. During the years that intervened various marks had been inflicted upon it in the course of its maturity, yet this same faith it was that St. Paul introduced to the Greco-Roman world—the world that had been discussing this faith for centuries.

In the present day there has not been wanting persons who would say that faith has at last fallen. We need not fear that. We need not fear for faith in the future. Friends and foes alike are apt to associate it with matters of intellect, but faith will go down to the ages, dissociating itself from everything that is antediluvian and obsolete. Let us consider for a moment the faith of the individual. In this, as in so many other respects, the history of the individual passes through the same stages as an age. First, child-like like Abraham, and then growing in experience, has its failures and its victories.

To those who have suffered failures, it may be well to remember that many thousands have suffered just the same number of times before. The loss of faith is the greatest calamity that could befall an individual, for when the bond is broken the channel by which God sends his gifts, is blocked. The great Father must look on heedless, while the soul of his son drifts farther and farther off.

To-Day's Session.

At the meeting of the Rural Deanery of Peterborough and Northumberland, held in the Guild Room of St. John's Church those present were: Rev. E. W. Pickard, Rural Dean; Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. R. B. Grobb, Rev. F. J. Sawers, Rev. E. Soward, Rev. C. W. Holdenworth, Havelock; Rev. Wm. Burns, Hastings; Rev. H. A. Ben Oliel, of Lakefield; Rev. James Price, Colborne; Rev. W. A. Pippen, Apsley; Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, Lakefield; Rev. C. Lord, Apsley; Rev. H. Earle, Onemee; Rev. Professor Cosgrave, Trinity College.

Holy Communion was celebrated at 9.30, and the business session met at 10.30. The week's Testament portion was read and then Professor Cosgrave read an excellent paper on our Lord's Teaching in the New Testament.

Addresses were delivered by Rev. Prof. Cosgrave and Rev. R. B. Grobb. After dinner, the Proposed Revision of the Prayer Book was discussed, and papers were read by Rev. Wm. Burns and Canon Davidson.

No Foot Bridge Over The Otonabee At The C.P.R. Mayor Announces

The hope of securing a foot-bridge on the C. P. R. bridge, over the Otonabee for the use of East and South City residents must, apparently, be abandoned. Mayor Bradburn informed the Council last night that he had an interview recently with Mr. Oborne of the C.P.R., who stated that it was against the policy of the Company to lay these foot-boards. The matter had been given special consideration, and it was found impossible to make a precedent in this case. Mr. Oborne further stated that the Company intended to make changes at this bridge in a few years and accommodation for pedestrians would only be temporary in any case

Premier Borden Gives An Answer

Throws Responsibility Upon the Voters' Lists

OTTAWA, JAN. 29.—Since Premier Borden informed Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the issue of the writ for the South Renfrew bye-election would be dealt with on Saturday someone has frightened him again. As a result, when the Liberal chief renewed his question at the opening of Parliament to-day the Premier once again began to make excuses. "There is some difficulty with regard to the voters' lists," he sought to explain "Some of the lists for 1911 are ready to be used and others are not ready We are investigating, but it will cause a little delay."

This time Sir Wilfrid laughed outright. "There cannot be anything in that," he observed. "The South Renfrew vacancy occurred on December 7, while the Ontario elections took place on December 11, four days after." There was no reason that lists which were good for the Ontario elections should not be good enough for the bye-election in question.

Whereupon Mr. Borden bristled. "I am informed by the Secretary of State that only a portion of the lists are ready to be used," he retorted. "The lists have to be prepared at least sixty days before nomination."

Sir Wilfrid pointed out that the Premier's position was a subterfuge. The law required lists that had been in force for sixty days prior to nomination. It did not require the preparation of new lists.

"Some parts of the country have only the 1910 lists, others have the 1911 lists ready," the Premier retorted.

"The objection is a very weak and unsound one," began Mr. Clarke, Essex, when the Speaker ruled him out of order.

Then the Liberals laughed and the Government hurried on to other business.

Special to The Examiner.

LAWRENCE, MASS., JAN. 30.—For the first time since the serious labour troubles began here, bullets flew here this morning. It was five o'clock when the town was startled by a volley from the squad of militia men on duty at the mills to prevent the strikers approaching the place to do damage there. A sentry saw some men on the ice covered river, and fearing an attack the squad opened fire. The men retreated and no reports of casualities have come in. The strike breakers in the mills state things going at usual hour. Twelve hundred troops are under arms here and the city is as nearly under martial law as possible in Massachusetts. A contingent of Syrian strikers who attempted a parade on the streets early were dispersed at the point of bayonets.

ASSASSINATIONS IN CHINA

Examiner Special:

MUKDEN, CHINA, JAN. 30.— Under the instigation, it is believed of the Empress Dowager, who has a strong following here, the police are entering the homes of prominent men suspected of revolutionary sympathies assassinating all males and carrying off women and children. The city is in a state of uproar.

Bombs Thrown.

TIEN TSIN, CHINA, JAN. 30. — Bombs thrown and explosions in homes of Manchu authorities here today, indicated a wide-spread plot of the revolutionary agents to force abdication. Several were injured.

SURPRISED DOCTOR

Illustrating the Effect of Food.

The remarkable adaptability of Grape-Nuts food to stomachs so disordered that they will reject everything else, is illustrated by the case of a woman in Racine, Wis.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was attacked by a stomach trouble so serious that for a long time I could not take much of any sort of food. Even the various kinds prescribed by the doctor produced most acute pain.

"We then got some Grape-Nuts food, and you can imagine my surprise and delight when I found that I could eat it with a relish and without the slightest distress.

"When the doctor heard of it he told me to take several small portions each day, because he feared I would grow tired of it as I had of all other food.

"But to his surprise, (and that of everybody else), I did not tire of Grape-Nuts, and became better day by day, till, after some weeks, my stomach entirely recovered and I was able to eat anything my appetite craved.

"My nerves, which had become so weakened that I feared I would become insane, were also restored by the Grape-Nuts food in connection with Postum which has become our table beverage. I appreciate most gratefully and thankfully the good that your food preparations have done me, and shall be glad to answer any letters inquiring as to my experience." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Letter From Miss Quinn

Miss M. Quinn, a missionary in China and formerly of this city, in a letter to a friend, dated Dec. 29th, says:

"I left my station in the interior and have been in Shanghai since Dec. 5th. With eight other missionaries I am busy studying Chinese. We were not driven out of our station, but were advised to leave, by the British Consul, owing to the unsettled state of the country. We are anxiously waiting the result of peace conference, which does not look hopeful yet. Things are in an awful state. May be here for some time."

COUNCIL MOVES AGAINST ALLEGED MILK COMBINE

Ald. Gordon Says There is an Agreement Among the City Milk Vendors to Maintain Prices---Question Will be Considered and Will Receive Further Attention if Facts Warrant It.

Are the milk consumers of Peterborough paying toll to a combine?

This question arises out of the matter which Ald. Gordon laid before the Council in committee Monday night when he stated that it could be shown that the milk vendors had agreed to increase the price of their commodity two or three cents and had made a forfeit to abide by their agreement. This, he claimed, was held in a certain office and could be procured. The agreement required that the price of milk be increased at certain fixed times. Ald. Gordon stated that shortly after this an increase came into effect.

A Criminal Offence.

"Some have suggested that this is contrary to the criminal code, and if so the dealers who entered into the agreement were liable to penalties," Ald. Gordon concluded and moved that Ald. Brown and the City Solicitor be asked to investigate the question and to report as to the advisability of prosecuting the men who have formed the so-called combine, and if necessary that a search warrant be issued for the agreement.

Mayor Bradburn— "The milk men informed us that if they were compelled to use bottles, they would have to raise the price to such an extent that many people would be unable to buy it. Do you mean to say that they are raising the price anyway?"

"Is Not Too High."

"Milk is now 7 cents," Ald. Gillespie explained, "and that figure is not too high. The dealers could make butter and make more money than by delivering it around the city. I understand that they intended to make this advance anyway. The cost of bottling would have been additional."

The Coal Dealers! No?

Ald. Duffus said he would second the motion if it were made to include all combines in the city, if there were any. Some one mentioned coal, and Ald. Buller invited any investigation desired into the conduct of that business in Peterborough. The coal dealers would welcome it.

Ald. Morgan seconded the motion, which passed, those voting nay being Ald. Gillespie, Buller and Duffus.

Ald. Gordon fired a parting shot. "Let us go after the milk men first," he said, "and if we find any reasonable hope for success we can carry the campaign against exorbitant prices for commodities into other quarters, the coal included."

SECOND ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE

Meetings Held in St. Paul's Church and the Y.M.C.A.---Resolution Calling For the Abolition of the Three-fifths Clause---Officers for the Year Were Elected.

The second annual convention of the Peterborough County Temperance Alliance was held yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. parlours and continued in the evening in the St. Paul's Presbyterian school hall.

The afternoon session was well attended and the local churches were well represented. The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. H. B. Cowan.

In talking of the local option contests of 1912, the Rev. Dr. W. S. MacTavish, Toronto, Field Secretary for Peterborough county said that contests will probably take place in seven places, namely, Norwood, Havelock, Smith, Anstruther, Dummer, Harvey and Otonabee.

The Rev. B. H. Spence said the Ontario Liquor License Act needed overhauling. Amendments had been made for the past ten years, but they were all along the same lines, namely, aids to the enforcement of law, but we have had no curtailing of the selling of liquor. What we should press for is further regulations in the sale of liquor.

Here the meeting passed a resolution in favour of the abolition of the three-fifths clause the abolition of the distributing centre, and prohibition of the gift of liquor, excepting in private houses.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., said he was in favour of what they were fighting for. Law must certainly be enforced, and he was against the distribution of liquor in local option towns. With regard to the three-fifths clause he said he did not think he should say anything about that, as his views did not quite coincide with theirs (the meeting's). What they must do is to keep on fighting and to teach their children temperance and thus ultimately stamp out the foolish drink habit.

On the recommendation of the Nominating committee, the following officers were elected:

Hon Pres.—Ex-Mayor Wm Yelland.

Pres.—Mr. H. B. Cowan, Peterborough.

1st Vice-Pres. — Jas. Thompson, Havelock.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Mr. Ellis, Peterborough.

Secretary— Mr. R. Lees, Peterborough.

Treasurer—Mr. E. A. Kennedy, Lakefield.

Chairmen of municipalities:

Lakefield—Mr. F. D. Lillicrap.
Norwood—Mr. G. A. Brethen.
Havelock—Mr. A. C. Denycke.
Asphodel—Mr. Wm. Oakman.
Dummer—Mr. E. H. Hawthorne.
Harvey—Mr. Alex. A. Thompson.
Otonabee—Mr. Jos. A. Taylor.
Smith—Mr. T. F. Milburn.

Douro—Mr. D. Darling.
North Monaghan—Mr. T. D. Young.
Belmont—Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.

Evening Sessions.

Quite a large number of citizens were present at St. Paul's church last night. The meeting was addressed by two able speakers and enthusiastic temperance workers, in the persons of Rev. B. H. Spence, and Mr. Cunningham, while the proceedings were enlivened by several vocal selections by Mr. Howard Russell, which were greatly appreciated.

Rev. R. Pogue, Pastor of St. Paul's church, presided, and introduced Mr. Cunningham, Secretary of the City Temperance Association, as the first speaker.

Mr. Cunningham.

Mr. Cunningham stated that he would talk on the city situation briefly, in order that Mr. Spence would have a longer time to address the audience.

In beginning, the speaker called attention to conditions during the last two years, and pointed out that the fruits of the liquor traffic had been about as usual, doing more harm and carrying with it more destruction and trouble than fires and storms could ever attempt. One hundred or more "blacklisters" and about 116 men out on suspended sentences, was only a small evidence of its terrible presence and destructive power. The more regrettable feature of the facts being that out of the 116 out on suspended sentence, the majority were young men and minors. The speaker emphasized the terribleness of the fact, that this was a very excessive number for a municipality to be responsible for. He thought the ghastly corpse of the unfortunate citizen, who was recently found frozen to death, was conspicuous evidence of the ravages of this terrible and poisonous drug. Mr. Cunningham emphasized the truth of the circumstances, by pointing out that it was just as wrong, and the people had no more right to issue a license to liquor dealers than they have to issue licenses to blackhanders, or other criminals. He clearly pointed out that it was simply because these liquor men were our neighbours and did their deadly work openly, that we failed to realise the seriousness of the situation.

He stated further that he was certain that the British flag was never intended to fly over such a law as that which was being administered in regard to the liquor men, and he exposed the fact that we were abusing the privileges that the Lord had given us.

Speaking of public ownership the speaker thought that we should realize that the liquor traffic was one of the industries of public ownership, and the public were sustaining it, financially, and supplying the raw material in the shape of the young men.

THE MILK SITUATION

Examiner Secures a Number of Interviews With Prominent Milk Vendors

PROTECTING THEMSELVES

The existence of a combine among local milk vendors is denied by those dealers the Examiner interviewed this morning. It is admitted that there is an agreement to prevent the cutting of prices, but an actual combine, as such a term is usually understood, has not been entered into, or contemplated, according to those who discussed the matter.

No! It is not true, emphatically declared Mr. T. Lillico, of Fairview Dairy, in reply to query from an Examiner representative, as to whether there was a combine among the milk vendors. He further added that the $25, supposed to have been advanced by each of the milkmen in guarantee of their good faith to live up to the agreement, was a myth.

Agreement Admitted.

Mr. F. Darling admitted the existence of an agreement among the milkmen. The document was framed up last fall by the Milkmen's Association, and submitted to a well-known legal light of this city, who declared the agreement to be valid, and strictly within the requirements of the law. It also bound the parties whose names were signed thereon, to live up to the terms of the agreement. No mention is made in the agreement relative to the forfeiture of $25 for a violation of its rules. "That was only a word of mouth suggestion, made at the meeting of the Association last fall," said Mr. Darling.

He strongly favoured the action of the Association in drawing up such an agreement inasmuch as it protected the consumer equally as well as the dealer, by reason of the fact that it established a standard price which, in all cases, was consistent with the lowest cost of production.

Welcomes an Inspector.

Mr. Darling favoured the appointment of a milk inspector, one who would inspect as to quality and sanitary conditions under which the business was conducted, and not as to butter fat alone, which is the present system under which milk inspection is conducted. "Inspect the milk every day, and get after the farmers who supply it," said Mr. Darling, by way of a parting shot as he disappeared up a stairway of the Lundy Block.

Other Statements.

"Well!" said Mr. John Miller of East City, when interrogated, "we are just forming an Association to fix a uniform price in order to do away with this cut-throat business. Sometimes a man who has a grudge against another will cut his prices, and this is what we want to get at. All the boys have fallen into line with the exception of a few scabs".

A Word to The Council.

Mr. W. Brommell of Otonabee, expressed himself as follows:

No, we have no combine, but we have an Association among ourselves so that the boys may understand each other. It's not right that one should charge one price and the next man another, therefore we want a fixed price, but we are not increasing it. Why, aren't the farmers of North Toronto jumped on—they have formed an association and are charging a uniform price.

"If the Council would look after its own business without interfering with outsiders it would have enough to do." The Council has been picking at us for five years now, and if they can't get us one way they try another. "The customers do not kick," he added.

THEIR MAJESTIES AT GIBRALTAR

GIBRALTAR, JAN. 30—King George and Queen Mary arrived here in the transport Median this morning, but the festivities were much curtailed owing to the death of the Duke of Fife.

Hunter St. Bridge Is Under Consideration

The Hunter street bridge proposition has not been abandoned by the Council. Mayor Bradburn stated at the meeting of the Council in committee last night, that he had instructed Engineer Hay to prepare estimates for a structure to replace the present structure. The idea is to follow the present level. The Mayor stated that he had written a personal letter to Ottawa, in the hope of enlisting the aid of the Government.

A TALK ON TUBERCULOSIS.

The public is reminded of the address on Tuberculosis by Dr. Porter in the Collegiate Institute Hall tonight. In view of the intense importance of the subject there should be a large attendance. There is need for much greater diffusion of information on a subject that interests every citizen. Some are personally and relatively interested and every citizen who recognizes his obligation in respect of his neighbour has, or should have, an interest in anything that can directly or indirectly tend to a larger conquest over a disease that is almost practically decimating our population by death, and in the process entailing untold suffering on the directly affected and long drawn out and wearing anxiety on those indirectly affected. It is only by enlightened and aroused public sentiment, that governments can be brought to give the subject of the prevention and amelioration or cure of tuberculosis, the attention which is manifestly the duty of the state to give. In the United States last year, fifteen million dollars was spent in the fight against tuberculosis. That is a large sum, but it is plainly inadequate; if so, then the expenditure in the province is far short of the demands of humanity, not to speak of the conservation of the true life of the state, the life of its citizens.

A RABID RESOLUTION.

The following is in part—for the whole occupies about a column of the Mail and Empire—of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Conservative Association of Carleton County, by the the way, represented by Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden:

"This association views with deep concern and misgiving the attempt now being made by the present British Government, at the dictation of the Irish Roman priesthood and the Roman Catholic society, called the Ancient Order of Hibernians, to disrupt the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to place the Protestant minority in Ireland under the yoke of Rome.

"All Canadians who know our peculiar political conditions are aware that the resluton in favour of home rule railroaded through the House of Commons some years ago by a Canadian professional Romanist, was allowed to pass the House, not through any real, or even superficial interest in the question, but from the desire of both political parties to retain or secure at the time the hived Irish Papist vote. It was a most deplorable incident, and one not creditable to us as a people demanding autonomy, when we appreciate how these very Canadians would have resented the passing through the British House of a resolution favouring the separation of Quebec from the Dominion."

This is a most mischevious, as well as misleading, resolution. In the first place, it tends to inflame religious animosities, and set citizen against citizen; in the second place, it is inaccurate in statement. As a matter of fact, it was not at the "dictation of Irish priests or societies" that the British Government brought out its Home Rule bill. A large majority—nearly half a million of English, Scotch, and Irish voters, pronounced in favour of the principel of Home Rule for Ireland. The question of religion is not much involved in the matter of Home Rule for Ireland. The leading forces in the long fight for home rule have been Protestants, and Protestants such as Emmet, Lord Edward Fitzgerald, Grattan, and Parnell, have laid down their lives or suffered for Home Rule for Ireland. The Roman Catholic hierarchy of Ireland have never been, and are not now, a unit on the question. Home Rule for Ireland is simply a matter of justice, and it is this idea of justice that leads fair-minded Canadians to hold that Ireland is as such entitled to home rule as Canada is. On that ground Canadian parliaments, including that led by Sir John Macdonald, have passed resolutions in favour of home rule for Ireland, and have very properly been invited to mind their own affairs. The interference of Canada is resented, as would be British intereference in th domestic affairs of home-ruled Canada.

But it is probably not solicitude for religion, nor for e suffering and rebellious Ulster that influenced the Carleton firebrands. Their action is as purely political as the home rule matter. Such a resolution is probably a red-herring drawn across the political trail to offset popular indignation against the Government in regard to its double dealing on the Ne Temere matter. Mr. Borden gained power on the ground that the Conservative party, which it was claimed had the power, would, the minute it gained power, pass legislation to annul the decree. Instead of that, Mr. Borden took—and he was logically forced to take the same position that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was put out of power for holding—that legislation on the Ne Temere decree was not within the comptency of the Dominion Parliament. The resolution was intended to draw attention away from discussion of the, trouble, which still racks the Conservative party, over its shelving the settlement of the Ne Temere matter, and shirking the responsibility it assumed when it gained power, in the assurance that if it gained power it would at once wipe out the "odious" decree. Though the above resolution was adopted by a Conservative Association, it is only fair to suggest that fair-minded Conservatives, generally, will not sympathise with its bitter violence and harmony disturbing tendencies; and even Mr. Borden, himself, will regret that his constituents have thrust upon him, vexatious and undeserved responsibility for such wild and wayward sentiments and statements as are involved in the resolution in question.

ONE NATIONALIST DEMANDS REPEAL OF NAVAL LAW

A Member That Made Pledge to Electors to Bring Matter Up in House

OTTAWA, JAN. 30.—It is announced by Le Devoir, Mr. Bourassa's newspaper, that in the early future one of the "Nationalist-Conservative group" in the Commons will present a resolution demanding the repeal of the naval law. Unlike Messrs. Monk, Pelletier and Nantel, he is not satisfied because "we are here and you are there"; but he desires to fulfil the promise he made to his electors.

This man must be a novice, indeed, in politics. Does he not know that the navy has been abandoned, or that the ministers say so? He may reply that he sees no sign of abandonment, that the expenditure upon the naval staff, which has no navy to direct, continues day by day and month by month, that the Niobe is still in commission, even though in dry dock, and that the Rainbow is still catching Yankee poachers off the Queen Charlotte Islands. But, officially, the navy is already dead, at least, so it is said.

It will be interesting to see what the Government will do about it. A reply that it is the intention of Hon. J. D. Hazen to proceed to London to consult the Admiralty will not satisfy this Nationalist-Conservative, because that involves doing more than Laurier proposed, and the Nationalist Conservatives want nothing at all.

The Government cannot refer the proposal to repeal the naval law to the Privy Council, or they might be tempted to do so. They cannot repeal the Naval law without offending their English-speaking supporters, who are looking for contribution of millions to the Admiralty, and they cannot afford to tell their Nationalist friends that all the promises made prior to the formation of the Cabinet were worthless.

It is an interesting situation which the Liberals can enjoy. Theirs but to sit in the grandstand and laugh whilst the pro-navy men and the no-navy men in the Conservative party settle their difference.

GRANTS TO MILITIA ALARM THE FARMERS

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, JAN. 30.—Tory members from agricultural districts are alarmed at the extravagant expenditures proposed by the Militia Department under Col. Sam Hughes. It is reported that J. A. Best of Dufferin and H. B. Morphy of North Perth, are ready to make a public protest.

"Give me," he said, "one million men who can hit a target at 500 yards and we would not have a foe invade our country." Training should be begun in childhood, and at twelve years of age the boys should be where the soldiers are today in the matter of drill, and at fifteen they should be able to hit a target as well as a man.

"In five years from now," he said, "I want to have some hundreds of thousands of these youths trained to shoot and march. Then, when the brigade is called out it will not waste time on the goose-step, but will go through the practical manoeuvres that would be required in the field.

SOMETHING OF INTEREST ABOUT THE NEWMARKET CANAL

Editor of The Star,

As there is at present considerable talk about the Newmarket Canal, I would like to ask you to publish this letter, which may throw some light on it. In September, 1904, a public meeting was held in the town hall in Newmarket to consider the question of increased freight rates. This meeting was addressed by Sir William Mulock, Hon. Mr. Davis, the Mayors of Newmarket, Aurora, and the reeves of outlying townships.

At this meeting it was proposed to try and get connection with the Trent Canal system via Holland River, which was but four miles away. The Trent Canal Extension Association was formed.

Meetings were held in Aurora, Holland Landing, Newmarket, and other places. The various township councils took up the work and in the end a large deputation was sent to Ottawa. This deputation was made up from Aurora, Newmarket, Holland Landing, East Gwillimbury, Whitchurch, King, West Gwillimbury, Bradford, and other places. The understanding from the start was that it was to be kept out of politics. In the photo of the deputation which I enclose may be seen a large number of both Liberals and Conservatives.

The deputation spent two days in Ottawa and waited on the Cabinet. The speakers produced a map, and gave an outline of the district that would be served by this canal. They stated that this district was one of the oldest settled districts in Upper Canada, and had never received any assistance from the Dominion Government.

It was pointed out that for many years the Government had been giving large grants for improving various towns and ports on the Great Lakes. This building up of the lake port towns had caused a considerable drain in the shape of industries and otherwise from inland towns and districts. This was an opportunity to repay some of this damage. This was a thriving district, large quantities of freight were handled both in and out, and a reduction in freight rates would be a general advantage.

The farmers pointed out the building of post offices, and other public buildings in towns was of no direct benefit to them. The opening up of this waterway would be a great benefit to them in lowering freight rates, etc. They spoke of the Quaker Oats Co. of Peterborough, who were purchasing large quantities of grain, etc., which could be sent in direct by this waterway.

One of the speakers reminded the Government that this waterway was the old national highway to the north, and much used in days gone by.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the work would receive due consideration and the work was later undertaken by the Dominion Government and has been almost completed.

It is this fact to which attention should be drawn. The heavy and expensive part is completed. The turning basin at Newmarket, the three locks, and all the bridges but one are finished. With the exception of some small work the canal is completed from Newmarket to Holland Landing. About two-thirds of a mile straight dredging would complete the canal into Holland River. The river requires some dredging in places, but this would not be a serious cost.

The engineers have always stated that there was plenty of water. The first section is now full of water, and a large flow going over the waste way.

The universal opinion throughout North York is that this work must be completed.

North Yorker.

Newmarket, Jan. 19.

Note.—Our correspondent sends us a group photo of the deputation of 1905 on the steps in front of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. Unfortunately the picture is rather dark to reproduce well in print. But we recognize the faces of many prominent and handsome citizens. We beg leave to report to Mr. Haughton Lennox, M. P., who is on record in Hansard as saying that he was not with the deputation, but that his name had been confused wih that of his cousin, Mr. T. Herbert Lennox, that while we find Mr. T. Herbert standing in the front row in the picture alongside Hon. Mr. Emmerson, there is, on the top step, in the back row, with his striking face turned slightly towards the centre of things, a gentleman who looks very much like Mr. Haughton Lennox, M. P. He should certainly see this picture.—Editor.

(From the Toronto World)

Says the Telegram: "The anti-home rule city and province may not know their own business as well as the Toronto World knows it". Which is a fair sample of the way in which The Telegram misrepresents or misreads a plain statement.

The World has not been concerned to tell Belfast what it should do. But it has tried to explain to numerous enquirers why Belfast acts as it does, and not as other parts of the British Empire in a like case have done. Why can Protestants and Catholics in Toronto live peaceably together and co-operate in politics, and not in Belfast? Why can Protestants and Catholics live peaceably together in Montreal and co-operate in politics and not in Dublin It may be said that to a small extent they do. Why they do not to a greater extent is the point to be explained.

We believe the misunderstandings fostered by English politicians, and the efforts of partisan newspapers to maintain prejudices, are largely the causes. The Telegram itself in the article we have quoted adds its weight on the side of separation. English people seem to enjoy egging on the two Paddies to a fight. If one-quarter the effort had been made to bring about peace that has been expended in setting Ulster and Munster by the ears, Ireland to-day would have been as united as Scotland. But Scotland isn't united, some one will object. No country is entirely united internally, but Scotland is united against England, just as Canada is united against the United States. Ireland is not a unity to outsiders, and the outsiders, since the time of Henry II., have kept stirring up strife in Ireland.

The Telegram misrepresents the whole situation in Ireland by suggesting that taking Montreal out of the Province of Quebec, or taking Toronto out of the Province of Ontario, represents the case in which Belfast finds itself. Nothing could be more misleading.

If it were proposed for the first time to erect Quebec into a province and give it a local legislature, which means home rule, and Montreal rebelled and said she would fight first, that would be a parallel. Or if Ontario were getting a legislature for the first time and Ottawa declared she would never consent to be ruled by Protestant Toronto, it would more nearly represent the situation. There are far more Catholics proportionately in Belfast than there are Protestants in Montreal, and Toronto is much more of a Protestant town than Belfast. Nor is the proportion in numbers merely. There are wealthy and influential Catholics in Belfast, and the greatest Protestant employer of labour and one of the wealthiest men, Lord Pirrie head of the Harland & Wolff shipyards, is a home ruler. As far as that goes, all the greatest home rule leaders have been Protestants, and it was the Protestant north that protested most against the union in the first place. Irishmen will never settle the matter with their coats off and their fists up, but as this is the characteristic attitude of The Telegram, not much sympathy can be expected from it for other methods.

The World believes that the Irish people would get along very well if their leaders would endeavour to lead them away from ignorance and prejudice, and teach them something of the facts. They have nothing to fear of each other. Indeed, any North of Ireland Orangeman will undertake at any moment to fight six Papists. Ulster Protestants cannot, therefore fear the actual four-to-one odds. But lest the Telegram takes this seriously, let us say we are addressing Irishmen who appreciate a joke.

But for the Telegram itself we might point out that very little has been done to make the two Irish hosts acquainted with the grounds of their separation. How often do we hear, for example, that William III. fought the battle of the Boyne as the ally of the Pope and with the Pope's benediction, and that William fought for the freedom of the Catholics as well as Protestants? If that were made clear to both parties would it not lead to a better understanding?

And how many Protestants are aware that the Bible, so treasured by Orangemen, published in 1641, is in the New Testament simply a version of the Douai Testament published in 1582, 29 years previously; and that the Douai version of the Old Testament was published in 1609, two years before the authorized version?

An immense amount of misunderstanding exists over the whole Irish question. It is not altogether a religious difficulty. The chief bitterness has been economic. In Munster and Leinster, with occasional exceptions, Catholics and Protestants dwell together on the best of terms. In Ulster there is an armed neutrality, largely the result of the temperament of the people. Their leaders tell them not to listen to the other side. When they find themselves in danger of hearing the other side they resort to violence. What else could be expected? The Telegram well understands the bitterness of having to listen to the other side of an argument. It is much easier to howl down the arguments. But when North of Ireland people come to Canada and see home rule in operation they marvel at what that staunch Protestant Standish O'Grady calls the "fatal enchantment" that keeps Ireland at war with herself.

No Change In The Petes Line-up For To-night

Goal—Derocher.
Point—Bearss.
Cover—Bond.
Rover—Giroux.

This will be the line-up of the Peterborough intermediates in the decisive battle for district honours at Lindsay to-night. This is the same team that has battled through five successive victories so far this season, and the players are determined to make it six straight by adding another win to-night. The men are in the pink of condition and look fit to play the game of their lives. Kelly received a bad cut with the puck in the last practice, but the injury, although painful, is not serious. An enormous crowd of fans are going up to Lindsay for the battle, extra accommodation being provided on the special train, which leaves sharp at 7 o'clock. Those who have not yet purchased their tickets will be able to buy them on the train. The Rooters' Club is going up in a body and undoubtedly the biggest crowd that ever left Peterborough on a hockey excursion will be in line to-night.

BURGOYNE IS REFEREE JACK SPRATT NOT PLAYING

(Lindsay Warder.)

The battle of battles will be fought in the Lindsay street arena to-morrow night when the Lindsay and Peterborough sevens will clash for intermediate honours. Every available inch of space will be taken up in the rink and it will be a battle royal from the drop of the puck until the game is ended.

It is needless to say that Lindsay must win regardless of consequences. Every man in the Lindsay team is keyed up to his highest tension and each one of the players are like a cross-cut saw, it will take two men to handle them. Victory can be seen shining upon their faces to-day and we are satisfied that Wednesday's edition of The Daily Warder will be able to have a flaring headline saying, "They went, they played, and they conquered."

Let every rooter and tooter be on hand to enthuse our boys on Tuesday evening and see them assert their superiority over the Petes.

A few minutes before going to press The Warder received a long distance call from Toronto to the effect that Burgoyne would referee to-morrow night's game between Lindsay and Peterborough, and that the Lindsay club was refused permission to play Jack Spratt, the speedy rover. The line-up will be the same as that which played at Trenton namely: Goal, Gamble; point, P. Spratt; c. point, Roberts; rover, Stoddard; centre, Denison wings, Cote and Cain.

In case Lindsay win to-morrow night home and home games will be played on Thursday and Tuesday night.

(Lindsay Warder)

On Saturday last eight pedagogues from the Peterborough seats of learning visited Lindsay and entered into a friendly game of curling against two local rinks, also composed of gentlemen who endeavoured to teach "the young idea how to shoot".

Two good games were played, enjoyed alike by players and spectators and although sixteen ends comprised the game, the teachers showed condition by finishing their games as fresh as daisies in the summer time, the Lindsay pedagogues being ahead of tally by seven points.

Skip Trask was pitted against his former teacher at Orillia, Mr. R. H. Kenner, and succeeded in beating him by 8 points. Skip Lucas had a strenuous up-hill game against Skip Colling, one of the Peterborough cracks. Skip Colling is a good lawn bowler and also some curler; a five-end near the finish, gave the Peterborough skip a good lead. However, on the last end Skip Lucas was only one down and on the final end it looked as if the Lindsay skip would win out, but curling is a slippery game, and, by good curling counted one and winning the game.

Both games were well played and the Peterborough teachers promise their Lindsay brothers a stiff argument when the return games are played. The rinks:

J. F. Harvey	D. L. Somerville
Peterborough	Lindsay
J. W. Kelly	D. A. MacKay
D. Walker	D. A. MacKenzie
R. H. R. Kenner	J. A. Traek
Skip . . . 9	Skip . . .18
J. W. Frith	T. A. Kirkconnell
G. A. Ferguson	G. A. Manning
S. J. Stubbs	E. A. Miller
G. F. Colling	G. A. Lucas
Skip . . .13	Skip . . .11

The Scotch curlers came, saw and have departed without winning a contest in Toronto. Saturday afternoon they took on four rinks of West Toronto, Aberdeen, and Scarboro curlers, and were beaten 7 shots. In the evening the Torontos took them into camp, by 28 shots. Sunday morning the contingent went to St. Andrew's church, and in the afternoon they departed for Hamilton, where they will remain until Wednesday.

HOCKEY

In a lightning fast game of hockey on a fast sheet of ice at the Sacred Heart rink Saturday evening the Armature Department forced the Meter Department to foot the bill for an oyster supper. Both teams were in excellent condition and for the first ten minutes not a goal was scored. However, Mesley, Mowry and Leahy in a neat three-man combination, made the rush of the game and Leahy found the nets of the Meter Department. The Meter boys then retaliated and Cook and Park made a neat rush, and with a strong shot by Park, a goal was registered for the Meter Department, leaving the half time score 1-1.

After a brief rest they went after the rubber again and by the way the boys on both sides worked, one would think the result of the game would be a tie. After twenty-eight minutes of play, however, the Armature Department got away, and with a neat pass from Mowry to Leahy and a strong shot by the latter, another count was made for the Armature boys. For the remaining two minutes the Meter Department worked hard to tie the score but to no avail.

The boys who wind the armatures with equally hard work, succeeded in holding their opponents down and by a final score of two to one succeeded in winning the oysters they so well deserved.

Both departments were well represented. Leahy, Mowry, Mesley and Wilson were very good on the forward line and Boycotte, Muller and Leal were well night invincible on the defence.

The Meter boys showed some classy team work too, but Cook's and Park's rushes were a little too weak for the defence on the Armature side. Bonner, LaPlante and Williams played a great defence game, but to no avail. Mesley came in very handy for sweeping the ice and had an able assistant in LePlante. The line-ups were:

Arm Dept.		Meter Dept.
	Goal
Leal		Bonner
	Point
Muller		LePlante
	Cover-Point
Boycotte		Williams
	Rover
Leahy		Cook
	Centre
Mowry		Parks
	Left Wing
Mesley		Bennett
	Right Wing
Wilson		Ferguson

POLICE COURT

John Donoghue, a vagrant, was given two months in the county gaol at hard labour, at this morning's session of the Police Court.

James Hattery and Alfred Stephens, were arraigned on two charges, one of being drunk and disorderly, and the other of resisting the police, when the latter attempted to arrest them. Stephens was charged with assaulting Detective Newhall. Both pleaded guilty, and were fined $10.00 and costs.

The Chief stated that the two men had been raising a disturbance at the King George Hotel, and Detective Newhall and P. C. Brown were sent to get them. The Chief stated that about three weeks ago, Hattery, who has only been in the country six months, broke his ankle in the cells while attempting to get out. He was eight days in the hospital at this time. In the present instance they fought the police all the way from the hotel, and resisted to the very last.

The Scotch curlers came, saw and have departed without winning a contest in Toronto. Saturday afternoon they took on four rinks of West Toronto, Aberdeen, and Scarboro curlers, and were beaten 7 shots. In the evening the Torontos took them into camp, by 38 shots. Sunday morning the contingent went to St. Andrew's church, and in the afternoon they departed for Hamilton, where they will remain until Wednesday.

HOCKEY

In a lightning fast game of hockey on a fast sheet of ice at the Sacred Heart rink Saturday evening the Armature Department forced the Meter Department to foot the bill for an oyster supper. Both teams were in excellent condition and for the first ten minutes not a goal was scored. However, Mesley, Mowry and Leahy in a neat three-man combination, made the rush of the game and Leahy found the nets of the Meter Department. The Meter boys then retaliated and Cook and Park made a neat rush, and with a strong shot by Park, a goal was registered for the Meter Department, leaving the half time score 1-1.

After a brief rest they went after the rubber again and by the way the boys on both sides worked, one would think the result of the game would be a tie. After twenty-eight minutes of play, however, the Armature Department got away, and with a neat pass from Mowry to Leahy and a strong shot by the latter, another count was made for the Armature boys. For the remaining two minutes the Meter Department worked hard to tie the score but to no avail.

The boys who wind the armatures with equally hard work, succeeded in holding their opponents down and by a final score of two to one succeeded in winning the oysters they so well deserved.

Both departments were well represented. Leahy, Mowry, Mesley and Wilson were very good on the forward line and Boycotte, Muller and Leal were well night invincible on the defence.

The Meter boys showed some classy team work too, but Cook's and Park's rushes were a little too weak for the defence on the Armature side. Bonner, LaPlante and Williams played a great defence game, but to no avail. Mesley came in very handy for sweeping the ice and had an able assistant in LePlante. The line-ups were:

Arm Dept.		Meter Dept.
	Goal
Leal		Bonner
	Point
Muller		LePlante
	Cover-Point
Boycotte		Williams
	Rover
Leahy		Cook
	Centre
Mowry		Parks
	Left Wing
Mesley		Bennett
	Right Wing
Wilson		Ferguson

POLICE COURT

John Donoghue, a vagrant, was given two months in the county gaol at hard labour, at this morning's session of the Police Court.

James Hastery and Alfred Stephens, were arraigned on two charges, one of being drunk and disorderly, and the other of resisting the police, when the latter attempted to arrest them. Stephens was charged with assaulting Detective Newhall. Both pleaded guilty, and were fined $10.00 and costs.

The Chief stated that the two men had been raising a disturbance at the King George Hotel, and Detective Newhall and P. C. Brown were sent to get them. The Chief stated that about three weeks ago, Hastery, who has only been in the country six months, broke his ankle in the cells while attempting to get out. He was eight days in the hospital at this time. In the present instance they fought the police all the way from the hotel, and resisted to the very last.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH ASSOCIATION HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

The third annual banquet of St. John's Church Association was held last evening in the Sunday school room under most auspicious circumstances. Commencing at 7.30, and continuing for three hours, the event was one of unalloyed interest and significance to the seventy odd guests who sat down to the feast of good things, provided for mental assimilation, as well as the physical needs of those present. With Mr. R. J. Devey, as the moving spirit in the chair, the meeting passed off without a single incident that would tend to mar its progress.

The programme opened with a few brief remarks from the chairman, and was followed by a toast to the king, and the singing of the national anthem. A toast to the ladies, in recognition of the splendid work performed by them in supervising the affairs pertaining to the catering, was proposed by Mr. Wainwright and responded to on behalf of the ladies by Mr. A. H. Stratton.

A general discussion was then entered into with a view to obtaining ideas and suggestions for the further propagation of the good work already carried on by the various organizations of the church. Mr. Devey broke the first ice by saying that the main object of the discussion was to ascertain whether the Association was doing its duty as men towards the church. "In the Anglican church" declared the speaker, "the greatest source of weakness lies in the lack of interest manifested in the Sunday school." He also sprung a surprise to many when he announced that he had only one man teacher in the Sunday school of St. John's church, and that was Mr. Firth of the Collegiate Institute staff.

Results Wanted.

Mr. Elmer, a member of the Association committee, touched on the question of getting results. "This is the third banquet we have held under the auspices of the Association, and they have all been a success, but how about results," said the speaker. The objects of these events were to introduce new life and to foster a stronger spirit of brotherhood, and last, but not least, to get results. He then announced that a meeting of three days' duration would be held during the begining of Lent, with a view to stimulating interest in the various movements connected with the church. Canon Gould, General Secretary of the Mission work in Canada, and Canon Allen, assistant secretary, will conduct the meetings.

Mr. Cluxton, President of the Association, dealt briefly with the Sunday school work of the church. He said that he was deeply interested in this especial branch of church work, and that he regretted the fact that there was such a dearth of teachers. Several attempts had been made from time to time to overcome this drawback, but without success. He suggested as a remedy the procuring of teachers for three or six months' periods. Many could be induced to take charge of a class for a short period who would be unwilling to assume the responsibility for a longer term, and in the event of them becoming enamoured with the work, which in many cases would result, they could be drafted into the permanent corps. He also favoured a supply of teachers to substitute absentees and advocated enlisting the services and the warm hearted support of the young men.

Mr. Warren Deane, secretary of the Sunday school, corroborated Mr. Cluxton's remarks re enlistment of the services of the laymen and young men of the church to assist in advancing her interests.

Mr. Campbell here took occasion to ask of the chairman as to the absence of the clergy.

Mr. Deveyexplained that an invitation had been extended to them, but owing to a pressing engagement at St. Luke's church they would not be present until a late hour.

Mr. Stratton expressed himself as being in variance with Mr. Cluxton's remark as to the church going down hill.

Mr. Conway spoke of the need of more workers in the Sunday school, and a more progressive system of perseverance. "We dont' need to look back on the past, but look ahead," said Mr. Conway in conclusion.

Mr. Kingdon in speaking of the organized Adult Bible class, gave a brief synopsis of the work accomplished by the organization. Since its inception, it had met with signal success, backed up by as progressive a body of men as one would wish to see. The motto of the class was, "that a man is only a stranger once." The promotion of Bible study was the first object, and the cultivation of good fellowship the second object.

Sharp at ten o'clock, Rev. Canon Davidson entered the hall amid a round of applause from the assembled gathering, and was followed ten minutes later by Rev. Ben Oliel of Lakefield.

Mr. A. H. Stratton, representing the Wardens, gave a brief summary of the financial aspect of the church, which in view of the unforseen expenses which had been incurred during the past year, were very encouraging.

Mr. Pitchford, representing the Brotherhood of St. Andrew's, outlined the work accomplished by the Society during the past year, and expressed the hope that the members would rally to the support of the society during the ensuing year.

Mr. Coleman, as a representative of the Society, called upon the members to exert themselves to a greater degree of progressiveness.

Mr. Jay, whose work in the church was described by the chairman, as being silent and effective, told how he had been endeavouring to further the interests of the church. He had no regrets to offer as a member of St. John's church, and in him they would always find a firm supporter.

Mr. Jas. Bell also spoke briefly on matters pertaining to the Brotherhood.

Mr. Jameson, as director of the Literary Dept., dealt with the question of literary work and its relation to the formation of human character.

Canon Davidson, upon being called to speak, hoped that the banquet would be a strengthening and stimulating factor towards improvement.

Rev. Ben Oliel wished the members of St. John's church God speed and success in the work, which they were endeavouring to further.

The singing of the national anthem concluded the programme for the evening.

Solos by Messrs. Flower, Roberts and Langley, with Mr. Devey as accompanist, enlivened the proceedings of the evening, as also did a reading by Mr. Jameson. Mr. Langley, who is a new comer to this city, has been associated with church work for about fifty-six years, and has been a chorister for fifty years. He can play or sing anything from the Sailors' Hornpipe on the tin whistle to an Italian opera. He responded to several encores by rendering a number of flute selections.

WHAT YOU HEAR IN OLD QUEBEC

"I Am Well, Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Gagnon, Riviere au Dore, One of Those Who Raise the Glad Shout of Good Health.

Riviere au Dore, Chicoutimi Co., Quebec, Jan. 29.—(Special).—"Yes, I am well, and I give all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills." Those words have been uttered again and again in almost every corner of the Province of Quebec. This time they come from Mrs. Joseph Gagnon, a well known young married woman of this place.

"My back and head ached and my limbs would swell," Mrs. Gagnon continues. "I always had a bitter taste in my mouth, and especially in the morning. Twelve boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Mrs. Gagnon's symptoms showed beyond a doubt that her trouble was from the Kidneys. Naturally she turned to the old reliable Kidney cure that had proved its worth in thousands of other cases. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills and she is well.

Kidney Disease is the greatest enemy the women of to-day have to fight. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure it. That's why they have earned the name "suffering woman's best friend."

COLD SPRINGS ENTERTAINMENT

The opening entertainment of the Coldsprings Public school, held on Friday night, was a grand success.

The schoolroom was filled by 8 o'clock. The inspector and trustees were invited on the platform and for three hours the audience listened to a very interesting and varied programme.

All of the scholars took part either in recitations, dialogues or in the patriotic choruses, "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada." Solos were rendered by Messrs B. Deyell and Hendry, both of whom were heartily encored. Miss B. Stinson gave a reading which was greatly appreciated. The Coldsprings orchestra delighted the audience with several high class selections.

About twenty of Coldsprings' young people showed their dramatic ability in two sketches, viz., 'Playing Gooseberry' and Fun in a Photograph Gallery. Both were enjoyed by the audience, the latter causing hilarity from start to finish.

Inspector Lees gave a most interesting and profitable address along the line of schools and school work. He also congratulated the section on having the finest rural school in the township.

Mr. Frank Kitney made a very efficient and energetic chairman, the entertainment was closed with the national anthem.

A Message From Mr. W. A. Bailey's Dog

Sir,—My master read Hydrophobia's cruel letter and I wag my tail when he says persons have more danger from two-legged dogs. A man often hits me with a whip just for fun, and boys throw stones when I am chained. But nothing can keep me away from duty, to guard and protect. Faithful always; ready to leave my food and follow my master through fire and water or against any enemies. When there is danger and deceit, my voice is always raised to warn, and though the world turns against him, I shall, till death, be true in spite of eugenical blasphemers, fakirs and exploiters.

Yours with a bark,

date the salary in asking for applications.

It was finally moved by Ald. Johnston and Duffus that the Council advertise for applications for the position of assessor; applicant to state salary and applications to be received until 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 3rd.

Ald. Anderson considered that if the salary to be paid was stated, a higher class of applicants would be received but the question was dropped, Ald. Johnston remarking, "This brings matters to a head, boys."

These George Street Poles.

Mayor Bradburn next introduced the time-honoured question of the removal of poles from the west side of George street, in the business centre. "Several years ago," he said, "the matter had been taken up with the G. N.W. Co. who sent their superintendent here. The ground was gone over and for a certain sum the company expressed their willingness to remove the poles objected to, but the question had been dropped. The Mayor stated that he had re-opened the question with the company, and the superintendent, W. J. Duckworth, had simply reviewed the steps that had been taken by a previous Council and stated that the company was willing to proceed now.

Ald. Buller outlined what may prove an easier solution, and on motion of Ald. Gordon and Gillespie, a committee composed of the Mayor, Ald. Buller, Duncan and Johnston was named to investigate the question for further consideration.

Sewer Assessment.

The question of the equalisation of sewer assessment was brought up by Ald. Anderson. "The cost of laying a sewer," he said, "varies according to the depth, the material through which it passes, and other conditions. On Cambridge street the men had to cut through solid rock. The by-law now allows the assessments to be equalized. In some cases, sewers are cut as deep as 19 and 20 feet; in others, it is probably no more than half that depth. Again, the cost of laying a twelve inch pipe is more than that involved in laying one of 9 in. Yet, the accommodation is the same to all who have connections. In East City the work is usually left until late in the fall, and the frozen ground simply adds to the cost of the work."

Ald. Anderson considered that the cost of laying sewers equalized and charged similarly to sidewalks. In other words, the cost would be pooled and divided equally among those affected, in future, by new sewers. He therefore moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the city engineer be instructed to average up and equalize the cost of laying sewers throughout the city during 1912.—Carried.

Mayor Bradburn cited the case of sewer work, near the corner of Homewood avenue and Belmont street, where the work had gone as deep as 25 feet in some cases, and in others, it was brought close to the surface.

Ald. Buller—"Are you going to refund to those who have been goldbricked?"

West Ward Walks.

Ald. Brown asked about certain sidewalks promised for the south side of Charlotte street, in his ward, but was asked by Ald. Buller to give the Board of Works a chance. This work was passed last year. "It's too early in the game yet, but it will be attended to with the others," Ald. Buller remarked.

Sanitary Inspector, Too.

Mayor Bradburn invited opinions on the question of appointing a sanitary inspector.

"We passed a milk by-law," he said, "but it will be of little use unless some one is appointed to inspect the cow barns, to investigate the handling of the milk before it comes to the city, and to examine the manner in which it is dealt out to city consumers. An inspector would also have to look after the inspecting of yards in the Spring, and to see that the work was carried out. The Police Commissioners have asked for two new policemen, but the Chief says he can do with one if a Sanitary Inspector is appointed."

Ald. Gordon: "Would the Inspector have to examine cattle for tuberculosis?"

Mayor Bradburn thought that this should be one of his duties, and Ald. Gillespie stated that he understood there was quite a simple test for this.

Ald. Duncan suggested that the Police Commissioners appoint two men, one of them to do the work of inspecting.

"I think the work would be better done under our supervision," Mayor Bradburn replied.

Ald. Gordon: "That means another $700 a year".

"It may be possible to hook up this work with some other," the Mayor replied. "The Charity Relief Officer for instance maght take it."

Then followed an argument as to what the qualifications of the official should be, but Mayor Bradburn first asked if the Council intended to appoint a Sanitary Inspector. The answer was in the affirmative.

Ald. Anderson said he considered the work very important.

"It is one of the city's greatest needs. The work in previous years was not followed up sufficiently".

It was moved by Ald. Gordon and Duncan that a by-law be prepared for the appointing of a sanitary inspector, defining his duties and limiting his powers. — Carried.

The by-law will be considered first by the Property Committee, and then brought to the Council.

Ald. Johnston considered that the work for this official should be outlined first, and the man secured afterwards, but the matter was dropped.

Damages of $150.

Ald. Brown read a letter from Mr. D. O'Connell, stating that $150 would be accepted in the settlement of the Millborough claim against the city if paid this week. On motion of Ald. Brown and Buller, it was decided to accept this sum as a settlement.

A letter from G. W. Hallon, representing the C.P.R., asked the city for a piece of land of about one-tenth of an acre along the water front between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie streets. This property is under water, but if filled in can be used by the company in making an easier curve in what is known as the spur line.

But Can She Make Bread?

The Charlotte (Kentucky) Chronicle has the following modest appreciation of a bridegroom and bride:

The groom is a successful physician of Henriette, a young gentleman of splendid worth and brilliant promise, for he is endowed by birth and training with all the noble impulses and winsome traits that adorn true manhood. The bride is a lady of wondrous fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for with manner as enchanting as the wand of a siren, and a disposition as sweet as the odours of flowers and spirits as joyous as the carollings of birds, and mind as brilliant as those glittering tresses that adorn the brow of winter, and with heart as pure as dewdrops trembling in a coronet of violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment, like the lovely home of her girlhood, where the heaven-toned harp of marriage, with its chords of love and devotion and fond endearments, sent forth the sweetest strains of felicity that ever thrilled the senses with the rhythmic pulsings of ecstatic rapture.

SECOND ANNUAL CONVENTION

Realizing this terrible and only too true fact, he appealed to the audience to exercise this power and do their utmost to vote it down.

Mr. Cunningham pointed out that the revenue we get from this extensive industry is about $1.00 in $25.00. With this $1.00, gaols, children's shelters, homes, orphanages, etc., had to be provided for. In concluding, the speaker hastened to show that this traffic not only robs the public, but does to a greater degree and extent than a highwaymnn could; for it robs the man of his character and the family of their livelihood.

Mr. A. B. Spence.

Mr. A. B. Spence stated that the Alliance was working along definite lines in temperance work, in the Province, and they were doing so independent of party. He emphasized the fact that there was an inevitable conclusion to this work, which, of course, was the abolition of the liquor traffic. Referring to the statement often made to the effect that the temperance workers were beginning at the wrong end, the speaker clearly pointed out that men drink whiskey, not to support the brewers, though they do this, but to quench a thirst and desire within them, and therefore, by stopping the consumption and appetite, the distillers and brewers will gradually, though inevitably be driven out of business. Local option also did away with treating at the bar. The speaker pointed out, as a strong point in favour of local option, that the youth generally gets his first drink at the bar, and not because he has a desire to go in and get it, but because his chum coaxes him in. It is the social custom that extends the liquor traffic, and draws the young man into the snare, from which he never gets free.

The speaker emphasized the fact that because our neighbouring towns have licenses that is nor reason why we should refuse to vote "dry". The fact that there is local option in Lakefield, does not interfere with the license holders in Peterborough, but the license holders in Peterborough do interefere with the local option in Lakfield.

Regarding the figures issued recently by the Government as regards the consumption of liquor in the Dominion, the speaker stated that they showed an increase over the previous years, but it was not fair to compare one year with another in that manner, as, of course, figures could not lie, but liars can figure.

When local option has passed, the speaker stated the condition has improved wonderfully. There was not so much crime and not quarter the number of poor people.

"In Ontario, three-fifths of the people are in favour of local option. Then, why can we not have Provincial prohibition?" asked the speaker. The audience clearly exhibited its sentiments in the matter by enthusiastically applauding.

The speaker went on to point out that every local option campaign, whether successful or not, was successful to a degree, inasmuch as it was a great moral educator.

Dr. W. S. MacTavish.

Dr. MacTavish, the Field Secretary for Peterborough County, was then called upon to speak a few words. He said that temperance work was a great cause and worthy of the greatest efforts of all. He pointed out that 75 per cent. of the criminals were such characters because strong drink had made them that way.

After a few other remarks the reverend speaker expressed his sincere gratification at the success of the convention, and he was sure that it would have a most beneficial result.

After a few other remarks the reverend speaker expressed his sincere gratification at the success of the convention, and he was sure that it would have a most beneficial result.

Mr. A. E. Kennedy of Lakefield, Mr. W. H. Wood, Otonabee, and Mr. Andrew Fair of Smith, were chosen as correspondents.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION
"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

COLD SPRINGS ENTERTAINMENT

The opening entertainment of the Coldsprings Public school, held on Friday night, was a grand success. The schoolroom was filled by 8 o'clock. The inspector and trustees were invited on the platform and for three hours the audience listened to a very interesting and varied programme.

All of the scholars took part either in recitations, dialogues or in the patriotic choruses, "The Maple Leaf" and "O Canada." Solos were rendered by Messrs B. Deyell and Hendry, both of whom were heartily encored. Miss B. Stinson gave a reading which was greatly appreciated. The Coldsprings orchestra delighted the audience with several high class selections.

About twenty of Coldsprings' young people showed their dramatic ability in two sketches, viz., 'Playing Gooseberry' and 'Fun in a Photograph Gallery. Both were enjoyed by the audience, the latter causing hilarity from start to finish.

Inspector Lees gave a most interesting and profitable address along the line of schools and school work. He also congratulated the section on having the finest rural school in the township.

Realizing this terrible and only too true fact, he appealed to the audience to exercise this power and do their utmost to vote it down.

Mr. Cunningham pointed out that the revenue we get from this extensive industry is about $1.00 in $25.00. With this $1.00, gaols, children's shelters, homes, orphanages, etc., had to be provided for. In concluding, the speaker hastened to show that this traffic not only robs the public, but does to a greater degree and extent than a highwayman could; for it robs the man of his character and the family of their livelihood.

Mr. A. B. Spence.

Mr. A. B. Spence stated that the Alliance was working along definite lines in temperance work, in the Province, and they were doing so independent of party. He emphasized the fact that there was an inevitable conclusion to this work, which, of course, was the abolition of the liquor traffic. Referring to the statement often made to the effect that the temperance workers were beginning at the wrong end, the speaker clearly pointed out that men drink whiskey, not to support the brewers, though they do this, but to quench a thirst and desire within them, and therefore, by stopping the consumption and appetite, the distillers and brewers will gradually, though inevitably be driven out of business. Local option also did away with treating at the bar. The speaker pointed out, as a strong point in favour of local option, that the youth generally gets his first drink at the bar, and not because he has a desire to go in and get it, but because his chum coaxes him in. It is the social custom that extends the liquor traffic, and draws the young man into the snare, from which he never gets free.

The speaker emphasized the fact that because our neighbouring towns have licenses that is nor reason why we should refuse to vote "dry". The fact that there is local option in Lakefield, does not interfere with the license holders in Peterborough, but the license holders in Peterborough do interfere with the local option in Lakfield.

Regarding the figures issued recently by the Government as regards the consumption of liquor in the Dominion, the speaker stated that they showed an increase over the previous years, but it was not fair to compare one year with another in that manner, as, of course, figures could not lie, but liars can figure.

When local option has passed, the speaker stated the condition has improved wonderfully. There was not so much crime and not quarter the number of poor people.

"In Ontario, three-fifths of the people are in favour of local option. Then, why can we not have Provincial prohibition?" asked the speaker. The audience clearly exhibited its sentiments in the matter by enthusiastically applauding.

The speaker went on to point out that every local option campaign, whether successful or not, was successful to a degree, inasmuch as it was a great moral educator.

Dr. W. S. MacTavish.

Dr. MacTavish, the Field Secretary for Peterborough County, was then called upon to speak a few words. He said that temperance work was a great cause and worthy of the greatest efforts on all. He pointed out that 75 per cent. of the criminals were such characters because strong drink had made them that way.

After a few other remarks the reverend speaker expressed his sincere gratification at the success of the convention, and he was sure that it would have a most beneficial result.

After a few other remarks the reverend speaker expressed his sincere gratification at the success of the convention, and he was sure that it would have a most beneficial result.

Mr. A. E. Kennedy of Lakefield, Mr. W. H Wood, Otonabee, and Mr. Andrew Fair of Smith, were chosen as correspondents.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

"The Sea Serpent."

Sir,—The authorities should send an inspector to take measurements on the St. Lawrence in order to make comparisons with the monster of the Otonabee.

Yours, etc.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. Albert New has been appointed choir leader at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Mr. and Mrs. Cressman, Brock St., leave to-day for a month's stay in Florida.

Hon. J. R. Stratton is in Montreal to-day attending the annual meeting of the directors of the Canada Starch Co.

Miss De LaMatter, formerly superintendent of Nicholls Hospital, has accepted a position as superintendent in Petrolia.

Mrs. G. L. Stevens will not receive this Thursday, on account of her absence in Toronto, but will receive on Thursday, Feb. 8th.

Mrs. D. W. Macdonald, of Edmonton, and Miss Kerr of Cobourg, sisters of Mr F. D. Kerr, have been the guests of Judge and Mrs. Huycke.

Messrs. E. G. Gray and H. H. Gray have returned to Peterborough after attending the Superintendents' Convention of the Metropolitan Life in New York city.

Mrs. F. C. Elford and daughters of MacDonald College, Que., spent the latter part of the week at W. H. Elford's, Hunter street. They were en route for their new home in Buffalo, where the Professor has taken a position in the educational department of the Cyphus people of that city.

How the Dining Cars Are Supplied, etc.

The travelling public seldom or never give a thought as to how or when the dining cars are supplied with everything the season affords. They are often heard to express themselves on the excellence of the different viands, but never give it a thought of how it reaches the table.

The Canadian Pacific have at a considerable expense equipped new supply depots at Vancouver and Winnipeg. The latest models of mechanical refrigeration enable the department to keep in perfect condition the choicest supplies from outside markets, for example, midwinter fruits, vegetables, etc.

A refrigerated store-house has been erected at Sicamous Junction in which are gathered at the approach of the winter season the finest fruit and vegetables produced by British Columbia. Two of these are at the present time featured on the menu cards in the West — "Apples from the famous Okanagan Valley" and "British Columbia Championship Potatoes" (which won the $1,000 Championship Cup at the Irrigated Land Show in New York, November, 1911).

The Company has opened bungalows for the accommodation of its dining car employees at lay-over points, furnishing them with sleeping quarters, baths, recreation rooms, etc., and making them at least as comfortable as they would be at home. These facilities ensure the patrons of the Company being served by waiters in first-class physical and sanitary condition, and, in addition, every dining car employee is required to undergo, periodically, a medical inspection and to surrender a satisfactory certificate.

POLICE FEES TO GO TO THE CITY—ALD. GORDON'S SUGGESTION

"That all the fees earned by the police during 1912, and payable to them as witnesses for mileage or otherwise in the making of arrests, be turned over to the city treasury," was the wording of a motion passed by the Committee of the Whole Council last night, on motion of Ald. Gordon, who introduced the question, and Ald. Brown. Ald. Morgan was the only nay, and Ald. Graham was absent. Ald. Gordon stated that in criminal cases the police are allowed 17 cents a mile in making arrests and are also allowed witness fees. In some cases this amounts to a fairly considerable sum. Ald. Gordon had known the mto go as high as $16 or more.

Mayor Bradburn stated that these fees are pooled and divided equally among the aldermen. He did not think the total was more than $300 a year. This motion, of course, can only be presented to the Police Commissioners, who will deal with it as they see fit.

Chief Thompson stated to the Examiner to-day that during 1911 and 1912 the total for the two years was slightly under $200.

Celebrates 86th Birthday

Mr. Edward Green of Water street, who is one of the city's oldest residents, celebrates his 86th birthday to-day.

Mr. Green, though sixteen years beyond the allotted span of life, is possessed of all his faculties and could entertain a Massey Hall audience with tales of his experiences. In conversation with an Examiner reporter he recalled his passage to Canada from West Meath, Ireland, his birth place, in a sailing boat, which required seven weeks and three days to cross the ocean. This was in 1836, when he was but ten years old. He was one of a family of thirteen, all of whom accompanied him, with the exception of one, Erasmus, a Sergt.-Major in the 5th Dragoons, whose calling prevented his emigration.

Mr. Green was one of the founders of the old Peterborough Rifle Club, and when that club was reorganized and called the "57th" he remained as Qr.-Master Sergeant for a great number of years. He took part in the Fenian rad and was stationed at Camp Thorold. Some of the older residents of the city will remember him in connection with the market, which was conducted by him for some years. He is the last of his family and has been a resident of the city for the long space of sixty-six years.

Richeson's Name Was Dropped

Special to The Examiner.

BOSTON, MASS., JAN. 30 — The Baptist Ministers Conference this morning dropped the name of Rev. Clarence Richeson, confessed murderer of Avis Linnell, from the ministerial rolls.

Officials Resign

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, JAN. 30.—The first big scheme of municipal ownership in Canadian West, reached a crisis today when the manager superintendent of construction and chief engineer of Light and Power Department of Winnipeg resigned because they said the Board of Control interfered with the proper operation of business. The situation is very serious and the mayor is doing his best to patch up the trouble, but the officials decline to reconsider the resignations unless the Board stops their interference in the selection of employees and general working of the department.

SLIPPED INTO MILE RACE

EMBRO, ONT., JAN. 30.—While tobogganing last night the young son of Andrew Hamilton, a local miller, slipped into the mill race. The body was found this morning a hundred feet under the ice, which had to be chopped open to get it out.

RECIPES FOR HOUSEWIVES

PARSNIP FRICASSED

Fry small cubes of salt pork until brown; then add four raw parsnips cut into small pieces after scraping, allowing a quarter cupful of pork to each four parsnips. Cover with boiling water and simmer until the vegetables are tender; drain off the water, adding sliced potatoes, cooked tender, and sufficient milk to cover. When this boils season to taste with pepper and salt and add a lump of butter; then turn into a hot dish containing squares of toasted bread an inch thick. This is a good luncheon or supper dish.

COFFEE FRUIT CAKE

One cup of molasses, one cup of brown sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of raisins, one cup of English currants, one egg, one cup of coffee (left over), one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoon each of cloves, cinnamon, and allspice, four cups of flour; mix well and bake one hour in a slow oven. This quantity makes one large cake, or enough for six meals in a family of five. It is improved by the addition of two eggs.

Explanation and Thanks

ROBT. FAIR & CO., Ltd.

Wish to thank the people of Peterboro and surrounding country for the splendid response that came during the recent great sale. The very heavy liquidation of their big stock which was brought about was done entirely without profit to the Store—all benefits going to the patrons of the sale. The reasons for Mr. Fair's contemplated retirement are just as urgent as ever but the opportunity for relinquishing his interests has not quite materialized. In the meantime the business of the Company will and always will be continued.

Every department will be kept fully equipped and amply supplied with the most reliable merchandise and with the same high standard of quality maintained throughout that has hitherto characterized this store. The Superintendents of the departments and selling staff with few exceptions will not undergo any change.

All courtesies and conveniences in the way of Open Accounts will be available and continued as in the past.

In order to relieve Mr. Fair to as great an extent as possible, Mr. George S. McCartney, for a long period a valued employee, and Mr. Arthur D. Wood who has been in the service of the Company since entering as an apprentice, both young men of splendid dry goods experience, will be promoted to more responsible positions, thereby making the management a much less arduous undertaking.

Mr. Fair feels that he owes this explanation to the public and in doing so emphasizes his thanks for the material assistance his patrons have been in furthering the object he has in view.

EXHIBITION WILL BE 4-DAY SHOW THIS YEAR

Enthusiastic Meeting of the Directors Held Last Night --Meetings Will be Held Every Month in Order to Discuss Important Features--Prospects Are of the Brightest

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year will be a four-day show, instead of three. This radical step in advance was decided upon at the first meeting of the new Board, which took place last evening at the office of Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons. There was a large attendance, practically all the members being present, and great enthusiasm was shown. Ald. Gillespie, Vice-President of the Exhibition occupied the chair.

The proposal to make the show a four-day one met with favour, and a motion to that effect was carried. The dates selected were Sept. 11, 12, 13 and 14.

It was decided to hold monthly meetings on the second Wednesday of each month. The first of the series will be held on the second Wednesday in February, at Hooper's Palm Parlours, when questions of importance will be discussed.

Every member of the Board is enthusiastic and the prospects for the 1912 exhibition are of the brightest.

MR. BURNHAM HANDS OUT ANOTHER RED HERRING

Editor Morning Times:

Sir,—It is highly amusing to read the frantic efforts of the "friends of good government" to show that Mr. Lancaster was betrayed. It may not be necessary to say it, but the fact remains that Mr. Lancaster, on the floor of the House on that memorable occasion, openly accepted the course ultimately agreed to by Mr. Borden.

I sent 500 copies of Hansard to Peterborough in care of Col. Miller, and it can be seen from this official report that in reply to Mr. Porter's questions both Mr. Borden and Mr. Lancaster accepted the course ultimately adopted, of sending both Lancaster's bill and a general stated case to the Privy Council. What more need be said?

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

This is another red herring, similar to the anti-home rule resolution of the Conservative Association of Carleton, to draw attention away from the main point in relation to the Ne Temere decree matter. Nobody has noticed any "frantic efforts" to show that Mr. Lancaster was betrayed. That's not the point. The electors were betrayed, especially a good many of them who voted to put the local candidate of the Borden party in Parliament.

They voted for him upon his distinct and explicit assurance that the Dominion Parliament had power to annul the Ne Temere Decree, and the companion distinct assurance that if the Conservative party got power there would be no more paltering with the question—legislation would be at once introduced to annul the "odious" decree.

The Government got power, and refused to act. A private member was put up to bring in a Bill for the Government to kill, and they killed it, and the member for West Peterborough helped by his vote to kill it. He went back on all his promises that influenced electors to vote for him. He had demanded that Sir Wilfrid Laurier be defeated, and he was defeated, for his stand in regard to the Ne Temere matter, and now Mr. Borden is lauded because he took the same stand as Sir Wilfrid Laurier took—namely, that Parliament had no jurisdiction in the matter.

Mr. Burnham has fooled his supporters. It is them he has betrayed. It is no question of the betrayal of Mr. Lancaster. He was only the man of straw put up to be knocked down, and he was knocked down.

Five million "copies of Hansard sent to Peterborough in care of Co. Miller" will not conceal the fact that the member for West Peterborough has gone back on his record; that he has voted contrary to what he declared could be done, and would be done, if he were elected—kill Ne Temere.

Squirm as he may, the member for West Peterborough can't escape from the blind alley into which his contradictory actions have led him. Mr. Lancaster may be willing to "lie down" and Mr. Borden may choose to shelve the Ne Temere matter, but the local champion of Prostestantism can't explain away the fact that he deceived the electorate into supporting him on the ground of his claim that if elected he would see that the Ne Temere Decree should be handled without gloves, should have things made hot for it, and not be put into cold storage, as has been done.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST HOME RULE AT BELFAST

Examiner Special:

BELFAST, FEB. 1.—Unmistakable signs of the strong determination of Ulster county to resist home rule were given to-day, when special trains from all parts of Ireland and special trains from Scottish and English coasts came, crowded with Protestants to take part in to-day's demonstrations against Home Rule. These took the form of street parades and meetings in churches and halls, addressed by prominent anti-Home Rulers. There was wild enthusiasm. Careful arrangements of the police prevented riots. Several speakers said nothing could prevent bloodshed if Churchill and Redmond persisted in their intention to speak here one week from to-day.

British Preference

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, FEB. 1.—The question of the increase of British preference will not down Senator McSweeney of Moncton, Neb., who will this afternoon ask in the Senate whether it is the intention of the Government to at this session to introduce a bill to increase preference.

The answer will, of course, be in the negative. The Government is sending all tariff matters to the tariff commission.

DAIRY COMP'Y TO BE FORMED

Proposal to Organize a Concern Similar to the City Dairy Co. of Toronto, to Pasteurize and Bottle Milk

RUMOUR HEARD TO-DAY

The formation of a dairy company similar to the Toronto Dairy Company is the tentative plan of a number of local men, according to a report that was heard on the street to-day.

The details of the proposition are unknown at present as the parties interested have not completed their arrangements. But it is believed that Peterborough has arrived at a stage to support such a company, which will utilise the most modern methods in the handling and delivering of milk.

According to what is known of the new concern it is the intention to pasteurize the milk handled to deliver in bottles and to make every provision to guarantee its purity.

The services of practical men will be engaged, an uptown depot will possibly be part of the equipment and particular emphasis will be paid to the securing of milk from absolutely healthy cows. This latter point is an important one these days when it is known that tuberculosis has been found in cows, and that consumers demand an assurance of provision against such conditions. The milk will be pasteurized, bottled and delivered to customers in as pure a state as is possible under modern methods.

One Year In Central Prison

Local Young Man Gets Heavy Sentence by Judge Huycke This Morning

SERIOUS CHARGE

Antoine Lasieur was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, by His Honour Judge Huycke, this morning.

Lasieur was arraigned before Magistrate Dumble, in the Police Court, a few days ago on a charge of seduction, and was sent up for trial. The victim was a little fifteen-year-old Patterson street girl.

A number of witnesses were called and all the evidence went hard against the defence.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood prosecuted, and Mr. G. N. Gordon assisted in the prosecution, and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared on behalf of the prisoner.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

WARM FIGHT IN MONTREAL

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, QUE., FEB. 1.—Citizens to-day are voting after the hottest municipal campaign in the history of the city. Libel suits totalling two hundred thousand dollars, have already been filed, following statements spoken and written during the fight. The chief interest is in the mayoralty contest, between Ald. Marcil and Ald. Lavallee, whose platforms are very far apart. The Temperance and Moral Reform organization took a prominent part.

Seven Years For Bob Cook

Special to The Examiner:

BRAMPTON, FEB. 1.—His Honour Judge McFibbon this morning sentenced Bob Cook to seven years in the penitentiary. Cook, who is familiarly known as the "Orangeville Outlaw," was convicted of sheep stealing some weeks ago, but was remanded for sentence. He has several times escaped from jail and bears an unsavoury reputation, although he is a member of a very respectable family in the County of Dufferin.

Parents Should Know

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of school children than usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some dull at school because of eye strain, some did not require glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate timely attention saves your child much misery, and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

ANOTHER THING TO GO AFTER.

The west is protesting against the removal of "flying post" mail train, which delivers their Toronto papers for breakfast. What would the west think of it had the wretched mail train service that brings us in Peterborough, our Toronto papers and letters, generally too late for mid-day dinner. The City Council and the Board of Trade might well put on their slates the question of securing a better amil service for Peterborough, especially from the west. Toronto is our Ontario metropolis and our extensive business dealings with the Provincial capital would be greatly faicilitated, if we could receive our mail matter from the west at an earlier hour of the day. While our aldermen ar ein the reforming mood, they should make a clean sweep. We need a great many things that we naturally look to our city fathers to get for us.

IMMIGRATION.

The Borden Government is doing the proper thnig in deciding that the Provinces must assume the responsibility of dealing with immigration interests on their own account. The Canadian West is particularly assigned to the Dominion Government, because the Dominion Government owns the lands, and is rightly charged with the responsibility for their settlement. The Dominion Government, by its enterprise in advertising the West, has made Canada, in Old Country eyes, mean the West. Now it is incumbent upon the provinces to look after their own immigration affairs. The provinces of the East own their lands, and are responsible for their settlement and development. The East and the West appeal to different classes of Old Country immigrants, and this suggests differentiation of methods, which will probably become practical by proposed Dominion legislation to give the Provinces complete control of immigration matters in which they are directly concerned.

A PRETTY STORY.

According to the despatch from Ottawa Lady Laurier is responsible for the fact that her husband is still the leader of the Liberal party.

According to the story, attributed to Sir Wilfrid himself, he promised his wife when he entered upon the last campaign that should defeat overtake him he would return to her, retire from public life and together they would carry out her cherished plan to live their closing years quietly and peaceably. When the disaster came he returned to his wife. She met him at the station, and her first words to him were, "You Must Fight On." And so what else could he do?

Lady Laurier's contribution to the stroy is, "Well you should have seen how his face lit up when I told him."

The story is worth preserving as a contribution to Canadian history. It is just such stories that make history real and vital. Too often the historian is content or compelled to satisfy himself with accomplished facts which lose much of their interest and their meaning because the influences behind them are unrecorded. The pages of sober history are a record of the sayings and doings of statesmen, warriors and others of more or less importance. But little is known or told of the influence exerted by the patient and self-suppressing wives, even when they wield the deciding influence. It s only in fiction that woman is allowed to play her equal, and often more than equal part, and for this reason fiction is often truer to life than history.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

RETAILERS AND PRICES.

Ministers of the Gospel are, as a rule, not noted for the possession of high business qualities; their mission is mainly altruistic, except occasionally in the matter of stipend. In their altruistic zeal they are often led to forget the practical side. A New York minister became beset by the idea that retailers were taking too much profits and thus contributing to the high cost of living, and has tried to justify his belief by demonstraton. He has had a shop opened, where the articles on sale may be obtained at exactly cost price. The experiment is said to be a success. A building has been obtained free of rent, salesmen have been secured willing to give their services for nothing. Every day is bargain day, and of course the shop is crowded with customers. But every retailer can't do business that way. He has to pay high wages; he has to pay a swinging rent; he has to pay insurance, taxes, etc.; he has to provide for losses from bad-pay customers, and he has to provide for reasonable profits on his investment, reasonable remuneration for his own services. When the matter is all thought out, it will be seen that the retailer is not the only sinner, not the only contributor to the high cost of living. The trade combines, the grasping middle man and the general advance in the cost of production through general increase of wages, are all factors. If the New York parson wants to give a demonstration worth anything of the rettilers grab for undue profits, he should conduct a retail business under the same conditions. He must pay rent, wages, insurance, etc., etc., as the retailer does. Then, if he sells goods at cost, cost of the goods from the wholesaler, he will be the wizard of the world; he will be doing the impossible. We must, in this queer old world, live up to the motto, live and let live. Before we ask a merchant of any kind to sell goods "at cost" we must count the cost; must include every item that constitutes a basis of cost. We get nothing in this world at cost. We are promised hydro-electric power "at cost" but we must count the cost; we don't get it free. The Gospel which the New York minister preaches—if he can get down to such a practical view of his duty—is theoretically free. But our churches, the machinery of the Gospel, the high salaries of ministers, the up-keep of luxurious churches, the expense of elaborate music, of organs worth a farm, are all to be counted in the cost of the free gospel. If the New York minister is consistent, he will try the experiment of furnishing religion at cost, with churches that cost nothing, with ministers and choir soloists without salary. When he succeeds in this he will have some right to "get after" the retailers. This world's affairs are uncomfortably complicated by the vapourings of unthinking and jumping-at-conclusions, theorizers — by amateur builders of social structures, daubing with untempered mortar.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Borden government is a government by commission, where it is not one of omission.

The efforts to keep Hon. G. P. Graham out of Parliament are strong testimony to his political and personal character.

Toronto's water system tends to drive its citizens to drink—something besides water. Some break-down is always shutting off the water supply. Now it is the filtering plant. Small hope for local option in a place that can't supply water to drink.

The West is too fertile; growing too fast. Wheat is produced beyond the capacity of the railways to move it to market. In one place, Veregin, in Saskatchewan, there are 500,000 bushels of wheat in one heap, exposed to the weather, and in danger of of rotting, if not moved, before wet weather sets in. And there are ten million bushels of wheat, flax, oats, and barley exposed to ruin from lack of transportation.

TO GIVE ADDRESS

His Honour Judge Huycke has consented to give an address on "The Investment of Influence," at the men's mass meeting and rally to be held under the auspices of the Helping Hand Bible class at the Park street Baptist church on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 11th, at 3 p.m.

No more vital subject could be brought up before young men to-day, than the right investment of influence, and no better speaker could have been secured for the subject than Judge Huycke, whose very calling brings him in contact with so many of our unfortunate brothers whose life influence was invested upon the wrong side and consequently have suffered. All men and boys are invited."—Com.

Sir Wilfrid Grandly Gold-Bricked By His Yukon Liberal Admirers

Unique Golden Birthday Gifts to the Evergreen Liberal Leader—His Address Full of Courage and Confidence

OTTAWA, JAN. 30.—In the presence of nearly all the Liberal members of Parliament gathered in the Opposition room on the Commons side, Mr. Fred. Congdon, ex-M.P., for the Yukon, presented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier this afternoon the unique birthday gifts of the Yukon Liberals to the Liberal leader. Mr. Congdon first read an address declaring the esteem and affection of his followers in the northland for the ex-Premier. The address was contained in a moose skin case with a miner's pick, shovel and gold pan scorched upon the outside. Reality was lent to the picture by the fact that a shower of genuine gold nuggets are being spilled from the pan.

As a little birthday present, there was a golden ink well, with a fringe of nuggets about the top. There was also a paper cutter of solid gold from end to end, weighing about a pound. On the handle was worked out a northern scene in raised gold. A platinum river winds down between hills of solid gold of varied shades, with clumps of spruce growing about their feet, while the midnight sun is rising above them. There are miners' cabins along the river and a big moose is moving down to investigate. The picture is framed in nuggets of generous dimensions.

Sir Wilfrid Replies.

Sir Wilfrid, who was greeted by several moments of enthusiastic cheering, feelingly expressed his appreciation and asked Mr. Congdon to convey his most cordial sentiments to the Liberals of the Yukon Territory. He had been deeply touched during the past three months by the multitude of very substantial evidences of attachment for him, not personally, but as head of the Liberal party.

"Both," cried Mr. Congdon, amid renewed cheering.

Continuing, Sir Wilfrid happily characterized the gifts as "the golden expression of a golden sentiment." Since the defeat of last autumn he had felt, as perhaps never before, the great warm hearts of Liberals of all Canada.

A Kick or Two Left.

"After all," he observed, smiling, "defeat has had for me many redeeming features. One cannot help but be moved by so many kind and affectionate evidences from those on every side. I have but one regret, that I am not so young as I used to be, but though I am pretty old, there is still a kick or two left in the old body. (Laughter and cheers.) We have our work to do, and our friends know that, while we are not over sanguine, we are both confident and cocky. A stranger looking on from the gallery of the Commons, day in and day out, would say: 'The victors are not on the right side but on the left side of Mr. Speaker.' We are having much more fun, and ours is a much more happy lot than theirs.

"No Temere" Predicament.

"This is Tuesday. Just one week ago now our boys were feeling very happy, while the other fellows were disconsolate," continued Sir Wilfrid. "The 'ne temere' decree debate did not contribute to make them happy, and I am afraid we were wicked enough to enjoy their predicament, and are wicked enough to enjoy the anticipation of other predicaments. By-and-bye, however, we may get tired of having all the fun, and may be called upon to take the responsibility, too. (Applause.) I don't say that we will be asked to do this today—(laughter)—or even to-morrow, but it may come the day after to-morrow. Having that in mind, it should be our aim and our duty to prepare now, while we are in Opposition, to resume the good work for Canada which we did when we were in office".

At the conclusion of his short address the gathering gave three hearty cheers for the Liberal chief, for the Liberals of the Yukon, and for Mr. Congdon, while the French-Canadian members led in the strains of "O Canada."

THE CANADIAN WEST AS THE FARMERS' PARADISE

Canada occupies a large place in the general periodical literature of Great Britain, which is a thing apart from the several interesting weekly organs that appear to have found prosperity in catering to Canadian interests in the British metropolis. World's Work for January, for example, has two articles on Canada—one by Frederick Niven, and the other by Frederick A. Talbot. Both are men with published books to their credit, and both deal with the West. Mr. Niven discusses the "Future of the Canadian Farmer," and Mr. Talbot deals with "The Supremacy of the British Farmer," a concession to the publication on both sides of the Atlantic, perhaps.

Mr. Niven tells of the Columbia Valley, its flowers and fruits and mineral prospects. Only about three thousand acres out of a million acres of good land in that valley have as yet been tilled in the Upper Columbia.

Kimpton's ranch is said to return five thousand dollars to six thousand dollars annually. Mr. Kimpton's potato statistics are worth noting: From 3 lb. of Uncle Sam potatoes he got 211 lb.; 3 lb. of Carmen No. 3, 237 lb.; 3 lb. Superior No. 7, 253 lb.

Again, "Mr. Bruce of Wilmar told me that he grew tired of the everlasting tinned things—tinned everything—for the camps on construction work, and, being interested in vegetable gardening, he made some experiments. Before long he was supplying the camps, for the company he represented, with valley-grown greens, cabbages, and brussels sprouts. The food question is always a big matter. I have seen a camp "shut down" because a busybody who had not the "savvey" came in to the place and sacked the cook for smoking in the kitchen. The new cook could not make pie. The men struck. The old cook was brought back. The men returned.

But pie is a poor attraction when fresh vegetables are even a greater attraction than a violinist. I know a camp that gets the pick of men because there is a violinist in it. He is on the books as a miner—and he is worth it. But with all respects and love for music, I think I would choose a fresh vegetable outfit if at the violin one they fed me on tinned goods".

Mr. Talbot strongly emphasizes the necessity for the British farmer who could achieve success familiarizing himself with Canadian farming methods, and for this purpose he suggests a period of probation in the older provinces along the St. Lawrence.

"A striking instance of the incapacity of the Canadian farmer," says the writer, "was offered me in Winnipeg. Large crops of potatoes had been raised and were safely gathered. The farmers however, were more ignorant of the methods of storing the tubers than the average small boy in rural Britain. They all threw their product upon the market at the same time, in the autumn, determined to realise what they could, rather than attempt to hold them during the winter. The result was that potatoes were so plentiful that they did not realize mor than 1s 7d per sack of 1 1-2 bushels. The growers were disgusted, and considered the return so disappointing as hardly to pay them for cultivation.

"Much is said about the wealth of the Western Canadian farmer. But the greater part of that wealth is hypothetical. What he makes in one short summer he often spends during the following winter, passing his time in enjoyment and usually out of Canada. When he returns to his farm the following spring, he has just sufficient to buy his seed and to meet current expenses until the next harvest comes round. Such farmers, and there are many of them, are of little value to Canada or any other country".

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many members of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers." — Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure those obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

By JOHN MARCH

"How?" he asked

"By marrying me soon — to-morrow!"

"My dear little woman," he expostulated, "what about preliminaries? There are several forms to be gone through before a couple can present themselves in a church or chapel or registrar's office for marriage. If you wish to be married in church, the banns must be published for three successive Sundays, or a license must be obtained. In either case, one of the parties must have resided in the parish seven or fifteen days."

"Of course you have, and know all about details, there you have the advantage of—"

"Listen darling," she interrupted, eagerly, toying with the edge of his coat collar, "I have a wedding ring at home and a special license made out all in due proper legal form. I have been living in the parish of Weyberne quite long enough, so everything must be valid and in order. If you are willing I can drive straight to the vicarage now and give notice for the ceremony to take place to-morrow morning at eight. You are willing, Paul? Oh, my darling, say you are willing!"

Austin Hare gazed at the beautiful face. He was disconcerted, bewildered by the rapidity of the arrangement, by the overwhelming force of her desperate nervous energy.

"But," he began, "suppose somehow in the hurry of this marriage things were afterwards found not to be exactly square? Often when one hastens through a serious matter which ought to have been undertaken in calm, temperate, deliberate thought, and performed openly and above board, a man is apt to find he has over reached himself. Suppose we found, through some neglected precaution, an illegality which would render our marriage null and void—no marriage at all—what then?"

"We should just solve the wonderful technical point, get it remedied, and go through the ceremony again."

"Yes, certainly, we could do that," he agreed.

"Are you willing?" she asked again her hands trembling on his arm, her heart in her eyes.

Hare was no longer master of himself. A slave of adventure, and elated by the vague blissful fear of unknown issues and the host of powerful influences encircling him, the temptation was keener than such a nature could withstand. Accordingly with his love for the mysterious and the woman's wonderful alluring beauty and mad onrush of passion actively bearing upon him, he threw all common sense and moral scruples to the winds and entered heart and soul into the spirit of Rowena Wycherly's scheme.

"Yes," he said decisively, "I am willing, provided you abide by any error, any crooked, unpleasant consequences."

She flung back her coat in conscious triumph and her hazel eyes and strong white teeth glittered in the moonlight. He cast a second glance along the platform. The squire was standing alone by the station exit, looking towards them.

"I must go,' he said reluctantly, 'Mr. Fleming is waiting for me; he is driving me to the hall."

"His dog cart is at the 'Popinjay,' you can join him there when you have have seen me to the carriage."

She took his arm and he led her down the platform. As they passed Feliz, Hare intimated that he would be at the hostel in less than two minutes. She stepped into the luxurious brougham, he let down the window, closed the door after her, and thrust his head through the aperture.

"Will you have the ring?" he asked smiling, and without waiting for an answer he tossed the simple little circlet into her lap.

"Won't you come up this evening and put it on" she pouted.

"No," he said, "I shall not have time, but whenever I do place a ring on your finger it shall be a decent one, Rowena."

"You won't deceive me, Paul?" she asked with a meaning smile.

"Deceive you," he echoed, startled, "how, in what way, Rowena?"

"I mean you will be at the church to-morrow morning and marry me?"

"If I am alive," he said solemnly, "I will be at Weyberne Church to-morrow morning ten minutes before eight, and make you my wife to the best of my ability. I am anxious to marry you as properly, as legally, as binding, as both the civil and religious rite can manage it, and no one can deter me save your own sweet self."

"Good night, au revoir," he whispered, and then stepping back, he looked up at the coachman and said, "The Vicarage?"

A scuffle of hoofs, the flutter and flash of a white jewelled hand, a glance of adoration from the loveliest women he had ever seen, and Hare was left alone bareheaded outside the wayside country station wondering in which direction he should turn to find the "Popinjay." There were three roads, one to the right and one to the left, and along the one directly opposite a woman's figure was advancing towards him. She slackened her pace as she drew nearer, and he saw she was young and comely, quite a rustic type of beauty, in all probability almost a stranger and unknown to the folk at the Hall, and on the spur of the moment he determined to ask her the way to the inn.

"Lor', Mr. Farley!" she said in surprise, her pretty dimpled face broadening into a wide smile, "you could have stopped and had speech with me without asking such a moonraker! I'm glad I've seen you, though, because mother was going to write to you to-morrow to ask you to come up to the farm and see her."

"Going to write to me, was she? What does she want to see me for?" he asked, wondering why Farley did not throw a side light on to such a contingency as this.

"Well, I'm not exactly a'pased to know," she said, laughing; "but she've gone and took a fancy into her head that you're a bit sweet on our Jennie, and accordingly she'd like to know the rights of the matter."

"Hum!" he said, amused, "walk with me to the 'Popinjay' and tell me about it. What makes mother think I am sweet on Miss Jennie?"

"I don't know, unless it's because Jennie's sweet on you?

"I am afraid that is scarcely sufficient cause to draw an effect, an inference from. I don't think I know much of this young woman, do I?" he asked slowly, feeling his way and furtively watching her. "Let me see, is it once or twice that I have spoken——"

"Oh, I don't know; it might be once, and it might be every day in the week, to hear Jennie going on about you, she——"

"What an extraordinary person she must be! Now that I have spoken to you will you return home and 'go on about me,' too?"

She looked slyly up at him sideways, and turning at the moment, he caught the cunning look before she could lower her eyes.

"No," she said with a bashful attempt; "I'm I-espoke, leastways, I could keep company with him if I chose."

"You don't want to tell me that," he answered knowingly, "but you're a sensible girl and understand the value of a pretty face. With all those young fellows hanging round, you know better than to take the first who offers, and I don't blame you. I wonder now how many sweethearts you and Miss Jennie can muster between you? I wouldn't mind betting any amount that you two girls take the cream of the parish. I expect mother has all she can do to keep peace in the parlour of an evening, and as to father, I should say his life is fairly plagued out of him always having one or other of those young farmers around borrowing his implements, looking at his pigs raising his crops, always round on some pretext or other."

She laughed consciously, bridled a little, and pulled out a flaxen curl or two from under her hat.

"Well, father has grumbled a bit since young Sims called off," she acknowledged, "he and Jennie were sweethearting all the summer, you see, and if they weren't spooning indoors under father's nose he'd be sure to find them down in the long meadow, or sitting on the chopped mangel in the barn. It worried father, he being a cold-blooded particular sort of man, and one day, about two months ago, he says to Bob in the cartshed, 'I say, Sims, Boxing Day is an off-day and a capital one for a wedding! Don't you think it's time, young man, to speak out and say whether you're going to take the girl then or no?' Bob went scarlet and then like whitewash, and looked fairly done. 'I can't marry Jennie,' he said; 'you know I work for father, and what I can just manage to screw out of him don't keep me, let alone a wife, and if father thought I was after marrying, he'd turn me off altogether.' 'If that's how you are situated,' father says, 'you leave the girl alone, and don't come nigh my place again.'"

Teacher Cured of Barber's Itch

Tells of Cures Among His Pupils That Were Remarkable

Raw, Inflamed, Itching Skin is Soothed and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Barber's Itch is a form of Ringworm, which, when once started, is most annoying and unsightly, and most difficult to cure. Barbers often refuse to shave anyone having this disease, for fear of passing it on to other customers.

But you can cure Barber's Itch and keep the skin wonderfully soft and healthy by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. Just read what this teacher has to say about the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. C. Poirier, Upper Caraquet, N. B., writes: "Two years ago while teaching at Shippegan I caught Barber's Itch. A friend told me Dr. Chase's Ointment would cure me, as it had him. When I went for a box I thought it dear, but when I found how good it was I thought it cheap.

"Not only was I cured by that single box, but it also cured two of my pupils, and this too quickly to be believed. One of them, a girl, had a running sore on the chin, which the doctor had tried in vain to cure. The other had a sore on the ear; water running out of it all the time. I can certify to the cure of these cases."

Wherever there is itching skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with positive assurance that the results will be entirely satisfactory. The soothing, healing power of this great ointment is truly wonderful. 60c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

MANY REQUESTS FOR CHARITY

But Quite a Number Who Were Formerly Assisted Now Have Their Own Homes

While the general conditions in Peterborough this year are highly satisfactory, those connected with the city's charity department state that there have been many requests for aid during the past month. An uptown grocer recently mentioned the amount of the charity bills passing through his hands this year and believed that there was as much charity as ever being given this winter. Relief Officer Miller states that there are many out-of-town people in need of aid. Some have come from other towns and have been living here for a time. There is one feature that is worth note and shows how new-comers to this country can settle down once they become acquainted with the conditions obtaining here. Mr. Miller states that a large percentage of those who were hard pressed during the severe winter when soup kitchens were established, are now living in their own houses and are comfortably circumstanced.

Successful Minstrel Show

A most successful minstrel show, conducted by Rev. P. J. Kelly and under the auspices of the T.A.S., was held at Norwood on Tuesday evening in the Town Hall.

Refreshments were served at the close of the performance and progressive euchre was played, the winners being Mr. P. English and Mrs. E. English.

Mr. E. Hanrihan, bass soloist.
Mr. G. Daly, tenor soloist.
Messrs. Barrett and McLaren, comedians.
Mr. D. Quinlan, clog dancer.
Mr. F. R. Clarke, banjo soloist.

The evening was a most delightful one and was much enjoyed by the local people who attended.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $3 and Fully Guaranteed.

Sixteen ounces of cough syrup — as much as you could buy for $3.00—can easily be made at home. You will obtain nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

FOR SALE AND RECOMMENDED BY McDERMID & JURY

Force of habit says "porridge should be cooked all night."

But that habit was formed a long time ago when people had to make porridge out of oatmeal instead of rolled oats.

Even yet some women through force of habit, are cooking Tillson's all night, though 15 minutes is ample.

They forget that where oatmeal was coarsely ground oats, Tillson's is thinly rolled oats. So filmy and thin are the Tillson flakes that they can be cooked as thoroughly in 15 minutes as the coarse particles of old-fashioned oatmeal could be in a whole night.

Tillson's Oats

Puree of Oysters

Bring a quart of oysters to boil in their own liquor. Drain. Chop the oysters fine. Return the oyster liquor to the fire. Add two tablespoonfuls of Tillson's Rolled Oats. Simmer fifteen minutes. Add the oysters, rub through sieve, return to fire, add one pint of milk and cream, cook carefully until boiling. Season and serve. If too thick another half cupful of cream should be added. If too thin add one beaten egg yolk.

Your grocer has Tillson's. Two sizes—25c and 50c. Each 25c package contains a handsome piece of English Porcelain Tableware.

JANUARY A COLD MONTH

Official Figures Recall Recent Severity of the Weather

While December, which is regarded as the first of our winter months, was comparatively mild and in great contrast to December of last winter, January must be credited with a considerable amount of zero weather, much more than the corresponding month of last winter.

The first time zero was reached this winter was on the 5th of January, when we had it 10 degrees below zero, and for the next two weeks we had below zero almost every day.

The lowest temperature during the month was on the 13th, with the low mark of 29 degrees below zero. The highest temperature was on the 1st, with 37 degrees above. The "January thaw" failed to materialize.

5th	10 below
6th	23 "
7th	12 "
8th	14 "
11th	10 "

We had snow on 9 days to the depth of 38 inches. There was rain on one day. Considerably over twice the depth of snow was on the ground at the end of the month as there was at the same date last winter.—W. P.

Will Abdicate

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., JAN. 31.— Despatches received here state that the Dowager Empress and Manchu princes have finally to terms of abdication with the provisions. It is not expected that they will leave Pekin for the present. A big section of the Imperialist army refuse to quit Pekin or permit princes to do so.

ONE POINT UNSETTLED

The late Senator Tom Carter, in the debate before the National Press Club of Washington as to whether a beard or a bald head was the greater disadvantage to a man, claimed that a beard was a wonderful help. Carter by the way had a beard which would make an alfalfa field look like an arid and dusty desert. Soon after the debate he received from one of his Montana friends this communication: "Dear Tom: Your speech on whiskers seems to settle all the disputed points except one. What we can't decide out here, and what we want to tell you is: When a man goes to bed ought he to put his beard under the cover or leave it outside?"—Popular Magazine.

ARE you growing?

Of course, I don't mean growing physically. I mean are you developing in any way, or are you standing still, or even retrograding?

It seems to me that is a question which each one of us ought to ask himself at least once a year. And what better time than this, the end of the first lap of the New Year, to ask it?

I'll tell you what made me think of this subject. A college girl who had been out of college ten years went to a reunion. At that reunion one of her classmates who is a music teacher played a piano solo. The first girl is a teacher, but she understands a good deal about music and she realized at once that her classmate had improved to a wonderful degree in her playing. And not only did she play infinitely better than she had during her college days, but even better than she had three or even two years ago.

Then the first girl said to herself—"Gertrude has been growing every year since she left college. She hasn't stood still and rested on her laurels—although she has had plenty of them — one instant. She has just kept on developing. Now, am I doing that? Am I as much better, as a teacher, than I was the first year I left college, as Gertrude is as a musician? Am I a better teacher now than I was two or three years ago?"

And after she had put this question she wasn't at all sure what the answer ought to be.

Are YOU growing? Are YOU developing every year? Would anyone, who could understand, be able to see a distinct advance in your proficiency over your standard of two or three years ago?

Are you, each year, a better teacher, a more accurate proof-reader, a more efficient business man, a more gripping preacher?

Are you—I've saved this for a separate paragraph, because I knew there would be a large class of people who would want to remind me that they did not need my question, because they had neither talent to develop, nor profession or business to master—are you each year a better home-maker, are you each year a more livable member of society?

You, who follow that most humble and yet most exalted profession of home-making, you whose talents are the talents of the soul and character rather than of the brain or fingers, remember that there is just as much technique in home-making as there is in piano playing. Remember that there are just as many graduations, just as vast possibilities for development and improvement in the art of livableness as in the art of painting or writing.

The greatest principle of life is perpetual growth. When anything in the vegetable world ceases to grow it begins to decay.

To a certain extent this is true in the immaterial world, also.

So, if you want to guard yourself and your powers from decay and decline, take the only sure method—keep on growing all the time.

ROOTERS' CLUB PROGRAMME FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME

A Dozen Song Hits Which Will be Rendered at the Trenton Game by the Local Mendelssohn Choir Under the Direction of Cheer-leaders Callaghan and Dorris---Club Will Rehearse To-night.

The Rooters' Club will meet for rehearsal at Brock Street Rink to-night, in preparation for to-morrow night's game with Trenton. Here are some of the songs they will use and members are requested to cut out this list and bring them to the rink with them for use at the rehearsal:

(Tune — What's the Matter with Father.)

What's the matter with Clancy?
He's all right.
There's nothing the matter with Clancy,
Although he's light.
He's the boy with the timely shot.
What's the matter with Clancy?
He's all right.

Take it up, up, up with you, Bear Cats and make another score;
With a pass or two, and a shot that's true,
And pile it up more and more.

Tune—"Take Me Up With You, Dearie!"

Just skate, skate, skate around Trenton,
And play them off their feet,
They'll go up, up, up in the air, and then you'll have them beat.

(3)

Tune—"Who Are You With To-Night?"

What is the score to-night? Poor Trenton;
What is the score to-night?
No wonder you're weary, sad and dreary,
Thinking of home delight.
What will the score, the final score be?
Answer us, honour bright;
Will you tell them at home, in the morning,
(Shout)—What was the score to-night?

(4)

(Tune)—"If You Talk in Your Sleep Don't Mention My Name."

Trenton know we'll beat them bad. On Coboung, too, we've made 'em sad.
If we work, we'll be champions and that's no idle dream,
Is the Bear Cat team.

(5)

(Tune)—"Oh, You Beautiful Doll".

When you get through with Trentons, it will be an awful sentence.

(Tune)—"Billy"

For when we rush, we always rush by Trenton,
For our team knows just how to rush.
And when we check, we always check, poor Trenton,
For our team knows just how to check;
And when we shoot, we always score on Trenton.
We'll beat them till we make them sad;
And when we're through, and when we're through,
Poor Trenton, 'tis too bad.

(Tune) — "Good-Bye Betty Brown".

Good-bye Trenton, good-bye Trenton team,
All your pennant hopes are just a dream;
Hang some crepe in your dead old town,
We're going to win to-night and win hands down;
Don't you feel so bad, just dry your tears,
Perhaps you'll win a cup in fifty years,
Way down upon the old Trent river:

(Tune)—"I'll Make a Ring Around Rosie".

They'll skate some rings around Armstrong;
They'll skate some rings around him.
Although he's supposed to be speedy.
As a star he will look dim.
When the Bear Cats all get going:
Trenton's chances 'll be slim.
They'll skate some rings around Armstrong;
They'll skate some rings around him.

(Tune)—"Just the Same Old Story."

It'll be just the same old story;
Told in just the same old way:
Trenton couldn't beat the Bear Cats.
For they didn't know how to play.
When we tell you what the score'll be,
There is nothing more to say,
It'll be just the same old story,
In the same old way.

(10)

(Tune) — "Yip-I-Addy-Eay".

Yip-I-addy-ea, eay, eay, yip-I-addy-eay.
We are cheering for the Bear Cat team,
They are the goods, and that's no dream,
Yip-I-addy-eay, eay.
Three cheers for the Petes, hurrah!
Other teams are not in it; no, not for a minute.
Yip-I-addy-eay.

(11)

(Tune)—"Harrigan":

P-E-T-E-R-B-O-R-O spells Peterboro.
Proud of the hockey blood that's in them;
Never a team could say a word agin them.
P-E-T-E-R-B-O-R-O, you see;
They're a team that are clean and have never been defeated;
Peterboro, that's us.

(Tune)—"All Alone".

Trenton's going, Trenton's going;
The Petes have them on the run;
Armstrong is slowing up, the team is going up.
We'll get lots more, hurry up and trim them, Bear Cats;
Beat them bad; they feel sad;
They haven't a chance to win;
Hurry up and score again, go on, and make it ten.
For the Trenton team will soon be all in.

SENATOR COX'S HALF CENTURY OF LIFE INSURANCE ACTIVITY

The Toronto Globe says: When Hon. George A. Cox, President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, who will be the guest of honour at a banquet, commemorating the completion of his fifty years' service with that corporation at the Toronto Club to-night, began the insurance business, he was entered in the Peterborough, Ont., directory—if there was one then—as "telegraph operator and express agent." Being convinced that life insurance was a good thing, George Albertus Cox considered himself first among those who should carry a policy. So he wrote his initial insurance policy of his own life. Quite recently, the original policy was taken out of the vaults of Canada Life for inspection. It is dated December 10, 1862, and is a life policy for $1,000, with profits and a bonus payable at death.

A Matter of Premiums.

The head office of the Canada Life was in Hamilton when it was issued, and the accompanying documents show that the directors divided up their printing with The Times and The Spectator. The premium on the first policy was $17.70 if paid annually and $9.10 if in semi-annual payments. Mr. Cox chose the double payment. It cost more, but to finance a disbursement of $17.70 all at once at that time was an undertaking a little beyond him. During the whole half century he has paid $9.10 premium each half year, although the "street" is pretty well convinced that it is sentiment, and not the necessity of spreading over his premiums, which prompts him in this. It is, in fact, considered probable that the head of the Canada Life could find $17.70 in his bank account almost any time. This view is emphasized by the evidence that his original policy is still in force. Insurance men will be interested in noting that its cash surrender value is $1,227, the life annuity being worth $168.95, and the amount payable in the event of his death $1,332.51.

A Presentation To-night.

This is not the oldest policy on Senator Cox's life, it being preceded by one taken out in the Scottish Provident, so that the recipient of to-night's honours has made ample provision for his declining years. That this period is still far removed is evidenced by a snapshot taken of the veteran life insurance man going about his business on a winter's day. He is as active a figure in financial circles as ever.

There will be some eighty representatives of the Canada Life from outside points at to-day's meeting and to-night's banquet. The Vice-President, directors and principal officers of the company will present the President with a magnificent collection of silverware.

Died Unattended In The Night

Dummer Man Who Lived Alone Found Dead by a Neighbour

Mr. Thomas McQuigge, for many years a well known resident of Dummer township, was found dead on Saturday noon at his home on the ninth line. Deceased, who lived alone, was last seen on Thursday night, when he had been at Mr. E. Hubbel's, a neighbour, who lives across the road from him. Apparently he died some time during that night as he had in a supply of wood and had prepared the morning fire before retiring. He was found by Mr. Robert Chamberlain who was passing on Saturday noon and who called in to get warm. Deceased had been suffering from heart disease for some time, although his affliction was unknown to the family.

The late Mr. Quigge, who was about seventy years of age, was born at Gananoque, Ont., and had resided in Dummer for thirty-seven years. He was a veteran of the Fenian Raid and a few years ago received a land grant from the government in recognition of his service.—Hastings Star.

Do You Favour Church Union?

"Are you in favour of organic union between the Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregational churches upon the proposed basis of union?"

This is the wording of the ballot upon which the members of the Official Board of the Methodist church of Peterborough will have the option of voting upon within the next few weeks. Three other ballots similarly worded will be distributed and a universal vote taken upon this much debated church question. The results of the vote, which will not be ascertained before May or June, will prove a big factor in the adoption or rejection of church union as now proposed and passed by the conferences concerned in the matter up to date.

The Presbyterian church has also adopted this method of ascertaining the public feeling in the matter and results so far indicate interest in the matter is at a very high pitch.

The following shows that of the returns received the vote is in favour of Church Union strongly.

St. Andrew's church, London, 500 for, 38 against.

Knox church, Saskatoon, 256 for, 6 against.

North River Presbyterian church, Nova Scotia, 163 for, 0 against.

Hartsford Presbyterian church, Nova Scotia, 33 for, 4 against.

Those Voting Against.

Up to date the only places heard from voting against are Bayfield, Woodstock, New Brunswick; Knox church, St. Catharines. The church at St. Catharines is to take another vote, the one taken being unsatisfactory.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY TO HEALTH ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the women of Peterborough will be held on Monday Feb. 5th in the lecture room of the Public Library for the purpose of forming a Woman's Auxiliary to the Peterborough Health Association. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock. Mr. W. H. Moore, Dr. Cameron and Dr. Neal have kindly consented to address the meeting.

SHE GAINED 30 LBS.
Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and staking spells, and was, in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 30 pounds in weight."

Home From The West

Mr. Edward Finnie, night watchman, was the victim of a practical, but pleasing joke, on Tuesday evening. While making his rounds, on George street, about 12 o'clock at night, he happened to drop into the Boston Cafe, where he was accosted by a young man, who introduced himself to Mr. Finnie as an old acquaintance. At the invitation of the stranger, Mr. Finnie joined his newfound friend in a light lunch. They engaged in a general conversation for some time, at the expiration of which, Mr. Finnie again questioned the supposed stranger as to his identity, and was surprised to learn that it was none other than his own son, George Finnie. He had just arrived from the West, on the midnight train, after an absence of seven years.

COMPANY IS NOT INTERESTED

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the recent suit between Andrew McFarlane and W. H. Collier, I wish to remove an impression that the Wilson Publishing Co., Ltd., is in some way connected with this matter. Our Company is not interested in the suit, in any way. It is purely a personal matter between these two gentlemen. I may add that no other Officer or Director of our Company has any liability in connection with this, or any other law suit.

Yours truly,
Geo. G. Gladman,
President.

MILK DEALERS CUTTING PRICES

Milk is being sold at five and six cents a quart by some of the dealers in the city, according to one of the members of the Milk Dealers' Association, and it was to prevent the cutting of prices that action was taken in bringing as many as possible together for their mutual protection. This same milk man said he had paid a sum of money to the Association as a guarantee, but remarked that he did not intend to allow it to remain there, intimating, apparently, that since Ald. Gordon had brought the matter up, he had to take this step. He likewise expressed his opinions of Ald. Gordon, which, by the way, were not exactly complimentary; in fact, the association seems to be a unit in that regard [illegible] who have been interviewed.

It seems that the milkmen began with the idea of protecting themselves from within and without, from those who were cutting prices below the ordinary, and from those customers who were listed as "no pays". The prominent dealers assert that no money has been advanced by them, some have admitted the existence of a fund, and there the matter stands.

OBITUARY

HERBERT CALLAGHAN.
(Lindsay Warder)

When the news spread around town on Tuesday afternoon that Mr. Herbert Callaghan was dead, the announcement was received with the sincerest regret as he at all times enjoyed the esteem and good will of all with whom he came in contact. His early demise will be mourned not only by his immediate relatives but also by the wide circle of friends which have known and admired him from his boyhood. His manliness and prowess in the athletic world he invariably demonstrated most of times defeating his opponent. He was practically an all-round athlete, but as a hockey player, the deceased was without a peer. He was one of the best defence players that ever chased the rubber disc and was famed for his strong rushes which put the opposing team in disorder, as likewise were his shots that every hockeyist dreaded. Throughout Ontario he was known as "the man with the iron wrist." Some years ago deceased played with the Port Perry team, winning the Markham tournament. At all times when "Cal," as he was familiarly known went into the game victory could be written on Lindsay's banner. As a boy he played cricket with the same ability as hockey of late years and on different occasions went to Toronto with the Lindsay cricketers, and was the means of bringing home the honours of the team.

NEW FISH LAWS

An order in council has been passed by the Provincial government and appeared in the Ontario Gazette, stipulating that in future all residents of the province will be prohibited from fishing in any provincial waters, except with hook and line, without first having obtained a lease or license to do so. It has been found by the Fish and Game Department that hundreds of men who are not regular fishermen and thus pay no licenses, catch fish in nets every year, and as is for the putting a stop to this practice that the order has been passed. It is stipulated also, that in future non-residents of the province must pay a license of $5.25 per year, when temporarily residing in the province, but those who fish from their own boats or canoes must pay a license fee of $5 per year, except in the Niagara river, Detroit river, River St. Clair and St. Mary's river, opposite the state of Michigan. The fee for non-resident fishermen in those waters will be $2 whether fishing from their own boat or not.

THE BOUNTY ON PIG IRON

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, FEB. 1.—The Conservatives reassembled in caucus this morning and once more fought out the question of the restoration of the bounty on pig iron and steel rods. There was more than a lively time. The western members do not conceal the fact that they fought strenuously against the proposal. Ontario and Nova Scotia men aided by some representatives from Montreal, urged the necessity of protecting the iron and steel industry. There are rumours that there was also considerable friction between Ontario and Manitoba members on the boundary question, but this cannot be confirmed. The general belief is that the Manitoba boundary system is a far greater question than was generally supposed. It involves not only the question of territory, but also the readjustment of financial terms and the famous school question.

1.30 p.m., wheat 1-8 to 1-4 lower. Corn unchanged.

Journal of Commerce.—The market takes a favourable view of the opposition that has arisen in the investigation of the so-called money trust. The belief seems to be gaining ground that the new financing of the N. Y. C. will mean greater balances to be distributed among stockholders.

American.—Professional traders believe that the pessimistic traders made by the St. Paul management are put out for effect. The probabilities are that if insiders want to do anything in the market now, they want to buy stocks.

Tribune.—The larger part of the selling is for professionals. The downward movement fails to bring out important offerings.

Herald.—The most expert brokers are in disagreement as to the market outlook, and its technical position. It seems to be a two-sided market, controlled by the professionals.

Commercial.—Buying back of some of the blocks of stocks. In London, at the outset of the week by New York speculators has started an upward movement.

World.—The general impression is that St. Paul is depressed for the purpose of allowing certain persons to replace their holdings.

Sun.—An occurrence of interest is the action of the Democrats in appropriations. Leaders have, it seems, succeeded in winning back their following to the side of conservation, and it is to be hoped that this may be a straw indicating the probable course that will be pursued in the investigation of the money trusts.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A., informed the local club this morning that the intermediates will be called upon to play on Monday night. He could not say whom their opponents would be or whether or not the game would take place in Peterborough. Some definite information is looked for to-day.

The hockey game between the Canadian Express Hustlers and the Grand Trunk Flyers, played last evening in the Brock Street Rink, was attended by a large and enthusiastic gathering.

At a first glance one might think that the score of 15 to 2, in favour of the Flyers, denoted a one-sided game, but it was not; it was an even one; besides, the Hustlers thought it advisable to give the Flyers a chance just to encourage them. Windjammer Hoffman could not wait for the game to commence, but gave an 'exhibition of stick work and was rewarded for his pains by a sprained shoulder.

The game, proper, commenced with a goal scored by the Flyers, and the Hustlers quickly equalized. "Slippery" Long rushed time after time, and no one could stop him. Martin played well, but Merryfield seemed to take delight in playing off-side. Hoffman claimed the distinction of being the only man on the ice to break a stick, but he didn't score. "Slumberland" Sharp fell asleep on the ice, and had to be awakened by one of his own team mates, and in the meantime the Flyers took a man advantage and scored. Pidgeon was shelved for that offence, for making a wicked stab with his stick. Walton, in goal was a veritable stone wall. Skitch was lapsed for two minutes for loafing, while waiting for "Slumberland" Sharp to pass the puck. "Cutey" Butzer was actually cute enough to score a second goal for the Hustlers; but, he couldn't score another.

The prowess of the Hustlers will next be exercised upon the Dominion Express team, on Saturday night.

The executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club will meet to-night at 8 o'clock at The Examiner office, to select the junior team for the Trenton game, discuss a possible excursion to Trenton and other business.

Mr. J. Akey, through the kindness of the editor, sends a challenge through this paper to any livery who would like to play his fast seven in a game of hockey any night at Brock street rink, and would like an answer at the earliest date possible. J. A. Akey, manager, F. Milburn, secretary.

Both Peterborough teams have won their district without a loss, winning all their games at home and abroad. Some record. Here are the scores:

Comedy

They parted, with clasps of hands,
And kisses, and burning tears.
They met, in a foreign land,
After some twenty years.

Met as acquaintances meet,
Smilingly, tranquil-eyed—
Not even the least little beat
Of the heart on either side!

They chatted of this and that,
The nothings that make up life;
She in a Gainsborough hat,
And he in black for his wife.

A Family Necessity

Is a remedy capable of affording immediate relief to the hundred and one ailments that constantly arise. It may be a cold, perhaps toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back—use Polson's Nerviline, it's penetrating, pain-subduing, and powerful.

NERVILINE

is at least five times stronger than ordinary remedies and its worth in any household can't be overestimated. For man or beast, Nerviline is a panacea for all pain.

"Not If It Cost Ten Dollars

A bottle, would I be without Polson's Nerviline," write J. A. Ruth, a farmer living near Trenton, Ont. "Nerviline is the best household liniment I know. We use it for stomach troubles, indigestion, headache, and Summer complaint. I know of nothing better to take in hot water to break up a cold, or to rub on for rheumatism or neuralgia." Every farmer should keep a few bottles of Nerviline handy, and have smaller doctor bills.

Nerviline is a protection and safeguard against the pains and aches of the entire family, and cures rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. 25 cents for a large bottle.

ABSTAINERS WIN FOURTH GAME IN SUCCESSION BY BEATING HAVELOCK 11 TO 1

Local Team Were Always in Front, Leading at Half Time by 3-0---The Railroaders Worked Hard All Through But Abstainers Had the Superior Speed and Stick-handling Ability.

The Havelock team, with seventy-five enthusiastic supporters, on a special train, invaded Peterborough last night, and went down before the T. A. S. team, in a Trent Valley fixture at Brock Street rink last night, by 11 goals to 1. Half-way home the Abstainers were in front, 3 to 0. The figures look like an easy victory for the local team, and it was in its way, but at that the winners had to work hard for all they got, as the Railway Town team went down with their colours flying, and manned their guns until the end. It was by far the best game in the Trent Valley series that has been seen here this season, and a good deal of the credit for this belongs to Referee Leo Derocher, who made the teams play hockey all the way. It required twenty-three penalties to do this, but he always had the game in hand and nothing in the way of rough play, or offsides, escaped him. The Abstainers were faster, combined better, and bored in on the nets with much more persistence than the Railroaders, the latter having no systematic method of attack. Havelock had a light, hard-working team, who never let up for a moment, no matter how the tide of battle turned against them. They checked hard and managed to give the Abstainers a lot of trouble all through the piece although the green and white team made a runaway of the last ten minutes.

The first half was pretty well all T. A. S., the visitors failing to work in close. They tried hard, but McFadden took care of their shots from outside, cleverly, and the centre men did not go in for the rebounds. When they came back, after the rest, however, the visitors showed unexpected speed and combination. They came tearing down three in a line, and, passing nicely, and for a few minutes were all over the Abstainers. They banged in a goal in a few moments, and looked good for more but the T. A. S. uncorked some more speed and the Havelock attack wilted again.

The Abstainers showed good work throughout. McFadden is a classy, steady, goaler, and in the two Lancefields, the T. A. S. have a heavy, hard-working defence. On the forward line, all are fast, McPhee, at rover, being perhaps, the star, although Grover Halpin did some pretty work, at centre.

For Havelock, Quinlan, at rover, was always conspicuous. In the second half, he tore off some pretty rushes, and he had a good shot in his repertoire. Little Ferguson, at centre, is a hard worker, and Warne and Bohn, the two youngsters on the wings, never let up. The defence played a double-goal system, Rose stopping as many shots as Darling. The score might have been smaller had the point man gone out to meet the attack, instead of crowding back into the nets.

There is great excitment in town over the junior battle with Trenton to-morrow night and old Brock street rink will contain the biggest crowd of the season when the Bear Cats clash with Lawson Whitehead's much-tooted youngsters. It is over three weeks since the local kids have had a game at home and the fans are anxiously waiting to see them perform. It is not often that a junior team wins its spurs on the road as the Bear Cats have done this season, and it is no wonder that the local fans are pulling for Capt. Hall and his men. The Trenton aggregation is one of the fastest that has ever represented the burg at the mouth of the canal and Hobe Armstrong, their cover-point, has the reputation of being about the best junior playing in the business. They will bring up a bunch of fans and fanettes on a special train and expect to win right here in Peterborough. The Bear Cats, however, are determined to keep up their winning streak and they will go into the game in the pink of condition and ready for the game of their lives. Fred Denison will make his first local appearance of the season in a game and will get a good reception. The big cover-point has now fully recovered from the effects of his accident on New Year's Day and has been going great guns in practice. The Bear Cats finish their preparation for the battle with a twenty minute work-out at 7 o'clock to-night. Every member is expected to be out sharp on time.

LINDSAY PRESS COMMENTS ON TUESDAY'S BATTLE

The Lindsay Post says of Tuesday's game:

Crushed down by the superior weight of their opponents, who took advantage of this superiority to a very questionable degree, the Lindsay intermediates went down to defeat last night before the Peterborough septette in probably the fastest and most exciting game ever witnessed in this district.

Had the visitors earned their victory by playing a fair, gentlemanly game, Lindsay would unhesitatingly congratulate them and wish them every success in their race for the championship. This is not said in a spirit of soreness too often resorted to by those who are poor losers, as the fact was apparent to all, and the penalty list will also prove that rough house tactics were resorted to by members of the Peterborough team who were evidently bent on crippling several of the locals in order to win out. This contention is borne out by the statements made by Peterborough supporters who openly declared that the "Spratts would get theirs," and true enough one of them fell a victim early in the game.

No one need run away with the idea, however, that there is no class to that Peterborough team. The Electric City has about as speedy a seven as ever represented that burg, and their victory last night was the first won by an intermediate seven on local ice for some years. They were fiends to check and follow up, and took advantage of every opportunity to shoot. They used their weight unmercifully, and it had its effect on the locals. Then again, the team was trained to the minute, every man being in prime condition, and the team work was like clock work in its precision and effectiveness.

Without doubt the game was the fastest ever witnessed by the local fans. The players set a terrific pace from the start and the fans were keyed up to the top notch of excitement all the time. Up and down the ice the players rushed with lightning like rapidity and the pent up tension was exremely trying on the excitable and nervously inclined. The locals had it on the Petes in speed, but it must be admitted that the visitors had the advantage in team play and combination. They were always very effective in their shooting, and seemed to pass at the opportune time. That man Derocher is some net guardian all right. The locals drove shots in on him last night that looked like counts, but he turned them off with an ease that was truly astonishing. Bond in front of him is a husky player who uses his weight regardless of results. Parks did not get much of a chance last night, being too closely and successfully covered by Jack Spratt. Giroux would be a better man if he was not too hot headed. He needs a stiff lecture on the ethics of hockey. Coughlin who was taken from the junior ranks, showed up well, but the star of the team was Kelly. He plays a gentlemanly, unselfish game and won the respect and admiration of the local fans. The Petes may go a long way in the race for the championship, but several of their players must be held in check.

The Lindsay Warder says: Peterborough 6, Lindsay 4. Such was the score here in the navy blue and white's last game in Scugogville this season. Magnificent hockey all down the line, lightning rushes with swishing passes, now short, again straight across the rink, hockey that has not been surpassed here for speed in many a day, and certainly not ever approached this season, marked the downfall of the Lindsay intermediates before the Peterborough braves.

The play was wonderfully close, but there was no stopping the oatmealers. They whirled straight in on goal and the forwards bombarded the Lindsay nets like rounds from a gatling gun. It was hockey of a class and brand that spells C-H-A-M-P-I-O-N-S-H-I-P, and Gamble, the custodian of the local nets, had an exceedingly busy night. It is pretty good betting that the Petes, if they play up to the form displayed last night, will make all other teams hustle in the race for the intermediate O. H. A. championship.

Talk about your crowds! Talk about being "packed in like sardines!" Lindsay's rink looked like a small-sized band box last night, when crowded with 1,800 spectators. It was by far the largest attendance ever recorded, even larger than the Stratford-Lindsay game of a few years ago. The rafters were utilized by the small boys, while the fans were packed in like a human wedge, it being impossible to budge. Of the above large attendance about 500 were from the eastern city, and to say that they were tickled with the result of the game, is putting it very mildly. They simply went wild with enthusiasm and joy.

It is not definitely known who will referee to-morrow night's junior game here, although it looks as if Beulah Davidson of the Parkdale team, may handle the bell. Trenton objected to Harvey Sproule, Peterborough refused to take W. S. Hancock and it is up to Secretary Hewitt to select the official.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room, or public building makes them feel faint and dizzy.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, you should not wait until you case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. D. McGilvery, Bathurst, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I suffered greatly with my heart and became so weak at times I could hardly walk. A friend of mine advised me to try your Pills, which I did, and soon found great relief. They are the best medicine I have ever taken for heart trouble."

When Your Throat is Sore

It may be only a slight cold now—just a tickling in the throat.

But little colds soon grow large and dangerous. Often they become chronic, develop catarrh and end in consumption.

Catarrhozone is the remedy. It draws inflammation and soreness out of the throat. Relieves the cough, cuts out the phlegm, makes breathing easy, kills any germs lodged in the mucous lining of the throat or lungs.

CATARRHOZONE

Catarrhozone inhaler can be carried in the vest pocket ready for use any time. Two months' treatment, only $1.00; medium size, 50c; trial size, 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

DRINK HABIT

CURED IN THREE DAYS

Each time you look upon a Wreck of Manhood staggering along the street it is with pity; each time you see a gently born and reared Woman reduced to poverty and toil because she married a Drinking Man, there is compassion in your heart. But you should Stop and Think! Haven't you a Liquor Drinker in your Own Family, right now? He may be considered a "Moderate" Drinker, and you may believe that he will continue to drink moderately, but in that you are mistaken. Daily the Alcoholic Poison is accumulating in his system—it cries out through the nerves for more and more Alcohol. Soon, mentally and physically weakened, socially and financially ruined, he will be looked upon just as any other drunkard is looked upon. Now, Right Now, is the time to have him cured by

THE GATLIN TREATMENT

It will cure any Drinker—any Drunkard—in three days. It will restore his Will Power, his Manhood, and it will do away with Craving, Desire, Physical and Nervous demand for Liquor.

Home Treatment just as effective for those who do not care to come to the Institute. Call, Write or 'Phone for Booklet and copies of contract. Everything strictly confidential.

NERVOUS, LIFELESS DEBILITATED MEN

YOUNG MEN AND MIDDLE-AGED MEN, the victims of early indiscretions and later excesses, who are failures in life—you are the one we can restore to manhood and revive the spark of energy and vitality. Don't give up in despair because you have treated with other doctors, used electric belts and tried various drug store nostrums.

Our New Method Treatment has snatched hundreds from the brink of despair, has restored happiness to hundreds of homes and has made successful men of those who were "down and out." We prescribe specific remedies for each individual case according to the symptoms and complications—we have no patent medicines. This is one of the secrets of our wonderful success as our treatment cannot fail, for we prescribe remedies adapted to each individual case. Only curable cases accepted. We have done business throughout Canada for over 20 Years.

CURABLE CASES GUARANTEED OR NO PAY

READER Are you a victim? Have you lost hope? Are you intending to marry? Has your blood been diseased? Have you any weakness? Our New Method Treatment will cure you. What it has done for others it will do for you. Consultation Free. No matter who has treated you, write for an honest opinion Free of Charge. Books Free—"Boyhood, Manhood, Fatherhood." (Illustrated) on Diseases of Men.

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT. No names on boxes or envelopes. Everything Confidential. Question List and Cost of Treatment FREE FOR HOME TREATMENT.

OXO IN CUBES

EVERY mother should remember these five points about OXO Cubes. . . . . .

An OXO Cube, in a glass of hot milk, increases the food value of milk enormously—and greatly assists digestion.

An OXO Cube, spread on bread and butter, increases the food value of bread and butter enormously.

OXO Cubes are foods in themselves, and add to the value of other foods by helping digestion.

A SEVERE COLD DEVELOPED INTO PNEUMONIA.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP Cured Him.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

There is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is, to cure the cold just as soon as it appears.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mr. Hugh McLeod, Esterhazy, Sask., writes:—"My little boy took a very severe cold, and it developed into pneumonia. The doctor said he would not live. I got some of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and he began to improve. Now, he is a strong healthy child, and shows no sign of it coming back."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

A LITTLE DANDERINE WILL MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, SOFT, FLUFFY, ABUNDANT

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

If you Wish to Double the Beauty of your Hair in Ten Minutes surely Try a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' time when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

TAXES WILL BE REFUSED

So Says Anti-Home Rule Man at Belfast Meeting

PRESBYTERIAN GATHERING

Belfast, Feb. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Special trains from all parts of Ireland brought thousands of Presbyterian demonstrators against home rule yesterday to Belfast. About a dozen large halls and churches were packed. There were scenes of wild enthusiasm and stern determination to resist any effort of the Government to bring in a measure of home rule.

Twenty-five thousand demonstrators voted resolutions declaring their undying determination not to obey the laws of any Irish Parliament whose demands for money in the shape of taxes would be thrown into the fire.

The resolutions declared that the religious and industrial interests of Ireland would be calamitously imperilled by home rule and appealed to both the British Government and to their co-religionists in Great Britain to save the Presbyterians from disaster.

The proceedings passed off without any disturbance.

Sir William Crawford said: "I have no doubt I shall have promises of freedom and toleration for all men from the Nationalist leaders when the provisions of the bill are revealed, but let none of these guarantees and promises deceive you. A Dublin Parliament we will not have; its laws we will not obey, its demands for money we will throw into the fire. Our Nationalist countrymen, may if they so desire, establish their claim to manage their own affairs, but they will not manage our affairs. Let an Irish Government be formed, let it send its officers here to take taxes by force. We shall not pay. Our decision is final and unchanging. We trust in God our Father, and our duty is clear."

George S. Clarke, the famous shipbuilder, said that knowing the demoralizing and blighting effect home rule [illegible] in many countries, was it any wonder Unionists of Ulster were prepared to take any steps which God-fearing men thought necessary to preserve and hand down those rights and liberties which they had inherited as their birthright?

Free Trade With England.

London, Feb. 2.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a forecast of the home rule bill. This provides that the Irish Parliament shall have full control of customs and excise, and provision will be made for the continuance of complete free trade between England and Ireland.

Ireland is to receive for fifteen years, an annual imperial subsidy of $10,000,000, after which she will make contributions to the imperial expenditure, based on a percentage of her revenues.

The Irish Parliament will consist of two Houses—a legislative council of about fifty members, and a legislative assembly of 103 members. The council will have a suspensory veto on legislation. In the event of a disagreement between the two Houses, after the second rejection of a bill by the council, it will be submitted to the Houses deliberating and voting together, and adopted or rejected according to the decision of the majority.

Ireland will continue to be represented in the Imperial Parliament, but in greatly diminished numbers. The Irish Parliament shall have no control with respect to the navy, army or militia, foreign policy, coinage, military camps or coast lighting, and will be forbidden to establish or endow any religion or deal with any religious matters.

Torpedo Destroyers For Britain.

London, Feb. 2.—An unexpected call has been made yesterday on the shipbuilders on the list of constructors for the British navy to send in tenders for a new fleet of torpedo boat destroyers of the most up-to-date type. Each of the firms has been invited to tender for three boats.

No provision for the construction of these craft was made in this year's naval estimates, but prominent naval men have for a long time complained of the lack in the British navy of fast seagoing torpedo boat destroyers, capable of coping with modern cruisers.

POSTAL EXPANSION

Members of Parliament Favour More Parcel Carrying

THE STANDARD OF GRAIN

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Parliament last evening adopted with hardly a dissentient voice, a resolution proposed by W. F. Maclean (S. York), declaring that "this House is of the opinion that the expansion and extension of the parcel post system would be in the public interest."

The adoption of such a system of an effective scale, said Mr. Maclean, would result in express rates being cut in two. Public competition was the newest and best way of bringing corporations to time. This had been strikingly exemplified in the success of the Ontario hydro-electric system.

The parcel post has been a success in Europe, Australia, and New Zealand, and both parties in the U. S. were committed to it.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux declared that the time had come for Canada to adopt a bold policy in the matter.

"The companies," he said; "have taken out of our hands the business we ought to be carrying on."

Hon. L. P. Pelletier declared himself in general accord with the motion, though he thought the system Canada should adopt could not be as extensive as that obtaining in England. No express companies should stop the Government if it decided to proceed with the reform.

J. F. Armstrong (E. Lambton), made a vigorous attempt to have the whole debate ruled out of order, but Speaker Sproule effectively squelched him with voluminous quotations from Bourinet.

Dr. Neeley (Humboldt) stated that for lack of a sample market in Winnipeg the farmers of the Northwest lost millions a year. The spread between grades was great, and a man whose grain was not good enough for grade 1, but very high grade 2, got no more for it than the man whose grade 2 was of low quality.

F. Z. Schaffner (Souris) remarked that the grain growers who were in Ottawa the other day were opposed to a sample market.

Hon. George E. Foster said that, whether there were a sample or a grade market no one would propose to take away from the farmer the right to sell his product in the way he pleased. Both the grain growers and millers were pressing for Government-owned and controlled terminal elevators as more urgent than a sample market. They were strongly opposed to mixing grain, and the sample market was no use unless mixing were allowed.

J. D. Staples (Macdonald) was in favor of the sample market. The identity of the grain should be preserved so long as there was no loss in dollars and cents. If the evil of mixing by manipulators could not be done away with the country should do it itself in a sample market.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) thought the Department should remedy the evil of substitution of grain.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) declared that there was too much intimacy between the railway companies, the milling companies and the elevator companies, to the detriment of the farmer and their own special profit.

J. A. M. Aikens (Brandon) pointed out that the railways were bound to deliver the identical article consigned to them by the consignee and anyone who took away that grain might be reached under the criminal code.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared that a more important question than the private rights of the parties was the degradation of the standard of the country's grain.

Dr. Schaffner (Souris) was emphatic in declaring that the only remedy was Government control of terminal elevators.

Before the orders of the day were called. W. E. Knowles (Moose Jaw) rose to a question of privilege. He objected to what he termed an anonymous dodger, which had been distributed to the members through the postoffice, charging him with falsehood in connection with his remarks on the alleged British Columbia lumber combine. The pamphlet was written by A. E. Watts of Watteford, B.C., and he charged A. E. Goodeve (Kootenay) with the distribution.

Mr. Goodeve replied that he was well within his rights. The circular was not anonymous. It was forwarded to him for distribution by a prominent lumberman. The Speaker ruled that such distribution was the common custom and perfectly justifiable.

W. M. Martin (Regina) drew the attention of the Minister of Agriculture to the necessity for seed distribution in Saskatchewan.

The Speaker announced that after further consideration, he had come to the conclusion that his ruling out of order Wednesday of the resolution of Richard Blain (Peel) in favor of placing telephones in postoffices was not well founded, as it was merely an academic recommendation to the Government which might, at a future date, involve, if acted upon, the expenditure of public money.

In answer to a question by J. E. Armstrong (E. Lambton), Hon. L. P. Pelletier stated that the former Postmaster-General had stated in the House that clause 60 in the postal regulations, providing for the collection of one cent per four ounces in newspapers sent to new subscribers during the election contest, would be enforced. The Toronto postoffice had referred to the question of excess charges on The Toronto Globe, Toronto News, and other papers but no reply was sent, the rule being well known. The Globe had not, as it claimed, a binding agreement from the Postoffice Department to carry those papers at the regular rate of one-quarter cent a pound.

LAVALLEE IS MAYOR.

Montreal Citizens League Only Won Half Battle.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Ald. I. A. Lavallee, advocate, was yesterday elected mayor of Montreal by a large majority over Ald. George Marcil, real estate dealer.

The referendum vote on the abolition of the property qualification for mayor and aldermen showed a large majority of voters in favor of abolition. This vote, however, can have no effect until the Legislature at Quebec passes a bill in accordance with the wishes of the citizens.

In connection with the polling for aldermen chief interest centered around the wards, ten in number, in which candidates black listed by the citizen's association were running. The association had opposed ten candidates, either members of the famous "33" of the 1909 council, who are charged with voting to grant huge contracts to high tenderers for the benefit of middlemen, or men who, since their advent to the council, have been classed as reactionary.

Despite the opposition of the citizen's association, backed by the majority of the newspapers of the city, no less than five of the candidates opposed by them were returned, including ex-Ald. Giroux, whose defeat they secured in the 1910 elections; ex-Ald. Mederic Martin, whose name was prominent in the records of the royal commission, and who also failed to return to the council in 1910; ex-Ald. Seguin, ex-Ald. Lariviere and ex-Ald. Judge.

Ex-Ald Sauvegeau, Gallery, Marin, Lamoureux and Levesque were defeated.

A feature of the elections is the return of three more English aldermen to the council than in the last election, these being Stroud, Macdonald and Blumenthal.

CORN EXHIBITION.

Show at Tilbury Attracts Crowds of Visitors.

Tilbury, Feb 2.—The Ontario Corn Growers' Association had a bumper attendance on this the third day of the big corn show. The exhibits are of such a superior quality that the staff of judges are having a difficult task to make the awards. They hope to complete their work this morning and the prize and trophy winners will be announced to-day.

Prof. Klinck yesterday gave another interesting talk and practical demonstration on the selection of seed corn.

Prof. Day of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, delivered an illustrated address on underdraining during the afternoon. He said that the producing value of land was increased at least twenty dollars an acre, and were the corn lands of Essex and Kent properly underdrained, the gain would be enormous for the corn growers in this section.

Indignation was expressed yesterday at the exaggerated reports attributed to President Williams of the Corn Growers' Association with reference to the absence of Hon. Mr. Duff. Jocular references were twisted in an apparent attempt to introduce politics in the association. It was well understood that Mr. Duff was quite unable to leave Toronto, and Dr. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College came to take his place.

Mad Dog Bites Children.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Four school children, two boys and two girls, were badly bitten by a mad dog yesterday as they were on their way home from St. Ann's School. Attracted by their screams, a passer-by managed to strangle the dog sufficiently to force it to loosen its hold on one of the little girls whom he had on the ground worrying like a rat.

The wounds of the children, all of whom were badly bitten about the arms and legs, have been cauterized by Dr. Charles Vivond. The dog, the property of E. Gagnier, is a cross between a bulldog and a fox terrier. It is being kept under observation at the Young street police station. In the opinion of Dr. Vipond the animal exhibits the symptoms of rabies.

The children, Willie Guy, the 14-year-old son of Francis Guy; Francis Talmadge, Gertie Howard, 14 years of age, and Catharine Furlong, will all likely be inoculated against rabies.

Guelph's Pigeon Show.

Guelph, Feb. 2.—The winter fair poultry building was a very busy place yesterday. There are on exhibition there over 600 beautiful pigeons of all classes in the International Pigeon Fanciers' Association. The official opening took place last night when the proceedings were enlivened by the presence of the Guelph Band.

Mayor Thorp delivered a short address and presented several of the beautiful silver cups to the owners of the winning birds. The judges were busily engaged yesterday in awarding the prizes, and they had no easy task, the entries in almost every class far exceeding those of any previous year. The energetic secretary of the association, Major Barker of Toronto, is a courteous and capable official and is leaving no stone unturned to make the show a success.

Great Revival Meetings.

New York, Feb. 2.—Announcement was made last night that the national men and women forward movement will hold its culminating congress in New York City, April 18-24. The delegates, all men, will be limited to 3,000, and will be apportioned among the cities where the movement has held campaigns during the winter.

It is said that the congress will be the most representative large gathering of Christian laymen ever held in North America.

Sessions will be held in Carnegie Hall, with auxiliary meetings in neighboring churches. The lay speakers already secured include President Taft, Ambassador Bryce, William Jennings Bryan, John Mitchell, Booker T. Washington and J. A. Macdonald of Toronto.

REFINERY BURNED

Acadia Sugar Company Loses Million Dollar Plant

WORKMEN NEARLY PERISH

Halifax, Feb. 2.—The Woodside plant of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. located on the Dartmouth side of the harbor, was totally destroyed by fire last evening with a loss of considerably over a million dollars. The insurance will come measurably up to the million mark and there is not a company here but what is interested.

The fire began in a large wooden warehouse on the waterfront, where 10,000 barrels of sugar were stored. This was swept away and with amazing velocity the fire shot to the seven storey brick structure across the railway track, which is the refinery proper. This was soon enveloped by the fire and some of the workmen had difficulty in escaping with their lives. Many of them engaged in the hot rooms got out with practically no clothing, and one man, Hennebery, who is missing, is reported to have perished.

The steamer Aurora of the Pickford and Black line, had been at the wharf discharging raw sugar for three days. She was pulled out, but the sugar she had discharged was burned. Besides the refined sugar destroyed, more than 25,000 bags of raw sugar are gone. A number of loaded Intercolonial Railway cars were on the siding, but no engine could be secured quick enough to haul them out and they were burned.

At 10 o'clock everything was gone of the splendid plant, which is the largest of the two owned by the Acadia Sugar Refining Co., except the boiler house, and there was slight chance of saving that. The fire departments of Dartmouth and Halifax could do nothing to fight the fire, the plant being nearly three miles out of town and isolated. The company is one of the most prosperous in Canada. A considerable portion of the capital stock is held in Glasgow.

Taft Will Win, He Says.

Washington, Feb. 2.—In the first authorized statement he has issued in connection with the Taft campaign, Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the President, yesterday said:

"President Taft's nomination in June is as certain as anything can be. I am confident that there will be comparatively little opposition to him in the national convention, and when the nomination is made the Republicans of the country will rally to the party standard and win a great victory in November.

"I would not make this prediction did I not feel that my information from all parts of the country warrants me in doing so."

Motor and Trolley Clash.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 2.—W. P. Marseilles, president of the Electrode Company, one of the most prominent citizens here, was injured yesterday in a head-on collision between his motor car and a Buffalo-bound trolley on the American side, Alexander McLare, his chauffeur, was also seriously injured. Physicians last night said both will recover.

Because he became intoxicated over the river Wednesday night while celebrating his appointment as constable of Fonthill, Ont., Bert Garner was fined two dollars yesterday.

Chinaman Has Smallpox.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—The latest victim of smallpox in this city is a Chinaman, and as a result 100 of his fellow-countrymen are in quarantine at the C.P.R. immigration headquarters, while he has been removed to the civic hospital. A party of Chinamen arrived here a few days ago from the west and while awaiting examination one of them became ill. On investigation he was found to be suffering from smallpox.

Curfew Law for Husbands.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—A curfew law for husbands is advocated by Robert B. Glenn, formerly governor of North Carolina. "The man who stays away from his family at night is the most contemptible creature on earth," he said. "I wish we had a law that would make every husband stay at home from 8 o'clock in the evening until 6 o'clock the next morning."

Wabash Receivership Certificate.

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—The bid of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of New York, for the $10,000,000 receiver's certificates of the Wabash Railroad Co. probably will be approved by Federal Judge Adams. The bids were opened yesterday afternoon and the above firm bid par and 1-4 of 1 per cent. for the issue.

Miguel and Manuel Make Up.

London, Feb. 2.—According to information from an authoritative source, at a meeting at Dover on Tuesday, as reported by the Paris newspaper Excelsior, between ex-King Manuel and the Portuguese pretender, Dom Miguel of Braganza, the latter voluntarily offered to help in every way in his power to restore Manuel to the Portuguese throne. The reconciliation between the two branches of the house of Braganza, it is added, is complete.

Release Twenty-Seven Turks.

Paris, Feb. 2.—The commission appointed to investigate the seizure by the Italian authorities of twenty-nine Turkish members of the Red Crescent Society, who were passengers on the French steamer Manouba, handed its report to Premier Poincare yesterday.

The commission finds in favor of twenty-seven of the Turks, who will be permitted to continue to Sfax, Tunis. Of the others, one is seriously ill and the papers of the second have not been found satisfactory. The latter will not be allowed to proceed.

All's Quiet In Portugal.

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 2.—Apparently the Government is master of the situation in the Lisbon district, where, owing to the gravity of the general strike a day or two ago, martial law was declared.

It was officially announced last night that there is not a single strike in Portugal, but this simply means that the strikers and their adherents have been overawed by the military display.

London Phoned Rotterdam.

London, Feb. 2.—Telephone communication between England and the continent is developing rapidly. Conversations took place Wednesday night between London and Amsterdam and Rotterdam.

The Postmaster-General hopes to be in a position to open an Anglo-Swiss telephone service as soon as negotiations with the Swiss and French administrations have been completed.

No More Railway Passes?

Regina, Sask., Feb. 2.—Passes for members of the Saskatchewan Legislature have not arrived from the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is understood that the railway will shut down on the free transportation. It is rumored that the action of the Grand Trunk Pacific foreshadows the enactment of a "no-pass" law for the Dominion such as exists in the United States.

After U. S. Express Companies.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Prosecution of express companies for overcharging shippers on the transportation of their goods was indicated by Commissioner Lane at the express rate hearing yesterday to be the intention of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

By JOHN MARCH

"I expect Miss Jennie was not disconsolate long? If she is as pretty as you, my dear; I'll be bound there were plenty more willing to take Bob's place."

"I don't know about that, but she don't encourage anyone that I am aware of. Sims don't come to the house, he don't cross father, but I believe they still meet of a nights on the quiet like, after dark, in the long meadow."

"Here's the ugly parrot," Hare said, pleasantly looking up at the signboard creaking in the wind. "Thank you for your company, my dear, and tell mother I won't trouble to see her as I'm not sweet on Jennie, nor Jennie on me. If the little puss 'goes on' or 'runs on about me,' you may depend she wants me to pay, instead of Sims, for the ginger beer and the cakes."

He gave the girl a steady, comprehensive look, lifted his hat as she began to whiten, turned on his heel, and entered the "Popinjay."

CHAPTER XX.
AN ACCIDENT

"Mr. Fleming here?" he asked, meeting Mrs. Radler full tilt as she bustled out.

Hare hesitated, presently he took a few steps down the long, brick passage, stared at three grained doors, and halted. To gain time he fumbled in his coat pocket, brought several articles to light, returning each again to their respective places in a thoughtful, worried manner, as if he were anxious to find the right object before entering the room. The small ruse served his purpose, the squire gave an impatient cough, and Hare following the sound knocked at the sitting room door and entered, smiling.

"What a time you have been," Felix said; "I began to think you must have gone home with Mrs. Wycherly."

"No," he replied, carelessly. "I met and asked the way here of a decent-looking young woman who has a sister named Jennie, a father a farmer, and a fool of a mother who was evidently bent on making things hot for poor Mr. Farley. Who is she?"

"Mary Ashwood; there are three girls. Jennie is the youngest and prettiest."

"And Robert Sims, do you know him?"

"Nothing out of the common, nothing but what's remarkably stale. He and Jennie have been courting all the summer; father asks intentions; young man says he can't afford to marry; father forbids the house; daughter meets young man in the fields after dark, and in view of even tualities, daughter pretends to have seen a great deal of a Mr. Paul Farlef; raves about him, and rouses mother's suspicions, that's all."

"Thank you," Felix said, emphatically; "I'll keep Sims junior in mind. What about the Wycherly affair? Are you going on with it, or are you going to throw it up? What are you going to do?".

"I am going to marry her to-morrow morning at eight o'clock sharp," he said, divesting himself of his cumbersome Inverness, and waving his hat above his head he flung it up to the ceiling and caught it again deftly.

"Are you mad?" Felix asked, dropping limply into the nearest chair.

"As mad as a hatter; stark, staring, raving mad with the thrill of a beauty sufficient to fascinate a hundred empires."

"I cannot allow it, Hare," he said, gravely. "I am responsible to Graham for your wellbeing and safety; I am responsbike all round. I will not allow it; you must give up the insane idea, Hare."

"I don't recognize your responsibility, Mr. Fleming, and besides, can you prevent it?" he asked, equably.

"Yes, by explaining matters to Mr. Hay, and he will refuse to perform the ceremony."

"In that case I should explain matters to Mrs. Wycherly; I should give away the whole show and Mr. Farley can take his chance."

"How are you to be married at a moment's notice?"

"The Vicar has already received the intimation, and Mrs. Wycherly has the license in due order; had it for days past."

"Ah! been waiting her opportunity."

"Yes; and if she does not marry me you may take your oath she will Farley. Why interfere? I am willing, and he is not."

"But you will go through the ceremony under an assumed name."

"When she discovers that fact I shall insist upon a rehearsal, and if she does not discover it for herself within a month I shall inform her."

"Do you think she will take the information quietly; don't you think she will wreak her vengeance on the man who has tricked her? I wouldn't be in your shoes, Hare, when she finds you out. Take my advice," he urged, "take my advice, like a sensible fellow, and giv eit up."

"For the sake of argument, Mr. Fleming, let us say I do give it up: I go back to London to-night and Mr. Farley returns to Weyberne, either by the mail to-night or to-morrow. The widow has the license, the ring, the man to execute her kidnapping instructions, and a closed carriage to boot here, there, and anywhere. What do you suppose Mr. Farley's life would be worth if he did not consent to the marriage?"

A scarlet stain dyed the squire's face.

"And what do you think your life will be worth when Rowena Wycherly discovers the fraud?"

"As much as it is now. If she touches me the law will lay its heavy finger on her and irretrievably stop her career; whereas, under harmless reasonable conditions, she is at liberty to reject the devotion and amends of an honourable man and return to Weyberne and prosecute her pursuit of Mr. Farley."

"Unless the woman is demented the whole story is a monstrous outrageous absurdity," Felix said. "I made a mistake, I perceive, an idiotic blunder, when I hit upon this scheme. But my original idea was to have a detective in Farley's place for a week or more as a decoy, in order to fathom what her designs and intentions really were. If she did not go to the lengths I credited her with, I anticipated the man eventually handing her over to the proper authorities, who would either punish her or inquire into the state of her mind."

"Excuse me, Mr Fleming, but you said this morning you considered her to be perfectly sane."

"I know I did. Up to the present I have considered her a daring, unscrupulous, heartless woman, but upon my soul, Hare, recent revelations point to something more. I am much more alarmed for Farley's safety than I was ten minutes ago, and I should also be very sorry for you voluntarily, out of sheer reckless foolhardiness, to court the spite and fury of a baffled maniac."

"Faugh! It's not so bad as that, Mr. Fleming. I'll grant you she is mad so far as Mr. Farley is concerned, but there the madness ends. A woman in love, a beautiful, high-spirited, bold, dashing woman, a true Eve, will use almost any means to gain her point, and think all is fair in love and war. Your anxiety regarding Mr. Farley has warped your better judgment, sir."

"You own she is mad on my friend, then how, in heaven's name, do you purpose turning this torrent of passion from him to yourself? Don't try to touch things that are too high for you, Hare."

"I don't know how to turn the course of an undammed mill stream," he said, throwing away the match and smiling after it; "but if I possess the sense, the strength, and the nerve, I don't see why I shouldn't try."

"Nor I, if you are bent on tempting Providence, and your life is of no value to you. I can't understand a man like you wishing to ally yourself with a woman of the Wycherly type. Handsome is as handsome does; an angel shape may be tenanted by fiends, and certainly, in her case, a beautiful face covers a depraved, if not a diseased mind. Now let us elect to be sensible, Hare. Go back to town like the good fellow you are, and send me down a practical man, who will know how to grapple with the peculiar circumstances, and upon whose acumen I can rely to advise me. Rowena Wycherly must not be allowed to prosecute or drive Mr. Farley from Weyberne. If she is wicked she must be punished; if insane, she must be taken proper care of; and whatever means are employed to ensure Mr. Farley's peace and safety, it's essential they should be quiet, unobtrusive, and devoid of scandal."

"Mr. Fleming," he said, in the same even-tempered, equable tone he had used throughout the discussion. "I could deceive you easily; I could promise to be guided by you and return to town to-morrow; I could promise anything you might choose to put forward and still keep my appointment at Weyberne Church to-morrow; but my mode of procedure is more like that of a bold, bad, don't-care boy chasing a butterfly. I mean to have the beautiful, gauzy, downy thing, but I'll pursue it openly; I don't care which way you look, whether I am in your line of vision or not; whether I catch it fields ahead of you, or right down under your very nose. You tell me that this marvellously fashioned woman is wanton, shameless, and no doubt it's an unmitigated active fact; still, no one is wholly bad, sir; the devil himself is hardly so black as some would have him painted. Surely such a cascade of beauty must be sweet and pure at its source, though it has and may run through narrow, muddy channels. I have a fancy, Mr. Fleming, that with careful tenderness under a gracious Providence I shall delve down to the silver ripple of that pure source."

"Like most other things," Felix said, rising, "the market value must be measured by the gain it brings. Your fancy, Hare, may cost you dear."

"I shall not cavil at the cost if I can stir a fresh fount and sweeten it."

"Such an undertaking cannot but prove jejune and utterly barren of good results. Good-night, Hare, I am sorry to be obliged to oppose you, but I feel bound to do what lies in my power to stop this mockery to-morrow."

"Will it suit your tactics to treat me with the same openness I have shown you?"

"Certainly; I shall drive straight to the Vicarage on my way home and lay the facts of the grim episode before Mr. Hay ,and leave him to deal with it as he thinks best."

"Suppose, despite your amiable efforts you don't succeed?" he asked with a sneer.

"I shall have done my duty," Felix said, putting on his hat, "which is all that can be expected of a man."

Felix turned and held out his hand.

"To a certain extent we are; I am acting your friend, although you don't think so. I still have hopes of you, Hare. Perhaps when you have slept over it you will think better of it."

"Perhaps," he returned, smiling; 'who can tell?"

Felix left him smiling at the glowing end of his cigar and went silently out into the yard. Gathering the reins in one hand, he climbed to his high seat, throwing a half-crown to the hostler in response to his God-speed, and drove through the town and out into the country deep in thought.

The trend of events had knotted itself into such a sudden and unexpected twist that Felix felt incapable of dealing with the disentanglement of it single-handed. He blamed himself for not having used stronger and more potent arguments to dissuade Hare out of his mad chimerical project, and he blamed himself still more for his share in adding extra confusion to the general prevailing disorder and discomfort. He decided as he drove along to get his grim interview over with the Rev. Arthur Hay, then proceed to the Hall and explain Paul's enforced absence to Sir Thomas.

"It would have been better and simpler," he mused, "to have persuaded Farley to appeal to the nearest magistrate for protection, and take out a summons against Mrs. Wycherly for intimidation and threatened bodily harm, and demanded to have the woman bonud over to keep the peace for at least six months." And yet—could he have influenced the lad to such a course with his overweening sensitive fear of scandal, his nervous dread of investigation, and his obstinate conviction that calumny and ridicule entailed by publicity would go far to blight the budding promise of a remarkable career. "The deuce take the woman!" he ejaculated, as the steeple of Weyberne Church loomed a whitish grey in the moonlight. "I wish—hello, sweethearts," he muttered softly, turning a keen eye on the figures of a man and woman standing on the further side of the trim hedge bordering the grounds to The Larches. "I wish—whoa, steady, you nervous hussy!" he exclaimed, as a plover rose up almost under the mare's nose and startled her.

"Get along, you silly jade," he said, grasping his whip, and then the white gate smashed to, and a small, ill-starred, fluttering form rushed across the road and scrambled through an opening in the opposite fence. The mare reared, curvetted, leaped forward, and dashed headlong down the road. The man and woman leaned over the hedge, stretched their necks in tense anticipation of disaster, watched the mare stumble, saw her struggle frantically for a foothold and go down with a sickening thud, accompanied by a ghastly crash of wood and metal and the shiver of glass.

They stood awe-stricken, then Rose Pilgrim's voice came trembling and terrified through the deep death-like silence that followed: "Oh, heavens! Denham! It's the master!"

CHAPTER XXI.

"Paul Farley was married to Mrs. Wycherly early this morning, Agnes."

It was Dr. Hunter who spoke, he was standing by the squire's bed, his fingers on his wrist, feeling his pulse.

"Are you sure, it is true?" she asked, in a faint voice.

"Positive. I was at the station this morning and saw them enter a first-class carriage of the London train. I was so surprised, dumbfounded, and taken back that I went straight to the Vicarage, saw Hay, and also inspected their signatures in the church register. I—good gracious, Agnes! Are you ill?"

Agnes, feeling the strength in her knees gradually diminishing, sat down quietly on the side of the bed, and from thence slowly slid to the floor. Jack Hunter stepped lightly round the room, picked her up, and placed her in a chair away from the fire. There was no fear of her becoming unconscious, but she felt sick and giddy, terribly frightened, and looked deathly white. For a while she did not speak. She sat still, staring very hard and strangely up at the doctor until her perception became clearer and the weak languid feeling had in a measure passed.

"You are not going to upset yourself and make yourself ill about that young colt, Agnes, I should hope?"

"No, but I was surprised, startled, and coming on the top of this accident to Felix, it gave me a shock and sent me a little queer. Jack, dear Mr. Farley never married willingly; he has been forced into it, and that's what makes me feel ill."

"My dearest!" he said, laughing softly, and patting her hand, "it's a pity, then, you didn't see him. In all my life, I never saw a fellow look so ridiculously, so absurdly, so utterly and absolutely happy, satisfied, and contented."

"Then it wasn't Paul!" she said, an ineffable relief dawning in her eyes, and the pretty peach-bloom returning to her cheeks.

"It was, child," he returned gravely. "I was close to him, and should have spoken to him, but when he saw me he looked coldly unconscious of my presence, and turned away as if he wished to avoid an exchange of civilities. I raised my hat to Mrs. Farley, and she smiled and bowed most charmingly."

"I wouldn't mind staking my hance of getting married that she is not Mrs. Farley," she whispered, blushing a little, as she turned to the bed and gently touched the bruised temple.

He smiled indulgently and tweaked her ear playfully.

"Oh, Jack, I wish Felix could be told; it's possible he could throw some light on it."

"This long sleep will do him more good than any medicine or anything in the world, and when he awakens don't question him, it will only worry him needlessly."

Felix opened his eyes as the doctor spoke,, and looked anxiously at Agnes.

"Where is Paul?" he asked. "Is he safe?"

"Quite safe, dear," she replied, soothingly.

"And Hare—what's become of Hare?"

"Who is Hare?" he asked softly, bending over the bed.

"I don't know, ask Graham," he answered, wearily.

"I'll ask him; I'll look after Hare," Hunter returned. "Let me see this shoulder again, then get another good bout of sleep, and you will be comparatively level-headed by to-morrow."

At the end of the examination Felix sighed, closed his eyes, and appeared only too ready to comply with the doctor's suggestion.

Would Fall In a Faint

When She Attempted to Work, so Exhausted Was the Nervous System

The Feeble, Wasted Nerves Were Restored and Revitalized by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nervous prostration is a terrible disease to all who understand its symptoms. At times the sufferer feels comparatively well, but with slight exertion the dreadful helplessness returns and all strength and vitality seems to leave the system.

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible conditions in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system. I can do my own housework now and washing, and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."

The Weak, Lame Aching Back

Comes From The Kidneys.

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken immediately so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

Mrs. Joseph Throop, Upper Point de Bute, N.B., writes:—"I cannot speak too well of Doan's Kidney Pills. For two years I was so tired life was a burden, and I got up more tired than when I went to bed, and my back was so lame I could hardly straighten up. I took different kinds of medicine, but none of them did me any good until a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so, and to-day I don't know what it is to be tired, and my lame back is all gone. I can recommend them to any person suffering with lame back and that terrible tired feeling."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SQUIRE AND THE TELEPHONE

(Short Story.)

BY MARJORY ROYCE.

"Oh, yes, I admire it, but it is so inconvenient," said the American girl to Philip Thrush, the great antiquarian of Feverston, as they stood in the old-fashioned garden of Weston Grays, looking at the stately Queen Anne house, with its lofty gables and casement windows, all venerable and mellow in the autumn sunshine. Sadie Hartley had come from New York to spend a year at the old house with her uncle, the squire.

"Why is it inconvenient?" asked Mr. Thrush, turning his fresh coloured, clean shaven face under a soft gray Homburg hat, towards his companion. She amused him.

"Well, there is scarcely any water, no bathroom, no electric light, no inside heating. I have been used to having hot water laid on in my room. Worst of all, there's no telephone!"

"My dear Miss Hartley, a telephone at Weston Grays!" He flung up his hands and laughed. "What an impossible idea."

"I don't agree," said Sadie warmly. "We are five miles from Feverston. There is no village and no shop nearer than the town. Oh, the inconvenience of it!" She bit her lip. The gong for luncheon sounded in the distance. "You wanted something in a hurry this morning and couldn't get it" said he indulgently, as they moved together to the house."

"It was a postage stamp," said she, "and some chocolates." Mr. Thrush, allowing Sadie to pass before him into the beautiful oak panelled dining-room, thought she was an entertaining little girl, and Sadie, from her standpoint of nineteen years, regarded him as a pleasant, grandfatherly sort of person. ((Mr. Thrush was forty.)

The squire's jovial face beamed at them as they entered; and Mrs. Hartley, a pale and gracious lady of sixty-five, listened amusedly while Sadie continued to talk about the telephone. "We have done without one for about five hundred years at Weston Grays," said Mrs. Hartley.

"You find it useful, don't you, Mr. Thrush?" said Sadie. "You told me you had it."

"It saves me a good deal of time, certainly," said Mr. Thrush, smiling.

"Time," said the squire, banging his fist on the table. "That is what I need. Look how I had to keep you all waiting for lunch to-day. I had to go right into Feverston to fetch some lamp oil."

"You could have telephoned in and had it sent out this afternoon," said Sadie demurely.

"I rather like the idea," said the squire. "Don't find the days half long enough. One must move with the times. Sadie, you are a sensible girl. Are you and Thrush coming to see the new fence by the wood this afternoon?"

Sadie had been at Weston Grays two months. The ancient house rang with her young and often irreverent laughter. The squire, who had never had a child of his own, idolised her, and Mrs. Hartley tried not to feel wounded when Sadie criticised her caps. The telephone had been ordered, was finally laid, and finished up on an October afternoon. The squire was exceedingly enthusiastic on the project, and had written out a list of things to be telephoned for in his fine clear handwriting. He had never even seen such a thing in his long, innocent life, and Sadie, bewitchingly pretty in a fascinating white waist, spent some time in explaining matters. "I don't believe you can do it yourself," said he.

"Shall I speak to Phillip Thrush through it and show you?"

"Yes, do. What shall we say to him? Ask him how he is, child."

"No, if you don't mind I'll just ask him about that essay I am doing on Emerson for the literary society. Are you there? 394 Feverston."

It was a week later on a dull, brooding afternoon. "Why, where are you going, Annie?" Mrs. Hartley, in hat and jacket, was descending the shallow staircase to the hall, where the squire was lounging about rather aimlessly.

"I thought of having the brougham and going to get some biscuits and looking in on Mrs. Devereux."

"But why, my dear? Surely you can use the telephone. I have been to the expense of putting it into the house; why do you go to the trouble of having out the carriage for such a trivial thing? Telephone to Jones for the biscuits and ring up Mrs. Devereux."

"But I have been in the house a week ,Dick," said Mrs. Hartley.

"Just think of the folly of driving ten miles to buy some biscuits and to call on Mrs. Devereux!"

"It does seem silly," said Mrs. Hartley.

"I'll come and ring up for you," said the squire, anxious for occupation

"You might ask Mrs. Devereux how she is, please!"

"Why not talk to her yourself when I've got on?"

"I don't like to. I can't make things out; everything buzzes so, and I hear such funny people talking, and I can't hear them and they can't hear me."

"Never mind, I can always do it for you," said the squire. He was quite busy and interested while the ringing up lasted, and came to the morning room to tell his wife the result.

"They're sending out a box of water biscuits (assorted) to-morrow, and Mrs. Devereux is better." The hands of the clock pointed to half-past two.

"What are you going to do now, Dick? Have you got your letters done?"

"Yes."

"You haven't taken long."

"No. You didn't bring me so many orders, you know, that needed to be written for. I got 'em all off on the telephone in half an hour. It's a wonderful thing, Annie."

"I suppose it is," said Mrs. Hartley, settling down to her sewing.

People missed the gallant figure of the squire driving in his despert along the country road to Feverston. He missed his journeys acutely himself, though he never said so. He missed seeing his friends. Mr. Doughfield and Mr .Worthington, both retired bankers, were not so impressed as the squire hoped they would be when he told them of the advent of the telephone. After the board of hospital governors one week he walked up the street with them and mentioned it.

"And always going wrong, I hear," said Mr. Worthington. "Phillip Thrush has a telephone, and sits at it all day long, instead of taking a little healthy exercise."

"Why won't you have it put in at the Cedars, Claudius?"

"No, thank you. Mr. Worthington raised a fat hand solemnly. "England is going to the dogs ,and the Radicals are having it all their own way, but you don't find me taking up the new notions. A telephone is a direct step to Socialism." The squire climbed into his rig, and drove homeward feeling rather crestfallen.

One afternoon, later in the year, when they were all gathered round the tea table, Sadie suggested that her uncle should sell Fanciful, the little mare. "Why, my dear?" said the squire, astonished.

"She's simply eating her head off in the stable. You don't need to go to Feverston now, except once a week since you have the telephone."

The squire grunted, and took some cake.

"Auntie, I had a card from Flora Godwin, my friend in London, today; she's been to an American exhibition, and has seen some of those labour saving devices for cleaning a house I was telling you about. Shall I get her to order one for you?" The three maids had already too little to do at the quiet house of Weston Grays. Mrs. Hartley shook her head. There was a silence. The squire gazed gloomily out of the window, where all round, fields stretched to cold, grey sky. It was only twenty minutes to five, Sadie stated.

"I shall have to wire to Flora," she cried; "I forgot to give her the address of those lodgings she wanted." The squire jumped to his feet.

"I'll take it into Feverston, my dear," said he, and in a moment he was out in the hall finding his Burberry and hat and gloves, and shouting for his horse. "I shall enjoy a ride," he said, returning with his delightful face wreathed with smiles.

"What are you doing, uncle?" said Sadie, looking up. "There is no need whatever for you to go into Feverston. I can 'phone the message to the post office and they will send it on."

"Wh-at?" said the squire.

"Yes; didn't you know that is one of the beauties of the 'phone. You can send a wire through it to the post office," and Sadie launched into a full description. The squire scarcely listened to her. He went back mournfully to the hall, and, laying his stick along the row of hat pegs, said to himself, very slowly, "One of the beauties!"

"I don't think you are either of you nearly as cheerful as when I came," said Sadie. "I don't, really." She looked up with glowing cheeks. It was a sunny morning, and the young girl was looking particularly fresh and glowing.

"We love having you, Sadie dear," said her uncle and aunt.

"It is very sweet of you, but I don't think I can stay long," said Sadie, looking at them in a curious way. The telephone rang. "I know it's for me," said she, rushing from the room. The squire, with a puzzled face, bent over the newspaper, and Mrs. Hartley slowly mixed her tea. Sadie was back in two minutes. She went straight to her uncle and flung her arms round his neck. "I've just got engaged over the 'phone," she said. "He wrote and told me he'd ring up for my answer this morning. I call it a nice American way of doing things."

"But, my dear, who——"

That is a year ago, and Sadie has become Mrs. Thrush. The squire may again be seen driving along the country road that winds to Feverton from the solitudes of fields and marshes, holding a half piece of note paper on which Mrs. Hartley has written a list of groceries. There is no telephone now at Weston Grays.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Weakness and Palpitation OF THE HEART.

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled, more or less, with some form of heart trouble.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart, but when it starts to beat, irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, then it causes great anxiety and alarm.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can and will give prompt and permanent relief.

They do this by their restorative influence on every organ and tissue of the body.

Mrs. John J. Downey, New Glasgow, N.S., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I was troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies, but got none to answer my case like your Pills. I can recommend them highly to all having heart or nerve troubles."

PARTS PLAYED BY THEIR WIVES IN THE POLITICAL LIVES OF MEN WHO WOULD OCCUPY THE WHITE HOUSE

EVER since the time of Dolly Madison and Aaron Burr American women have been active in politics. They are the silent partners of the men who seek political preferment from their fellows. Many a woman has brought her husband the votes which placed him in Congress, and the record of their methods and endeavors would form a far more interesting story than the sometimes sordid work of the men who hold the offices.

Women, as a rule, play the game with much more skill and vastly more fairness than the men. In Washington, where politics centres, their facility is known, appreciated, yes, even dodged, by men who make a business of playing the political game. A meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution is as full of politics as a county convention in Vermont. But it is not among themselves or for themselves that women win the most daring political victories. They accomplish most when working for some one whom they love or want to win.

Silent partners of the Presidential candidates are already as busy as the candidates themselves. It is an even chance that they will look further ahead and even more clearly the contest for the nomination in the democratic party and the battle for the election which follows than most of the men who have been regarded either as candidates or the "dark horses" of the national election of 1912. Each of the candidates for the republican nomination has a wife whose political foresight and devotion have already aided materially toward political success.

Mrs. Taft, whose husband will probably be renominated by the republicans, is an astute politician and a far-sighted critic. She knows politicians and their ways, and she knows the ways of their wives, which in politics almost as important.

Mrs. Taft always has been at her husband's side in Washington when he was Secretary of War, in the Philippines or Cuba; and whether he hastened across the continent or the ocean in his mission of pacification she has usually accompanied him.

Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, whose husband is attempting to defeat the nomination of President Taft by running on a radical platform, is a lawyer. And what is a lawyer, man or woman, is not a politician? They used to say in Iowa when Senator A. B. Cummins was running for the Governorship or election to the Senate that Mrs. Cummins was his biggest political asset. What she was then she is to-day, and if any candidate's wife "puts anything over" on Mrs. Cummins' husband while he is a "dark horse" in the republican warming up race she will gain an immediate reputation by doing it.

Not only are the women helpful after marriage, but they are not infrequently an inspiration and an aid before. When Senator Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, went to ask Miss Lyons, of Richmond, to be his wife, it is said that she answered him:—"Come back when you have been elected to Congress." Mr. Swanson returned and later brought Miss Lyons to Washington as Mrs. Swanson.

President Taft not long ago introduced Mrs. Taft to a Washington audience before which they both appeared as "the real President." That may have been poetic license, but the remark was eloquent in expressing the President's indebtedness to his wife and the power which women hold over political life.

Of the members of President Taft's Cabinet only one, Frank H. Hitchcock, the Postmaster General, is a bachelor. He has been too busy to get married. They say in Washington that Mr. Hitchcock needs a wife, and he has often shown that he felt the same way about it himself.

They have as exciting elections at the Congressional Club, made up of women of the Congressional set, as they have in the insurgent State of Wisconsin. When Mrs. Ernest W. Roberts, wife of the Representative from Massachusetts, was elected last winter the excitement almost reduced the House of Representatives to the expedient of adjourning because of the lack of a quorum.

In the list of eight receptive candidates for the democratic nomination for President there is not a man who does not owe much of his success to an able wife. It takes a man with a helpful wife to win in politics under ordinary conditions. So great is the weight of woman's aid that those without it are not, as a general rule, found at the top. Just run over the names of your political friends and note how few of them are bachelors. Surprising, isn't it?

Mrs. Harmon and Mrs. Wilson, the first the wife of the Governor of Ohio and the second the wife of the Governor of New Jersey, are both politicians of merit. Their husbands now lead in the race for the democratic nomination. Behind them, and not very far away in some cases, are other women from as far North as Massachusetts and as far South as Alabama who are doing everything in their power to put their own husbands to the front. These are the dark horses, and it is in the quieter paths of politics—the more subtle reasoning—that the women excel.

Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, did not begin to "do things" until after he was married. His rise in life to social and political prominence seems to have begun with the year in which he forsook bachelordom, and he often asserts to friends that his wife is responsible for what success he has enjoyed, not only as an inspiration but as a helpmeet in the work and play of his political life.

When Mr. Wilson married Miss Ellen Louise Axson in Savannah, Ga., in 1885, he was a lawyer with a none too thriving practice in Atlanta. With his marriage he began to become better acquainted among persons who counted, and in the same year he was appointed professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr College. The position carried with it a salary which was an advance on his earnings as a lawyer and also a deal of social prestige.

With Mrs. Wilson he made scores of new friends whom he would have reached with great difficulty as a single man. His wife is famous for the ease with which she wins acquaintances and makes them friends. Mrs. Wilson was not one who would ingratiate herself with others at the expense of a moiety of her self-respect, but her tact and personal magnetism won friends who were influential.

Three years later Mr. Wilson was called to Wesleyan University, and in two years he went to Princeton to occupy the chair of jurisprudence and politics. Both these advances, he has repeatedly said, were more than half due to his wife, who not only helped him with his work but planned courses of study with him and helped to carry them out.

When the present New Jersey Governor entered active politics Mrs. Wilson took hold with him, and, being of a practical turn of mind, was of great assistance in turning her husband's wealth of theoretical politics to use in the real game.

Of no less value was her inherent knack of making and holding friends. Mrs. Wilson is unostentatious in all that she does and abhors everything flashy and loud. Consequently, the friends she makes are held by her own personality. In the executive home at Sea Girt, N. J., her entertainments are frequent, but of a quiet nature, and her receptions are attended by some of the most influential men of the State, who go there because they like to, and not because they feel it a duty or because they are politically dependent upon the Governor.

It is the friends which the Governor has made with his wife who will be largely responsible if Mr. Wilson becomes a Presidential nominee in the campaign of 1912.

Any one of several men may become the nominee of the democratic party and jump from State or Congressional politics into the national arena. They are Representative Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, who is married a second time, having been widowed; Speaker Champ Clark, of Missouri, whose wife is able and resourceful; Governor Foss, of Massachusetts, whose wife years ago tried to keep him from politics; Mr. Bryan, whose wife has had more experience than any of the rest; Governor Marshall, whose wife is much younger than he, and Governor Folk, whose wife probably cares less for politics than do any of the others.

It was her desire to keep her home life inviolate and have her husband near her that influenced Mrs. Foss to oppose his political career. She is not any too well pleased that he has followed it, but she values his success and is proud that he has been a second time able to drive Senator Lodge and the Old Guard in Massachusetts to cover. Mrs. Foss does not travel with her ideal candidate. She prefers to remain at home, and is essentially domestic in her tastes. She is rather small and pretty, of a blond type, always cheerful and dearly loved by those around her. Governor and Mrs. Foss have twin daughters, Helen and Esther, and two sons, to whom the mother is devoted.

"Well," said a friend to Mrs. Foss when she went to Washington to see her husband take the oath of office as a member of the House, "I suppose you are now getting reconciled to having your husband in politics?"

"Well, I am glad he has won this once," was as near to an indorsement of the situation as the wife of the Massachusetts Governor would go.

Mrs. Underwood Likes Politics.

Mrs. Foss is not in as grave danger of being forced into Washington life as some of the others and she will be almost as well satisfied to remain with her unmarried children in their beautiful home at Jamaica Plain, Mass. It is characteristic of Mrs. Foss that their summer home is not on the fashionable North Shore, where President Taft spends his summer months if Congress lets him, but on the South Shore, where there is less fashion and more family life. They have a summer place called "Green Gables" at Cohasset, on the celebrated Jerusalem Road.

Mrs. Underwood likes politics to an extent which leads her to read the Congressional Record. What stronger could be said of her participation in her husband's life? Any woman who reads the Congressional Record, when the tendency of the social surroundings in which she is placed is to discuss the latest novel, has her political diploma in her hands.

It is her husband's speeches to which Mrs. Underwood first turns, but she follows the debates of the House with a closeness which enables her to discuss them intelligently and critically. It's a bad thing for some not over well informed woman to criticise the democratic party in the presence of Mrs. Underwood.

Two boys by a former marriage keep both Representative and Mrs. Underwood fairly busy. She is a Southern woman of unusual social gifts and is very popular in Washington.

Governor and Mrs. Marshall are still on their honeymoon. Where Governor Marshall goes in a campaign there Mrs. Marshall goes also. They met when the Governor was in the practice of law. Mrs. Marshall, although much younger than her husband, "mothers him" and makes him take care of his health. They came to Washington together last winter. Some of Governor Marshall's political friends proposed that a way be made for him to go upon the floor of the House that he might meet those who could contribute to his political advancement.

"I do not care to go where my wife cannot go," was the Governor's rather curt reply to the proposal. Then he rejoined her in the House gallery.

In addition to being a politician of ability Mrs. Clark, wife of the democratic Speaker of the House, is a writer and story teller. She was Miss Genevieve Bennett, of Missouri, and was educated at the university of her own State. She has written interesting character sketches of her native county of Calloway, and is strong in the domestic arts. They have a son, who was sent to his mother's old college, and a daughter, Genevieve, named for her mother, attended the Friends' School in Washington.

Mrs. Clark believes that ham should be cooked by boiling it in pure water and then after allowing to cool baking it in vinegar and brown sugar as a sort of sauce. This is the way the Speaker of the House likes it. The recipe came out as the result of a ham cooking contest, in which Representative and Mrs. Ollie James, of Kentucky, argued for the Kentucky way, and Senator and Mrs. "Bob" Taylor for the Tennessee method. Before the argument was settled they all had to be convinced at a birthday dinner for the Speaker.

When Representative Clark became Speaker Mrs. Clark said that their home at a Washington apartment house was not sufficient and promptly moved her husband to a handsome house in Sixteenth street suitable for entertaining. She is a Presbyterian.

Mrs. Harmon has the advantage of some of the other silent partners of candidates in having become familiar with Washington society and methods when her husband was Attorney General under President Cleveland. She is a Daughter of the American Revolution and knows of its politics as well as those which have higher offices at stake. Mrs. Harmon is a graceful hostess, a tactful helper for her husband and a woman of those domestic traits also which appeal to the home loving.

Prominence of Governor Harmon in politics has made Mrs. Harmon a great reader of newspapers, and she often directs the attention of her husband to things which would otherwise have escaped even so close an observer of political changes. She says that she has no fads except keeping house and her four grandchildren. Mrs. Harmon holds that next to their home duties women can find best results for their endeavors in caring for ill and indigent children. If she interfered in any of the conditions of her own State of Ohio Mrs. Harmon would be most likely to ask her husband that women be put in charge of these institutions.

Mrs. Bryan's Experience.

Mrs. Bryan is better known than any of the others because of Mr. Bryan's participation in many prior campaigns. Her father said that she studied law because she did not want her husband to know anything she did not, but he was probably that once in error. She says that it was to make her a better comrade and helpmeet. Mrs. Bryan loves to read Victor Hugo, and holds that the best asset of a boy or a girl is common sense. Her parents, Colonel and Mrs. Darius Dexter, lived at Jamestown, N. Y., and were of English stock.

The romance of Senator and Mrs. La Follette began when both were in the University of Wisconsin. Mrs. La Follette is not only a lawyer but was once a member of the firm of La Follette & La Follette. She is more in the public eye perhaps than any other woman connected with the possible nomination as a Presidential candidate except Mrs. Taft. She writes a [illegible] for a syndicate of newspapers [illegible] topics as health, womanhood and the best foods.

An Iowa man, when asked what Mrs. Cummins' hobby was, replied that if he was not much mistaken it was her grandchildren, the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Rawson, of Des Moines. To this should be added politics, for Mrs. Cummins is not only a keen observer but a ready and successful worker. She is president of the Children of the American Revolution, a gracious entertainer and a student of affairs. While receptions at the Iowa capital while Senator Cummins was Governor were the social events of the State.

Clean Within!

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Purify the Blood and Prolong Life

If as much intelligent care were given to keeping the body clean and pure within as well as without we would see more healthy, vigorous old men and women. The daily bath does its part by keeping the pores of the skin open so that they throw off much of the body's impurities, but it is even more important that the bowels and kidneys should be kept regular and active.

If the bowels fail, as they often do late in life, to move regularly at least once a day, the waste matter from the food accumulates, decays, poisons the system and upsets the stomach.

If the kidneys are sluggish the impurities which they should filter from the blood remain and cause rheumatism.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills regulate the bowels, stimulate the kidneys and open up the pores of the skin. The result is a body clean within—pure, red blood—good digestion—and a hale and hearty old age.

Three generations have proved the value of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and their sale is steadily increasing all over the world.

RECIPES FOR HOUSEWIVES

BEL MEAD SALAD.

Have a kettle of salted water boiling rapidly and sprinkle in a cupful of well-washed rice. Let boil 15 minutes; then rub a few grains between your fingers. If perfectly tender, drain and sprinkle with a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pap into a border mold that has been well oiled, shake down and set aside to get cold. Mix together equal quantities of cold boiled asparagus tips, peas, diced carrots and beets. Marinate with French dressing. Arrange lettuce leaves on a platter, using only the blanched leaves, and turn the rice out on to it and fill the centre with the vegetables. Sprinkle some finely chopped parsley over the whole and serve a bowl of mayonnaise or French dressing with it.

FEATHER CAKE

Quarter pound of sugar, half pound of cornstarch, one teaspoonful baking powder, six ounces butter, two eggs, vanilla essence. Mix together the cornstarch, baking powder, and sugar; beat the butter to a cream, add to it gradually the cornstarch, etc.

WELSH RAREBIT

Grate a pound of cheese or cut it into small bits. Put into the blazer of a chafing dish a generous spoonful of butter. Stir until smoking hot, add a pinch of mustard, a dash of cayenne, salt and pepper and add the cheese. Stir steadily until melted, drop in a bit of baking soda the size of a pea and heat very hard until the cheese is like a thick cream, but be be careful not to cook it long enough for it to become tough and stringy. As it cooks beat in the whipped yolk of an egg. When the correct degree of creaminess is reached pour upon crustless pieces of toast and serve at once.

MINT SAUCE

Put into a small bowl four tablespoonfuls of mint, chopped very fine, and add to it three tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar. With the back of a spoon rub the two together for several minutes, then add a dash of white pepper and five tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir well and serve with roast lamb.

CHOCOLATE CREAMS

Beat the white of an egg light with a teaspoon of sugar, add a teaspoon of vanilla and enough confectioner's sugar to make a mixture stiff enough to be formed. Beat very smooth, form into little balls, and spread in pan to cool. Cover chocolate coating. This is simply melted sweetened chocolate. Each ball is dipped in this chocolate until covered, using any sharp instrument to hold creams while dipping.

THREE WAYS TO COOK RICE

Steamed Rice

Two tablespoonfuls and three-quarters of rice, three-quarters of a cupful of water, one quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Put salt and water in top of double boiler, place in range, and add gradually the well washed rice, stirring with a fork. Boil three minutes, cover, place over under part of double boiler and steam three-quarters of an hour; uncover that steam may escape. Serve with sugar and cream.

Boiled Rice

Wash one cupful of rice. Put three quarts of boiling water into a kettle, add a teaspoonful of salt and let it boil rapidly. Sprinkle in the rice, but do not stop the boiling. When the rice is in, stir the water briskly, cover the kettle and boil rapidly for twenty minutes. Pour into a colander on a tin pan and place in the oven five minutes to dry, leaving the oven door open. Serve in a heated dish without a cover. The cream is improved by frothing it slightly before it is brought to the table. Seasonable fruits may be served with the rice if desired.

Rice with Tomato Sauce

Cook one-third of a cup of rice in salted boiling water. Melt one tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, add a half can of tomatoes, one cup of hot water, a little celery salt and pepper. Cook three minutes. If there is on hand beef soup stock it may be used to advantage with this instead of water. Add the boiled rice and boil until it absorbs the liquid.

GRIDDLE CAKES

What is more appetizing on the morning table than a steaming hot pile of griddle cakes flanked by a plate of fresh, sweet butter and a goodly portion of molasses or syrup? Each family has its favourite variety of cakes, buckwheat, corn, wheat, potato or rice, and in some homes these delicacies make their appearance at breakfast every day in the year.

CORNMEAL GRIDDLE CAKES

This recipe will require two cupfuls of cornmeal, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add milk or milk and water to mix it to a thin batter. Bake on a hot griddle until a light brown on both sides.

EGG SAUCE.

Melt two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended: then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one and one-half cupfuls of hot water. Bring to the boiling point and add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, and three tablespoonfuls of butter, bit by bit.

FRUIT DRESSING

Take one dessertspoonful of Bensdorp's cocoa; dissolve in a very little boiling water, then take five large tablespoonfuls of thick condensed milk or cream and two spoonfuls of sugar. Mix all up well together. This makes a fine dressing for any kind of canned fruits that are tart, or for basket apples, apple sauce, etc. For canned peaches, pour the juice into separate dish, sweeten to taste and pour in the dressing. Mix well together and serve over the peaches.

RICE GRIDDLE CAKES

Two cupfuls of cold boiled rice, one pint of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one egg and one pint of milk. Sift together flour, sugar, salt and powder, add the rice free from lumps, diluted with beaten egg and milk, and mix into a smooth batter. Have a griddle well heated and bake a nice brown.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES

To one and a half pounds of pure buckwheat flour, add a half pint of wheat flour, three heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder, one teaspoonful of brown sugar or molasses Sift well together in the dry state, buckwheat flour, the wheat and baking powder, then add the remainder When ready to bake add one pint of water, or sufficient to form a smooth batter that will run in a stream (not too thin), and bake on a hot griddle.

GRIDDLE CAKE TIPS

See that the breakfast china is of sufficient strength to stand being well heated in the oven, and place the plates to warm while the cakes are being baked.

Heat the molasses or syrup. You will find the result well worth the additional trouble.

A hot cup of fragrant coffee is the finished touch to the mound of griddle cakes.

WINDSOR PEARS

Drain canned pears from their syrup, cut in quarters lengthwise, dry on a towel, and saute in butter until delicately browned. Arrange in a serving dish, and pour over the following sauce:

Put two ounces sweet chocolate in double boiler, and add one tablespoonful of sugar and one and one-fourth cupfuls of milk. When chocolate has melted and milk has reached the scalding point, add one teaspoonful of arrowroot mixed with one-fourth cupful of cream and a few grains of salt. Cook ten minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, and occasionally afterwards. Melt one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter in a small omelet pan, add one-fourth cupful of powdered sugar, and cook, stirring constantly until well caramelized. Add to first mixture, and flavour with one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. The pears should be allowed to stand covered with this sauce until thoroughly chilled.

BRAN MUFFINS

Four cups of sifted bran, two cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking soda, one cup of molasses, one cup of raisins, one pint of buttermilk, a pinch of sal. Mix well and bake in muffin pans.

PRUNE PUDDING

Take a half pound of prunes stewed very soft and mashed fine, after the seeds have been removed. Add half a cup of sugar and mix well with the pulp. Then add the well-beaten whites of four eggs and stir until smooth. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake until it puffs up and looks dry; set aside to cool, then heap over the top a cup of whipped cream. Do not have the oven too hot for baking the custard.

RISEN ROLLS

Sift a quart of flour with a teaspoonful of salt and rub into it a tablespoonful of butter. When this is blended add a generous cupful of lukewarm milk, in which a third of a yeast-cake has been dissolved. If too stiff add a little more warm milk. Stir in a teaspoonful of granulated sugar and knead for twenty minutes. Cover and set aside to rise overnight. In the morning make into rolls and set these to rise for one-half hour; then bake.

SWEDISH BREAD

Roll one pint of light dough a half inch thick. Spread with butter, sugar, a dash of nutmeg and one cup of well-cleaned currants. Roll up, spreading butter over top. Let rise and bake. Slice from the end.

RICE MUFFINS

One cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of cold boiled rice, two scant teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a heaping teaspoonful of butter and one egg. Mix the dry ingredients and rub them through a sieve into a bowl. Melt the butter and beat it into the rice. Add this mixture to the dry ingredients, then stir in the rice, beating all together quickly and well. Bake in gem pans 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

BEEF BROTH

Two and one-half pounds of short ribs of beef with enough cold water to cover. Put on slow fire and let simmer for two hours or longer until tender. When at boiling point, add one small onion and two sprays of chopped parsley. One hour before done add one-fourth cup of rice, one carrot cut up and salt. There should be a pint of stock when strained. Season and serve. Take the two and one-half pounds of cooked beef, spread top with tablespoonful of butter and put in oven long enough to brown.

BUTTERMILK CAKE

Two eggs, well beaten, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, two large tablespoonfuls of lard (or four of butter), one level teaspoonful of soda, flavouring to taste, and flour to make a medium batter. A good deal of stirring will not hurt this cake in the least, indeed it cannot be well made without it. Be sure to mix the soda with the flour and don't use too much soda. The lard does not taste and makes the cake "shorter" than the butter does.

FRITTERS

Cook three tablespoonfuls butter in the same amount flour and a half teaspoonful salt and paprika. Add a half cup each of cream and chicken broth or meat stock and bring to the boiling point then stir in the well-beaten yolks of two eggs over the hot water until the egg is set. Then stir in one cream or Camebert cheese. Turn on a buttered pan and when firm cut into flat round cakes. Dip in beaten eggs, then into bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with plain lettuce salad and bread and butter sandwiches.

CASCARETS FOR A SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse and Regulate Your Stomach, Liver and Bowels While You Sleep

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nauseau, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended for ever. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

DECIDED BY FATE

(Short Story.)

They rode in silence along the shady road shut in on either side by tall, straight pines. The woods about them were all of pine scents and drowsy sounds. A soft wind blew against their faces as they went, and the girl leaned to it, the colour in her cheeks coming and going. She lifted her face with a quick breath.

"Smell the pine needles!" she said.

The youth by her side nodded almost coldly. The girl looked at him reproachfully, then smiled a little.

At a turn in the road the young man slackened speed and turned to the girl with a swift gesture. "Do you know where we are?"

She looked about her—at the straight trees and sunflecked aisles. "Not in the least," she answered, slowly. "Isn't it beautiful?"

"Are you very anxious to overtake the others?" he asked, hesitatingly.

"Why?" Her eyes showed her surprise.

"I mean—I know—there's something on one of these roads that's rather nice. I should like to take you there. But there isn't time to go there and join the others, too."

The girl mused. "Is it very, very nice?"

"I like it."

"Would I like it?"

He hesitated. "I don't know. I should like to see."

"How will you know?" She was looking at him, a half teasing light in her eyes.

"You will tell me," he spoke, quietly.

"Let us join the others," she said, uneasily.

"Very well. Choose the road," he said, tersely.

"Which one leads to what you spoke of"

"I'm not going to tell. If you choose it—it is fate."

"Oh!" There was a long silence. "Oh, I can't decide," she said at last. Something underran the words.

"You must!"

A bright colour flooded her face. She drew a flower from her belt and threw it far ahead. "See which way the stem points," she said.

He jumped out and picked it up. He placed it carefully in his buttonhole, while she leaned forward, watching him.

"Which way?"

"To the right." He started up the machine.

"Is that the one you wished to take?"

"That's for you to find out."

She stared at him with laughing eyes. How secretive and mysterious.

"You've never been so interseting before."

The road ran through a little valley. Then it turned abruptly and mounted a steep hill. At the top they came upon a village, hidden from sight by the trees, till one reached it.

"What a quaint place," said the girl, looking about with eager eyes. "It is like a place in a dream."

The houses were far apart, with generous yards and leisurely walks, along which strange, old-fashioned flowers bloomed. Through the trees and between the houses one caught glimpses of the mountains across the valley, sleeping in the haze.

"What a dear little house," exclaimed the girl, suddenly, half-putting out her hand. The machine had stopped. The young man sprang out.

"Shall we go in?"

"May we?" she asked, quickly.

"Yes, I know them." He held out his hand.

"How clean and still and lovely it seems," said the girl, as she walked along the flower-bordered path to the door. The young man knocked lightly, and they stood waiting, looking back into the yard.

The door opened, and an old woman, a little shy, looked at them a moment. Then her face filled with swift, tender light. "Why, it is Norman."

He bent and kissed her.

"This is Alice Benton, grandmother," he said. "I have brought her to see you."

"Come in, my dear," said the woman.

She opened the door into a dim room. The windows were open and the scent of flowers came in, delicately, as the wind went by.

"You will like it by the window," said the woman, throwing open a blind, and her eyes rested kindly on the girl. She drew the little three-cornered shawl that had slipped from her shoulders more carefully into place.

"I must call father," she said.

The smile in her eyes made the girl think of something—far away, and the quick tears came to her eyes as she watched her cross the room.

The eyes of the young man and the girl met across the light of the dim room.

Presently the old man's figure filled the doorway. He looked at the young man and from him to the girl and back again with shrewd, kind eyes.

"This is Alice Benton, father. Norman brought her to see us."

He took the girl's hands in his. "We are glad to see you, Alice," he said, patting her hand gently.

They sat down a little distance from each other, the grandmother's face in its white hair and gentle lines looking out on them like some old portrait.

The girl glanced at her shyly now and then. They did not speak much to her, so she felt free to take in the room, the man, the woman and the certain quiet pleasure they took in he young man.

They turned to her at last.

"Alice must see the garden," said the grandmother, taking an old-fashioned basket from a nearby cupboard. Little lines of brown ran along the green, forming a quaint design.

"Father gave it to me before we were married," said the grandmother, smiling at the girl's exclamation of pleasure.

"I'm going to fill it with fruit for you." They went out into the garden, back and forth along the paths, loitering under a pear tree or by the beehive, where the droning, like the sound of memory, rose about them.

Together the old couple gathered fruit for the basket, and when they were done the grandmother smiled at the girl.

"You must keep the basket, too," she said. The words had a shy, lingering sound.

The girl held out her hand and took the basket. She could not have spoken just then.

The shawl had slipped a little from the grandmother's shoulders and the old man bent to replace it, awkward and tender. They went slowly across the yard to the gate. When the girl looked back they were still there.

The girl and the young man rode slowly down the shaded street and up over the brow of the hill. By and by they would come to the fork in the road. Then the young man would speak. The girl knew. She knew at last what she would answer.

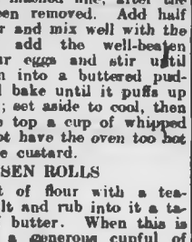
For tamping bricks or paving blocks or even earth when a trench is filled there has been invented a motor driven machine that delivers from 50 to 60 blows a minute.

Aids Nature



The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, In Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, paper-bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Two men were sentenced at Chatham to the Central Prison for stealing produce from farmers.

The temperance forces in Lake Megantic, Que., won out yesterday and secured the election of A. A. Gendreau as mayor by a majority of 12.

For seducing a young girl of fifteen years, Antoine Lasure of Peterboro, a young man, was sentenced yesterday to one year in the Central.

A young man named Blouse calmly pleaded guilty before the Hamilton magistrate to six burglaries in six months. He was remanded for sentence.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, in an address to the newly-organized Liberal Club at Orillia, took a strong stand for Ontario's rights in regard to boundary extension.

J. Pierpont Morgan has promised to give the last $50,000 necessary to complete the total of $500,000 which it was expected to collect during the twelve days' campaign for the Y.M.C.A. in London, Eng.

Waiting for a street car to take him to Trinity College, Toronto, where for eight years he had been professor of modern languages, J. W. G. Andras fell dead yesterday morning. Heart failure, brought on by ill health, was the cause.

Government assistance for a railroad across the northern portion of western Ontario from Kincardine to Orillia, a distance of 180 miles, was asked for by an influential deputation which waited on Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday.

Robert McEwan, assistant stablemen at the City Hotel, Stratford, was burned to death in a fire which broke out in the stables. The fire started while the young man's father was at dinner, and on his return he was met by the son, whose clothing was a mass of flames.

Pennsylvania Out of Debt.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—With funds on deposit at a Philadelphia bank to meet all claims the State of Pennsylvania was practically freed of all interest bearing debt yesterday when bonds aggregating $1,605,100 matured. The bonds maturing yesterday were authorized in 1881 and were issued to take up maturing loans at that time, some of which came down from Civil War times. Just 135 firms, persons or estates held the bonds that matured.

New Honor for Hearst.

Cobalt, Feb. 2.—Word is received here that the name of the Town of Grant, a divisional point on the Transcontinental Railway, 130 miles west of Cochrane, has been changed to Hearst by the Postoffice Department, in honor of Hon. W. H. Hearst, the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines in the Ontario Cabinet.

Hearst is in the centre of an agricultural section, and the terminal of the Algoma Central Railway.

Still Talking Iron Bounty.

It is understood that the only matter of outstanding importance discussed had further reference to the bounty on pig iron. The situation is not changed from Wednesday, but the sentiment in the main appears to be favorable to the bounty being granted temporarily.

The final decision rests with the Government.

N. W. White For Senate.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—It is stated that N. W. White, ex-M.P., will be appointed to the Senate to succeed the late Hon. Thomas McKay. In 1896 Mr. White was among the nominations to the Senate made by the Tupper Government after its defeat, but which the Earl of Aberdeen refused to ratify.

Got Rich Loot From Express Co.

Winnipeg, Feb. 2.—George Powers confessed yesterday to robbing the Canadian Express Co., for whom he was a driver, on Jan. 11 last, of $3,300 in currency and $4,000 in securities, most of which have been recovered. He was remanded for sentence.

He said that he concocted the robbery with Charles Verral, a butcher of St. James', and that they divided the spoils in the latter's house.

GROWS HAIR ON BALD HEADS

Bald-Headed People May Get a New Chance in Life.

In these days when youth is the moving factor in business, when a man makes his mark at thirty-five, when business houses pension the man we "call "middle aged" rather than allow his lagging influence to intrude upon the commercial rush, a bald head is almost fatal to any man's hopes. The following must, therefore, prove interesting to people who are losing their hair or who are bald.

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Napthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, and also creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural colour, where the loss of colour has been due to a disease of the scalp. Yet, it is not a colouring matter or dye.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant perfects a most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles.

The famous Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of Resorcin, Beta Napthol and Pilocarpin. It helps to make the scalp healthy, to nourish the hair, to stimulate the follicles. Where the head is already bare, it enters the follicles, revitalizes the roots, supplies nourishment, and stimulates a new growth.

We want you to try a few bottles of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, on our personal guarantee that the trial will not cost you a penny if it does not give you absolute satisfaction. That's proof of our faith in this remedy, and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except, of course, where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, the follicles closed and grown over and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done to hundreds of others it will do for you. In any event you cannot lose anything by giving it a trial on our liberal guarantee. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store — The Rexall Store—McDermid and Jury.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO START CAMPAIGN

Church of England Will Hold Special Conference in Peterborough

The Church of England Sunday School Commission of Canada has decided to hold a three weeks' campaign in Toronto, starting on the 26th of this month. Each of the Anglican churches of the Synod of Toronto will be visited in turn by the organizing Sunday school secretary of the Anglican church, Rev. E. A. Hilts, and special Sunday school teachers' and officers' conventions will be held all over the city. The aim is to stir up the Sunday school workers, and to secure greater efficiency in the Sunday schools of the city.

Special conferences will be held not only in Toronto, but also in Brampton, Alliston, Barrie, Orillia, Oshawa, Tavistock, PETERBOROUGH, Haliburton and Aurora. This is only part of an extensive Sunday school improvement campaign being carried on at the present time all over Canada from Halifax to Vancouver.

UNIQUE NURSERY ADVERTISEMENT

The modes of advertising are infinite. While newspaper advertising is the most effective, a close second is the kind that is unique, and thereby challenges attention. Something new in this line is the advertising method of Harrison's Nurseries, Berlin, Maryland, which have forwarded by mail to the Examiner a Winesap apple, neatly enclosed in a square card-board box. Of course, it is a sample of the fruit grown on the trees supplied by the distributing nursery. This specimen is beautiful in form and colour, but of course it is not equal to apples of the same kind grown in Ontario, especially Northern Ontario. It is an acknowledged fact that the farther north an apple will mature, the better its quality. It is stated by those who know that the Northern Spy, one of our most delicious Ontario apples, becomes in quality, something like the Ben Davis, when grown as far south as Missouri. Maryland being considerably further south than Ontario, it is probable that Winesap apples grown there, would not have the prime qualities of texture and flavour to be found in the Ontario-grown apples of the same variety.

KICKED FROM SLEIGH

As three fine two-year-old steers were being brought into the Market Place this morning, one of them became scared at a little girl who ran swiftly by it. The animal turned and ran north, on Water street, turning the corner, west on Hunter St. Here much excitement was occasioned by reason of a milkman, who turned his vehicle in order to stop the steer, being kicked from his sleigh into the road. The animal continued its course north, on Water street, and was eventually caught. The cattle belonged to Chemong.

A RUNAWAY

The handsome team of greys, belonging to Messrs. Storey's livery, apparently took a notion, last evening to repair homewards before time. They were standing in the road of the Montgomery House when suddenly, from some cause, they backed and, at a stretch gallop, careened through the streets into Storey's stable yard in a remarkable, in consideration of the speed at which they travelled, that no damage was done.

THREE MONTREAL MEN ARRESTED FOR STEALING RIDE ON C.P.R. TRAIN SUSPICIOUS TOOLS ARE FOUND

Sentenced to Thirty Days on the Mill—One Worked in an Explosive Factory.— Alex. Windover Has Escaped the Police.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Thos. McDougall, Herb. Nuttell and Alex. McDonnell were arraigned before Magistrate Dumble in the police court this morning, charged with entering a C.P.R. passenger train without a ticket and riding thereon without the consent of the officials or officers of the company. All three pleaded guilty and a fine of $10 each was imposed. None of the men had any money, and as the fine was made forthwith, they will likely spend 20 days, guests at Castle Nesbitt.

To Mr. Pinchin, the local C.P.R. detective, the men stated that they came from Montreal and were on their way to Toronto. One of the men stated that he had been working in an explosive works in Montreal, but was a corduroy cutter by trade. He was informed by the Magistrate in court that there was little demand for the services of such a mechanic here and he should have stayed where he was needed.

The men are evidently hard characters, as utensils for breaking into box cars were found on them, in addition nto other suspicious tools, a necessary equipment for such characters.

The Bird Has Flown.

Alex. Windover, the much sought for local man, whose five children are wards at the Children's Shelter, and whose wife is dangerously ill with tuberculosis in the hospital, has gone to parts unknown. Since the morning he appeared in court, charged with non-support, he has not been seen in this locality. The last trace of him that could be found was at Lindsay. High County Constable Cochrane traced him as far as that point and from there it is thought he travelled northward, but nothing definite is known. The authorities think he has gone to the north shore.

Arrangements are being made to let the children go out to those wanting them. The physician in charge of Mrs. Windover states that her case is a serious one and she will have to be sent to Muskoka, before any improvement can be looked for .

"Sunny Jim" Came Back.

Sunny Jim Wilson again broke faith and was arraigned on a charge of being under the influence of liquor while on the black list. A fine of $10 to be paid forthwith was imposed, but Jim did not have the necessary cash, so will spend the next 30 days behind the barred windows of Castle Nesbitt. Jim explained that he had gone to Lindsay with the hockey team and the Lindsay whiskey had been too strong for him.

John Quinlan, a local carter, was fined $2 for allowing his sleigh to stand on the sidewalk on Simcoe St. while he loaded it with ashes from 90. Alphonsus Lyceum. He explained that the snow was level with the walk and that only one runner had slewed down onto the walk and he did not know he was committing a breach of the law.

The Magistrate commented that there are lots of people who sin unconsciously.

AFTER A COUPLE

Man and Girl Travelling Around Northern Part of the County are Being Sought by Police

SAY THEY ARE MARRIED

An interesting case is at present occupying the minds of the County Court officials and especially High County Constable Cochrane. A man about the age of 26 years, named William James Shaw and a girl about fourteen or fifteen, have been tramping the country back in Smith and when last heard of were north of Buckhorn. The man, who goes under the name of Shaw, claims that the girl is his wife, but it is the opinion of Mr. Cochrane that she was enticed away from her home by Shaw. Mr. Cochrane thinks that the couple came from the vicinity of Kingston.

Mr. Cochrane went in search of the couple yesterday and followed them north of Buckhorn, where he lost track of them. The residences are so scattered in that part of the country that Mr. Cochrane thinks they have gone further north.

Mr. Cochrane returned late last evening after a drive of over 50 miles, of fruitless searching, and he is now going to adopt some other means of capturing the pair.

RENFREW ELECTION ON FEB. 22

Special Wire to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., FEB. 2.—Nominations February 15th, polling February 22nd. These are the official dates for the bye-election in South Renfrew. The writ was issued this morning and will be forwarded to Returning Officer George Eady of Renfrew this afternoon. The formal announcement will be made by the Ministers, who are going to Arnprior this evening.

WHERE WOULD YOU BE IN CASE OF A FIRE?

When you pay a Company to assume your risk you want to be sure that the Company is financially able to take care of it. Do not be satisfied with a statement that shows enough assets to pay any loss you may individually sustain. If a conflagration occurs at the time your own fire comes along and the Company is heavily involved you may find, as thousands of others have found before you, that your policy is of little value. Make yourself secure by taking a policy of the Manitoba Assurance Company which is conflagration proof. Agent, Davis-Thompson Co., Limited.

SIGNS DAMAGED

A number of men secured by ropes were engaged in clearing the snow off the roof of the Market building. A number of signs suffered severely, including Dr. Browett's, which was badly damaged by the lumps falling on it. Several citizens also had narrow escapes from being struck by large lumps of snow and ice. Several tons were removed.

THE PROPOSED GARBAGE COLLECTING SYSTEM PRESENTS SOME DIFFICULTIES TO COMMITTEE

Question Introduced at Property Committee Meeting---Some of the Points That Proved Difficult to Explain---Ground is Being Broken and the Task is Puzzling

DUMPING GROUND FIRST

The Property Committee of the City Council began on Thursday night the consideration of providing an adequate collecting system for Peterborough and this particular committee, with Mayor Bradburn, discovered, as they probably anticipated, that the working out of details was as knotty a proposition as they will likely be called upon to wrestle with this term.

It was easy enough to take the first step. It was agreed that the city had reached a stage that warranted the establishment of a garbage collecting system, but after that plunge a tangle of difficulties was encountered. How was the garbage to be collected? Would the city undertake the work itself, and tax the ratepayers benefitted, as is done for street watering? Or would a number of men be licensed to do the work under the supervision of a Sanitary Inspector, the people to pay according to the number of collections made each week? These and other suggestions were advanced.

Method of Disposal.

Another difficulty was met, in the disposal of the garbage, ashes, tins, etc., that would be collected, and this is the first point to be decided. Chairman Duncan and Mayor Bradburn were appointed to try to find a dumping ground as suitably located as possible. It was suggested that the city might build an incinerator, bu in the whole discussion the committee kept in view the fact that this was but the initial step, an experiment, as it were. Thus, it was felt that only a section of the city should be selected for the first year, and if the results were satisfactory and appreciated the district could be gradually increased until in time the whole city might be given a good service.

It is felt that a garbage by-law will be a forward step in safeguarding the public health. The outlying districts are admittedly in a different position from the central parts as most residents have gardens where rubbish can be buried, but in the heart of the city this means of disposal does not prevail. It is believed, therefore, that a garbage collecting system will be of interest to all citizens who have the best interests of the community at heart.

The Property committee have broken the ground with the subject at any rate and have expressed a determination to go ahead with it. And Duncan as chairman, is expected to bring forward a report to the Council at an early date.

CONCERT AT MARK STREET

A most successful concert was held last night in Mark street church, under the auspices of the Mission Band. The church was packed, with many standing throughout the entire performance. The programme was of a very high order and the general verdict was that it was one of the best if not the best, that has ever been held in the church. Too much credit cannot be given to the committee, who worked indefatigably to bring about the desired result.

Special mention might be made of the motion song of welcome, with wreaths by nine girls; song by Mrs. Sargent; Penny song by four girls; recitation entitled, "Dearest Things," by twelve little tots; the cross, by fourteen girls; a dialogue; motion song by eleven girls, the camp scene and pantomime.

The programme was interspersed with stereopticon pictures shown by Mr. Fowler.

BOURASSA'S COMMAND

He Calls Upon Premier Borden to Repeal Laurier's Naval Law and Takes Him to Task

STATEMENT IN LE DEVOIR

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, FEB. 2.—In a signed article, which occupies a large part of the front page of LeDevoir this afternoon, Henry Bourassa, the Nationalist chieftain, calls on Premier Borden to repeal the Laurier naval law and takes him to task for not having taken the matter up before now. His argument is that Lord Beresford has declared the British navy to be in a badly disorganised condition and that therefore the Canadian people should not have anything to do with it.

SUBMARINE GOES DOWN

"A 3" Collides With Gun-boat Hazard off Isle of Wight And it is Feared That All of The Crew Have Been Lost

FRESH AIR EXHAUSTED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 2.—Another disaster occurred to the British submarine navy this morning, when submarine "A3," carrying a crew of eleven men, sank, off the end of the Isle of Wight following a collision with the gunboat "Hazard". Official reports say the whole of the crew were caught like rats in a trap. There was no time to save any lives after the collision. In the sight of the crew of the Hazard and other warships, which stood by to give assistance the submarine dipped beneath immediately and nothing of her or crew has been seen since. Naval experts say all the crew must be dead, at their posts, as signs of gas floating on top of the water, indicate that the fresh air reservoirs were flooded with the rest of the vessel. The accident occurred on the exact spot where the submarine "A1" was lost with all hands, 1904. British submarines are singularly unfortunate, fifty seamen having lost their lives with them since experiments started.

FIRE RECORD FOR JANUARY

During the month of January, ten alarms were responded to by the Fire Department, and the total aggregate damage incurred by fire during the month was $1,710.

"That's a pretty good record for this time of the year," remarked the Chief to The Examiner this morning.

SENATOR COX MADE PETERBORO' SAYS SIR EDMUND WALKER

MANY BRIGHT SPEECHES

The occasion was a banquet given by the directors of the Canada Life in the Toronto Club to mark the fiftieth anniversary of Senator Cox's connection with the company, in which he has been the primal moving force for a large part of that time. Congratulations were tendered him by his associates, men who have been equally successful in other lines, on the present strong position of the company, and the excellent report which was presented at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon.

The speakers of the evening were Sir John Gibson, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario; Sir Edmund Walker, Hon. Robert Jaffray; Messrs. Joseph Henderson, General Manager of the Bank of Toronto; Adam Brown, of Hamilton; H. E. Gates of London; Wiliam Toole of Calgary, and Mr. E. H. Plummer, Vice-President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, who presided.

GIFTS OF SILVERWARE

Besides the words of esteem and regard that came from the lips of the speakers, an eloquent expression of the affection in which his employees held him was contained in the presentation to him of a magnificent collection of silverware, including several beautifully designed bowls, candelabra, compotes, and candlesticks. These were presented on behalf of the directors, branch managers and chief officials of the company.

Those in attendance numbered about one hundred and twenty five, and included Sir John Gibson, Sir Edmund Walker, Senator Jaffray, Mr. E. R. Wood and Mr. Alex. Laird, General Manager of the Bank of Commerce.

THE NEWEST DIRECTOR

In proposing the toast to the health of the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr Plummer referred to the fact that this was Sir John Gibson's first public appearance since his election to the Board of Directors of the Canada Life yesterday afternoon.

Responding, the Lieutenant-Governor expressed appreciation of the junior member of the board being so honoured. He spoke of his first connection with the Canada Life, which was in 1863, when he was a law clerk student at Bridgeburg in the office of Mr. Alexander Bruce, K.C., and when he had to copy out ream after ream of information in connection with a Chancery suit in which the Canada Life was plaintiff and the village of Bridgeburg defendant.

"I have not known our president as long as many of you," he said, "but I knew him by reputation long before I knew him personally, and I can say that I like him better the more I know him. I don't know any institution that I would rather entrust my destinies with than the Canada Life. One time shortly after I had first met Senator Cox, when he was a travelling agent, I told him that some day he was going down to own that Canada Life. He looked at me in amazement then."

MADE PETERBOROUGH

The toast to the guest of the evening was proposed by Sir Edmund Walker, and Hon. Robert Jaffray, both of whom have had long business associations with Senator Cox. Sir Edmund Walker told of the humble start in life made by Senator Cox as a telegraph operator in Colborne, and dwelt on the qualities and characteristics which had brought him to the high position of responsibility which he now occupied. Speaking of the period of his life spent in Peterborough, Sir Edmund said: "He has made Peterborough. What Peterborough is to-day is the result of the extraordinary energy which that young man put into it when there."

SUIT FOR $500 AGAINST THE INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION ECHO OF THE FALL FAIR

Premier Roblin, of Manitoba. He is in Ottawa this week, in an endeavour to secure an extension of the Boundaries of his Province.

IN HOSPITAL SIX WEEKS

The dancing, or boxing, bears, that helped amuse the crowds at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition's annual fall fair, last September, are probably forgotten by this time, but one of them left the directors a remembrance in the form of a suit for damages amounting to $500 brought by John Bolton, for injuries received by his little son, John, Jr., as the result of a bear badly mangling one of his legs.

The little chap left home with a companion, proud in the possession of forty cents, and eager to see the sights that had been described practically, as "greater, grander, better than ever". According to the information given, he bought his ticket like a little man, instead of trying the usual route for boys—over the fence.

The night performance was given, the trained bear contributed its share of the grandstand programme, and, it seems, was tied to a post beneath the stand. Young Bolton had a position on one side of the stand, and, to secure a better place of vantage, chose the easier way under the stand, instead of jostling his way through the crowd. In the dark, the boy ran right into the bear's arms, as it were. At any rate, before the boy realized his position, the supposed tame bear bit one of his legs five or six times. He managed to get away from it and staggered into the crowd. He was taken to Dr. Greer's office and received first-aid treatment, and spent five or six weeks in the hospital before he had entirely recovered.

This is the basis of the action for $500 damages, brought against the Exhibition by Mr. Bolton. The directors are taking third party proceedings against the New York Amusement Company, the grandstand entertainers. The case is still pending.

BOARD OF WORKS MET LAST NIGHT

The Board of Works met last night with Ald. Buller presiding, and Ald. Duffus, Johnston, Anderson and Gillespie, and Mayor Bradburn present.

Ald. Buller suggested that the South City Pumping Station and plant be insured. The machinery in this building, apart from installation, cost $4,066.05. Ald. Buller was authorized to enquire into the advisability of insuring the plant, and what class of insurance could be put on with advantage to the city, especially in the case of fire, resulting in damage to the motors. It was decided to supply the tools, supplies, etc., needed at the South City Pumping Station, according to the Chairman's judgment.

OFFICERS ELECTED

A very interesting meeting of the Dan Spence Council, R. T. of T. No. 26, was held last evening in the Knights of Pythias' hall. There was a good attendance, over which the Past Councillor, Brother Carey, presided.

All officers were installed and four new members initiated, after which the new Select Councillor, Brother G. Russell, occupied the chair and conducted the business part of the meeting.

At the conclusion of this, an appropriate programme and social time were enjoyed. Past Councillor Brother Carey gave a brief address, urging all officers and members to be earnest and sincere in their efforts to uphold the good reputation of the lodge and help on the temperance cause.

Sister V. Merrill gave a thrilling temperance recitation, and Sister E. Kemp a vocal solo, which was beautifully rendered.

Sister L. Smith delighted the company with a well rendered instrumental, and Brother B. Doucette gave a recitation in his usual pleasing and dramatic manner. Refreshments were then served and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on March 7th. All members are requested to be present.

DIDN'T WANT TO EAT

Had Severe Stomach Trouble — Is All Right Now.

Experts declare that much of the dyspepsia and loss of appetite so common in this country is due to the use of preservatives in foods. But much more likely it is on account of hasty and careless habits of eating.

Our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, Vinol, has restored appetite and digestion to thousands of people who had despaired of ever being able to enjoy a meal again.

Fred. Oberlander of Schenectady, N. Y., says: "I had stomach trouble for two years and they were years of terrible suffering. I did not want to eat, and what I did eat gave me pain. My health ran down too. Since I have used Vinol my stomach trouble has vanished. I eat heartily, and never felt better in my life."

If you are rundown and weak, cannot eat or digest your food, you need Vinol. It will do you great good. You can have your money back if Vinol does not do all we claim. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

"ONE ARMY, ONE FLAG ONE NAVY, ONE KING"

Dear Editor,— Please publish my poem, One Army, One Flag, One Navy One King. The sentiments of my poem, like the Trinity, should be the aim of all good Christians of Canada, and our great Empire.—John Bell.

One Army, One Flag, One Navy, One King.

On the twenty-first, of September day,
Canada was on, parting of the way,
Elections ar,, past, without any harm.
Canada is rich; to give all a farm.
Over Canada our voices now ring
On oceans, on seas, under the blue sky,
All over the globe the Union Jack fly.
Our motto shall be, that all men be free
All over the earth, on land and on sea,
Over an Empire, our voices shall ring,

—John Bell.

AN INDIFFERENT MINISTER.

Hon. Mr. Duff, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, scarcely grades "No. 1 hard" in the eyes of practical and in-earnest agriculturists. The Ontario Corn Growers' Association held a meeting at Tilbury, Ont., and as reported elsewhere on this page, Mr. Duff came in for some frank criticism. He acted wisely in not being present, for in that event he might have got a disturbing idea that he was not filling the bill in the matter of showing interest in the promotion of agricultural interests. Hon. Mr. Duff, according to many shrewd farmers, stands in the way of, instead of leading the way in, providing conditions that conduce to promotion of, especially the educative interests of the farmers. The Tilbury farmers charge Hon. Mr. Duff with indifference, one of the most discouraging things to combat. To say that a man is an indifferent minister, is capable of a double application.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner extends the most cordial congratulations to Senator Cox, upon the completion of his fiftieth year of connection with the Canada Life. A companion subject of congratulation to this is the complimentary banquet tendered him last night in Toronto in recognition of the occasion. A man who has spent half a century in the strenuous path of business life, with its keen rivalries, and necessary conflict of interests, and still retains, not only his pre-eminence in finance, but his pre-eminence in the esteem of the foremost men of the financial world, is to be indeed congratulated. Peterborough shares in his honour, for for the best part of his business life, Hon. Senator Cox was a resident of, and a big factor in, the progress of Peterborough. He did a great deal for the benefit of Peterborough, and still retains a warm interest in it, as Peterborough retains in him. The roots of his phenomenal financial success were struck in the soil of Peterborough. For more than a generation, Senator Cox has been in the forefront of the financial magnates of Canada, and has not only been a national mentor in honourable business methods ,but a model of high personal living and splendid citizenship. May his days be long in the land and happy—as the shadows lengthen and the evening come.

DON'T MAKE DIVORCE EASY.

The Montreal Herald incidentally commends the superior working facility of the United States' divorce system in comparison with the divorce machinery of the Canadian Senate. It is a question whether making it easy to evade or escape responsibility of obligations, whether they are marital or business obligations, is a good thing for society and the safe social conditions, as keeping to a riage and the marriage bond are the indispensable conditions of sound and safe social conditoins, as keeping to a bargain or contract is the indispensable condition of sound business. The more difficult we make it to escape either of these bonds the better. Our whole business system would collapse into crash, if the law provided that a business agreement should be annulled on such frivolous grounds as are effective across the line in separating men and women whom God has joined together, and man is forbidden to put asunder. The Bible, which at one time was held in reverence and respect, recognises only one ground of justification for divorce. If we are a Christian country, we must be bound in the administration and making of our laws by what was laid down by the founder of Christianity. If we deny that responsibility, and only if we do that, we can justify the enactment of laws that break the marriage bond on a score of frivolous pretexts. Making the obtaining of divorces easy, only tends to create demands for divorce, and the more divorces we have, the more we strike at and sap the foundations of society and impair the integrity of the state.

SANITARY INSPECTOR.

The City Council is properly taking great interest in providing for the first essential to making Peterborough a desirable and good place of residence—good healthy conditions of private premises and public places. We can't be healthy without we are clean, and we can't be clean unless we are kept clean—practically—from day to day. A yearly clean-up of premises by the city is very much like what a bath once a year is to the individual. Much of the good results from sanitary provision, will come from effectiveness of inspection. The City Council proposes advertising for applications for the position of sanitary inspector. This is the easy part; the applications will come fast enough; but the real matter is the appointment. There may be favouritism in the appointment of sewer, or sidewalk, or other inspectors, and little damage may be done. But in the matter of our health, the health of ourselves and families; of the cleanliness and tidiness of our public and private places, there is absolute demand for the appointment of the best man obtainable for sanitary inspector. He must be chosen, not because he is a friend of this or that alderman; not because he is a member of this or that club, society or church, but solely because he has the intelligence, fairness, knowledge of sanitary requirements and other qualifications that will guarantee the discharge of his duty effectively and without favour. The City Council is setting out, promisingly in its crusade of reform and improvement. But zeal is not all; discretion is a good running mate.

TAXATION METHODS.

We in Peterborough are giving some attention to the question of municipal taxation through the proposal to appoint a permanent assessor. This refers to taxation; for assessment opens the door to the tax collector. Our assessment and taxation system in Ontario are susceptible to some improvement, and it will be of interest to see what other provinces are doing in the way of solving the taxation problem. The government of British Columbia appointed a Tax Commission ,and the report of this Commission includes the following recommendations:

The abolition of the poll tax.
The abolition of the personal property tax.
The abolition of the tax on improvements.
The increase in the exemption of the income tax exemption from $1,000 to $1,500, with an additional income of $200 for every child under the age of 18, and a special additional exemption of $1500 from the income derived from agriculture.
Increased taxation upon certain larger incomes.
Increased taxation upon banks.
Increased succession duties on large estates.
Reduction of the tax on coke.
A general reassessment with the view of creating an equitable valuation of land and incomes, so that it may be found possible to reduce the rate of taxation.

These recommendations are pretty far reaching and perhaps are beyond the demand and requirements of an effete eastern community or province. They may be a little premature, but they are prophetic of consideration of questions that will sooner or later come to us for solution. The "abolition of the tax on improvements," the third recommendation of the committee, is becoming a live question in Ontario. We don't seem prepared if we take our premier as representing public sentiment, for complete abolition of tax on improvements, but public sentiment is in sympathy with reaching that end gradually, by giving municipalities power to discriminate between the taxation of land values and improvements. This question seems to be keeping Premier Whitney awake o'nights, and he will only get sound sleep when he concedes something to popular demand.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught their visit to the United States, and are greatly pleased with the warmth of the reception extended them by the American people. Up to the latest accounts there is no suspicion that their loyalty to Britain has been in the least impaired by their sojourn in the land of Taft. It is only a veneered patriotism, remarks the Brantford Expositor, that scents danger from friendly contact, or friendly exchange with one's neighbours.

PER CAPITA ASSESSMENT.

(Canadian Engineer.)

The following table, which has been compiled by Mr. Samuel Baker, the city clerk of London, Ontario, presents in a clear manner the present standing of the ten largest cities in Ontario, as regards per capita assessment. It will be noted that the debenture debt per capita fluctuates within a wide range from the figure of $45.93 for Windsor to the figure $182.98 for Fort William, although there is little difference in the population.

Per Capita Assessment.

City	Pop'lation 1911	Mun. Taxes	School Taxes	De'bture Debt.
Toronto	341,991	$11.77	$4.59	$111.02
Ottawa	86,106	11.06	5.34	98.57
Hamilton	73,542	8.89	3.50	79.60
London	46,727	10.35	4.70	80.48
Brantford	21,964	10.05	3.73	90.17
Fort William	19,858	12.44	5.75	182.98
Kingston	18,914	7.24	2.49	65.22
Windsor	17,534	10.16	4.63	45.93
Peterborough	16,923	7.55	4.91	83.04
St. Thomas	15,240	7.77	3.52	61.78

One of the significant points of the table is the fact that Toronto, with the largest population, has also by far the largest debenture debt per capita, with the exception of Fort William. Evidently the citizens of Toronto showed good judgment in turning down the Tube by-law in the last municipal election.

Hamilton is to be congratulated on its showing as compared with the other cities of large population. When consideration is made of the large increase in population and area there in a comparatively short space of time, it reflects great credit on the city administration that they have been able to keep their debenture debt down.

The significance of the debenture debt of the city is modified by relative conditions. For instance, about $29 per head of Peterborough's total debenture indebtedness of $83.04 per capita is represented by our Waterworks system which is a profitable debt one that we are glad that we incurred. Indebtedness incurred for such an improvement as our water works, and by permanent improvements such as sewers, sidewalks and bridge, is justifiable. These things constitute permanent assets which should be regarded as offsetting the debenture debts they represent.

This may be demonstrated by a few figures. The total debenture debt of Peterborough is $1,426,711.28. Of this amount, $462,000 stands for our Water Works, and $231,272.29 represents permanent improvements, walks, bridges, sewers, etc. Adding to this the accumulated sinking fund, we have a total of $945,543.73, figures which, considering what they mean, practically reduce our debenture debt, to $481,168.45. This brings our debenture debt to $30 per head, taking the same basis of population, 16,000, as give the figures of $83 as the per capita total of our debenture debt, printed in the above table. It might also be remembered that against even our total debenture debt, the assets of the city on Dec. 31st, 1910, were given as $1,715,494.63.

FARMERS CHARGE MR. DUFF WITH UNDUE INDIFFERENCE

Western Ontario Corngrowers Sharply Criticise His Incompetence and Indifference

TILBURY, JAN. 31.— The general dissatisfaction and lack of affection existing among the farmers of Ontario for Hon. Jas. Duff, which has been the subject of conversation among the farmers of the different fairs and conventions since the time of his appointment, but more particularly during the present winter, cannot remain forever a silent grudge. In his Presidential address before the members of the Ontario Corn-growers' Association at their fourth annual convention here this afternoon, Mr. J. H. Williams of Fletcher commented strongly upon the indifferent attitude of the Minister of Agriculture toward every effort the farmers were making to promote the industry and to improve their positions as citizens of the Province. Mr. Williams' remarks were vigorously applauded by the farmers who had crowded into the hall.

Mr. Duff Absent.

Hon. Mr. Duff was invited to deliver an address at the formal opening to-night, but during the forenoon a telegram was received by the President informing him that Mr. Duf was unable to attend. "It is his duty to be here," declared the President "This Corn-growers' Association is not receiving the support from Mr Duff that it warrants. We are receiving an exceedingly small grant at the present time, which is totally inadequate to the needs on an organization that is growing and accomplishing so much for this part of the Province. I hoped that the Minister of Agriculture would be with us to-night that we could impress upon him the validity of our claim, but he wires that he cannot come. We should insist upon his listening to our claims; we should demand that more money and greater sympathy be given to this movement, the time has come when the members of the association must rise in their might and declare their rights from the Government.

An Obstacle to Progress.

These words, which were spoken with unusual earnestness and were received with almost unanimous approval in the applause of the audience, express the sentiment that prevails throughout the Province and more particularly among the members of co-operative and educational organizations, who have always felt that in Hon. Mr. Duff they have an immovable object in the way of Government assistance or sympathy for progressive measures. It is probable that the closing remarks of Prof. A. E. Chamberlain of St. Paul Minn., an old Essex boy who spoke on corn-growing for profit, occasioned the criticism of the Minister of Agriculture, but it is generally believed that President Williams was highly indignant at Mr. Duff's telegram, and had to give vent to his feelings.

Farmers Ill-treated.

Prof. Chamberlain, after stating that he had no party allegiance on this side of the line, declared that 'the farmers of Ontario are not securing one-tenth of the assistance they should from either the Provincial or Dominion Government. Statesmen are not slow to recognize the importance of agriculture and to lend every assistance to farmers," said he, "but where your representatives are nearly all politicians you get only what they feel they can't get out of giving you. Until you make yourselves a part of every movement calculated to benefit rural interests and demand legislation, you can hope for little." Prof. Chamberlain told the corn-growers that south-western Ontario, especially Essex, Kent and Lambton, could and should be a veritable gold mine for the growing of seed corn for the dairying section of the Province.

BRITISH EXPERIENCE WITH TELEGRAPH PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Manitoba's recent experience of Government ownership of public utilities has not been encouraging to those who favour the principle of nationalization of services and industries that in private hands yield large profits through the imposition of charges that are alleged to be excessive. It is the method of operation that is blamed for the unsatisfactory results in Manitoba and no doubt there is much truth in the criticisms of the Roblin way of doing things. Elsewhere public ownership has justified itself wherever it has been given a fair trial in competent hands, say its advocates.

But occasionally there comes a shock, as for instance, when we hear about the admirably operated British telegraph system, which is owned by the Government and operated by the Post Office Department.

The British Government's experience in operating telegraph lines has just been the subject of an exhaustive study by Mr. Laws Webb, who apparently reads figures in a different light from the warm glow shed by the advocates of nationalization.

It is only fair to say that Mr. Laws Webb's figures must also be received with caution, for he tells us that when the project for taking over the British telegraph lines was first agitated in 1868, it was estimated for the benefit of Parliament that the probable cost would be $12,500,000, and that the net revenue would be 8.8 per cent. on the capital. When the purchase was completed the capital cost was about $55,000,000, and as the years rolled the investment grew to $105,000,000.

Now, it ought to be pointed out, but it is not, that when the agitation for the acquisition of the telegraph lines by the nation first began they consisted of a few scattered lines connecting the principal business centres. Now, the country is woven together by the thin streaks that spread like a spider's web on a telegraph chart, for there is hardly a village or hamlet so obscure or isolated that it is without a telegraph office in connection with the Post Office. All this has to be borne in mind when one reads such statements as the following in anti-nationalization organs like the London Spectator.

"When all these facts are taken into account—namely, the original capital which has never been repaid, the advances from Parliament upon which no interest is charged, and the annual deficiencies on working expenses—it will be found that the aggregate commercial loss to the country by the state purchase of the telegraphs is not less than $175,000,000. Nor can we console ourselves with the reflection that for this $175,000,000 the state has a valuable asset for that asset, such as it is, involves every year of its working an additional loss of over $5,000,000".—Montreal Herald.

WALLY HERN WILL REFEREE TO-NIGHT'S BIG JUNIOR O.H.A. BATTLE

To-night's second round junior O.H.A. battle between Lawson Whitehead's Trenton juniors and the Peterborough Bear Cats is called for 8.15 o'clock sharp. The ice is fast and all indications point to a brilliant exhibitions with the largest crowd of the season in attendance. The Trenton team is coming up with a couple of hundred rooters on a special train and are supremely confident of walking away with the big end of the score. The Bear Cats, on the other hand are determined to annex both the game and the round and it promises to be about as lively an engagement as Peterborough has seen in a long time. The Peterboro team had a lively twenty-minute work-out last night and are right on edge for the game.

The match will introduce a new referee to the Peterborough fans, in the person of Wally Hern, the well-known Stratford player. Hern refereed the Midland-Collingwood game last night and will handle the T.A.A.C.-Parkdale senior game in Toronto to-morrow, so that he should give satisfaction in his first Eastern appearance.

The Rooters' Club will occupy seats in the middle of the east side of the rink and have a classy repertoire of popular song hits ready for to-night.

The teams will face each other like this, when Referee Hern starts them going:

TRENTON		PETERBOROUGH
	Goal
Young		Dwyer
	Point
Lahey		Milloy
	Cover Point
Armstrong		Denison
	Rover
Hopp		Weir
	Centre
Lamore		Hall
	Right Wing
Sproxtad		Kennedy
	Left Wing
McCormack		Clancy

Referee—Wally Hern, Stratford.

Dave Thompson and the T. S. and L. are keenly challenge the Canadian Legion to a game of hockey, as soon as arrangements can be made for the Rink.

INTERMEDIATES BANQUETTED

Messrs. Louis Yeates and B. Guerin, two enthusiastic supporters of the Peterborough Hockey Club, banquetted the players and officers of the Intermediates, at the Boston Cafe, last night, a most enjoyable evening being spent. Mine Host Douros had a splendid repast prepared, and the gathering did ample justice to the good things provided. Afterwards, there was an informal musical programme, to which Mr. A. Cranfield contributed some enjoyable mandolin selections. Songs by Messrs. Cyril Giroux, Leo. Derocher, Louis Yeates, and W. Bearss, were features, while Mr. Fred Kelly recited "The Cremation of Sam McGee" with the same ease as he scores a goal from the wing. The gathering broke up with a toast to the hosts, Messrs. Yeates and Guerin, which was marked by the singing of "For They are Jolly Good Fellows". The event was a great success and both the players and management of the hockey team appreciate the kindness and hospitality of the two good followers of the game, who were responsible for the occasion.

CURLING

The Orillia Cup games stand postponed until February 5th.

The schedule games played last night are as follows:

BYERSVILLE APPOINTMENT CAUSES MUCH COMPLAINT

Ratepayer Says People Are Annoyed and Provoked at Mr Burnham's Action---Will Petition For an Investigation and May Hold an Indignation Meeting.

Peterborough, Feb. 2, 1912.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In last night's Review there was a short paragraph stating that the Postmaster at Byersville had been relieved of his duties. This is most unsatisfactory to have Mr. Saunders, who has only been there about two years, and who is a rank outsider appointed. Mr Saunders came from Ottawa, and in the two years which he has been in Byersville has not become well acquainted by any means.

The change of the Postmaster now means that the office goes to the south a block and to the west half a block into the front of a house very much out of the way, and which means a number of Byersville people will require to get their mail in Peterborough city at the general delivery, as they have already intimated they will do.

The amount of mail matter for outside districts from Peterborough Post Office is heavy enough and, as far as I have been able to learn, the Byersville people are much annoyed and provoked for this unwarranted act on Mr. Burnham's part.

Mr. Byers has done very much to build up this suburb and is most popular with the residents in that neighbourhood, while the new appointee runs a little store in front of his house, a block and a half away from the main part of the village.

No decided action has been taken yet by the Byersville residents, but they intend to petition for an investigation and in all probability will hold an indigation meeting to show their disapproval of the course that has been adopted by the present member. Many of the people think that if there was to be any change made that a person who had been a resident in the county for some years should have been appointed, instead of Mr. Saunders, but Mr. Burnham prefers to appoint new-comers apparently, as we see by the appointment of Mr. Ernest Bartlett as assistant superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal.

I remain,
Yours truly,
A RATEPAYER.

ANNUAL MEETING OF PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. E. W. Lear, Fort Pleasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Shiloh's Cure

MUCH TRUTH

Yes, remarked the country merchant, I certainly have a snap. Wholesale harvest in dunners every month, and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to the farmer he comes in swearing mad and quits dealing at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who owe me money are sending it to mail order houses. If I contribute to any cause, people say I am bating for trade. If I dont, they say I am a hog. Every day I am expected to dig up for everything that comes along, from a raffle ticket to a church fund, by people who claim I ought to do this because they do part of their trading with me. But our friends Simpson and Eaton neither buy tickets nor subscribe to the church, still they get cash for goods that I sell. If I sell a pair of trousers I must treat the crowd to cigars or candies, or if I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay, hang on to their money, while I pay ten per cent. unto the wholesale bills. I have a big business during the hard times and poor crops from people who are willing to trade with me, providing I can compete with catalogue prices and wait until harvest for my pay. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft-soaped hypocrite, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snap, and when I look over one thousand dollars in accounts that are supposed to be good, I wonder how I will raise three hundred dollars on a sight draft due tomorrow

WILL ADVERTISE FOR A SANITARY INSPECTOR

Property Committee's Decision at Meeting Last Night—Question of Garbage By-law Introduced and Received Preliminary Consideration—District Outlined for First Work.

THE OTHER BUSINESS DONE

PROPERTY COMMITTEE IN BRIEF

The district proposed to be covered by the garbage collecting system is bounded by the Otonabee River, Dalhousie St., Park street, or Reid street and Edinburgh street.

Applications will be called for position of Sanitary Inspector.

King Edward Park to receive attention.

The Property Committee met on Thursday night, with Ald. Duncan presiding, and Ald. Morgan, Ald. Brown, and Mayor Bradburn present.

Ald. Duncan submitted a print of two memorial brass plates for the Public Library. They are to be presented as tributes to Andrew Carnegie and to the estate of the late Charlotte Nicholls, respectively, through whose beneficence the library was made possible.

"The Library Board has approved of the design," Ald. Duncan stated, "and it remains for this committee to take final action. The cost is $41.50 each".

Ald. Brown—"That's a very good price for them, is it not?"

Ald. Morgan replied that it was, but that skilled work was required for their preparation.

On motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Brown, it was decided to purchase the tablets.

Richard Sheehy's Bill.

Ald. Duncan proceeded: "There is a bill to Richard Sheehy for $22.17 for the rental of land on the water front, above the C. P. R. bridge. He has been notified several times, but has not paid any attention to it."

Mr. Sheehy was asked what he had to say regarding it.

"I had a few stones on the bank" he said, "and would have cleaned the place out long ago if there had been a demand for the stone. I was told that if I opened up a quarry it would be a good thing for the city, and while there was a demand for stone I was quite willing to pay the rent of $25 a year, but you know that there is now a great deal of concrete work".

Mayor Bradburn—"You know the Council passed a resolution fixing the rent. Why did you not lay your case before the Council. This bill has gone over the year?"

Mr. Sheehy—"I told the Council the rent was too high."

The Mayor—"Then it was reduced to $17.50 a year. Why did you not tell the Council that it was afterwards not worth that.

Mr. Sheehy—"I wrote a letter to the Council to the effect that I would remove the stone when the place was needed. I would willingly pay the rent if there was a good demand for the stone."

Ald. Duncan—"When did you quit selling it?"

Mr. Sheehy—I have done nothing with it now for about three years."

Ald. Brown—"You object to the past rent and do not wish to pay any further?"

Mr. Sheehy—"No, I am willing to pay ten dollars a year for the place, and will clear it as soon as I can. Most of the stone is under the bridge."

In answer to the Mayor, Ald. Duncan said the bill was for rent up to Dec. 1st, 1911.

Ald. Duncan—"I realize that when there is no business it is not easy to pay a big rent, but at the same time I think you should have come here and explained the matter to the Council.

Ald. Morgan—The Council rented you the land in good faith, and you accepted as such. It is a business proposition. Some one else may have wanted it. That is holding up some other contractor, probably.

Mr. Sheehy—"I have never heard of any one else wanting it."

Ald. Morgan—No, but it was in use just the same, if anyone had wanted it."

Mayor Bradburn—"The rent now amounts to $22.88. I think it would be fair to charge Mr. Sheehy $15 for the year up to Dec. 1st, 1911, and $10 a year while he is using it.

Ald. Duncan—"I know Mr. Sheehy would not mind paying the full rental if there was sufficient business offering.

It was moved by Mayor Bradburn, seconded by Al. Brown, that $15.00 be accepted for the year ending Dec. 1st, last, and the rent be ten dollars a year with the city reserving the right to give Mr. Sheehy a month's notice to clear the land at any time it should be required.—Carried.

Mayor Bradburn laghingly suggested that Mr. Sheehy have the stone slabs taken up to Coughlin's monument works and have them made into tombstones, for the aldermen.

Mr. Sheehy—"Yes, I guess some of them need one".

Ald. Morgan—"Pick out a good one for me, Dick."

Mr. Sheehy—"All right, I will".

The Garbage By-law.

Ald. Duncan brought up the question of a garbage by-law. "I think we ought to go into this question, and try prepare some garbage system for the city."

Then followed a lengthy discussion in an endeavour to form some plan, not too ambitious, for a beginning; but one which, if successful for part of the city, might be, in time, applied to the whole.

Mayor Bradburn—The first thing to do is to settle the district from which the garbage shall be collected.

Ald. Duncan—"I think so, myself, but I hardly think the fire limits are extensive enough".

Mayor Bradburn—"We could take the centre of the city for one year. It would be easy to extend it, later. The next question is, how are you going to pay for it. Would it be better to levy a cerain tax rate as with street watering, or would you have cerain charges and collect from house to house?

Ald. Duncan—"We might give a license to a man, let him equip himself, and let the people who want him call at their houses.

Dr. McPherson briefly outlined the systems generally employed. The result of Ald. Duncan's plan, he thought, would be that some would have the garbage collected, but others would not, and the latter would be a nuisance to the former.

Mayor Bradburn—"I wouldn't like to tack the cost to the tax bills."

Ald. Duncan reminded the Committee that a dumping ground would have to be secured.

Dr. McPherson—"I wonder if it could not be arranged with the Peterborough Lumber Company to burn the garbage in their sawdust incinerator?"

Ald. Duncan—"The City might get an incinerator of its own."

Ald. Morgan thought the central part of the city should be outlined as a district, and that tenders be called for the work.

Mayor Bradburn suggested that the boundaries be Edinburgh street, the river, Dalhousie street and Park or Reid street.

It was also proposed that to eliminate a certain section, the northern boundary be along Edinburgh to Bethune, or Reid, then west on McDonnell or London to Park, and that Perry street be the southern limit.

Ald. Morgan—"Ask for tenders, and have the Sanitary Inspector make collections once a month.

Mayor Bradburn—"It would take him a week or more to make each collection."

Dr. McPherson—"The people in the vicinity of Gilmour street, I think, would want a garbage system. I have heard many complaints form that locality".

Ald. Brown—"This is only for the first year. We do not know what they want. Let them petition. We will give them as wide a system as they are willing to pay for.

It was suggested that the territory might include from Weller sreet to King street, as far west as the boundary.

Mayor Bradburn—One of the difficulties is to know what to do with the garbage when it is collected. It might include from Weller street to

On motion of Ald. Brown, seconded by Ald. Morgan, it was decided that inquiry into the securing of a dumping place be left with Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Duncan.

A Sanitary Inspector.

Ald. Duncan—"Now, what about a Sanitary Inspector?"

Ald. Brown—Do we know the extent of his office? Should we not wait until this garbage by-law is decided one way, or the other?"

Ald. Morgan—"He will be employed by the year, whether there is a by-law passed, or not.

Mayor Bradburn—"I have already explained the situation. At the meeting of the Police Commissioners, Chief Thompson asked for two additional policemen. I brought up the possibility of the appointing of a Sanitary Inspector, and the Chief stated that one new policeman would be sufficient if such an official were appointed.

Ald. Brown—So it is merely a matter of appointing two policemen or one policeman and a sanitary inspector?"

Mayor Bradburn—"That's the situation, exactly."

Ald. Morgan—"I move that a sanitary inspector, at $700 a year, be appointed on the recommendation of the Medical Health Officer.

Ald. Brown—"We might as well ask for tenders."

Mayor Bradburn—"I wouldn't put any salary figure in it."

After a brief discussion, Ald. Morgan agreed to leaving out the amount of salary to be paid.

Mayor Bradburn—"Why shouldn't the appointment be recommended by his committee?"

Ald. Duncan—"I think it should be that way, too."

Ald. Morgan—"I made the motion to start things".

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Brown that tenders be called for the position of Sanitary Inspector, applications to be received until Thursday, Feb[illegible] 8th, at 4 p.m.

Trees For Parks.

Ald. Duncan reminded the Committee that it was time to think of securing trees and shrubs for the parks. King Edward Park needs grading this year, and trees planted, and some are required in the Nicholls Hospital grounds. The new East City Park will also need attention.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Mayor Bradburn, that Ald. Duncan and Ald. Brown look over the grounds and find out what was necessary at each place and report to the Committee.—Carried.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

MRS. WHITTAKER IS DEPORTED

Mrs. Whittaker, who was arrested at the home of a Smith farmer named Heard some time ago by High County Constable Cochrane, will be deported today, along with her two little daughters.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Whittaker was sent out of Lakefield for keeping a disreputable house, and leaving one of her children there, she went tramping about the country, finally winding up at Heard's.

When arraigned before Magistrate Edmison, she asked to be deported, and the necessary arrangements were made. She left the city on the noon C.P.R. train en route for England.

"CITIZEN" EXPECTS THAT SOMETHING WILL BE DONE

He is Going to Watch Alderman Gordon and Have an Eye on the Milk Vendors as Well.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir.—In your Wednesday evening edition I notice a heading "Alderman Gordon is determined," and under this heading there appears another "Grievances of Dealers," and then you say that the "new Alderman for Centre Ward will work for sanitary conditions in the handling of milk".

It is true that the milk question in Peterborough is becoming an important one. It is equally true that some one should make an effort to see that the milk business is conducted on proper lines; not only business, but sanitary—so that the consuming public will have a fair show.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am going to watch the new Alderman and see how honest he is in this matter, and I am going to follow him up until I see whether anything has been, or will be, accomplished. If Mr. Gordon accomplishes anything, I am satisfied to give him credit, if he fails in his effort, I will expect him to make explanations.

When I read the first part of the article I think that, perhaps there's something doing, but when I read the admitted apology for the position taken by the milk dealers, then I become fearful of the accomplishment of anything.

The article reads "To be fair in the matter the milk vendors' reason for the formation of an association, or an arrangement among the trade should be given. One dealer stated that on a particular street he had outstanding milk accounts that totalled $100.00. Another stated that he knew of quite a number of householders who might be termed 'dead beats,' as far as their milk bills were concerned; one of this former customers owed him $25.00, and he had been informed by other dealers that this same person owed them bills of the same amount. This dealer stated that it has been the custom of some people to ask for credit and to use it until payment was demanded, or a refusal to deliver more milk."

The above alleged statement of a "milk dealer" shows that he is absolutely incapable of conducting his business, and that he had better retire before he fails. I do not believe, so far as I am concerned, that milk dealers allow accounts to run to $100 or $25.00 either, before making collections, but I am willing to give the benefit of the doubt to the dealer, and to say this to him, that it is a most unfair way to do business, to increase the price of milk to the man who pays, and allow the "dead beat," as he terms him, to go practically free.

There is no doubt, to my mind, that the price of milk is high, and there is no reason for it that I can see. The land is producing as much hay, oats, and fodder, as it ever did, and the big man from the farm, who drives the milk about, eats no more, nor is he any more expensive to himself than he ever was, and the price of food products going up to one-half or three-quarters more than it used to be, does not increase the cost to him, as he produces them, himself. Now, as a consumer, the milkman, in increasing the price of milk to me, who pays for it, expects me to pay for the milk that the "dead beats" won't pay for. There must be something wrong.

I know, and believe, that the milk obtained is not always of the purest quality, and the excuse of the milk-dealer, as stated in The Examiner, that the price has been increased to protect him from loss in giving credit to customers who will not pay, is ridiculous. So it goes, that those who pay are to provide milk dealers with funds by which they can give away a certain quantity of his daily product to customers who will not pay for it. This won't go, Mr. Editor. The milk dealers have got to find some better excuse for the high price that they are charging.

That there is an arrangement, or understanding between the milk dealers I have no doubt, and I propose to watch Ald. Gordon's course in this matter, and see what good he is going to accomplish. I hope he will do something. There is great room for improvement.

While writing you on this subject I may voice my opinion again that while there may be no written combine in the coal business, in Peterborough, there is said to be an "understanding". There is one thing certain, that you cannot buy any coal whether in large quantities or small, any cheaper from one dealer than you can from another, and this is not the case in any business except where there are combines or understandings.

If something is done to remedy these two conditions, something will have been accomplished in the interests of the citizens.

Yours truly,
Citizen.

THE CHINESE SITUATION

Special Letter to the Examiner

CHENGTU, Dec. 3.—The day before Sze Chwan proclaimed its independence and hauled down the Imperial flag, a humorous incident occurred. The rebel leaders down river affect to be up to date in copying foreign ways, and the Republican leaders here don't want to be behind in eschewing the slavery of Manchu dress. Consequently a Chinese gentleman named Tsen from the Foreign Office waited on one of the missionaries a few minutes ago with the request that he oblige him by procuring a frock suit and silk hat for the president-to-be, Mr. Pu! The queues are coming off and it looks as if foreign clothes were about to become fashionable.

CHOP 10,000 QUEUES A DAY

One of the staple exports from Sze-Chwan to foreign parts is human hair. There are foreign agents in this province who do very little outside of the hair trade, and it is well that some of the ladies in America who wear "rats" have not a very vivid imagination or they might object to know that much of the hair used comes from the heads of the poorer Chinese. But what a glorious time for the purchasing agents just now! Probably ten thousand queues a day would be a small estimate of the number that have come off the last week. And still they are at it! It is a sign of the hated Manchu Government, so the scissors are kept busy. To cut off a Chinaman's queue was a crime punishable with death under the Manchu regime but now it is an act in which to glory. The countless barbers who have gained a livelihood shaving the heads of the Chinese, the old-style hat makers, and to a lesser degree the old-time tailors, will be hard hit by the innovations under the new order of things.

FIRED ON CANADIANS

A few words regarding passing events in the Province. On November 7th all the refugees at Chungking were ordered down river by Consul Brown, and left with a gunboat as convoy. Nearly two hundred people took part in this exodus. A few members of the Canadian Methodist Mission remained—Messrs. Parker, Wolfendale, Brillinger and Smith. The latter, however, has since left. Messrs. Quirmbach, of Berlin, Ont., one of whom married a daughter of Harris, the Toronto abattoir man, and Hockin had remained at Kiatmg, their families having gone down to Chungking several months ago. Two weeks ago, they also went down to Chungking, travelling on rebel passes. They were fired on and stopped several times, but when the rebels saw that they were foreigners and had examined their passes they treated them very courteously and sent them on their way. Arriving at Chungking they were disappointed to find that their wives had left some days previously for Ichang, so started after them immediately in the hope that they might possibly catch them on the way.

On the 21st we received a telegram that the few hundred troops that had mutinied near Chengtu a couple of weeks earlier, had marched by way of Chungking and were demanding the surrender of the city. On Nov. 24th we heard that Chungking was in the hands of the revolutionists.

PLUCKY MISSIONARIES

Since the recapture of Chiangchow by the Imperialists, Mr. and Mrs. Olson, together with Miss Bailey, all Canadian missionaries, have come into Chengtu under escort of troops. They report that about one thousand people were killed in the city during the bombardment, by the troops, including many non-combatants. Miss Bailey, who was a trained nurse, had a daily clinic of sixty or seventy wounded persons to look after, and was very loth to leave these poor people. In fact, she did not come into Chengtu with the Olsens, but remained behind to look after her patients. The consul, however, would not allow a lone woman to stay in such an exposed place, so sent a peremptory message to her to come to Chengtu. Whereat Mr. Olsen slipped away from Chengtu and took her place for a week or ten days more, till most of the wounded were better.

START FOR THE COAST

It had been decided to send a considerable number of our Canadian Methodist missionaries away on Dec. 4th, but at a few hours' notice they had to leave on the 2nd, as it appeared no crews would be available for the houseboats later. The British consul was anxious that they should go. In the party were Messrs. Neave, Carscallen, Lindsay, Kern, Irish, Westaway, McKinley and Sheridan, with their families. Misses Wellwood and Ker will also accompany them. The remainder of us hope to be able to stay here, but in the present unsettled condition of China it is very hard to forecast the future, and it may be that we will have to go also.

The Canadians still in Chengtu are as follows: Dr. Kilborn, Dr. Barter, Messrs. Robertson, Stewart, Bayne, Plewman, Crutcher, Abrey, Johns, Jones, Small; Miss McNaughton of the General Board; Misses Brackbill, Brimstin, Shuttleworth, Thompson, Esterbrook, McPherson.

RIOTING IN CHENGTU

The soldiers in Chengtu, in spite of the rebels being in control, are getting out of hand, and there is danger of rioting in consequence. Because they were offended at some remarks concerning them made in a daily paper a couple of days ago, soldiers went to its office and smashed it up. Night before last members of two rival factions of the troops—one that represents the revolutionaries and the other that is still on the fence—came to conflict not far from our premises. Two men were killed and others wounded. The conservatives all over the country are organising to save the country from the revolutionaries. If the revolutionaries can retain the allegiance of the troops, well and good, the country people will be unable to resist them; but there are still about one-third of the troops who have not donned the white sleeve-band or cut off their queues. They are camped together and have plenty of arms and ammunition. The Manchus in the city are said to have agreed to surrender their arms, but have not done so yet, and must be reckoned with. The provisional Government is made up almost completely of Chengtu men, but the outside leaders of the rebellion, who did the fighting, are now swarming into the city with demands for recognition and office. They are quarrelling amongst themselves for the pre-eminence. There are scores of matters that need firm handling, and if it is not forthcoming everything will soon be in chaos. The Consul-General strongly advises all the women and children to be sent down river, but most men do not want to send women folk so long and dangerous a journey by themselves.

A TRAGEDY OF REVOLUTION

We have just heard that the troops of Tuan Fang, the former Viceroy of Hunan, who was sent to Sze-Chuen to restore order, mutinied and killed both Tuan and his son. After leaving the dead bodies lying around for a day, they beheaded them, and then struck back for their native province, Hupeh. It makes a painful impression on one to think of the cowardliness of the whole thing. Tuan Fang did everything possible to purchase their loyalty, but all to no avail. So he and his son were butchered like cattle. What a wretched ending to one of China's most enlightened and progressive statesmen. Thousands of miles away from home and friends, without a soul in whom to confide or trust, he has gone out into the dark alone. He, in common with thousands of others of his race, are now expiating the misdeeds of the Manchu dynasty. They have fattened and battened upon the Chinese people, and now the reckoning day for the long account has come. The people are utterly sick of them. Even if rebellion succeeds rebellion, and a monarchy is founded upon the ruins of the republic, you may take it for granted that it will be a Chinese and not a Manchu who will reign.

POOR PROSPECT FOR REPUBLIC

China is not ripe for a republic. The masses of the people have no patriotic spirit. Over-taxing will cause rebellion, but they will not fight for a quarrel that concerns a distant part of the Empire. Until the masses of the people catch a vision of what united China may accomplish, and lose their narrow provincialism, increased power of expression means but increased power for disintegration. The Manchu Government, with all its faults, at least made for unity, but now that that binding force has disappeared it will take the utmost efforts of the republicans to hold the country together. Provincialism is China's curse and the enemy of her nationhood. But China is in transformation, and while far from general as yet, nevertheless there is a genuine patriotic spirit being aroused among the students, and if it rapidly permeates the masses, there will yet be a wonderful future ahead of this ancient empire.

FINANCIAL POST SUMMARY OF THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

To judge from the trade being done by manufacturers and wholesale houses all over Canada there is nothing to complain of in the business outlook. It is in fact entirely the other way. Most business houses in Canada are probably now doing at least as good business as they have ever done. Many of them, of course, are doing a record trade. The annual reports of companies in various lines for the past year show earnings on the whole the best of any year to date. The addresses of presidents at annual meetings also are almost unanimous in suggesting that banks, trust companies, loan companies and industrial companies of various classes are entering upon what, with due caution, should be another exceptionally good year.

Some Danger Signals.

There are some dangers, however, which thoughtful people should recognise. One head officer in one of the important Canadian banks believes at the present time, that Canada is headed—if still some distance away—for a depression. This, however, comparatively few people believe. There are in existence, nvertheless, some of the signs that sometimes herald a depression. One of these is the aforementioned fact of the apparently excellent state of business. Business as will be remembered was similarly splendid up to only a short time before the debacle of 1907. There is nothing now in Canada, though, and little even in the United States, of the over-production which is usually one prelude o a downfall. There is one other fact that is very reassuring in this connection. That is that while in 1907 and other similar times, money rates were steadily rising, money now in practically all markets is comparatively easy. Money is of course stiffening up somewhat, but there is little feeling on the part of he bankers or others in touch with the situation that too much money is being pu into the fixed issues.

Excessive Prices and Extravagance.

Another feature that does not look right is the excessive height to which food products are continuing to go. There are several causes. One of them is short production, while there is at the same time a better demand, owing to increasing population, and also to increasing wealth. The latter is, however, the interesting fact. Grocery houses, for example, notice that even the less well-to-do classes of the community are now demanding, for example, package food, where formerly they bought the bulk product. This tendency toward extravagance is perhaps to be expected, when the country is so prosperous but it is at the same time one of the danger marks. Clothing, furs, and the like, have also made very rapid price advances in the last while. The demand is insistent. The knitted goods factories for example are running night and day, while in various lines they are unable to cope with the demand. Within the last week or so, for insance, no less than three additional firms have gone into the manufacture of sweater coats.

Too Much Capital Tied Up.

Another fact which Canadian banks and business men will do well to heed, as they no doubt are, in the waves of real estate speculation which are sweeping over the country from the Maritime provinces to the West coast. If the truth were known, to large a proportion of the private, and perhaps company, available assets are becoming locked up in real estate transactions. If these deals materialize as there seems comparatively little reason for thinking they will in perhaps most cases, everything will be comparatively right, but if they do issue favourably it will doubtless mean that the same condition will go until a smash comes.

Stretching Our Credit.

Then there is the question of whether we are not over-extending our credit. The Post was talking yesterday to a man who has been in the west for a number of years. He thinks that Canada is allowing itself to depend too largely on British capital. His real fear, however, was not so much that fact, as that Canadians are becoming more careless of the kind of proposition into which they ask the Old Country capitalist to put his money. He believes that The Post and some other papers do not lay a particle too much emphasis on the care which should be exercised in this respect. He thinks now that Old Country capital is being asked to invest in too many propositions which are likely to go wrong. If this British confidence is destroyed, even temporarily, it will of course be a very serious matter for Canada and one from which Canadian business will not entirely recover for a number of years. And it is difficult to know the best in their own hands, and it is remedy. The banks have one of the well known that they make use of it. If over-speculation can be put down by the banks, and by investors rigidly demanding to be "shown," when investment propositions are placed before them much will be done to off-set this danger.

Direct to Retail Dealers.

One interesting fact in connection with Canadian business is that manufacturers are showing a notable and increasing habit of going direct to the retail trade. They are finding more and more that the middlemen naturally push the line in which there is most profit, and they find that they themselves are the best salesmen of their own goods. One large Ontario textile manufacturer told The Post a day or two ago that his output this year would show at least a 20 per cent advance. The prosperity in the general textile and dry goods trade is most prominent dry goods papers is evidenced by the fact that one of the carrying at the present time some 42 pages of advertising more than it carried the same month last year.

The Fundamentals Are Sound.

General business in Canada is reassuring. Book clearings, railway earnings, building permits and conditions in the fundamental trade such as steel are showing advances from week to week. If the situation were unsound, empty railway cars, falling off in the building trades, fewer steel plant orders, and the like, would speedily indicate it. Conditions in the West with respect to car shortages and lack of storage facilities are go better, and this still has a most unfavourable effect on collections. The only really unsatisfactory feature of the whole situation, though, is business in the States, which cannot be expected to improve materially this Presidential year. The trouble, however, seems to be mental rather than anything wrong economically.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

No Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion in Five Minutes

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring, the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

FEBRUARY 4, 1912.
(Copyright, 1911, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Golden Text—Look unto me and be ye saved all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else. Isa. xiv.: 22.

1. Verse 1—Where was Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus?

2. Where was the home of the parents of Jesus, and what had brought them to Bethlehem?

3. Who were the wise men that came seeking to see Jesus?

4. Verse 2—What evidence is there, if any, that God has revealed Himself to other peoples beside the Israelites?

5. Give your opinion of this "star" which the wise men saw. (a) Was it created on purpose, or did God cause them to associate a new star, to them, with the birth of Jesus? (b) Was the star objective or subjective?

6. Were the wise men right in their opinion that Jesus was "born King of the Jews?" Why?

7. Verse 3—What is the evidence for or against the idea that God meant Jesus to be the earthly King of the Jews, as the wise men seemed to think and as Herod feared?

8. Why should Herod and "all Jerusalem" be troubled at the news of the birth of a Jewish King?

9. Verses 4-8—What prophet is here referred to, and where did these priests and scribes quote from?

10. Did the prophet they quoted from and did these scribes and priests think that the expected Christ was to be an earthly King? Why?

11. Verse 7—What is it which makes diligent study of a worthy subject noble or ignoble?

12. Verse 8—How would you describe a man with a motive of Herod when he sent these wise men off to find Jesus?

13. What reason is there, if any, to believe that some attend church today, pretending they are seeking Jesus, with as ignoble motives as Herod had?

14. Verse 9—If a man to-day would see Jesus what "star" or sign does he need to follow?

15. Does God send a "star" or its equivalent pointing to Jesus to every man or to only a few? Give your reasons.

16. Verse 10—Mention some things which always produce joy and then describe that which produces the greatest joy to mortals known.

17. Verse 11—What is the ground for belief that those who seek Jesus will surely find him? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

18. What are the emotions stirred, the motives formed and the deeds done by all who really seek and find Jesus?

19. Verse 12—Is there any liability that those who live in the presence of Jesus will ever be duped into betraying Him?

Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 11, 1912. The Boy Jesus In the Temple. Luke ii.: 40-52.

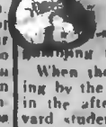
NEAR THE BREAD LINE



New York Herald: That wail of woe which went skyward from Boston last night was contributed to by stricken members of the gambling fraternity.

When the men who make their living by the sweat of their fingers read in the afternoon papers that a Harvard student had dropped $75,000 recently in a palace of chance in this city they eyed one another with suspicion and finally broke down and wept aloud. They put each other through the "third degree" in an effort to find out who had separated the youth and his wealth, but at a late hour not a gambler could be found with more than sixty cents in his clothes.

It has been common gossip along Broadway for months that at least a dozen well-known gamblers who formerly had a corner in long green are now so near the bread line that they can feel it, and they thought it was rubbing it in to print such a story at this time. The tale of the big gambling loss was told on the witness stand in Boston yesterday, where a well-known moneylender is suing the student to recover on some notes.

"That's the hardest blow yet," said one gambler. "To think of us starving and some one of the bunch grabbing that $75,000. I'm inclined to doubt the story, because I don't know of a single gambler who could have $100 at the present time without bragging 'bout it."

"Is the game as bad as that?"

"It's worse. If I ever saw $100 again I'm going to buy a pushcart and go in business. You could stand most of the big gamblers on their heads and you wouldn't shake out enough to buy a good breakfast. Why, if I had a $10 bill I wouldn't leave the house without police protection. They took one of the best known bookmakers to Matteawan the other day. He found fifty cents and went wild with joy. If you don't believe what I'm saying just drop a silver dollar at Forty-second Street and Broadway. The hospitals will not be able to accommodate the injured. Men who formerly opened wine are now opening buttermilk."

Parents Should Know

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of school children than usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some dull at school because of eye strain, some did not require glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate timely attention saves your child much misery, and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

Hunter beckoned to Agnes to follow him, and downstairs in the hall he told her he would drive round by Weyberne Hall and endeavour to see Sir Thomas or Lady Hargrave and probe for some signs of elucidation. Accordingly the most urgent cases disposed of, he reached the Hall after luncheon, and was shown into the library where Sir Thomas sat at the writing-table, his fingers thrust through his rumpled hair, a large square sheet of paper before him, filled with a mass of closely written matter interspersed with a network of small intricate figures. He looked worried, put about, and not particularly good tempered. His coat and silk hat were on a chair, an open time-table at his elbow, and Hunter, studiously observant, saw by the irritable perfunctory manner in which he glanced over the paper, that he meditated a hurried excursion somewhere soon. He looked anything but pleased at the doctor's entrance; he just nodded and pointed to a chair.

"How's Fleming?" he asked, folding the paper. "I hear he had regained consciousness."

"He is really capital; he is wonderful considering the ugly rap he gave his head. His left shoulder is dislocated, but I expect him up tomorrow for all that. It would be a superhuman business to keep Felix in bed once he was able to crawl out."

"That Wycherly boy was the cause of it, wasn't he?"

"Yes; he skirmished across the road right under the mare's nose. Luckily Denham and Rose Pilgrim were indulging in a little privileged recreation and recuperation at The Larches ,and witnessed the whole performance, else goodness knows how long it might have been before the accident was discovered."

"I am glad Fleming is on the mend, perhaps he will be able to see me to-morrow. I have a bone to pick with him."

"How's that, sir?" Hunter asked, smiling.

"Well, you see, doctor, Mr. Farley is my secretary; he is in my pay, and while he remains in my house, I expect the right to order and control his actions. Yesterday he asked permission to go to London, obviously to meet Fleming there on business. Of course, I concurred; the fellow is splendid, he works like a horse, and I was only too willing to oblige him. The result is, here I am with this confounded estimate sent in of the Mill Cottages to look through and check. Why, I am as incapable of deciphering this inextricable confusion of drafted figures, and finding out whether I am about to be cheated or not, as I am of flying! If Farley had not been gifted with a sense of the fitness of things and written to me, I should be at my wits' end to determine how to get at him."

"Have you had a letter from him? May I see it?" he asked eagerly.

"It came this noontime, and you are welcome to read it if that will give you any gratification," the baronet responded, tossing the letter over to him.

Jack Hunter looked first at the signature, and was not altogether surprised to perceive that the bold dark and light up and down strokes did not correspond in shape and form with the cramped signature he had seen in the vestry of Weyberne Church that morning. He turned back to the front page and looked at the heading:

The Pendennis Hotel,
Southampton Row, 9 a.m.

Sir Thomas Hargrave, Esq.

Dear Sir,—No doubt Mr. Fleming acquainted you last evening with the full cause of my absence and helped to arrange matters so that the new man's instalment will prove of the least possible inconvenience to you. My ostracism frets me more than you would guess, sir; I feel thrown on my beam ends, and have ample time in which to regret my unenviable position and any feeling of disfavour on your part is may entail. If you can wire me instructions I shall consider it a boon, sir, to be allowed to serve your interests while I am away.

With regrets and compliments,

I am, sir, yours most faithfully,

Paul Farley.

"A nice lad, that!" Hunter said; "and it does not read as if he were married."

"Married!" Sir Thomas exclaimed; "married to whom?"

"To Mrs. Wycherly."

"God bless my soul! Don't make the boy out to be quite a lunatic. As if he would dare to leave my house and get married without mentioning it."

"Mrs. Wycherly was married this morning to a young man the image of Mr. Farley. Mr. Hay officiated, and assured me of the bridegroom's identity. I also saw their signatures, although I will admit the writing of Farley's name does not tally with this. Pointer, the stationmaster, told me Mr. Farley returned last evening with Felix, and Mrs. Radler confirmed the statement by asserting that he slept at the 'Popinjay' last night. What inference is an ordinary, sober-minded individual to deduct from all this?"

"It's a poser! A curious conglomeration of curious unlooked-for circumstances, and that is the only confession to which I feel inclined to pledge myself. I am going to London by the 2.50 train to take this estimate to Farley. I have one or two rather important items to discuss with him, and as it's out of the question to bother your patient, Farley must come to the rescue and divulge what Fleming intended to explain."

A light brown phaeton and a pair of horses passed the library window on their way round to the front entrance. Sir Thomas plucked out his gold repeater, opened the case, and snapped it to with a muttered, "Three minutes before your time, Birch. Better than three minutes late, though, my man."

"You'll excuse me, doctor," looking in the glass to settle his hat to a nicety and to give an upward twirl to the ends of his heavy, grey moustache, "but you know I am a bit faddy over horse flesh. It's a principle of mine not to keep the beasts waiting."

"I'm going to pay my respects to the ladies. I want to see Miss Judith. And—oh, Sir Thomas, ask Mr. Farley if he knows who Hare is."

"I will if I don't forget it," he called back, half out of the room. "I've heaps of business," and Hunter could not catch the end of the sentence, "on hand."

Sir Thomas made himself as happy and conented as a foot-warmer, a cigar, and a newspaper would permit, and upon alighting at King's Cross, he picked out a smart-looking hansom and drove straight away to the Pendennis. He was ushered into a small, comfortable, unoccupied coffee room and was politely informed that Mr. Farley would be in directly. However, he sat there in the fast-gathering dusk three-quarters of an hour before he saw the familiar figure pass the window. A foot was heard scraping itself on the threshold, thence a light step in the tiled hall, and Paul hung up his hat, entered the room, and was midway across it before he recognized his visitor in the gloom.

"Well, young man!" Sir Thomas exclaimed pleasantly, all his good temper returning at the sight of the dark, clever, helpful face, "a nice time you have kept me swinging my heels in this dull, dismal, solitary hole."

"I had no idea you would come up, sir," he said, touching the electric button and letting down the blinds, "otherwise I should not have been out of the way. I hope the wait had not made a serious——"

"No, it's all right, Farley. I had this estimate from Wiseman this morning, and for the life of me I can't make head or tail out of it. To begin with, I hadn't a pair of glasses strong enough to magnify these miserable dots into anything like proportionate-sized figures. One wants to be young, alert,, and pretty nearly as cunning as a wagonload of monkeys to have business dealings with folks nowadays."

"Let me see," and Paul gently drew the long envelope from between his fingers.

He spread it out on the table, polished his glasses, and bent over it while Sir Thomas leaned back in his chair and gave vent to a sigh of relief, which, judging from its profundity, must have originated from the toes of his boots. He sat absolutely still and silent for fully ten minutes studying his secretary's well-defined profile, and watching the shimmer of his smooth hair in the light, holding down a question which persisted upon bubbling to the surface, and at last refused to be kept within bounds any longer.

"I say, Farley," he commenced with a broad smile, "where's the wife? Is she too shy to come downstairs?"

"Whose wife?" he asked, looking up with a wrinkled forehead.

"Yours? You and Mrs. Wycherly were married this morning. It's no use your denying it, my boy, because Mr. Hay swears he married you, and Hunter saw you off at the station on the first stage of the honeymoon."

"Indeed! How interesting!"

Paul removed his eyeglasses, crossed his legs, and contemplated the baronet's jovial face.

"What does it mean ,sir?" he asked seriously.

Tells of the Wonderful Benefits Obtained From

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

For years he had suffered from a congested condition of the liver and kidneys, with headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and body. Words fail to describe his sufferings as well as the gratitude he wants to express for the cure.

Mr. Alex. J. Stone, West Point, Nfld., writes: "I suppose you thought I had forgotten all about you when I got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but I haven't. You must excuse mistakes, for like many Newfoundland men, I have not much education, but I want to thank you many times for your medicine.

"I cannot tell you what I suffered from liver and kidney derangements, indigestion and constipation, nor can I find words to express how much good this medicine has done me. I feel better than I have for ve years and have given some of these pills to friends, who tell me they have done them a wonderful lot of good. I want to express my heartfelt gratitude for the benefit derived from the great medicine."

"I don't know; I want you to tell me."

"I can't, sir. I came up to London yesterday morning, slept here last night, posted my letter to you this morning on my way to the British Museum. I have been there all day until the light failed, copying extracts from some old works now only extant at the Museum."

"That's all right, you were here safe enough, but the Weyberne folk have it you came down with Fleming, slept at the 'Popinjay,' and—"

"But Mr. Fleming knows better, it was Hare that went down with him—has he not explained matters?"

"Fleming had a bad spill last night, rather a bad one ;he hadn't a chance of explaining anything."

"Is he much hurt?" Paul's voice shook, though the strove hard to steady it.

"I should say so; I heard he was unconscious seven or eight hours, and Hunter told me this afternoon he had dislocated his shoulder."

Paul rose, touched the bell, and remained leaning against the mantelpiece. "Was it an accident pure and simple, or was it—? Will you have whiskey or brandy, sir?" he asked, as the waiter appeared.

"What are you going to have?"

"Brandy," he said, looking ill, haggard and ghastly white.

"Then I'll have the same," Sir Thomas returned complacently. "It was that boy Guy," he resumed, "he ran across the road slap in front of the mare, frightened her into fits, and sent her flying down the turnpike like a rocket. Either the brute stumbled or the wheel caught the root of a tree; caught something, anyway; the mare's knees are pretty badly flayed, and the dogcart—well, the cart's a wreck; it's simply in splinters. It will be solacing news for Fleming when he is well enough to hear it. Mercy the fellow wasn't killed!"

"Have you any objection to my going back with you, sir?" Paul asked, taking a big gulp of brandy.

"Objection, Farley? I object to your being here. I dont see exactly how I am going to manage without you."

"Do you think that boy ran out of his own accord, or was he sent out, whipped out? Did she make use of that poor crazed little urchin as an apparently innocent means of procuring her pitiless, her devilish ends?"

Sir Thomas stared at him. Paul's black eyebrows almost met, and the vertical line above his nose stood out with a grim distinctness. A powerfully suppressed anguish moistened his forehead, and the sensitive mobile lips quivered pitcously.

"God bless my soul!" Sir Thomas ejaculated, without removing his gaze from the wonderful eyes, a world of agony lurking in their dark depths. "Why should the Wycherly woman want to make mincemeat of Fleming?"

"You see, sir," he said, drawing up a chair, and seating himself close to Sir Thomas' lounge, "from what you say this fellow Hare has evidently gone and married Mrs. Wycherly. I don't understand it myself, but Mr. Fleming may have tried to stop it or threatened to do so; it's just the sort of thing he would do, regardless of deterring accident."

"If she wanted you, Farley, what did she marry Hare for?"

"I'll tell you all about it sir," he said, setting down the small remaining quantity of his brandy and soltser water, and laying a thin, nervous hand on the arm of the baronet's chair "You know better than I what has taken place in my absence; but I can show you exactly how matters stand, and what the situation admits of."

And in his clear, concise way, with carefully selected, well-turned sentences, he cleverly pieced the story together, each move on the chessboard of events fitting with fastidious precision like the trenchant even sides of a rich, skilful mosaic pattern. Sir Thomas asked no questions; there was no need. With his mind's eye, he saw the long line of Mrs. Wycherly's execrable actions file past as if they were pictured with a biograph. Now and again he suppressed a chuckle, and once he laughed outright, but he was grave, thoughtful, and duly impressed when Paul at length reached the end of his recital.

"So the widow has gone off honeymooning with the idea she is Mrs. Farley? Smart fellow that Hare; hope he knows how to take care of himself; it's a serious business for the young man."

"Yes, it seems a remarkably senseless thing to do. If you will excuse me, sir, I will pack my portmanteau."

"I am disposed to think Fleming is right," he said reluctantly; "you ought to lie low until events show how the widow takes her disappointment. She is bound to find it out, and bound to vent her spleen on somebody."

"Just so; and accordingly, neither Hare nor I have any right to make Mr. Fleming the scapegoat. Why should I hide and leave Mr. Fleming in the open to fight my battles? I have attracted this untoward force of grave circumstances, and I alone must abide by the consequences. No man is justified in making himself responsible for another's action. This ill-omened accident shows me I ought, I must—it's my bounden duty to insist upon standing severely alone in this crisis. Of the three I am the culprit in the fullest and truest sense of the word, and I absolutely refuse to jeopardise the life of another so that I may escape without a scratch. You will allow me to return with you, sir?"

"With all my heart; I want you, Farley, but upon my word I don't wish to be the one to drag you into danger."

"The danger is past, the woman has gone. The idea, the suggestion of danger now, may be the softest, the silliest of delusions. My place, so long as I serve you honestly and faithfully, is at Weyberne Hall; my duty lies there, and whatever shape it takes, even though it be a cross, I ought to lift it alone. Give me a chance to exhibit a spark of bravery, sir; give me a chance to show I have the grit, the courage, the strength of character, to face a few heavy odds; don't leave me here a shivering coward."

Sir Thomas rose, paced up and down the coffee-room, his hands behind him.

"I don't know what to say, Farley," he said ruefully. "If you stop here my affairs are at a standstill; on the other hand, Fleming is laid up and the knowledge that you were back in Weyberne might vex and worry him past endurance, and after all you may be acting rightly in returning. Often when a danger is faced it dwindles into nothing, it—"

"Thank you, sir," he interposed, "I'll just run upstairs and pack my traps."

"Here, one moment, young man!" and Sir Thomas caught his sleeve. "I'm not accountable to Fleming for his, you understand. You must see him to-morrow yourself and argue the matter out with him."

"Very well, sir, I will," he said, gently disengaging himself and moving towards the door.

"I will be down here in five minutes, sir."

He returned in less time than he stated, a light leather valise in his hand, his dark eyes sparkling, his lips pursed a little with a faint tremulous smile.

CHAPTER XXII.

A STRUGGLE WITH DESTINY

Pointer, bustling to and fro, and bobbing about the platform among the passengers from the London train, touched his peaked cap to Sir Thomas Hargrave with a deferential smile. He took a few steps towards him as if wishful to exchange a greeting, then, catching sight of a tall, slight young man behind the baronet, his jaw dropped and he remained motionless, staring after their retreating figures, his brain in a whirl with a hundred foolish conjectures.

Birch, outside the station with the phaeton and pair of greys, put the whip to the brim of his hat, as was his inveterate custom of proclaiming that his services and entire attention were at the disposal of his master. During the day he had become well primed by a cloud of self-styled witnesses with parti-coloured details ment the wedding, and the man's feelings as he looked down from his high perch in response to Paul's breezy "Good evening, Birch," defied description.

With one stoppage and another, the short afternoon was already wearing away before Paul reached and rang the bell gently for admittance at the Manor House. Rose Pilgrim came to the door with the least possible delay, and told him the master was up, sitting in his room, and that Miss Agnes was gone driving with the doctor for a breath of fresh air.

"If you will go upstairs and can stay with him till they return, I shall be glad, sir," she said, respectfully; "he's been alone some time now."

Paul mumbled some sort of answer, placed his stick in the stand, took off his hat, stepped softly upstairs and tapped faintly on the door of the squire's room. There was no response, and therefore he turned the handle with excruciating care and peeped in. A swift glance round the large, low-ceiled room reassured him. He entered, closing the door noiselessly behind him, and walked gingerly across to the hearth. Felix was asleep by the fire, lying back in a low, comfortable, easy, chints-covered chair, with one arm in his coat sleeve, and the injured shoulder protected by a soft, fleecy woollen shawl. Paul stood looking down at him, a curious expression in his dark eyes. This was a different Felix to the one he had always known, this pale, jarred, helpless man, with the pained look about the contracted brows and the pathetic air of listless, quiescent lassitude.

About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost." A. O. NORTON, 286 Congress, St. Boston.

IN HIS OWN COIN

A Short Story

BY D. E. PARSONS.
(Short Story.)

Will Jarvis pushed open the garden gate of Brian Courage and strode up the little flagged pathway, hammering loudly upon the door. His little eyes glistened, and a grim smile lay round his ragged mouth. He had been waiting for this for years. At last had come the opportunity of paying back Charlotte Thomas for her treatment of him twenty years before. She would not be quite so high and mighty this time, he thought.

Twenty years ago Charlotte Thomas, the daughter of a farmer, had been young and pretty, and twenty years ago Will Jarvis, then an ostler, had asked her to marry him. But Charlotte had treated his proposal with disdain, and laughed him to scorn. And now Will held Charlotte in the hollow of his hand.

A minute later he was seated opposite her. Time had not dealt kindly with the spinster, for in spite of her good looks, she had, somehow, never married. Her once becoming plumpness had changed into sharp angles, and the wisp of grey hair drawn tightly away from her temples and twisted into an equally tight knot at the back of her head left no indication of the bright tresses that once contributed towards her youthful charm.

Will was by no means an Adonis himself, but as he gazed at the woman before him and took in the evidence of the ravages time had made on her, he felt thankful that Miss Thomas still bore the cognomen of Miss Thomas and not that of Mrs. Jarvis. But that was not going to alter his determination to repay Charlotte for the snubbing he had received.

"I reckon you know what I'm here for," he rasped out. Charlotte nodded without speaking. "This here's my third visit. I said last time I came if you couldn't pay I wouldn't wait no longer, no more I won't. Now can you pay up?" The woman shook her head, still keeping silence.

"I bought this mortgage in '98 and you are three years behind in the interest. I want a settlement now or ——" He paused meaningly. Then as she said nothing he continued triumphantly: "It's my turn to do the haughty now. Will Jarvis wasn't good enough for Charlotte Thomas when he was a common working man only earning a few dollars a week. Things is altered a bit now, ain't they? Charlotte Thomas"—he flicked his second finger and thumb—"ain' worth that, and Will Jarvis is worth thousands." His little beady eyes rested spitefully on the woman. Ah, how he had dreamed of this moment. Soon she would begin to beg. Let her beg. She fixed him with her gimlet gaze.

"You know I can't pay, so you'll have to do your worst," she bit out.

Will looked. This was not exactly how he had pictured the interview. The look on her face was hardly one of tearful entreaty. "Wh—where'll you go? What'll you do?" he quavered, disconcerted at this unexpected attitude.

"That's my business," Charlotte returned sharply.

"Suppose you'll go to that niece of yours?" he persisted, eyeing her from under his lids.

"You leave my niece out of the matter. Your business is with me," she snapped back.

"I don't know as it is entirely," Will began slowly. "She ain't a bad looking girl——" He paused as if in thought, then, turning his eyes to the opposite wall, said awkwardly: "There's just one way in which you might wipe off that debt." Charlotte looked sharply at him.

"And that is?"

"I've been thinking lately of taking a wife. It's lonely living by myself. As I said before, I'm worth several thousands and can afford to keep a wife." He looked full at her. "If your niece will marry me I'll agree to cancel that mortgage." Charlotte turned and eyed the other steadily. Will looked uncomfortable.

"My niece ain't for sale," she snapped.

"It isn't every girl gets the chance to marry money," mumbled the man. "If she thought anything of you she wouldn't care to see you turned out."

"Perhaps not. But as it happens she——" Charlotte stopped suddenly and a gleam came into her eyes. A plan was beginning to form in her brain whereby she could get even with this man before her. She raised her hand to her mouth. She appeared to be thinking deeply.

"Well, of course," she said at last, slowly and hesitatingly, "there's no accounting for girls' tastes. She might and she might not. Some girls ain't particular as to age." Will winced. "It'd take a good deal off my mind to know she had a good home and would never want for anything, besides relieving me of this debt," she went on.

"Will you lay it before her?" Will asked, almost eagerly.

Charlotte looked sharply at him. "If I permit my niece to marry you, will you give me a written agreement cancelling the mortgage on the day she accepts your offer?"

The man nodded quickly. "Yes. I'll put it down in black and white. When'll you ask her?"

"I think," Charlotte said, slowly, "I think it'd look more natural if you wrote and asked her yourself, not mentioning anything about the mortgage."

"Perhaps it would," admitted Will. "She is away at present, but as soon as she comes back I'll give it to her." When Charlotte closed the door on him a minute later, a grim smile flickered over her gaunt features. That night Will despatched a note addressed to Charlotte's niece, asking her to marry him. Two days later he received a reply. His little eyes gleamed with satisfaction as he read:

"Dear Mr. Jarvis,—Your offer of marriage came as a great surprise. As you say in your letter, it is not always the young men who make the best husbands. For my part, I have always preferred the society of older men as being so much more interesting and sensible, and I accept with pleasure your proposal. Hoping to see you at the cottage very soon.

"Your very sincerely,
"LOTTIE THOMAS."

Ah-h! Charlotte knew which side her bread was buttered on. She had persuaded her niece to marry him. He would go to see her this very day. Once again Will was seated opposite Charlotte. There was a pen and ink on the table beside her.

"Where is she?" Will asked, looking expectantly around.

"She'll be here presently," Charlotte said, placing the pen and ink before him. "May as well get this business over first." Will took pen and paper and slowly and laboriously wrote, cancelling the mortgage on the cottage. Charlotte blotted the signature carefully and locked it away in the bureau. Then she turned and faced him. "When do you wish the banns of our marriage published?" she asked. Will gazed at her uncomprehendingly.

"Wh-what do you mean? OUR marriage?"

"I am referring to your proposal of marriage to me which I accepted," Charlotte replied steadily.

"You accepted? What are you talking about? I never made an offer of marriage to you. I wrote that note to your niece."

"You addressed it to Miss Thomas."

"Yes, Miss Thomas, your niece."

"My niece is no longer Miss Thomas. She was married four days ago in New York. Her name is now Fullerton."

"What?" shrieked the other. Before he could say another word an inner door of the room opened, and Charlotte's niece appeared. Behind her was a young fellow dressed neatly. "My niece, Mrs. Fullerton, and her husband," introduced Charlotte. "She has been looking forward to meeting her future uncle," she finished, darting a look at Will.

But he was oblivious to everything. With apoplectic countenance he stormed up and down the little room. "I'll have you up for it, you swindling Jezebel. Getting that agreement out of me, under false pretences. I'll make you pay for it, see if I don't," he bellowed.

"Two can play at that game, Will," interposed Charlotte, a curious note in her voice. He stopped suddenly. "Wh-what? Who?" he began, fal-

FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETING

A meeting of the Finance Committee was held recently, with Ald. Anderson in the chair, and Aldermen Johnston, Duncan, Buller and Mayor Bradburn present.

A letter was read from E. C. G. Huycke, County Judge, regarding his account for the registration of the manhood suffrage voters. Action was deferred.

A letter was read from F. Adams, City Treasurer, regarding an account against R. Sheehy for $22.17, for rent of lot on water front, near the C. P. R. bridge.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the letter be referred to the Chairman of the Property Committee.

A letter was read from G. H. Thompson submitting the estimates of the Board of Education, and asking that it be paid in monthly instalments.

Moved by Ald. Johnston and Duncan, that the sums to the Board of Education be paid in monthly instalments.—Carried.

Moved by Mayor Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that a copy of the Municipal World be purchased for the City Office, and that a cheque be issued for it.

A letter was read from the Bank of Toronto, saying that the rates of interest on the city's accounts would be the same as last year.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Buller, that these terms be accepted for the year.

A similar request from the National Sanitarium Association, asking the Council to contribute towards the maintenance of Stanley Gorman, was laid over.

This Coffee Pot FREE

Why Dalton's French Drip Coffee is a Wholesome, Delicious and Economical

When you have once tasted Dalton's delicious French Drip Coffee, made in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you will never be tempted to drink ordinary boiled Coffee again.

The Coffee berry, or bean, is protected by nature from the insect world by a tough outer shell or husk, which contains tannin and other acid, bitter principles which are poisonous to insects and certainly not wholesome to the human system.

Other roasters of Coffee do not remove this bitter husk, and this is why many people find that ordinary Coffee does not agree with them. Not only that, but the usual way of roasting Coffee in cylinders over coke or gas fires, drives off the volatile essences, so essential to aroma and flavor.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

The DALTON process of roasting Coffee differs against an intensely hot flame. This roasts them in half the time and prevents the volatile essences being driven off. Then the Coffee is cooled by a special process, during which a strong suction air-blast blows off all foreign substances. Next comes the grinding, during which another powerful air-blast removes the poisonous, bitter outer shell. The Coffee contains absolutely no chicory and is packed in sealed tins, which preserve all the delightful flavor.

We make Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two strengths Mild Blend and Strong Blend. You cannot tell however which you will like the best, until you try both and that is why we ask you to buy two tins in our special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the kind you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to sell you one of these [illegible] with your first purchase of a tin each of both Mild and Strong Blend. You buy two tins of our Coffee—one tin each blend—at the [illegible] per tin, to give it a trial, and you give you the [illegible] of getting a Pot free, provided that you only use Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

The Quest of Gentle Hazard

Being the Adventures in Love and Chivalry of Lord Richard Jocelyn.— By H.M.Egbert

A Family Reunion

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

In his apartment on Madison avenue, New York, Lord Richard Jocelyn sat reading a letter. It was from his father in England, the fourth viscount, and ran as follows:

"You have now been nearly eight months in America for the purpose of selecting a bride, and have not succeeded. You are young, fairly good-looking, heir to an historic name and a castle—great attractions in the United States, I understand; all the cards are in your favor, and yet you cannot find a single American girl who will link her fortune with yours. I have obtained introductions for you among the wealthiest families, and from the reports that have come back to me I understand that you have rejected many opportunities to form alliances. Now, Richard, I cannot blame you for your reluctance to marry an American. I could not imagine myself doing such a thing unless her wealth were ample enough to counteract the unpleasantness of her constant proximity. But I have come to the conclusion that you are either hopelessly devoid of common sense or else a congenital imbecile, and if you marry at all you'll probably elope with some designing actress. Therefore, since the condition of our finances makes it essential that you discover a bride at the earliest possible moment, I shall sail shortly for New York to help you in your choice."

Jocelyn put the letter down and groaned.

"The devil!" he muttered, striding up and down the room. "Now I'm in for it. The governor's bound to marry me off, and from what I know of him he wouldn't stick at anything if he could do so. Talbot!"

"Did you call, sir?" asked his servant, emerging from the kitchen, a tumbler in one hand and a towel in the other.

"I did. Talbot, my father's coming over in a week or two to get me married."

"Yes, sir; indeed, sir?" answered Talbot respectfully.

"What shall I do, Talbot?"

"Why, sir, I wouldn't do nothink, sir. It ain't much use doing nothink when Lord Jocelyn's made hup' 'is mind, sir."

"But I don't want to meet him, idiot."

"Then why not go 'ome, sir?"

"Home? How do you mean?"

"If you was to take the next boat, sir, Lord Jocelyn might think as 'ow you 'adn't received 'is letter, sir, and meanwhile 'e'd be hin Hamerica hand you'd be in Hengland, sir."

"An excellent plan, Talbot, my boy," said Jocelyn. "I'll go right down to the shipping offices and see about a ticket on one of tomorrow's outgoing ships."

"Yes, sir," said Talbot. "Will I pack for you, sir?"

"When I get home, Talbot; I'll see how the idea strikes me when I've had luncheon."

He put on his hat and went out into the avenue. The heat of summer was gone; a few leaves were yellowing upon the trees in Madison square, and as Jocelyn gazed around at the city's streets a sudden revulsion of feeling came over him. Why should he return to England and leave this land of romance behind him? Let his father do his worst; let him stop his allowance, bluster, threaten, rave; at least he could earn a living here, if only as a plain soldier in the American army. And so musing lunched at a modest restaurant, he put aside his plan and strolled leisurely homeward.

"If I ever find a bride," he mused, as he turned up the avenue, "she shall come to me by blind chance, by favor of fortune. No more scrapings and shufflings among the plutocracy for me. And I shall tell the governor so."

The elevator carried him to the front door of his apartment, and, inserting his key in the lock, he was about to open the door, when the sound of a feminine voice within arrested his movements. Very slowly he pushed the door inward. A lady was standing in the hall.

"You say that you can cook a sole?" he heard her call to Talbot. "And you're sure that you know how to make sauce tartare?"

"Yes, indeed, my lady," answered the servitor.

"Excellent. Then Lord Jocelyn and I will dine here together this evening."

Lord Jocelyn closed the door without a sound, and, standing on the mat without, took off his hat and fanned himself.

"Whew!" he whistled. "She's certainly come. Who can she be? 'My lady?' Can it be that I have become a benedict without knowing it?"

Here there flashed through his mind a whimsical idea which, if carried out, would not only afford him a little needed diversion, but would be the best means of enabling him to discover just what fate had contrived for him. From the glimpse that he had caught of the lady he was positive he had never seen her before; ergo, she would certainly not have seen him. He rang the bell of his apartment and Talbot came forward to open it.

"Who is she, Talbot?" he whispered.

"Then I must have got married in my sleep, Talbot."

"Which you 'aven't, sir, I'll wager. She come in as cool as brass, sir, and said she was Lady Jocelyn and 'ow you'd be following 'er in a few minutes. Heither she's a himposter, sir, or she's what they calls—"

"I know—mentally deranged. Now listen, Talbot. We'll take stock of her. You've never seen me before. My name is Jones and I'm a friend of Lord Jocelyn's—understand?"

"Yes, sir, by hall means, sir."

"Then let me in," said Jocelyn. And, in a louder voice, he added:

"My name is Jones. Lord Jocelyn specially requested that if I came while he was out I was to wait for him. It's about—er—the gas meter."

"Yes, Mr. Jones; walk in, please, sir," said Talbot, and ushered Lord Jocelyn into the sitting room, where he found his pseudo-wife inspecting his book case. They bowed politely to one another.

"Have I the pleasure of addressing Lady Jocelyn?" asked Jocelyn.

"I am Lady Jocelyn," the lady returned, surveying him with a smile in which something of amusement lurked. "My husband is not here at present, but I am expecting him shortly, Mr.—er—?"

"Jones," answered Jocelyn promptly. "Pardon me for intruding on you, but—it is a little matter about the gas meter."

"If it is a bill," said the lady, "perhaps I can settle it and save you the trouble of waiting. We have only come home to our apartment and it may have been overlooked."

"No—ah—it's about a refund," said Jocelyn, on the spur of the moment. "Lord Jocelyn paid us too much, through an error in the accounts, and I wish to return it to him."

"Give it to me," replied the lady. "I act for Lord Jocelyn."

Lord Jocelyn was nonplussed for a moment, while the lady, smiling maliciously, surveyed him with a cool stare.

"With your permission I'll wait," said Jocelyn. "I have to obtain his personal signature."

"O, very well," said the lady. "Pray be seated Mr.—the name was Jones, was it not?—Please look through these magazines; I am sure Lord Jocelyn will offer no objection." And, handing him some of the current periodicals, she went through his apartment to the kitchen, where, a moment later, Jocelyn heard her ordering Talbot to go to the fish market and purchase a pair of soles.

"What am Hi to do, sir?" asked Talbot, coming in in agitation.

Lord Jocelyn's amusement was fast changing to anger.

"She's a thief," he said. "Go to the police station and bring a man round here to arrest her. It's the most brazen impudence I ever heard of."

"Yes, sir, very good, sir," answered Talbot, and, putting on his hat, he left the apartment just as the lady returned.

"You are quite sure you don't want to leave the money with me?" she asked again. "You see—"

"Yes, madam?" replied Jocelyn politely, though he felt his anger rising rapidly.

"The fact is," she confided, "my husband is of a very jealous disposition, and if he were to come in and find me chatting with a stranger I don't know what he would say to me. Mr. Jones, won't you oblige me and come back some other time?"

Jocelyn, utterly at a loss, surveyed this singular woman in astonishment not unmingled with admiration. A little past thirty, he would have judged her; her maturity of figure only lent additional charm to a face of singular beauty. Under other circumstances his sentiments of romance, always latent, might have developed into a crisis of an amatory nature. But at being ordered out of his apartment his annoyance gained the mastery over him.

"Look here, young woman," he said, "you've made a mistake. I advise you to get out of here as soon as you possibly can, for I have sent my man to the police station."

"You—you—what do you mean?" she gasped.

"I mean that I am Lord Jocelyn and that you have overplayed your hand."

"You Lord Jocelyn?" she cried, starting back and stretching out her hands to feel for the support of the wall. "Then who is my husband? Tell me that. Tell me that!" she continued in agitation, pacing up and down the room rapidly. She came to a stop in front of him and grasped his arm fiercely, her lips quivering. "Who is my husband?" she demanded.

Her obvious sincerity moved Jocelyn to pity.

"How long have you been married, may I ask?" he said.

"Only since this morning. Our courtship was a brief one. He wooed me under the name of Jocelyn—Lord Jocelyn, of Doublewith Manor, Stockton, England—and married me not two hours ago."

"But how did you come here?" cried Jocelyn.

"He sent me here. He told me that his servant, Talbot, had received instructions about me, that he had been called away downtown upon an urgent summons which, not attended to, would cost the loss of his entire fortune. He begged me to forgive him if he left me for awhile, and told me that he would follow me here at the earliest moment possible. O, if you are indeed Lord Jocelyn, tell me who my husband is!"

"He's probably Jones, the gas man," thought Jocelyn, but he did not give utterance to his thought. Indeed, he extended his hand soothingly toward his fair visitor.

"Perhaps he is not as wicked as he seems," he said.

"Wicked?" the lady cried. "My husband wicked? How dare you call him such a word? O, if he were here to protect me from insult! But he does not come. I am an abandoned wife, and only two hours married! And I thought Richard the soul of honor." And sinking into a chair, she buried her face in her hands and wept bitterly.

Lord Jocelyn was overwhelmed with sympathy and grief. He seated himself upon the arm of the chair beside her and sought to console her. "It will be all right," he stammered. "He will come—I know he will; and then we shall have a complete solution of the mystery. Perhaps there are two Lord Jocelyns," he said with a happy thought. "Though it does seem a stretch of the imagination to suppose that they both live at Doublewith Manor, Stockton," he added, mentally. "Courage, my dear lady," he continued. "Let us wait here until he comes and hear what he has to say for himself. He must have known that I live here. If your husband were an imposter, why should he have given you my address?"

"Do you think so?" murmured the lady behind her handkerchief. "Do you really think so? O, you are so comforting." She raised her face and smiled pitifully at him.

Lord Jocelyn, in whom her emotion had produced a very similar effect, perceived two beautiful eyes smiling at him through their mist of tears. Then, moved by an unlucky impulse, impelled irresistibly, even against his judgment, he seized her hands in his own and pressed them warmly. He bent his head to hers, and but for her sudden withdrawal would have kissed her lips.

Next instant, realizing what he had done, he started to his feet, and, his face scarlet, and with eyes upon the ground awaited the contemptuous words that he anticipated. But none came. The lady only looked at him reproachfully; yet, if he had dared to observe her, he might have seen the faintest suspicion of a smile upon her countenance. But, while both still kept silent, there came a ring at the door, and Jocelyn stepped forward and opened it.

Outside stood Talbot, a policeman at his side.

"There she is," cried his servitor, addressing the officer and indicating the lady within. "Harrest her, constable—I mean hofficer. That's the himpostress I was telling habout."

"What the deuce does this mean?" cried Jocelyn angrily, stepping forward so as to interpose himself between his fair guest and the policeman.

"Beg pardon, sir, but the sergeant sent me round here at your servant's request to arrest a woman thief who had entered your apartment under false pretenses," said the policeman. "Is this the woman?"

"It is not," cried Jocelyn. "This lady is a guest of mine, I would like you to know. My man is a fool."

"Yes, sir," muttered Talbot respectfully.

"Then you don't want this lady arrested?" asked the policeman dubiously.

"I certainly do not want this lady arrested—seeing that she is my wife," Jocelyn answered, with a vague idea that he was in this way shielding her.

The policeman scratched his head in perplexity.

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but the charge has been entered on the blotter and you'll have to explain the matter to the sergeant now. It doesn't lie within my control any longer. I've got to arrest somebody."

"Then arrest me," cried Jocelyn hotly. "It was a mistake, I tell you. That ass of mine misunderstood me. I sent him out to buy some fish. This lady is my wife."

"Take me, constable," interposed Talbot. "Hi was to blime, constable—Hi mean hofficer. Hi 'ad been drinking. You see, sir, my master, Lord Jocelyn, 'ad just got married, and Hi, knowing nothink about hit, jumped to the wrong conclusion."

"Shut up, you ass, you're making matters worse," said Jocelyn, infuriated. "Now see here, officer, this is a mix-up. If it will straighten it out in any wise I will accompany you to the police station and then—"

There came a strange sound from Talbot's lips. All turned toward him. He had staggered back against the wall and stood there, staring at a gentleman who was just emerging from the elevator.

He was a stout, bald, dignified-looking gentleman, wearing a frock coat adorned with a singularly large carnation, and in his hand he carried a gold-headed cane and a silk hat which shone like glass. Jocelyn jumped three inches into the air. But the elderly gentleman, as though wholly unconscious of the impression that he was creating, came forward, not in the least disconcerted, with a stolid, imperturbable stride, and extended one hand to Jocelyn in a languid fashion.

"How do you do, Richard?" he said. "I trust I see you well? Warm weather we're having for this time of year."

"Yes, father," said Jocelyn dutifully.

Then he looked at his father again. There was a change in the old gentleman's expression. He was smiling now. It was a wooden smile, as though it had been hung there and did not naturally belong to him, and he was actually smirking, too, in a peculiar, half-timid, half-furtive manner.

"How do you like her?" he asked sheepishly.

"Like whom?" cried his son.

"Your stepmother, Richard," said Viscount Jocelyn. "I married her this morning when we stepped off the ship."

The officer had gone, his passion for justice squared by some inscrutable means which this story does not record. Viscount Jocelyn and his son and Lady Jocelyn were seated at the table, enjoying a filet of flounder, masquerading for the nonce as sole, with sauce tartare, the viscount slightly nervous, Richard decidedly sheepish, and the lady casting quite embarrassing smiles at him.

"You see, Richard," the viscount volunteered, smacking his lips over a glass of his son's Burgundy, "you see, my boy, I didn't quite know how you would take the news that I had married again, and, so, though in a sense it was an object lesson to you for your own dilatoriness in finding a bride, I decided to send Lady Jocelyn ahead to make peace between us. She knew you from your photograph."

"And Mr. Jones received me exceedingly ill," said the new viscountess, pouting.

"You knew me all the time?" asked Richard, struggling with his vexation.

"The minute you set your foot inside the apartment," the viscountess answered. "But, of course, when you denied yourself it wasn't for me to contradict you. Besides, I was a little afraid of my new stepson."

"But why did you deceive me?"

"My dear boy, I didn't deceive you, you deceived yourself. I told you I was Lady Jocelyn—and am I not?"

"But you wept, or pretended to weep," said Richard hotly. "And I was naturally very much perturbed."

"You tell him," whispered the viscountess to her husband.

"After dinner," said Viscount Jocelyn, in some confusion.

"And now," said the viscountess, "I know that you two will have much to talk about, and so I shall leave you together for half an hour—no more. Don't be longer, because we must all have a little talk together afterward before we start for our hotel."

She went toward the sitting room; then beckoned to Richard mysteriously from behind the door. He went up to her.

"You'd better say nothing about—about anything that's on your conscience," she said mischievously. "And I shan't either. It might distress your father, Richard. He's jealous—I think I told you. But I know now that we shall get along very well indeed."

She left him and Richard turned back to where his father sat, drinking his Burgundy.

"Richard, my dear boy," said the viscount, "I hope you won't be disappointed when I tell you something. I met your stepmother on the boat and we fell in love. But—well, you remember what I wrote in my letter about not marrying an American unless she had a fortune?"

Richard nodded.

"The fact is," said his father, "she's an American. And—and—" he gulped—"well, she hasn't a penny, Richard."

"Then we're all in the same boat," said his son gaily.

"I'm glad you take it so well, Richard," said his father. "Because the fact is"—gulp, gulp—"Richard, she's an actress."

"Yes, my boy," he continued, as they entered the sitting room together, "my last word of advice to you is, do as I have done and take a wife."

"And I'm sure," put in the viscountess, with a swift glance at her stepson, "that with his accomplishments he should not find the process difficult."

LIFE AN UNCERTAIN GAME

Systems for Reaching Old Age as Doubtful as Those for Acquiring Wealth.

The late John W. Gates, who was frequently spoken of as a "plunger," played Wall street on a system, and was thirty or forty million dollars ahead of the game when he died at the age of fifty-six.

Thomas A. Edison, luckily among those guests who escaped unharmed from the Carlton hotel fire in London, is now sixty-four. He also has his "system," applied to living, by which he declares he expects to attain the patriarchal age of one hundred and fifty.

A man died in Minnesota lately only eleven days short of the century mark. As is too often the case, this near-centenarian was a hard drinker and an inveterate smoker. Maybe if he had lived a temperate life he might have rounded out the full hundred years.

But it all goes to show what an uncertain game life is. Some men take things easy and pass off in their prime. Edison works 16 or 18 hours a day, intends never to retire, and is going stronger than ever at sixty-four.

The only positive assurance the wizard inventor can have in regard to the long span he looks to, and which all the world cordially wishes him, is that he has achieved 150 years' worth of work already.

The Benevolent Butler.

A Calcutta correspondent reports "a truly horrible incident" which befell and English lady. Her "butler" was in the habit of calling loudly beneath her window every evening about 7. His cry suggested that he was calling either the cattle or the chickens home; but though she had neither, the lady for some time took no notice. Until one evening, having the curiosity to look, she was horrified to see the butler, like a dusky pied piper, surrounded by a troop of rats!

There were quite fifty of them, from the big bandicotes to small muskrats, all being fed on the remains of her soup, meats and other bits. In a plague country this was an amusement that was speedily ended.

Electricity From the Stars.

Experiments conducted in Ireland, if they are to be trusted, reveal a distinct electromotive force exercised by the stars. Using a reflecting telescope of two feet aperture to concentrate the star rays, and a sensitive electrometer to note their influence, the experimenters had reason to believe that they were able not only to detect, but to measure, the electromotive force of both stars and planets.

To Venus, for example, they ascribed a force of about seventeen one-hundredths of a volt, and to Jupiter a force of at least three one-hundredths of a volt. In the case of Jupiter only a part of the planet's light fell upon the electrometer, so that the experimenters inferred that his entire electric influence must be much greater than that stated. Sirius, which appears to us as the brightest of the fixed stars, showed a force amounting to two one-hundredths of a volt.—Harper's Weekly.

Ate Nuts in Church.

The Sunday before Michaelmas day saw, until recent times, a curious custom at Kingston-Thames. The parishioners attended in force at the parish church, armed with nuts, which they cracked and ate throughout the service. "Nut cracking," however, was not peculiar to Kingston. Goldsmith makes his Vicar of Wakefield say of his parishioners: "They kept up the Christmas Carol, sent true-love knots on Valentine morning, ate pancakes at Shrovetide, and religiously cracked nuts on Michaelmas eve."—London Chronicle.

NEW USE FOR THE SCHOOLS

Plan is Put Forward to Utilize Some of the Sixty Per Cent. Waste Time.

The American school plant is valued at more than $1,000,000,000, and as used for school purposes alone utilizes but thirty-nine per cent. of the time which could be given to the needs of the community. This, according to the National Magazine, represents a total loss of school plants to the country of more than $30,000,000 every year.

An active movement is now taking place to turn school property during the summer months into children's playgrounds and places of amusement and to make them the center of recreation, of political and social life, the same as in country places, where they serve many purposes, oftentimes even for church services.

Evening schools, free lectures, indoor sports, folk dances, civic and educational meetings and gymnastic exercises are among the things mentioned for which school plants should be utilized. It is proposed by some to have the schoolhouses opened every day of the week, Sundays included, so that the community may get the greatest possible benefit from them.

If this movement grows pupils will no longer find after vacation a musty smelling deserted building, but rather one which has been in use every day in the year by those who love to give the public every possible advantage of the buildings provided for public purposes.

When Artists Can't Agree.

Lodging complaints against artists is a common diversion of their fellow tenants who lack the artistic temperament, but the most unusual grievance and from her standpoint the most vital has been registered by the janitress of a building largely occupied by struggling painters.

"Let them daub away all they please in their own rooms," she said; "that is nobody's business, but for goodness sake let them leave the clothes poles in the backyard alone. They paint them fresh every few days because no two of the artists can agree on an appropriate color, and when plain people who don't mind looking at a plain clothes pole hang out their wash the clothes get all smeared with fresh paint."

Some Women Have No Hearts

A Cleveland man was complaining the other day about the lack of sympathy in the world.

And then he offered a personal example.

He said he went home from his business on a recent afternoon and received a great scare on the way. He was still trembling when he entered the house.

"Well, Mary," he said, as he dropped into a chair, "I got a bad scare just now. As I went around the end of the car at the corner a big touring car went by me like a wild thing, and say, it was so close when it passed that the hubs of the wheels brushed my pants!"

Did his wife turn pale at this recital? Did she express joy and thankfulness over his narrow escape?

No, she didn't.

She just looked him over and said: "Well, your pants certainly needed brushing!"

An Oregon Woman's Conscience.

Confessing that she had told a train ticket agent her child was under five years of age, when in fact she was over six years old, and under such pretence succeeded in securing free transportation for her, a woman appeared at a local Southern Pacific ticket office this morning and tendered the agent $2. She said the incident occurred about three years ago, and that she had since been troubled by her conscience.

"I do not think I could right myself with God until I had paid the debt," declared the woman as she hastened from the ticket office.

The woman refused to give her name. Southern Pacific officials here declare that today's donation is the first "conscience" money ever received at this office.—Roseburg correspondence, Portland, Oregonian.

Crook With a Conscience.

A man walked into police headquarters the other night and handed Lieut. Gabe a pocketbook in which was $2.06.

"My name is Charles Schlick, and there is some money I picked from a man's pocket in the subway this evening," he said. "I'm no common crook, but I've been here three months and can't find a job. For two days I've been hungry. Tonight I walked by the ticket chopper in the Brooklyn bridge subway station, and standing next to this fellow I saw my chance. I got away with it, got off the train at Fourteenth street, got a good meal"—he straightened up—"and there's the change."

He said his conscience had so troubled him that he wanted to give himself up.—New York Sun.

Specialist Did Skin Trouble No Good

Very Itchy and Disfiguring. Got a Little Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Was Cured.

"For two summers I suffered with skin trouble on my arms, and on my legs from my knees down. My arms were badly disfigured, and I kept them covered. It came like the hives, and was very itchy. I consulted a specialist, who gave me medicine, as well as an ointment, but seemed to do no good. It was beginning to appear on my face.

"I got a little Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. The first touch of Ointment seemed to relieve, and before the Cuticura Ointment was finished I was cured. I have not the least sign of trouble. I think it would have spread over my whole body if Cuticura Soap and Ointment had not cured me. I am delighted with them, and do feel pleased to think I have something I have confidence in. I tell all my friends about them, and I think Cuticura Ointment is the best I ever saw." (Signed) M. J. Boddy, 73 McCaul St., Toronto, Dec. 22, 1910.

Cold-Sore Began to Heal With First Use of Cuticura Ointment.

"Cuticura Ointment cured a very bad cold-sore that gave me hours of severe pain and loss of sleep. I tried lots of other remedies but nothing did me any good till I tried Cuticura Ointment, and from the very first application it began to heal and now there is not even a scar left." (Signed) Mrs. W. Boyce, Mermaid Farm, P.E.I., Jan. 3, '11.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the speediest, safest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp troubles, of young and old. Terrible Methods Of War Invented By An Old Man

LONDON, Jan. 30.—A new form of warfare—more terrible and revolting than anything imagined even by fiction writers—if all that be claimed for it be true—is at present under consideration by the British Admiralty.

The details concerning the new warfare were discovered, curiously enough, from a party of retired British and Colonial military officers, who replied to the following advertisement, which appeared in a London paper.

"WAR—Gentlemen of independent position, who are conversant with the requirements of modern warfare and who may be willing to take part (on terms of emolument) in organizing and directing certain important developments, are invited to communicate with ——"

The "important developments" referred to in the advertisement are the same as are now being considered by the Admiralty, and are know by the title of "chemical warfare."

In "chemical warfare" shells and bullets are charged with various chemicals, which, falling among the enemy's army or fleet, can, the inventor claims, be made to produce:

1. Fumes which blind everyone within a radius of a quarter of a mile.
2. Fog, completely enveloping a vessel or fort and too thick to be penetrated by powerful searchlights.
3. Fumes poisonous and instantly fatal.
4. Fire—literally setting the atmosphere on fire.
5. A device—not yet perfected—to scatter germs of cholera, typhoid or smallpox among the defenders of a fort, or the garrison and populace of a beleaguered town.

Such horrors of death and destruction are the invention, it is stated, of a benevolent-looking old gentleman, with a white beard and a mild blue eye. He is, unfortunately a cripple, but his brain is active and his discoveries may revolutionize warfare, if not abolish it entirely as being something too awful for civilized man to contemplate.

His description of chemical warfare and the part his discoveries will play in it was conveyed to the party of retired officers as follows:

"Chemical warfare is at once the newest and the oldest form of fighting. It is an elaboration and a highly-skilled adaptation of the Chinese 'stink-pots' and the Green fire of the Middle Ages.

"Its chief advantage is that whereas modern weapons depend entirely on impact, chemical weapons do not. In other words, a shell in chemical warfare is near enough to kill a man if it lands a quarter of a mile away.

"In chemical warfare, the target is not merely the ship or the man—it is the air for hundreds of yards all round. We don't have to hit at all; we use the surrounding atmosphere, and this is how we use it:

"Take first of all, the fumes that blind. This is a discovery of mine I call 'Blindite.' It was an accidental discovery with which I nearly blinded myself. So powerful is it that you could get enough inside an ordinary 30-calibre bullet to blind all the people in an ordinary 15 feet by 12 feet room.

"A large shell, charged with 'Blindite,' and burst over a man-of-war, would blind everybody on board. In the fresh open-air, the effect would last, perhaps, only 20 minutes, but in a closed room the effect would be permanent.

"Another feature of chemical warfare is the fog-shell. The ingredients in this shell turn the atmosphere into dense, heavy fog for hundreds of yards round the spot at which they burst.

"So dense is this chemical fog that the strongest searchlights cannot pierce it. A small torpedo boat could surround a Dreadnought with chemical fog and then sink it at its leisure.

"On land the fog-shell could envelope a battery, a regiment, or even an army, and the movements of the attacking chemical army would be completely concealed from them.

"The fire shell is charged with material of somewhat slow combustion. Wherever it bursts, the air all round is full of little blazing specks like a storm of red-hot dust. The temperature of the air would be raised to a degree at which human life could not endure, and all magazines would be exploded.

"Other chemicals I have which when burst in a shell would cause instant death from poisonous fumes, and there is the possibility—quite simple to conceive—of filling a shell with germs or bacilli, which would fill the enemy's atmosphere with dreadful diseases, poison their water supply, or set up an epidemic more deadly than any battle in the history of the world."

Such is in brief a description of the new chemical terrors, which the Admiralty is considering.

Even if the Admiralty allow these new horrors of war to go to a foreign country, the project is to be put before old military officers of both the home and Colonial forces, with the object of interesting them in the formation of a band of experts, without Government aid or assistance, to test these new chemical discoveries to the fullest.

It is hoped, thereby, to make Britain the leading country in chemical warfare, so that, if the next few years sees a sudden and complete revolution in fighting methods, Great Britain will be able to command the services of a regiment of chemical experts at a moment's notice.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Weakness and Palpitation OF THE HEART.

Through one cause or another a large majority of people are troubled, more or less, with some form of heart trouble.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart, but when it starts to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, then it causes great anxiety and alarm.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can and will give prompt and permanent relief.

They do this by their restorative influence on every organ and tissue of the body.

Mrs. John J. Downey, New Glasgow, N.S., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I was troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies, but got none to answer my case like your Pills. I can recommend them highly to all having heart or nerve troubles."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"I am all right now, thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy."

This same relief is ready for you. Are you sure you do not need it? If Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy helped Charles Holmes, why won't it help you?

"I was troubled with heart disease, and after reading about Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I got a bottle. Before I got the Heart Remedy I had to sit up most of the night, and felt very bad at my stomach. Whatever I would eat made me feel worse, and my heart beat very fast. But thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I am all right now. I eat good, sleep good, and feel like a new man, although I am almost 68 years old. I have been a soldier in the late war of the rebellion, and was badly wounded." CHARLES HOLMES, Private Co. TOLD IN THE RESERVE ROOM

(Short Story.)

"Kelly'll live," said Patrolman Jennings, interrupting the game of checkers which involved six of his brother officers of the twelfth precinct—four as highly interested spectators, and two as bitter combatants.

Various exclamations of satisfaction greeted his declaration, and Rooney, an enormous man with huge, hairy hands and the ruddy, kindly countenance of his race, said musingly: "He was close called, was Kelly."

"That last night wasn't so much of a one and I can't see how he was caught," said Jennings, "for everyone else got out, and except him nobody was even hurt."

"I don't suppose you do," said Rooney, "but it was a mighty big wonder we were able to get him at all."

"How did it happen?" someone asked, and while the checker game proceeded with the group's divided attention, Rooney began:

"Kelly and me ain't been very good friends since his ten days' suspension, and last night just after I came on, when I met him at the far end of my beat, he hardly spoke to me. As I turned back I saw the fire in the rear elevator shaft of the Renfrew Hotel, and I yelled to Kelly to turn in an alarm.

"I ran in and told the sleepy clerk to ring the bells in all the rooms, and as the elevator boy had lit out at the first peep, Kelly, who had come in, and I got the people down. There weren't many, and when the clerk called the roll from the register he said we had 'em all. Just then in ran a woman and says:

"'Me daughter's in the last room on the top floor and she hasn't come down. She's the housekeeper's assistant and she's all alone up there.' It turned out afterward that she wasn't in the hotel when the fire started, but we were due for another ascension.

"And up we went as the apparatus started to work. By this time the power was giving out and as we reached the last floor but one the elevator stuck and just left us room to climb out. The girl was on the next floor above, we thought, and we got there by a narrow stairway. The rear of the place was all afire from top to bottom, and the smoke was getting pretty thick where we were, but we looked in all the rooms; couldn't find anyone, and turned to go down the stairs. A roll of heavy black smoke, with little glimmers of flame coming through it, cut us off from the front of the building, and the fire at the back left only one door we could make. We got through it and in a second were looking out a window into an alley six stories below. There wasn't anyone in sight, and the smoke was too thick to see us, anyway.

"We'll have to jump," says I, thinking of a man I picked up that fell from the roof of the Franklin building and who was all crumpled to bits.

"Kelly looked around out of the window and reached to an iron conductor pipe. It was heavy and solid-looking, and had joints every two feet or so clear to the street. He gave a pull at it to see if it would hold. It was terrible shaky.

"The pipe won't hold us both together," he says, bringing his head in from the window, his face white in the light of my lantern, but his voice quiet and steady. "Don't talk, but get out and down. If you hurry, maybe there'll be time for us both. I couldn't look your Nellie in the face if I made that cool white street and you didn't."

"What with him being single and me seeing my baby's curly head shining before me, I made the trip, as I went out of the window, and me knowing Kelly's chance was slim if he kept off that pipe till I was safe.

"I jumped the last two floors and made 'em run an extension ladder to the window, for he made no sign of coming after me. He was bad burned when they got him, but he knew me and said: "You were a long time climbing, and I was afraid I couldn't wait, but I did, all right.'

"My wife Nellie has been with him all day at the hospital. She says she is going to nurse him through, and I guess she will, for she says he's a hero."

"Drown him," said one of the checker players to his opponent, and another incident of reserve room history was closed.

SEEN AND HEARD

Sparing His Feelings.

Mrs. Donald Brian took her little daughter—aged 7—to a matinee performance of "The Siren." Before the curtain rose on the first act the little lady had the pleasure of a peep behind the scenes, meeting several members of the company, among whom was Will West, the comedian, who contributes most of the funny antics of the entertainment.

Evidently impressed with the fact that she must be on her best behaviour the little lady looked on gravely from start to finish, and was, in fact, a model of juvenile politeness. The members of the company put forth their best efforts to entertain the special visitor, and Mr. West, for her particular benefit, went as far as possible in amplifying his performance, adding at least two or three bits of comic business that he hadn't happened to think of previously.

When the final curtain fell someone asked little Florence how she had enjoyed the play.

"Oh, very much indeed," she said "but it was all I could do to keep from laughing at Mr. West."

Only Had a Dollar.

Charley Ellison is up on horses, but was not up on dogs. At one time in Hot Springs he paid $100 for a bird dog, partly through a fanciful notion and partly because the dog was a handsome animal.

He sought the seller the next day and said:

"I thought you claimed this was a bird dog. He was gone for three hours yesterday and didn't bring back a single bird."

Passing up the hunters and going in for trick animals, Ellison had a dog at Sheepshead Bay to which he would give a smell of a $5 bill and later send it to bring the money home.

When the retriever showed up Ellison said:

"Prince, what have you done with the other $4?"—Chicago Evening Post.

Catarrhozone

Cures Permanently BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CATARRH

Throw medicine to the dogs. At best they are unpleasant, often useless. You are suffering from some disease of the throat, nose, or lungs. Doctors call it Bronchitis, Asthma, or Catarrh, or it is a slight or severe cold. Germs cause these diseases—they have a common root.

Catarrhozone destroys disease germs, but it does more, it heals disease tissue.

CATARRHOZONE is little drops of healing carried by air to the exact place where Catarrh exists. Observe, Catarrhozone not only destroys the cause, but immediately repairs the result of diseased condition.

Catarrhozone means little drops of healing carried by air and placed over the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by doctors, druggists, and by thousands of Canadian people who have used it.

Catarrhozone

Yes, Sir, it is taken in air.

"Little drops of healing" carried by air to weak places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Three sizes: 25c, 50c, and $1.00, at druggists, or by mail postpaid from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet
For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

LAST SURVIVOR OF FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION.

The death has occurred at Belvedere, Kent, England, of Mr. Henry Stone, said to have been the last survivor of the late Sir John Franklin search expedition commanded by Captain McClure, which left England in 1850. Mr. Stone was on the ship Investigator, which was locked in among mountains of ice, and abandoned, and with the rest of the ship's company he spent four years in frozen regions which no civilized man had previously trodden.

P. AND O. COMPANY'S REWARD GALLANT FRENCH SAILORS

Two days after the stranding of the Delhi Sir Thomas Sutherland, chairman of the P. and O. Company, wrote to the French Minister of Marine, expressing, on the company's behalf, heartfelt appreciation of the splendid work done by the French warship Friant and deep sorrow that three sailors lost their lives in the gallant attempt to succour the passengers. Sir Thomas declared that the company would consider it a privilege to be allowed to contribute to the support of the men's families. Without waiting for a reply the directors forwarded a cheque for £500 through the French Ambassador in London, who, in acknowledging receipt, expressed his own thanks and assured Sir Thomas of his Government's high appreciation of the gift.

A QUEER POST OFFICE.

Sailing vessels still go around Cape Horn, just as they did in the sixteenth century navigators finding it very difficult to make the winding passage through the Straits of Magellan. Sometimes, however, on account of stormy weather, ships have to leave off the Straits for the greater part of a month. Cape Horn is a big mass of rock, which rises abruptly from the sea, and forms a small island. Upon one of the ledges of this rock there stands a painted barrel. Ship captains who are passing around the Cape send a boat ashore at that point, if possible, to take from the barrel whatever mail matter is going in their direction, and drop in it whatever is desired shall go in the opposite direction. This mail box is the world's most southern post office, and it does not need a postmaster.

THE JACKDAW AND THE WATCH.

While staying on holiday at Kilbin, Scotland, an Edinburgh gentleman had a watch taken from his room by a tame jackdaw. He saw the bird take the watch from the dressing table, and he reported the matter to the Perthshire police. Nothing was seen of it, however, until the other day, when workmen were repairing the rhones of the house. There they found the watch, which had doubtless lain there for seven years. It was forwarded to the Edinburgh police, who returned it to the owner, greatly to his surprise.

MOVING STAIRS. PLATFORMS THAT WALK.

Capable of carrying 10,800 people each way per hour, two moving stairways connecting the Piccadilly "Tube," London, England, and the District Railway at Earl's Court Station have been opened for London traffic. Such stairways are already in use in New York.

A passenger who wishes to ascend from the "Tube" station to the District station steps first of all on to a platform moving at the rate of 90 feet per minute. The platform begins to form itself into stairs, rising gradually until a perfect stairway is formed. This moves upwards until the upper level is reached, when the passenger steps off on to another stationary platform. Moving hand rails are provided at the side. In a similar way another moving stairway is provided to take passengers from the upper to the lower level. If the passenger desires to expedite his journey he may walk up or down the moving staircase with the same facility as if it were stationary.

In case of a breakdown passengers may continue their journey in the ordinary way by walking up or down the stairs, as the case may be, while if the necessity arises the pressing of a button stops the stairway in less than two seconds.

The work in connection with the stairway has involved the removed of over 7,000 tons of clay and 200 tons of cast-iron girders. About six months have been occupied in completing the work.

CAUGHT A BAD COLD.

DEVELOPED BRONCHITIS. SHE COULD HARDLY SPEAK.

Bronchitis begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness, and there is a dry, harsh, croupy cough.

After a few days mucous begins to be raised. This is at first white, but later of a greenish or yellow color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thus prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning to consumption.

Mrs. Edward Travers, Campbellton, N.B., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and let you know what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I caught a very bad cold which developed into bronchitis. I was so choked up I could hardly breathe. I tried many medicines but they did me no good, and I had almost given up in despair. A friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle and felt much better, and by the time I had taken four I was completely cured, and I can assure you I cannot say too much in its praise, as it is all you claim for it, and more."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

THE DOMINION PERMANENT LOAN COMPANY

Twenty-first Annual Report

The Twenty-first Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company was held at the office of the Company on Thursday, February 1, 1912. A large number of Shareholders were present. The Hon. J. R. Stratton, President, occupied the chair. Mr. F. M. Holland acted as Secretary.

The President presented the following report of the Directors for the year ending December 31, 1911:

Your Directors submit herewith the Twenty-first Annual Report, accompanied by a Statement of Account for the year ending December 31, 1911, certified as correct by the Auditors, who also report satisfactorily as to their inspection of the securities of the Company.

Your Directors state with satisfaction that during the past year the demand for the funds of the Company corresponded to the amount available for employment.

The Company has during the past year paid dividends totalling $70,857.84, and has transferred to the credit of the Reserve Fund of the Company the sum of $30,000. With these amounts taken into account, and after writing $700 off office furniture and premises, there remains to the credit of Profit and Loss Account for further distribution $21,598.41.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Chartered Accountants

Toronto, January 15, 1912.

The Report was unanimously adopted.

Harry Vigeon, F.C.A., and Bryan Pontifex, C.A., were appointed Auditors for the Company for the current year.

The following Directors were then elected:

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Vice-President Traders Bank of Canada.
D. W. Karn, President Karn Organ and Piano Company, Woodstock.
C. Kloepfer, Director Traders Bank of Canada.
T. H. Johnson, M.L.A., Winnipeg, Man.
George H. Cowan, K.C., City Solicitor, Vancouver.
F. M. Holland, Toronto.

The meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Hon. J. R. Stratton was re-elected President, and D. W. Karn, Vice-President.

en masse as a pageant whose scenes are grouped with a kind of splendid prodigality. One great, indented haven after another opens to view, and out in the fairway are other fleets of steamers, clustered in compact flotillas, as if they could not find room to dock. And by far the greater number of them fly the German flag. The game of world politics is being played to more purpose among these wonderfully industrious ducks and quacks than in the Chancelleries of Europe, and these weather-beaten skippers and this great navy of German merchant seamen are quietly extending the influence and power of their nation to an extent not generally understood.

To see a number of sailing ships in other ports is to mourn that their days are numbered, to feel something akin to pathos. This is not true of the Segelschiff-Haven of Hamburg, because the Germans, almost alone among seafaring races, have refused to write the epitaph of the deep-water, square-rigged ship. They have created a modern steel fleet of much larger vessels than any other of their kind afloat, engaged, for the most part, in the South American trade. Of these, the Preussen attracted notice not long ago by stranding in the English Channel. Her sister ship, the Potosi has broken all sailing records between Peru and Europe during voyage after voyage, her average speed as fast as that of most cargo steamers, and surpassing the historic achievements of the American sky-sail clippers of the last century.

Equipped with all manner of auxiliary engines for handling heavy sails, for lighting by electricity and heating by steam, these huge five-masted ships seem to have revived an almost vanished epoch. Their crews are no longer broken, drunken pierhead jumpers and greenhorns swept up from the scum of the water front, but sturdy, ruddy German youngers, every man of them. They take fiddle, trombone, cornet, and accordeon to sea with them, and it does the heart good to hear one of these forecastle orchestras, perhaps twenty strong, playing lustily and with no small skill wherever these ships cast anchor. American boys forsook the sea largely because American ships were floating hells, an ugly truth too often glossed over in discussing the U.S. lost merchant marine.

ROBERT BURNS AND THE SECESSION CHURCH

A little book about the Ter-Jubilee of Torsburn United Free Church, Dumfries, Scotland, is referred to by the British Weekly as of quite unusual interest and value. It comprises a historical sketch by the Rev. David R. W. Scott, the present minister, and an account of the Ter-Jubilee proceedings. The chief interest of the book is in the light it throws upon Robert Burns and his years in Dumfries. When Burns was there the Rev. Wm. Inglis was the minister of the Anti-Burgher Church. He occupied that position for sixty-one years, and was a minister of lofty and striking character. His great-grandson, Mr. James Gall Inglis, of Edinburgh, mentioned in his speech that Robert Burns occasionally attended the church, and on one occasion did a great service to the minister at the time of the French Revolution. The authorities wanted to get some cause of offence against Mr. Inglis. Burns received a command to attend Lovrburn Church and bring away some words that could be twisted round to make an accusation against Mr. Inglis. The poet went and listened to the sermon carefully. He then went down to the Town Hall, where the magistrates were assembled. He was asked "What treason has he spoken?" Burns replied: "I'll tell you the sermon, and you can judge for yourselves." Burns then told what Mr. Inglis had said, but he had not got very far when he was interrupted with "What we want is what treason did he speak?" Burns declined to give any more than the words of Mr. Inglis and there the matter was left. Burns, on being entitled with going to Mr. Inglis's church, replied: "Mr. Inglis preaches what he believes, and practises what he preaches—and by the L—d I'll go and hear him." Burns was a contributor in aid of Burns's corner."

CANADA RICH IN WATER POWER

The report on the water powers of Canada, a large volume containing the results of researches extending over a two-year period, recently issued by the Commission on Conservation, is an exhaustive and most informing work, embodying a detailed description of all water powers in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and to a large extent, but not as fully, of the Western Provinces; the text of all legislation, national and international, relating to Canadian water conservation; a complete bibliography; a resume of the work of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario; description of the electrical companies chartered in Canada; and many other matters relative to a survey of Canadas wealth of waters. The report was compiled by Leo G. Denis, B.Sc., hydro-electric engineer of the Commission on Conservation, and Arthur W. White, C.E., who has had experience under the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. A chapter respecting the water powers of British Columbia is contributed by W. J. Dick, M.Sc., and one on irrigation in Western Canada by George B. Hull, C.E.

Canada has an estimated water area of 125,000 square miles, while the United States has 52,360 square miles of water. Ontario has 40,000 square miles, exclusive of any portion of the great lakes or any area of the sea. But the existence of such large areas of water does not necessarily mean a proportionate abundance of water powers. Many of the lakes in northern Canada, and particularly in Ontario, are shallow. For instance, the State of Pennsylvania, which has a total water area less than 400 square miles—the area of Lake Abitibi—has water power wheels generating 300,000 horse power, while Lake Abitibi is of little value for power purposes. The Canadian water shed area draining into James Bay possesses enormous water power possibilities, but the theoretical and economically usable powers are widely different, so that difficulty is experienced in arriving at a compilation of actual power available, water sheds not being at all a criterion. No other country is so highly favoured as Canada in the matter of easily developed water storage systems. The value and importance of great storage basins may be gauged from the fact that a third of the annual rainfall is run off to the sea, one-half is evaporated, and a sixth joins the ground water or is used by plant growth.

GROUND WATER IMPORTANT

Ground water, or the water that underlies the surface of the earth, from which well water is obtained, is one of the basic sources of agricultural growth. It is estimated that in the upper 100 feet of earth is stored the equivalent, in moisture, of seven years' rainfall, or a lake of 17 feet deep. Some American States of the Middle West, such as Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and the Dakotas, have lost considerably in the matter of ground water, and in the latter States, a heavy penalty is provided by law for waste in the use of well water. The defforesting of areas of land is responsible for a large increase in the run-off, and a consequent drying out of the earth. Hence the need of forest conservation, not alone for the sake of the timber, but for the land as well. The report states that laws regulating the use of underground waters are needed in Ontario and in other Canadian provinces. In southern Ontario many farmers are allowing "gushers" to waste valuable ground water. The relation of water conservation to agriculture is materially affected by the use of streams and rivers for power purposes, diverting the waters from their natural purpose of irrigating the earth. The international treaty of 1909 gives primary importance to the use of water for domestic and sanitary purposes, to navigation and canal service next, and third in importance is its use for power and irrigation. Thus power possibilities on such rivers as the St. Lawrence and Niagara are regarded as of secondary importance to their use for navigation.

WATER POWER DEVELOPMENT

The total water power developed in Canada in 1910 was 1,016,000 horse power. Of this quantity, 749,000 was for electrical energy, the remainder being for grist mill or pulp and paper mill use. The comparison of electrical energy developed by the several provinces will be interesting:

	Horse power
Ontario	400,683
Quebec	191,953
Nova Scotia	1,875
New Brunswick	3,400
P. E. I.	50
Manitoba	48,250
Saskatchewan
Alberta	7,300
British Columbia	88,145

The preponderance of Ontario's electrical generation will be at once noticed. The establishment of the Hydro-Electric Commission has stimulated electrical development in this province, but private companies may be found established in the older parts wherever it has been possible to get leases of water powers and to find a market sufficiently large to warrant development. The project announced a few days ago for the diversion of the St. Lawrence, in order that 4 million horsepower might be generated by damming it, is an evidence of the intense eagerness in this part of Canada to secure rights to water flow for power development.

The power development at Niagara Falls is, of course, the most important, not only in Canada, but on the continent. Not only because of the magnificent height of the waterfall, and the great flow of water, but because of its proximity to the manufacturing hives of industry, is Niagara Falls of supreme value as a source of power. There are four companies generating power on the Canadian side, three of them having power for commercial sale. When the plants are completed to projected size they will generate 415,000 horsepower. When thus completed they will represent an investment of $22,000,000. The actual generative development of the falls will approximate 1,125,000 horsepower. This is estimated on the low-water flow, the variations in the level of Lake Erie ranging up to two or three feet. The importance of maintaining unimpaired the natural flow of the river has been recognised in the limitations placed on diversion in the international treaty of 1909, the United States being limited to 20,000 cubic feet per second, and Canada to 36,000 cubic feet per second. Inasmuch as the United States is at present obtaining from the Canadian companies about 80,000 horsepower, it is in reality receiving the benefit of a much larger diversion than is represented by the allowance in the treaty.

The rapids below the falls have an available development capacity of over 200,000 horsepower, while in Merritton, Thorold and other sections of the peninsula power development on a small scale is extensive. The Decew Falls generation of the Cataract Power Company of Hamilton is 50,000 horsepower.

OTHER WATER POWER RICHES

The Ottawa river and its tributaries form a power district of immense importance. From the mouth to Lake Temiskaming there will be, under a system of canalizing and storage, nearly a million horsepower available. The St. Lawrence river has a development capacity of about a million horsepower. The various smaller rivers, such as the Grand, the Speed, the Maitland, the Saugeen, the Severn, the Muskoka and the Bonnechere, all are yielding power, either electrical or hydraulic. In its northern hinterland Ontario has immense power sources as yet untouched. A few lumber and paper mills have located on some of the northern rivers, but electrical generation is rarely to be found. These northern rivers abound in falls of considerable height, making them of great value for power generation when a market can be brought within range.

Quebec is by no means at the stage of water power utilization attained by Ontario. Eighty per cent. of the total power used in the province is water power, electrical generation having increased largely only by recent development. The magnitude of the pulp and paper industry has led to the harnessing of many water powers that otherwise would have remained as Nature ordered. Quebec is one of the richest territories in the world in water powers.

THE MARITIME PROVINCES

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have no large water powers such as are possessed by Ontario and Quebec, there being no water sheds of great area. The depth of soil in Nova Scotia is not great, much of the rainfall running off instead of being stored as underground water. The water powers are privately owned, and electrical generation is not resorted to extensively for manufacturing, compared with steam power. In a total of thirteen counties there is 38,000 horsepower installed in steam equipment, 2,569 electric and 15,212 in water power. New Brunswick has some large and fine rivers, forming a valuable system. Navigation interests have first claim, militating against power development, and, moreover, New Brunswick possesses few inland lakes that act as storage basins between the high and low water seasons.

A full report of the water power possibilities of the Western Provinces is being prepared by the commission's engineers, reconnaissance surveys being necessary to complete data.

DYSPEPTIC

Food Does You No Good

Half the time you're afraid to eat; your tongue is coated, mouth tasteless and, stomach is bloated. If you want to feel well, stop using dyspepsia tablets, and go to the source of the trouble before it is too late. Strengthen your stomach, cast out the bile, regulate the bowels—do this, and dyspepsia will be no more.

For your condition the best prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are made specially for the stomach, kidneys and liver. No better remedy will be devised, for Dr. Hamilton's Pills are perfect.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS A SURE CURE

"No one could realize my sufferings from stomach trouble and indigestion. For five years I have not been well. My food did me no good, because I couldn't digest or assimilate. My doctor said constipation was at the root of my trouble, so I got Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My appetite improved, pain after eating ceased, and my food digested quickly. I am delighted with the thorough cure I derived from Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Jennie Gerhardt: A Type.

When the woman sins the scarlet sin, society being made aware of it, whips her skirts some inches higher than usual around her feet, and steps quickly away from muddy paths. The cardinal sin—the unforgivable one—is, as most of us know, the being found out. Society is very particular in regard to this. The sin may have been committed, the state of sin may be very well known, but unless she be very specially and publicly informed Society ignores it. Now Jennie Gerhardt was a poor hand at concealing her sins. She only concealed her virtues, and society being concerned only with discovered sins, paid no heed to undiscovered virtues.

This book by Dreiser is already the talk of two continents. Critics appeared to be rather timid in their reception of it until Arnold Bennett with temperamental frankness voiced its greatness. He was followed by William J. Locke, the delightful author of quaint tales, the creator of the beloved wagabond, of Septimus, of Quixtus and glorious Clementina. When these two front-rank literateurs sounded in clarion notes the success of Dreiser's master-work, the pack of critics took up the cry and a chorus of praise is yet sounding. So that even a "cricket on the hearth" may sing his small chirp, as long ago a cricket in the wheat field sang his paean to the star—to Love immortal.

Jennie Gerhardt is the daughter of an honest, sturdy German, a glass-blower by trade, who lives in a western town. The family is large and young, and very poor since the father is ill and out of work. The mother and Jennie get work as charwomen in the largest hotel in the town. Here Senator Brander sees them scrubing the stairway, and he notices Jennie's beauty and freshness as she stands aside to let him pass. The Senator is no libertine. He is even a good man; a man of large ideas and wide sympathies. A love affair springs up between him and Jennie. Brander is sincere, Jennie is ignorant. There is a relationship under a promise of marriage. There is help for the poor family, for the sick glass-blower, who is all unaware of his daughter's predicament. Before he can carry out his promise, Senator Brander is seized with a fever and succumbs. There is a child coming. Jennie goes home brokenhearted to meet the contumely of her honest, deeply religious German father, and to learn what the brooding, the beautiful, the compassionate heart of motherhood is. Only Jennie's mother of all her world ever fully understood, and pitied, and loved throughout all. Those great consoling mother-wings closed round the girl.

Little Vesta is born—I have never read a more beautiful chapter in any book than that which heralds the birth of this poor little waif—and Jennie goes out to service in a grand house. She meets here the real master of her destinies, young Lester Kane, the son of a millionaire—a man of the Rochester type in the great novel, Jane Eyre. Just here is where Jennie's type must be closely studied if we are to understand what appears on the outside as thoroughly bad conduct. This type the author makes amazingly clear. Jennie asks herself why she, without effort on her part, always attracted men. "Could it be because there was something innately bad about her, an inward corruption that attracted its like?" No—for Jennie, despite her experiences, was not bad. Corruption could never attack Jennie. She was neither immoral nor unmoral. She was simply too sympathetic, too non-defensive.

"It is a curious characteristic of the non-defensive disposition that it is like a honey jar to flies. Nothing is brought to it and much is taken away. Around a soft, yielding, unselfish disposition men swarm naturally. They scent this generosity, this non-protective attitude from afar. A girl like Jennie is like a comfortable fire to the average masculine mind; they gravitate to it, seek its sympathy, yearn to possess it." And: "As a matter of fact this man (Lester Kane), so superior to Jennie in wealth, education, and social position, felt an instinctive interest in her unusual personality. Like the others, he was attracted by the peculiar softness of her disposition and her pre-eminent femininity. There was that about her which suggested the luxury of love."

Not an uncommon type as you will see. There are many such women everywhere in the world—you have met the type in the girl who tells you she "hates having to refuse men who propose to her." Such a one when she "goes wrong," as it is called, too often becomes merely vulgar and tawdry, mawkish, foolish, and easily finished when love for drink or drug seizes her. But there was more worth, better material in Jennie Gerhardt. She was intensely human, womanly, and modest. When you leave her at the end of the book staring at the empty years, at "days and days in endless reiteration," your eyes are quite wet. She is a big woman all round this poor Jennie, big of heart, of brain of view, a very comprehending woman and an utterly unselfish one.

Again under promise of marriage, but more because of the terrible pressure of poverty, Jennie succumbs to the assaults of love, and she and her Rochester set up house together. The girl is afraid to tell him of her child, Vesta, and one day through her careless in leaving one of the child's toys about, he finds out the truth. While feeling grieved for her he cannot bring himself to marry the girl who has so deceived him. And he does not care to give her up just then. Jennie's tragedy comes later in the book. Again there is a sacrifice. Again it is on Jennie's part. More than this in justice to the story cannot be related here.

But further consideration of the workmanship is worth while. The author is no surgeon of the soul like Flaubert, who, in Madame Bovary, stands coldly by, and with knife and scalpel dissects the very nerves of a woman's mind, and with satire that is almost demoniac crowds woe and dishonour on the head of the living man who finds out how terribly his dead wife has deceived him. Grim and stark as is the realism which informs the story of Jennie Gerhardt, it is told with something very like genuine concern and even admiration for the heroine. But the thing that appals is that at the end of the reading the soul is confronted with the old eternal riddle, the one we can never answer. Why all this effort, this sacrifice, these dull yet poignant sorrows of the poor, this extraordinary human procession of failure, of meaningless tragedy, of useless unselfishness. The old answers do not suffice. If they did we would not be asking that eternal "why?"—we would not turn in despair which becomes grimly comic to the old Cockney clown who answers his own "Wot's the use of anythink?" with a blank "Nothink!" You almost permit yourself to think that this riddle of life is "essentially insoluble" for the reason that at times life appears to be unintelligent, rather stupid, and made up for the most part of frightful, useless sacrifice.

For the rest Jennie Gerhardt is written in short chapters, each one of which grips the reader and sends him hurrying to the next. Old Gerhardt is, next to Jennie, the finest study in the book. The book itself is a master-one—the best American novel yet written, says Bennett—and even with The Scarlet Letter in mind, one is apt to agree in this. It is as much a work of art as Michael Angelo's Faun; it is as much a work of realism as Zola's L'Assommoir, or Tolstoi's Karenina. But beyond all and everything it is a narrative unstudied and simple of American life, of the poverty to be found in the great cities in a land generously advertised as that of freedom and liberty, a story of woman's love, weakness, strength and sacrifice.

When woods were bleak and fields were bare,
I heard the lark's note sudden ring
As though upon the winter air
He felt the breath of spring.
Briefly he sang, too briefly all—
He knew it was not happy spring—
And that his nest beside the wall,
Held no soft feathered thing.
So hope, sometimes in an old, old heart,
Essays to lift its wings and sing—
Then falters in its tuneful art
Knowing it is not spring.

In her article, "The Great Unrest," Marie Corelli goes over the old ground and lugubriously sounds a despairing note. Church, state, and society—all are going to the devil. She predicts the downfall of the greatest of empires—our own, while the only hope of the church lies in reforming the church service. As for society, Miss Corelli has about as much use for it as for the reviewer and the cub reporter. We are all "playing the fool," and everything is hurrying as fast as it can to the demnition bow-wows. Man is gambling away his birthright for mere money. The New Thought is really the Old Thought, and the churches—especially that of Rome, for which Miss Corelli always exhibits a peculiar dislike—are all wrong. "Worn out dogmas!" she cries, "and lifeless traditions!" Man is walking in the darkness. The wave of religious unrest is spreading. Thus Marie preaching as ever her vigorous gospel.

But pause a moment to consider. Did you never, hoary reader, hear these same prognostications when you were young, or you middle-aged reader, or even you who have arrived at the full strength of young manhood? Was there never in your young times, old people who sat in the ingle nook, and wagged gray heads over the way the world was racing to perdition? Think back a moment. The world was a "sad place" when you were freshly set in it. The churches and parsons were going to rack and ruin then as now. The Higher Catechism or Criticism was bothering people then. Antichrist had appeared, I was told, in more than one spot when I was ten years old. Religion "was not what it used to be," then as now. Neither were the young people of those days as fine, or noble, or reverent of age, or obedient to superiors as the young people who had gone before them. Fiction was then becoming very immoral, just as it is now. The end of the world was close at hand any moment, and when earthquake accounts were read out of the daily papers to old Betty, she crossed herself and mumbled her prayers, that she might not "be taken" betimes. Fleets and armies were always being prepared as now, and nations never closed their eyes on one another lest they should lose something by it. To sum up, the Great Unrest was stirring those times as it stirred times before them, and will stir times yet to come when every soul living to-day will be away in the never-never-land

However, Miss Corelli writes as always with a brilliant, vivid pen. We have no other woman writing at all like her anywhere, this amazing woman of prodigious brain, of widest outlook, of immense power. Her article will be widely read, and if it only stirs us up from our snug self-satisfaction, it will be doing good work But while you are about it, read not only this article, but the last and most brilliant effort of this splendid pen, "The Life Everlasting."

Dear Kit,—I read with great interest your paragraph regarding Charles Dickens in to-day's paper.

While I agree most heartily with you in your statements that his works have brought about very many beneficial changes in British institutions, I fail to see why his descendants should be entitled to any pension. The fact of their being related to the immortal author is, in my opinion, no reason why a "bed of roses" should be given them. Much better recognition of Dickens' good work would be shown by erecting some monument, or by erecting some institution for the relief of the poor of London, of whom Dickens wrote so much.

While all credit must be given to the great man for his great work, it is as well not to overlook the fact that his novel "Nicholas Nickleby" did untold harm, and incensed public indignation against schools and schoolmasters of that period, while the school of the novel was an exception.—Yours truly,

SCROOGE.

Many besides my correspondent take this view of the Dickens question. It may be that they are right. But some sympathy with humanity excites one to the belief that not in cold monuments, but in alleviation of his family's distress lies the best solution of the difficulty. The erection of some such monument as that to which "Scrooge" refers would be a really splendid and fitting tribute to the memory of Charles Dickens. With regard to the latter part of the above letter, one is disposed to remark that if only one Dotheboys Hall was eliminated as a result of Nicholas Nickleby, Dickens would have accomplished a deed of lasting good. That there was more than one such monstrous school throughout Yorkshire and that neighbourhood is allowed by most writers on the subject. Squeers and his Academy were blots upon England which were wiped off by the great master of English fiction—to his eternal honour.

Have you heard this story? No. Well then: A zealous priest in that Debatable Land known as the North of Ireland, having missed a constant member of his congregation, asked another, "What keeps Farmer O'Higgins away from us? I have not seen him among us these three weeks; I hope it is not Protestantism that is keeping him away. The schismmites are very busy these days." "Indeed it is not," was the reply, "it's worse than that." "Worse than that! God help us, what could be worse? It is Deism, maybe?" "Faith, it isn't. It's worse than that." "Worse than Deism! Glory be to God, what's that you do be telling me?" "The truth." "Well, would it be Atheism?" "No, worse than having no God at all." "Nothing can be worse than that," said the clergyman solemnly, "unless it was the worship of the Devil himself." "Well, your riverence, 'tis worse than anny of thim as all—for it's the rheumatism!"

HOW A NURSE USED OXO IN CUBES

"OXO certainly saved the life of a little girl whom I nursed through TYPHOID. She was very self-willed, and detested milk and milk-foods. Consequently, we were greatly perplexed about proper feeding. How could we get the proper quantity of nourishment into that small child's body? The child solved the problem by demanding Oxo. "Made nice and strong, please." So Oxo it was. First in small quantities, gradually increasing with most satisfactory results, then later on I tried making it with milk, and, strange to say, the patient did not object. That was all the feeding she had, except for a little barley-water, through four weeks of a most trying and anxious illness. But at last Oxo triumphed—our "backbone," the Doctor called it.

Our little patient has returned to school now, very fat and bonny, still fond of Oxo "Made nice and strong."

OXO Cubes may be used in a dozen different ways to tempt the invalid's appetite.

For a hot, invigorating broth or a cold consomme, just drop an OXO Cube into a cup of water.

OXO Invalid's Jelly—easily made in a few minutes—has wonderful strength-building properties, besides being a delicacy of rare flavor.

Many sick people cannot take raw milk, and boiled milk is insipid. An OXO Cube, dissolved in a glass of hot milk, makes the milk readily digested and tempting to the appetite For the sickroom, OXO Cubes are invaluable. Their convenience, great handiness and adaptibility make them indispensable.

A FEW OUTSTANDING FACTS FROM THE SIXTY-FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY

A Splendid Year.
The business of the year 1911 was, in all its material factors, the most important in the Company's long history of sixty-five years.

Greatest Surplus Earnings.
THE SURPLUS EARNED by the Canada Life in 1911 was $1,293,597.00, the greatest on record. A new "high mark" for surplus earnings was reached four years ago, and in each year since then a new record has been established.

Interest Rate Increasing
THE INCOME, both from premiums and interest, $6,543,201.00, shows a substantial increase over previous years. The rate of interest earned each year by the Canada Life has steadily been growing since 1899, and a further increase is expected for 1912. This is an important factor in making surplus.

Assets Doubled in Twelve Years.
THE ASSETS were increased by $2,436,484.00, the largest growth in any year. The TOTAL ASSETS now stand at $44,257,341.00, having more than doubled in the past twelve years.

A New Record.
THE NEW PAID-FOR POLICIES amounted to $12,507,063.00, exceeding the best previous years. The TOTAL ASSURANCES now in force are over $135,615,253.00.

Large Benefits to Policyholders.
THE PAYMENTS TO POLICYHOLDERS in 1911 totalled $2,295,972.00. In the past twelve years the Canada Life has paid or credited to its Policyholders or their beneficiaries nearly $50,000,000.00.

Only High-class Investments.
THE INVESTMENTS of the Canada Life are carefully selected and distributed over a wide field of suitable securities, thus ensuring safety and good interest returns. In Western Canada the Company has invested $8,200,000.00 in mortgage loans, upon which no loss has ever yet occurred. The total mortgage investments of the Company are over $14,152,708.00.

Strength and Security.
THE CANADA LIFE now actually values over one-half of its business on a 3% interest basis, and the remainder at 2½%, which means that it holds Reserves much stronger than are required by any Government Insurance Department on the North American Continent.

A copy of the Financial Statement and Report of Directors, together with the proceedings at the Annual General Meeting held 1st February, 1912, at the Head Office, Toronto, will be mailed on request.

J. W. COX, General Manager.

ABOUT EARTHQUAKES

Earthquakes frequently come very suddenly and unexpectedly, passing off with merely a scare or causing widespread ruin and loss of life in a few moments, but although these tremours of the earth are immediately recorded on the seismographic instruments which wait expectantly for shivers in various scattered cities, geologists usually reserve judgment and hesitate to make rapid inferences or predictions from any particular disturbance. Thus, though from high pasture to deep valley, from Constance to Geneva, Switzerland shook and feared one day and within two days far-away Martinique, remembered for its horror of 1902, trembled also, men of science are not yet ready to link the two phenomena.

At any rate, Dr. Edmund O. Hovey, curator of geology and earthquake expert of the American Museum of Natural History, is not prepared to say that the two shocks had any connection. It may be so, he admits, but it is by no means inevitable.

"The former great earthquakes in Martinique were not connected with those in other parts of the world," said the scientist, in discussing the question, and he ought to know, for he went to the stricken island soon after the disaster and made an exhaustive study of the conditions there. "Moreover," he went on, "although there were several subsequent quakes of less magnitude, no sympathetic shock was felt at Martinique at the time of the quakes at Pelee, St. Vincent, San Francisco, or Jamaica. However, there may, of course, be some connection between the shocks in Switzerland and in the Rhine region and the disturbance in Martinique. The fact that they were so nearly synchronous would certainly lead to that thought, at any rate.

Young Regions Susceptible

"The shocks which were felt in the Lesser Antilles do not necessarily indicate a recrudescence of volcanic activity. Shocks were reported from Fort de France, St. Thomas, Guadeloupe, St. Vincent, and Dominica. These may have been due to a crustal movement along a line of weakness. The quake in Switzerland, which is said to have been the most severe in fifty years, was probably due to faulting, the sudden slipping or grinding of stratified rocks into new positions and elevations. Disturbances of this kind are especially surprising in regions like the Alps. They are comparatively young, geologically, and in such young regions changes of form and of strata are to be looked for.

"The lower Rhine region, on the other hand, broadly, the Rhine valley, below the Black Forest, is made up of far older rocks. The formation is much older than the Alps, and it is bordered by rocks of greater age than those which fringe the upper Rhine. Here earthquake shocks are indeed surprising, and a disturbance which not only shook up Switzerland, but was strongly felt at Frankfort, Stuttgart, Munich, Strassburg, and Mayence as well, as this is said to have been, may take rank as an earthquake of real geologic importance.

"That is a point which is frequenly not appreciated. An earthquake, or an eruption which causes an earthquake, may do a tremendous amount of damage and cause the loss of thousands of lives, and still be of slight magnitude, and little importance from the scientific point of view. For instance, Messina and some of the historical Vesuvius eruptions. On the other hand, a shock occurs now and again which is almost unheard of by the public, whose chief manifestations are in some out-of-the-way corner of the world or some barren region, and, in consequence, cause loss of life or property which is trifling, but which may be vastly significant to geology and of tremendous power and range.

"Such a shock was the great earthquake in Alaska in September, 1899. Few persons outside of the scientific world realised that anything remarkable had happened, and yet the upheaval was so vast and the vibration so strong that it was recorded in practically every part of the world. At the focal point of the quake fresh cliffs more than forty-seven feet high were upheaved."—New York Times.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back the Natural Colour—Dandruff Quickly Removed

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age, jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation which a chemist by the name of Wyeth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappear.

Don't neglect your hair. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-day and you will be surprised at the quick results.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

BYERSVILLE RATEPAYERS LOUD IN COMPLAINTS

Protest Against The Change in The Postmastership---Former Official Gave Every Satisfaction to The Citizens And They See no Reason Why a Change Should be Made

High Street, Feb. 3, 1912.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I beg to enter my protest as a ratepayer against any attempts to remove our post office from the present position ,and in doing so I should like to ask those that are behind this scheme their reasons for attempting this move, for I am sure that the present postmaster has given satisfaction to all ratepayers that have had any mail going to the present office, and when you look at the situation I am sure that any attempt to remove it from the present situation will be condemned by all right thinking people. Then why should the people be compelled to go out of their way to get their mail when the present situation suits the large majority of the people in Byersville, and why should the same office be taken from the present postmaster, who has proved himself to be a well tried man and given another who is practically a stranger. It seems to me that it matters very little to some people what inconvenience they put other people to. I am sure that I am only voicing the expressions of the other ratepayers upon this question. I say that there is not a better position for the Byersville post office than the one occupied at the present time, and there is not the least doubt should the authorities carry out their present ideas, that there will be an indignation meeting held to protest against this unwarranted action on the part of the post office authorities. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your past favours,

Yours truly,
A RATEPAYER.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Kindly give me a few lines in your valuable paper re the account of a new postmaster for Byersville which I read in a local paper. It seems to me that it would be most inconvenient to place an office where it stated and I think the inhabitants will kick if an attempt is made to remove the present one, which is undoubtedly the most conveniently situated, and civility is always found in the place where we get our mail. Thanking you for insertion,

Yours truly,
J. W. BEX,
Cameron St., N. Monaghan.

MINIATURE MILITARY CAMP FOR CADET CORPS OF THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

A miniature Petawawa Camp is being planned for the Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute, where those boys who desire to attend will spend days. The idea emanates from the new Minister of Militia, and the opportunity will be given to all similar corps throughout the country to enjoy practically two weeks' holidays, with all expenses paid by the Government. This camp is not intended to give the boys a holiday, but to impart to them the essentials of drill, shooting, and general militia work.

Strict discipline will be demanded, and a considerable portion of the day will be devoted to drill, manoeuvring, signalling, and the other present day arts of war that can be taught in this first attempt to prepare the boys. It is thought that more will be gained in this way than by later instructions, when the Cadets will be in full manhood, for they should enter into the spirit of the work with more enthusiasm than in later years. There will be guard work at nights and certain detachments will be told off to do sentinel duty during the hours of the night. It is believed that the discipline and the training, short as it will necessarily be, will be a good experience to the boys and help make them better men.

Mr. J. E. Jamieson, Drill Instructor, of the Peterborough Cadets, stated to The Examiner that the details of the plan are not yet complete. It is not known who will be placed in charge of the camp but it will doubtless be well officered. The discipline will be strict, and it is felt that parents need have no fear of the boys getting into mischief; in fact, it is believed that the experience should have nothing but good effects.

One hundred and five boys have expressed their desire to join the camp, and the number is expected to grow. The location has not been decided upon, but several properties are being considered. One is at Nassau, another at Clear Lake.

All the expenses of the Cadets will be paid and while there will be considerable drill and work the whole programme will be planned, and should provide pleasant, and, at the same time, a profitable outing.

THE trend of the times is toward greater stability, sincerity and honesty in the advertising world.

There is an increasing effort to force dishonesty and misrepresentation in advertising to its proper level and to usher in an era of truthfulness, honesty and undisturbed public confidence in advertised goods. Newspapers, magazines, advertising associations and reputable business concerns all over the country are joining in this movement, and the result of this widespread effort has already brought about a big reform in advertising methods.

The Examiner has maintained that a daily newspaper should conserve the public's interest as zealously in its advertising columns as in its news space, and this newspaper is glad to be counted among those who are engaged in this movement, and to be fully in accord with the efforts for clean and honest advertising.

INSURANCE MEN MEET

Annual Meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association of Central Ontario Was Held Last Night

MR. VIPOND'S ADDRESS

Underwriters' Association of Central Underwriters Association of Ceneral Ont., was held in Coleman's parlours on Friday evening, Feb. 2nd. There was a large attendance and after closing the business of the past year, the following officers were elected: President, Thos. Mark; Vice-Pres., Geo. Southwell; Sec.-Treas., W. Gordon Hall.

The members then partook of a very dainty repast, which was served up in Coleman's usual style.

Mr. J. J. Allin occupied the chair in a very able manner, and after a few remarks on the progress, the Association had made in the past year, he introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr .A. H. Vipond of Montreal, President of the Dominion Association, who dealt in a very simple but forcible manner with the duty and relations of insurance men to the public and also their duty and their relations to one another. Every one present was very much inspired by the eloquent address and showed their appreciation by the hearty thanks they extended to him. At the conclusion of this address speeches were made by several present, after which the meeting adjourned. Mr. Vipond left on the midnight for Montreal.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common I was in a terrible condition soon because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

FOUR ARE MURDERED

Robbery Causes a Dreadful Crime in Lawrence Mass—Victims Terribly Mutilated

RAZOR WAS USED

Special to The Examiner:

LAWRENCE, MASS., FEB. 3.—Four persons were murdered in a tenement house in the heart of the city last night. The object was probably the robbery of one of the victims, who had just drawn a bank deposit. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

The victims, two men, and two women, were French Canadians. The weapo used was a razor. The bodies and clothing were terribly mutilated.

Princess Mary's Debut

Examiner Special.

OTTAWA, FEB. 3.—Premier Borden proposes to place the whole outside service of the Government under a commission, instead of making appointments politically, and will probably introduce a bill this session.

BOYCOTT MERCHANTS

Goderich Hotel-keepers to Start Campaign Against Business Men Who Supported Local Option

AFTER THE COUNCIL TOO

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., FEB. 3.—The Goderich hotel-keepers have united to completely blacklist the merchants who were active in the recent local option campaign. They have withdrawn their business entirely, and have officially notified the business men that they will fight them to a finish. They threaten also to unseat the whole Council on an alleged illegal money transaction.

LARGEST WAR VESSEL

Examiner Special:

LONDON, FEB. 3.—The keel of the largest war vessel in the British navy, has been laid amidst the greatest secrecy. Only a few were present. Newspapermen were barred and the plans are absolutely secret. The vessel will be built in record time, in accordance with the admiralty's proposal for five armoured cruisers in 1912.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

GARBAGE BY-LAW APPEALS TO WESTERN HOUSEHOLDERS

Business Men Living in the West Ward Express Approval of the New Proposal and State That to Many it is a Dire Necessity---City Needs it Now They Say.

A number of residents of the district between King street, Park St., Weller St. and the boundary were interviewed this morning in regard to the proposed garbage collecting system, and, judging from their feelings, this district has many ratepayers who will welcome assistance in this regard.

"I have a garbage collecting system of my own," said a Bonwell Ave. business man, who for certain reasons, did not want his name mentioned. "I have no means of disposing of ashes and general refuse, so I had to engage a carter to come around once a month, and take the stuff away. In summer he comes more frequently. I am heartily in favour of a garbage by-law, but there are too many retired farmers around the West Ward to ever accomplish much toward giving Peterborough the accommodation that belongs to a city. I know their leanings from experience. If anything is brought up that will add even a quarter of a mill to the tax rate, these people may be depended upon for a strenuous kick. They do not want it and a hint of higher taxes, no matter how small, the increase makes them think they are being robbed. Personally, I hope the Council will continue with this question and arrive at a satisfactory solution."

Will Save Money.

A George Street business man from the same district is likewise a supporter of the movement. "It costs me a lot of money now to have ashes and that kind of stuff moved away every Spring. I have paid a carter as high as $7.00 for the work one Spring, and then during the rest of the year there is the usual necessity of having refuse removed. The people should remember that there are many people in this city who have not even a back yard to bury this waste stuff in. And it must not be allowed to collect. And, further, the number of such residents who are suffering from the want of a garbage collecting system is increasing every year. I have had much trouble. Some times carters were too busy to come when I wanted them, and others said they had no place where they could dump the stuff; so what could I do? Sure, by all means, let us have an efficient collecting system."

These are samples of what was encountered. Only one was found out of nine or ten, from different parts of this district who said he would not need it, and he was a retired farmer. "I think there are people who need a garbage system, but I can get along without it," he said.

Mr. R. Neil, who is a member of the Board of Health, is a strong advocator of a garbage by-law. He would favour a garbage by-law similar to the one at present in force in Brantford. Mr. Neil maintains that the work done by the city would be more effective, and at the same time more economical than a contract system of collecting the garbage, as proposed by some of the aldermen. He was also of the opinion that a garbage by-law or collecting system in order to be effective and to serve the best interests of the citizens at large, would have to be universal as far as the city was concerned and not restricted as to the area covered.

Mr. W. H. Moore as a member of the Board of Trade, expressed his approval of the steps that are being taken towards giving the city an adequate system of collecting garbage. He considered that the expense involved would be amply repaid by the protection thus afforded the public health in the city. He considered that the service rendered should be paid for by those who receive the benefit of it. The plan of charging for the water service might be followed. He hoped to see something accomplished now that the question was again under consideration.

PARTIZAN LITERATURE DISTRIBUTION OFFICE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see by the Examiner that Mr. Burnham has sent "600 copies of Hansard to Peterborough, in care of Col. Miller". Colonel Miller is Division Court Clerk, and his salary is paid by all classes of people and his services should be impartially placed at the disposal of all. He should not be an active partizan, though he has every right to hold what political, or other opinion, he pleases. Then why is he selected by the Member for West Peterborough to be the messenger boy to distribute partizan literature to promote partizan political ends to promote sectarian strife? Col. Miller has a perfect right to be a member to the Orange Order. Nobody objects to this; but when he makes his office, supposed to be maintained for the benefit of the public, impartially, headquarters for the circulation of literature in the interests of a sectarian campaign, he seems to me, to be going too far.

Yours truly,
Equal Rights.

BABY'S HEALTH IN WINTER

During the winter months the mother finds it very difficult to keep her little ones well. Colds come on quickly and the discomfort to the baby affects the whole household. To keep baby well during the winter he should be warmly clothed, have a daily bath, lots of fresh air, and Baby's Own Tablets should be given him occasionally to keep his little bowels working regularly, as nothing will bring on colds so quickly as a clogged condition of the bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They break up colds, cure constipation and indigestion, expel worms and make baby bright and happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

40c. On The Dollar

Big Sale of Bankrupt Stock at Murphy's Bazaar Bargain Store

Mr. W. S. Murphy, the hustling proprietor of the Bazaar Bargain store, corner of Charlotte and Aylmer street, has made another large purchase of bankrupt stocks at forty cents on the dollar. These goods comprise ladies' and gentlemen's furnishings, boots and shoes, hats and caps, leather, and fancy goods, and numerous other lines, well worthy of public attention. The public of Peterborough will get the benefit of this lucky deal, as the goods are to be offered at less than regular cost. A portion of the goods have already been opened up, and other large shipments are yet to arrive. Read the two-column advertisement in today's issue and plan to get your share of the bargains.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

SATURDAY, FEB. 3, 1912

DOING TOO MUCH.

The City Council in its beginning-of-the-term zeal should go gently. Otherwise it may come to illustrate the homely saying—"They've bit off more than they can chew." There is danger that if they get too many irons in the fire, some of them will get cold before they are struck. There is danger that in undertaking to do do too much there will be little done. The better way, it seems, would be to select some two or three things that represent most pressing needs and push them to a successful issue. This would be better than to have half a dozen things trailing along in an uncompleted and undigested condition. All that has been suggested in the way of improvement deserves attention; but everything can't be done in one year.

TO PETERBOROUGH WOMEN.

The ladies' attention is called to the appeal, printed in another column, of Mesdames Kendrey and Travers in the interests of the strengthening of the Woman's Auxiliary in connection with that excellent organization, the Peterborough Health Association. Every citizen is interested in the fight—the winning fight if co-operation becomes general—against tuberculosis. This national enemy fills so many graves and empties so many fireside chairs in this beautiful country, with its pure airs and free, open spaces, one of the forces, potent, if applied properly, in combatting the disease, that the interest and cooperation of all are indicated. Next Tuesday evening there will be a meeting in the Public Library, and it is hoped that many women will be present to join the forces that are working to prevent or minimise the ravages of a home-destroying disease.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Elsewhere in this issue is to be found the report of the Librarian of the Public Library. The report shows that this important public educationa l convenience is excellently managed and admirably serving the purposes of its establishment. There is a popular misconception, that with the end of a school or university course education ceases. Schools and colleges only provide the equipment of further educational progress; are only the beginning. A man, or woman, who does not amplify his, or her, school, or college course, by reading, is neglecting his, or her, education. It is interesting to note that the public, by their use of the Library, appreciate its advatages. It represents the means of taking a post graduate course in higher education, a useful aid to school boys, or girls, and a convenient source of literary culture and enjoyment to adults. Peterborough is fortunate in having such a splendid Public Library, which will become increasingly important as continued improvements, such as require time to provide, are made, and provided.

SURFACE FARMING.

The Census Monthly of the Dominion Department of Agriculture points out that if the yields from the 200 acre experimental farm at Ottawa could be obtained throughout Canada, their total value in 1910 would have been 1,456 million dollars instead of 507 millions, and the net profits 1,038 millions of dollars, or five times as much as they were. There is no doubt that a large proportion of Ontario farmers treat their farms as a stone merchant treats a quarry, get all they can out of them and put little or nothing back. Experimental and model farms maintained and operated by governments, amount to little, but a bill of expense if the lessons they teach are not taken advantage of by those they are intended to benefit. Everybody knows that there is too much slatternly farming. There seems to be extensive instead of intensive farming. Most farmers cultivate too much land that is more than they do really cultivate in the real and proper sense of the word cultivate. There is a farmer in North Monaghan who grows more crops, makes more solid money, from a fifty acre farm, than perhaps the majority of other farmers do from a 200-acre farm. The reason is that he cultivates it; he doesn't merely quarry it. We need a more aggressive Department of Agriculture in Ontario to incite farmers to do their best.

THE PROPER QUALIFICATION NOT PROPERTY.

In the municipal elections in Montreal, the proposal to abolish property qualification for aldermen was endorsed by a majority of nearly nine thousand. At present, in that city, a mayor has to stand possessed of $10,000 and an aldermanic candidate of $2,000. The property qualification for a candidate for municipal honours is a small thing compared with other qaulifications an alderman should possess. He can't take his property into the Council any more than he can take it with him when he is elected for the other world. Still, the possession of property by a candidate argues some business ability and represents a material stake in a municipality. A man with property to be affected by taxes will, as a rule, be more careful as to how he elevates the taxes on other people's property. Yet brain and ability, available to do effective civic service are not measured by worldly possessions. In Canada manhood makes full citizenship. It is proposed to abolish property qualifications for members of parliament; then why not for aldermen, councillors, etc.? The chief property an alderman needs to take into the Council, is sound common sense, good judgment, honesty of character and purpose, and enough business ability to give those qualities effect. Proper qualification does not necessarily consist in property.

CONSULT SOMEBODY.

The City Council is taking time by the forelock in considering the provision of trees for planting in King Edward Park and the new East City Park. This is a good idea, but the matter of selecting and planting the trees should be left to somebody with ideas and taste in landscape gardening. The planting of trees by the civic authorities has, heretofore, not been artistic. Trees are planted in straight rows at mathematically exact distances apart. This is all right for a cabbage garden where it is desirable to economize space, and facilitate cultivation. But nature never plants trees in straight lines. They are dispersed here and there with splendid irregularity as to size and situation. Any other arrangement of trees results in stiff artificiality of effect, altogether different from what is to be looked for in a park. True, we plant street trees in straight lines, because it is impossible to plant them any other way. To be effective, the planting of trees in the new parks should be entrusted to somebody with experience and taste. A man may plant a row of fence posts properly and effectively; that is not to say, however, that he should be employed to plant a park to trees. We should have a Parks, but their jurisdiction is so restricted as to produce unsatisfactory results, especially in respect of Central Park, where there are half a dozen or less "authorities" with a finger in the pie. The City Council is doing right in providing to plant the two new parks mentioned with trees, but before the trees are planted, or even selected, they should consult somebody who knows and—cares.

IMMIGRATION FOR THE EAST.

Eastern members of parliament are urging the Federal Government to try to divert to the eastern provinces a larger share of immigration. The central government is under special obligation to the west because the public lands of the praire provinces are under federal ownership and control. These lands have been and still are a source of federal revenue, and th new provinces of the Dominion are, therefore, entitled to the chief benefits of federal expenditure on immigration .In addition to this financial argument ,the peopling of the vacant prairie lands naturally and properly took precedence over the claims of the older and settled parts of the country.

Until the opening up of the northern clay belt, Ontario could not compete with the west in offering free homesteads, and it is not surprising that the land-seekers passed this Province by Ontario has now 20,000,000 acres of new arable lands, just opened by railways. The time is rpe for a vigorous immigration propaganda to go hand in hand with a more efficient policy of development in New Ontario. The propaganda should take account also of the attractions which the older parts of Ontario offers to agriculturists with small or large capital. Old country farmers can more easily adapt themselves to conditions in this Province than in the west.

As the public of crown lands of the Eastern Provinces are under provincial control, provincial money should be spent to people and develop them. But better results can be obtained, doubtless, by co-operation with the Federal Government, and by taking

Nuggets Of Golden Jubilee Of Senator George A Cox

The banquet tendered yesterday to Hon. George A. Cox, on the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the Canada Life Insurance Company, was a well-deserved tribute to one of the foremost business men of Canada. Starting as a local agent in the town of Peterborough, he soon worked up a partonage that was profitable to the company and advantageous to himself; his influence grew with the expansion of the business he brought to it, until at last he was elevated to the Presidency, which he has filled efficiently for many years. His bias toward insurance as a business displayed itself in various directions. He started the Imperial Life Company, and secured control of others, as well as of several fire insurance companies, all of which prospered under his careful and expert supervision. In various ways he has done much to popularize insurance, and to make it both safe for the insured and profitable for the insurer. The Canada Life Company was originally a path-finding corporation, and he has never allowed it to fall behind the procession.

But insurance is only one of the business interests of Mr. Cox. At the earnest request of British creditors he accepted, in 1878 the Presidency of the Midland Railway, which had drifted into a position of financial peril. In a few years, with the aid of other Canadians who knew the conditions, he brought order of chaos. and so greatly improved the situation that the whole Midland group of short lines was taken over by the Grand Trunk Company, of whose system it forms an important part. Having moved to Toronto about a quarter of a century ago he speedily acquired control of existing financial institutions or established new ones until he became the centre of a group of strong managements, one of them that of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, from the Presidency of which he retired not long ago. As a financier Mr. Cox has always been conservatively, but intelligently progressive. His ideals of business have been based on the motto "live and let live". He has never been a wrecker. It has always been congenial work for him to put new life into a declining corporation by improving its methods and infusing into it some of his own invincible business optimism.

In politics Senator Cox has been from his youth up a consistent, progressive, and self-sacrificing Liberal. He was never a member of the House of Commons, though he was once within a very few votes of securing the seat for West Peterborough. In 1896, after the Liberals came into office, he was appointed to the Senate, in which he still holds a seat. In politics, as in business, he has little to say, but when it is necessary to express his opinions he can do so with both power and precision. As a Methodist layman he has rendered invaluable service to his Church, especially in connection with the financial management of higher education. In spite of his long and continuous devotion to business pursuits Mr. Cox is still active, far-seeing, and broad-minded, keeping up an undiminished interest in the many humanitarian movements of this extremely progressive age.—Globe.

CAUCUS TO PRUNE DOWN THORNS IN BORDEN GOVERNMENT'S PATH

OTTAWA, FEB. 2.—The members of the Government and their Nationalist and Conservative supporters had another long struggle in caucus this morning with their divergent views on the navy, the Manitoba school question and the proposal for the renewal of the iron and steel bounties. Two long caucuses within two days, without any apparent satisfactory results, show some of the difficulties facing Premier Borden in securing harmonious action respecting matters of policy on which his followers appealed to the electors last September from divergent standpoints. About the only thing on which the whole party is agreed is the desirability of an early prorogation, which can only be done by shelving as far as possible all embarrassing problems requiring final but not immediate solution. Many of the Government supporters are urging that the extension of the Provincial boundaries and all references to the naval question be quietly left over until next session, pending the working out, if possible, of some compromise basis of action on which, out wards at least, all can agree. There is no desire to run the risk of precipitating again a "bolt" such as occurred on the Lancaster bill when, for a time, the Government was admittedly in serious danger of being defeated through the defections of the Ontario members pledged to support Mr. Lancaster.

The Nationalists last night were the guests of Mr. H. B. Ames, and Judge Doherty, at a dinner in the Parliamentary restaurant, and it was agreed that there would be no hard feelings over the temporary failure of the twenty-two French members to have the Montreal Harbour Board dismissed. However, the Nationalists state that there has to be a showdown on both the navy and the Manitoba schools, and state that unless they are brought up by the Opposition they will bring them before the House.

The Goverment pointed out that to either question brought forward, and at the caucus this morning an effort was made to persuade the Nationalists that for this session at least they should take no action.

The Governmen pointed out that to repeal the naval bill without providing a substitute of some sort would look bad. This question, together with the Manitoba boundary extension, will be dealt with again at a later caucus.

The caucus had another long discussion of the proposal for the renewal of the iron and steel bounties The western members and the Ontario representatives of rural constituencies are against a renewal of the bounties, but the majority of the Government supporters are inclined to justify the requests of the iron and steel interests. The final decision was left with the Government.

It was moved by Mr. A. W. Austin, seconded by Mr. H. W. Wilcox, that Sir Edumund B. Osler do take the chair and that Mr. C. A. Bogert do act as secretary.

Messrs. A. R. Boswell and W. Gibson Cassels were appointed Scrutineers.

The Secretary read the report of the Directors to the Shareholders, and submitted the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank, which is as follows:—

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS:—

The Directors beg to present the following Statement of the result of the business of the Bank for the year ending 30th Dec., 1911:

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st December, 1910		$305,067 56
Premiums received on new Capital Stock		702,799 37
Profit for the year ending 30th December, 1911, after deducting charges of management, etc., and making provision for bad and doubtful debts		704,045 94
Making a total of		$1,711,912 87
Which has been disposed of as follows:
Dividend 3 p.c., paid 1st April, 1911	$120,000 00
Dividend 3 p.c., paid 3rd July, 1911	120,000 00

	$508,997 40
Transferred to Reserve Fund	702,799 37
		$1,211,796 77
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$500,116 10

RESERVE FUND

Balance at credit of account, 31st December, 1910	$5,000,000 00
Trahsferred from Profit and Loss Account	702,799 37
	$5,702,799 37

In presenting the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank covering the year just closed, your Directors have to report that there has been continued improvement in every respect. The Institution has shared fully in the widespread prosperity of the country, with a satisfactory increase in the net profits earned.

The following Branches have been established in the year under review: Welland, Ont.; Granville Street, Vancouver, B.C.; Hillhurst (Calgary), Alberta; Norwood (Edmonton), Alberta; St. John's (Winnipeg), Manitoba.

In view of the steadily increasing volume of business between Canada and Great Britain, and to generally further the Bank's interests, a Branch was opened in London, England, in July last—the results already shown justify this action.

The new buildings at Calgary, Alberta; Saskatoon, Sask.; Brandon, Man.; Dovercourt Road and Bloor Street, Toronto, referred to in the last Annual Report, have been completed, with the result that commodious and handsome premises have been provided at these points, which we anticipate will meet our requirements for many years to come.

It is the intention during 1912 to erect buildings for the following Branches in Toronto: Dufferin Street and St. Clair Avenue, and Deer Park—corner Yonge Street and St. Clair Avenue.

Arrangements are under way to establish new offices at several important and desirable Canadian points during the present year, which it is considered will eventually prove sources of profit to the Bank.

Owing to the general expansion of the Bank's business and to provide for increasing demands for Circulation, it was considered advisable to offer to the Shareholders in July, 1911, $1,000,000 of new Capital Stock at 200. Rights to subscribe for this issue expired on the 15th January, 1912, at which date $975,700 of the amount was subscribed, and $807,852 50 paid up. When full payment of the new issue has been made, the Bank's paid-up Capital will be $5,000,000 and the Reserve Fund $6,000,000. The authorized Capital Stock is $10,000,000 and the unallotted balance, $5,000,000, will be issued from time to time as conditions warrant.

The Balance Sheet of the Bank, shewing the various Assets and Liabilities at the close of business on the 30th December, 1911, has been verified by your Directors, who in addition, have examined and found to be correct, the Cash Assets and investments mentioned therein.

All branches of the Bank have been inspected during the past twelve months.

E. B. OSLER,
President

Toronto, 31st January, 1912.

The report was adopted.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President, and Directors, for their services during the year, and to the General Manager and other officers of the Bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. R. Brock, James Carruthers, R. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.L.A., W. D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton, and Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., was elected President, and Mr. W. D. Matthews, Vice-President, for the ensuing term.

MASTER PAINTERS' ANNUAL "AT HOME"

TORONTO, FEB. 1. — The annual "At Home" of the Toronto Association of Master Painters and Decorators took place in the Temple Building last evening, and was a brilliant affair. The attendance was large, there being about four hundred present. The evening was spent in progressive euchre, carpet ball and dancing. The prize winners were: Carpet ball—Messrs. Commeford, Bolus, Moore and Miss Redford. Euchre — Gentlemen—Mr. Butt, 1st; Mr. Howe, 2nd; Joe Robinson, booby. Ladies — Mrs. Pringle, 1st Miss Fletcher, 2nd; Mrs. Passmore, third; Mrs. Howe, booby. Friends were present from Hamilton, Windsor, Tillsonburg, Peterborough, Galt and other points. The arrangements were perfect in the hands of an energetic committee. Buffet refreshments were served.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Saves Worry, Saves Money, Saves the Hair

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 140 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural colour, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

INVITED TO CHARLOTTE ST.

At the monthly meeting of the official board of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, held last night, at which a large representation of members were present, an unanimous invitation was extended to the Rev. Thomas J. Mansell, pastor of Brant Avenue Methodist church, Brantford, to become their pastor, at the expiration of the Rev. Mr. Henderson's term, next June. Mr. Mansell is one of the able men of Methodism, having successfully laboured in such churches as Dominion Square, Montreal, Brockville, and Brantford. The board are very fortunate in their selection of their successor to the Rev. Mr. Henderson. Mr. Mansell's reply to the invitation should be in the hands of the Board early next week.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT

Mark Street Church, Otonabee, held a very successful entertainment in the Foresters' Hall, this week. The hall was completely filled and the large audience thoroughly enjoyed the good programme rendered. A few went out from the city, among them Miss Ruby Quartermaine, who assisted in the programme.

REGULAR MEETING

The regular meeting of P. C. I. Philomathean Society was held in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute yesterday. The amendments to the constitution were discussed, after which the following programme was successfully rendered:

Chorus—P. C. I. Glee Club.

Address, "Making of Books" Mr. F. H. Dobbin.

Solo—Miss Isabel Morphet.

Dialogue, Misses Mowat and Shearer and Mr. C. Feeney.

Instrumental—Miss W. Connor.

The meeting closes by the singing of the National Anthem.

SENATOR GRADY DEAD

NEW YORK, N.Y., FEB. 3.—State Senator Thos. F. Grady, the "silver-tongued orator of Tammany Hall," died this morning.

AN APPEAL TO PETERBORO' WOMEN

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We would like to call the attention of the women of the city to the meeting to be held on Monday night in the lecture room of the Public Library. It is hoped that a very large number will be present to hear the plans of the Peterborough Health Association, and also to join the Women's Auxiliary, now in process of formation. On Tuesday evening Dr. Porter stated that one person dies in Canada of consumption every hour of every day, and two every hour of every night. If this be so and Dr. Porter is an authority on this subject, then nearly 9 per cent. of our total population pass away every year. It is also stated that there are about seventy victims in various stages of the disease at present in the city, and its immediate neighbourhood. To reach these people with help and to educate them to the proper care of themselves is the object of the Peterborough Health Association. In this work every citizen should be interested. A district nurse seems to be a necessity. We appeal to the women of the city to come out and help us in this crusade.

Signed on behalf of committee.

Elizabeth Kendry, Convenor
Edith Travers, Secretary.

CHOIR ENTERTAINED

The choir and orchestra of Knox Church were the guests of honour at an oyster supper, tendered them last night by the members of the Session and Board of Managers, assisted by their wives, last night. Some seventy-five people were present and the evening was a great success. An enjoyable programme was provided including some splendid selections by the orchestra. A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. J. S. Morrison, and seconded by Dr. J. M. McCulloch, was passed to the choir and responded to by Choir Leader H. Lewis, Mr. A. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. G. W. Barclay, proposed a vote of thanks to the orchestra, the motion being enthusiastically carried. Mr. Arnold Wood, the leader of the Orchestra, made a suitable reply. The programme included solos by Mrs. Rogers, Miss Wilson, and Mr. John McKenzie.

Tong War In California

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., FEB. 3.—The Coast cities are in the throes of Chinese tong wars to-day, in which three have already been killed, as a result of feuds started by Chinese beating up a member of another clan in San Jose.

Hockey Player Is Injured

Examiner Special:

ST. THOMAS, ONT., FEB. 3. — Walter Garside, while playing point for the local "Y" in a hockey match between St. Thomas and London Y.M.C.A. here Friday night, was struck on the temple by the flying puck and was seriously hurt, concussion of the brain resulting.

A LITERARY EVENING

The Y.W.C.A. members are looking forward with pleasure to the literary evening of Tuesday next, when Rev. F. J. Sawers will give an evening with John Greenleaf Whittier. Miss Florence Scott will sing. All friends of the Association are invited to enjoy this evening with the members.

SIXTY KILLED

Special to The Examiner:

SUSTIEN, CHINA, FEB. 3.—Sixty men were killed in a scrap between the Republican and Imperialist troops, 15 miles north of here, today.

What is 'Good' Tea?

BEFORE Tea brands were widely known—before Red Rose Tea was sold throughout Canada—a woman asked her Grocer if he had any 'Good' Tea—and the Grocer replied,

"Red Rose Tea is Good Tea"

There you have the origin of our modest slogan—the reason for it. And surely no better source or reason could be given.

Consider the matter for a moment—

Suppose you were to forget the name "Red Rose," and ask the Grocer for a pound of 'Good' Tea—what would you mean by the term 'Good'?

You would simply mean Tea that was ALL Tea could be.

So—when we are able to say - - - - - - -

"Red Rose Tea is Good Tea"

—we have said all that can be said.

RED ROSE is a blend of the best Indian and Ceylon Teas—

Because these are world's best Teas. Assam—in Northern India—is the original home of the Tea plant—the soil being specially adapted for growing rich, strong Teas—

Ceylon Teas are more delicately flavored. Therefore the Red Rose blend is generously rich in both, strength and flavor—

Even if modestly and simply advertised as

"Red Rose Tea is Good Tea"

There are several grades selling at different prices, but, perhaps, the 40c. grade will please best. It is not only fine in quality but goes farther.

Trackman Is Killed

Examiner Special:

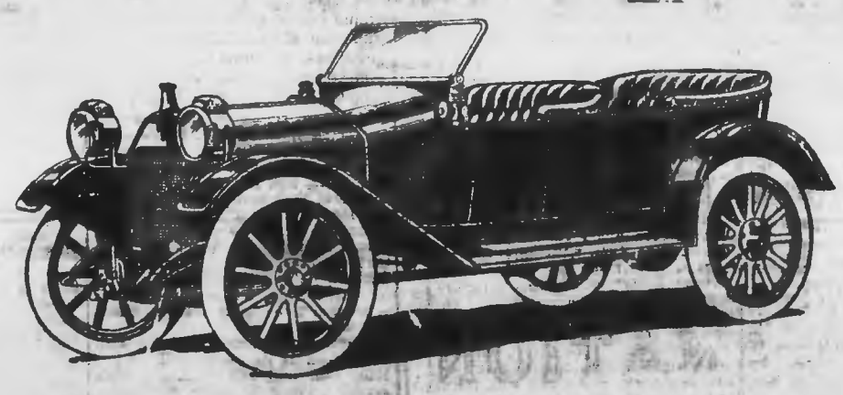
KINCARDINE, ONT., FEB. 3.—William Flynn, a G.T.R. trackman, died from injuries received when run down by a freight engine. His wife and two children survive.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

Belmont Minstrels

When the curtain raises on the Belmont Minstrels this season, the audience will witness the most unique First Part setting ever seen in any minstrel production, ever produced on the local stage. Will McElroy adorns the centre, and, with Comedians George Cooke, Chris. Graham, George Wesley, Walter Davidson, Reg. Turner and Holly Shepard, fun will be kept to the front, fast and furious. The chorus will be large and can sing. No long waits, but something doing every minute. The ballads are in the hands of people who can sing. The show will be replete with all the latest ideas in minstrelsy.

HUPMOBILE



Hupmobile Long-Stroke "32" Five-Passenger Touring Car—$900

F.O.B. Detroit including equipment of windshield, gas lamps and generator, oil lamps, tools and horn. Three speeds forward and reverse; sliding gears. Four cylinder motor. 3¾ inch bore and 5½ inch stroke. Bosch magneto. 106-inch wheelbase. 30 x 3½ inch tires. Color—Standard Hupmobile blue.

Dominates its class as the Runabout did before it

Before the Hupmobile Runabout came there was nothing in its class that even resembled it.

It brought new beauties and dignities to the runabout type.

And history is repeating itself in that splendid companion to the runabout—the new Hupmobile Long-stroke "32," the Five-Passenger Touring Car at $900.

The same man—E. A. Nelson, Chief Engineer of the Hupp Motor Car Company from its inception—designed both cars. The same splendidly seasoned factory organization is responsible for this new and impressive success.

In two separate fields of motor car manufacture the same unique result has been achieved.

The Hupmobile Long-Stroke "32" confers new honours upon the moderate priced touring car class.

It incorporates quality characteristics that have always been accepted as marks of identification in cars of price much higher than $900.

It pays no attention to previous notions of what should constitute a $900 car: but boldly establishes it own rule, and incorporates qualities unprecedented at that price.

It goes to greater lengths than ever before by introducing certain engineering features that though fully tested abroad, have been found in America only on much costlier cars.

For example, the long stroke is a real long stroke. Its ratio to the piston of 1 7-13 to 1 is a marvelous achievement because it is both more economical as to fuel and sixty per cent more efficient in pulling power.

The 13-inch multiple disc clutch; the full floating rear axle; the large transmission gears—in fact, all mechanical details show an excess of worth and value far above the ordinary needs for a car of its power and weight.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

"ONE WHO KNOWS" WANTS TO KNOW

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir—A few days ago—last Monday—you printed a letter from me pointing out that as brought out by evidence, in court, a certain hotelkeeper sold strong drink to a person on the "black list". While the "block-listed" was rounded up by the police, and was fined, and in default of payment, spent thirty days in jail, the real offender escaped. Here was evidence, ready made, for Inspector Stewart to prosecute the offending hotel-keeper, and so far he has taken no steps to enforce the license law, in regard to this law-breaking hotelkeeper. I said, in my letter, that I wasn't going to let the matter rest. Now, I want to know what the Inspector is going to do about this neglect of duty; what are the License Commissioners, who claim that the law is strictly enforced, going to do when their Inspector has a case thrust upon his notice, the evidence provided, and refuses to enforce the law? What are the temperance people doing that they do not pay some attention to the matter? I will not let the matter rest. The license law has been doubly broken. One of the offenders, thanks to the police, not the Inspector, has been punished, but the worst offender is allowed to escape. Is it because he has a pull as well as a draw?

Yours, etc.,

One Who Knows.

Young People's Annual Rally

The annual rally of the Young People's Christian Endeavour Society of the city, will be held on Monday, Feb. 5th, in the George Street Methodist Church. The Rev. Jas. Rollins will take the chair at 8 o'clock, and the meeting will be addressed by the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., of Peterborough. Special music will be rendered by the George Street choir. All young people of the city are cordially invited.

FELL IN A FAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

REMOVAL OF FAT BY SURGERY

A surgical operation for the removal of fat was performed in London recently by Dr. W. Wayne Babcock. As is well known, large quantities of fat are frequently deposited between the skin and muscles of the abdomen. It was this layer of fat that the surgeon removed. The operation itself seemed to be simple, and Dr. Babcock declared that in the hands of a skilled surgeon it was not dangerous. It consisted in making a long incision in the abdomen, turning back the skin, and removing the superfluous fat. When enough fat had been removed the skin was turned back to its natural position, and the incision sewed up. After the operation the woman was lighter by 12 lbs.

HIGHLANDS OF SCOTLAND ADEQUATELY DESCRIBED

Prof. Morrison, of Queen's University, Toronto, Delivered an Interesting Stereopticon Lecture to a Large Gathering at the Y.W.C.A. Last Night.

Professor J. Morrison, the well-known lecturer of Queen's University, was heard to advantage last evening, in the Gymnasium Hall of the Y. W. C. A., where he gave a very interesting lecture on the Highlands of Scotland, and with the aid of stereoptican illustrations, left in the minds of the large number present, a complete and lasting idea of Highland life.

In the course of his lecture he said "Highland life is dying. Fifty years ago one could see life in the Highlands persuing its course harmoniously, but now, the population has greatly decreased. It has gone to the cities; it has gone to Canada, and the last census taken showed a remarkably diminished population.

Towards the end of his lecture the speaker explained more fully the cause of the decreased population by saying: "These people as a whole, have no sense of progress. The English law, for instance, has progressed from brutality to its present edified state, while the characterisics of the Highland people are against the modern invention idea.

After dealing with the population, the speaker continued:

South of the Firth of Clyde Presbyterians and Catholics live side by side. In places in the west of Scotland there are parishes where there is not a Protestant.

Although Scotland has many vices, immorality, drunkenness, etc., the Highland west has always been good, morally. There is far more strife and drunkenness in the Danish East, than in the Celtic West. A prominent trait in the character of the Highland people is their superstition, while the Southerners, or the Anglo-Saxons possess this in a less degree. In the evenings they light their fires and tell stories, which (some of them) come night from Pagan belief. Then they have their national songs, which arose with the nation; spinning songs, reaping songs, etc. Being largely Roman Catholic, they have their Saints' days and, consequently, their festivals.

The speaker proceeded to relate how an American millionaire, who purchased a large tract of land, brought before the law courts an old man, whose children had found a stray lamb on the heath. The landlord said he would not have live stock on his estate. But, continued the lecturer, when in the Court one of the lawyers gave him such a talking to that he will not receive again till the day of judgment.

Concluding, he referred to the fall of the race, saying: "There is a fight for existence in nations, as well as individual, and we Highlanders are a defeated race.

Miss Pearl Brock, the contralto soloist of the Charlotte Street Church added colour to the lecture by rendering, in creditable style, the old Scottish favourite, "Annie Laurie".

RAIN AND THUNDER ARE PROMISED FOR FEBRUARY

Hicks' Weather Forecasts for the Shortest Month in the Year Indicate a Fair Brand of Weather---Rain, Sleet and Snow Are Some of the Special Features.

The last regular storm period in January extends to 1st and 2nd of February. On these dates storms will have passed into the eastern sections, with cold and clearing weather in western parts. A seismic period is central on Feb. 2nd, covering three or four days before and after that date. Watch for general earthquake reports, not only at this, but at every seismic period throughout the year.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 4th, 5th and 6th. This period is at the centre of the Mars equinoctial, which falls on the 6th. The Moon is on the celestial equator the same day. Low barometer, thunder, wind, and rain will visit many sections, especially in southern states, on and about the 6th, all to be followed by snow, rising barometer and change to much colder, the cold wave to penetrate far into the south and dominate the weather up to about the 9th and 10th.

A regular storm period prevails from the 9th to the 14th. About the 9th the barometer will begin falling in western parts, change to warmer and cloudiness will ensue, followed by rain, turning on western flanks to snow. During the 11th, 12th, 13th, into the 14th, these storms will move steadily eastward across the country, preceded on the east flank by warmth and rains, and followed on the west by snow, cold and clearing. This is the law of storm and weather movement and change— a law that all should understand and remember. The periods of cold and fair weather lie between the periods of low barometer and storms, and are progressive from west to east, the same as storm areas.

A reactionary storm period, with New Moon at its centre, falls at the 16th, 17th and 18th. The Earth's vernal equinox will also be present during this period, intensifying storms and other phenomena. Low barometer, much warmer, with very active storms in many sections, will be natural at this time. A seismic period is central on the 17th, extending from the 14th to the 20th.

A regular storm period covers the 20th to the 25th, being partly covered by the incoming Mercury period. Disturbances of the preceding reactionary period will scarcely subside until falling barometer, change to warmer and electrical storms will appear on the 20th. Rain and thunder with violent winds south, will mark the first stages of this period; but as the storms progress during the 21st 22nd, 23rd and 24th, rain will turn to sleet and snow, amounting to blizzards, followed from the north by high gales and a sweeping cold wave.

A reactionary storm period is central during the last three days of February. The Mercury, Earth and Mars periods combine their disturbing forces at this time, calling for prolonged and very decided storms of rain, wind, sleet and snow. It should always be remembered, especially by all who are exposed to gulf and south Atlantic coast regions, that equatorial, or West Indian storms are probable the last half of February, and such probability is greatly increased, when such a combination exists as we have during the last half of the present month. If all the people knew the incalculable value of a good barometer, one would be found in every home and public building, and calamities by hurricane, tornado, cyclonal wave and blizzards would be reduced to a minimum. Ice gorges, floods, and much rough weather and storminess is the outlook for this month. The Mars period has gradually worked from the summer, back through spring, until this year it is central on February the 6th, which fact leads us to the conclusion that February, and almost the whole of March this year will continue unbroken, or normal winter weather, without early, abnormal warm spells as for some years past.

All careful readers of these predictions will bear witness of our special warning of "great and far-reaching cold waves," to begin in January, and as the closing paragraph above intimates, of continued wintry weather through February and into March. It is needless for us to say to our readers that this warning has, so far, been fully verified. From the beginning of January, up to the time of this writing, January 16th, blizzards and wintery temperatures have broken all records for many years past all over the continent. The loss of live stock has been something frightful; fuel famines have, and do yet prevail extensively over the country, many people have frozen to death, and intense suffering has come upon the millions. Any attempt even to summarize the reports would fill our whole space twenty times.

CURED OF EPILEPSY

A Case That Should Bring Hope to Other Sufferers

Epilepsy is one of the most serious troubles that afflicts the human race. This trouble is also known as "falling sickness" or "fits." The patient suddenly loses consciousness and falls. The muscles become rigid and there is a twitching of the face and limbs, sometimes accompanied by frothin gof the mouth. The convulsion is followed by a deep sleep varying in duration. In the early stages the attack may only occur at intervals of several months, but as the disease progresses they become more and more frequent, the patient becomes debilitated, and the mind weakened. Epilepsy is generally regarded as incurable, but taken in its earliest stages has in many cases been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthen the system, thus enabling it to resist the progress of the disease. The following case will be of interest to any who suffer from this terrible malady. Mrs. John Mather, Bancroft, Ont., says: "My little son, Clive, at the age of five was stricken with spasms or fits and despite all we did for him, for the next five years was afflicted with them, apparently growing worse. He was under the care, at various times, of five different doctors, but they did him no good. He was growing worse all the time, until he got so bad the would sometimes have twelve of these spasms in twenty-four hours. I sent him to the Sick Children's Hospital, where they pronounced the trouble epilepsy, but did not help him. Later he was treated by a specialist, but to no avail. I was almost in despair when my mother advised me to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got the pills and gave them to him, strictly following the directions as to diet. He continued taking the pills for several months, the spasms gradually coming less frequently, and with less severity, and finally they ceased altogether. It is now about two years since he took the last of the pills, and he has not had a fit in that time, and is now as well and strong as other boys of his age. I have great reason to be grateful for what the pills have done for him, and hope this may be of value to some other sufferer."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE PEOPLE'S BENEFACTOR.

MR. TODD WANTS SOME INFORMATION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see by a public announcement that the Health Association is to again hold their meeting in one of our public halls. Would you permit me space in your valuable columns to ask our public officials who this body of men are, who have formed themselves into an Association, called Health Association, and who seem to have the right of way of our educational halls. What have they done that our public halls should be thrown open to them, while other societies are denied the use of the same? They say they are going to educate the public how to have good health—a grand purpose indeed.

Another Association has recently been formed in our city, known as the "Holy Ghost Movement." I have heard the Leader publicly announce that they are teaching a method of healing soul and body, as well as preventing disease. I understand they are seeking a suitable place in which to hold their meetings. Is the collegiate building or public library open to them. Another body of ratepayers —Christian Scientists—teach a method of healing and preventing disease. They occasionally bring a public lecturer here to teach the public. Are they permitted the free use of these halls? If not, why discriminate between citizens, who are all striving from their viewpoint to help mankind.

Dr. Porter delivered a very interesting address from his line of reasoning. The chairman, Father McColl, appeared to agree with the speaker, which was his privilege. Dr. Porter's theory is—take care of the body, by good food, fresh air, sunshine, etc.—very good things, the whole of them.

If the Pessimist, David, had been Chairman, I think he would have told Dr. Porter, as he has told the rest of us—sin is the cause of disease and "God sent His word and healed them". The great public teacher, Christ Jesus, would have said: "Take no thought what ye shall eat—is not the life more than meat". Seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you".

It would seem reasonable to conclude that these things would include good health, pure, strong bodies. Or Paul, who was such a thorough scholar, would repeat what he has said: "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And he not conformed to this world (material methods); but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." People who take the Bible as their standard of education, would naturally conclude that the Holy Ghost Association's teachings may be as near right as Dr. Porter, or any member of the so-called Health Association. However, that is not the point at issue. The question is this: Are these halls open to all parties alike? If so, I have no fault to find, as all have to pay to their support.

I may be considered a crank on equal rights, as I am a firm believer in equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. As a tax-payer I am in real earnest in this matter, and as I expect to be personally interested in securing a good hall during this year, will be glad to learn if the Collegiate Hall can be had either free, or by paying a reasonable fee. Thanking you for space, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

R. J. Todd.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Dominion Bank was held at the head office in Toronto on Wednesday, January 31st. The statement presented by the Directors for the year ending December 30th last reports net profits of $704,045.94, the largest in the history of the bank and an increase of $44,745.56 over the profits for the previous year. With a balance of $305,067.56 from 1910, the premium, amounting to $703,799.37, received from the new stock issued during the year at 200, and the profits of $704,045.94 there was a total of $1,711,912.87 to be dealt with. Dividends at the rate of 12 per cent. for the year took $568,807, and the amount received from the premium on new stock was transferred to reserve amount, leaving a balance of $500,116.10 to be carried forward. The Paid-up Capital of the Bank at the end of December was $4,702,799 and this is now supported by a reserve of $5,702,799.37. The general statement of the Bank shows its total assets to be $70,179,552.96. Comparison with last year shows an expansion in many directions. Reserve has been increased by over 14 per cent. Notes in circulation have increased by a million dollars to $4,649,088, deposits by the public have increased by $4,200,000 to $53,547,885.08, and assets are higher by $7,500,000. The cash assets of the Bank amount to $13,081,674, or over 23 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public, while the immediate available assets are $27,011,033 or nearly 46 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public.

Butter And Potatoes Are Still Scarce And Dear

No Signs of Lower Prices for the Ordinary Market Commodities This Morning—Butter Went as High as 40c.

LIVE HOGS ARE HIGHER

The farmers' market offered little encouragement this morning to those householders who would welcome any relief from the prevailing high prices of food stuffs.

"The farmers ought to be satisfied with the present range of prices," said a business man after a trip around the inside.

"Indeed, they are not," answered a cattle buyer. "They are kicking themselves because they haven't more stuff to sell. The hens are not laying much, butter is scarce and so are potatoes, and it is only an odd one that has a big supply. They hate to see the big prices going and feel they are not getting their share of it."

POTATOES AT $1.75 BAG

A local grocer was buying butter, and learned that the man selling to him had a fair supply of potatoes at home. The grocer arranged to buy 50 bags at $1.75, to be delivered during the week. Potatoes at that price are surely worth planting. Next year there will probably be a heavy planting and prices will be lower, but that will not deduct anything from next week's grocery bill.

BUTTER FROM 35c TO 40c.

Butter touched 40c to-day, but there was some to be had at 38c, and 35c, and a retailer said that he got some lower than that. But the grocers are not depending to any extent upon this market for their supplies. One of them told the Examiner that he got his butter out of town and found that the price was easier than that asked by the farmers.

"If this goes on much longer, we'll have to stop using butter until the spring," said one woman to another at one place where 38c was asked.

"My man has to have his butter," was her neighbour's reply; "if it ain't good there is dickens to pay," and following the advice of those women who have been through the game and have advised their sisters "to feed the brute," this little woman was assidiously trying to find butter that was not "turnippy" and that would put her "lord and master" in that happy frame of mind that would bring him to overlook a new dress or portieres for the parlour.

EGGS WERE FRESH, YES?

Eggs were guaranteed strictly fresh by most of those who offered them. "Gathered since Wednesday," said one young woman who passed out a smile possibly for good measure. The prices ruled around 37c and 38c with apparently little variation. On the whole the supply of butter and eggs was too light to give purchasers a chance to hope for decreases.

Poultry was scarce and was quickly cleaned up. Chickens at 60c each were most numerous, and a few went at $1 a pair. A stray goose was found here and there at from $1.10 to $1.25.

POTATOES SCARCE

Out on the market there was only one load of potatoes at 11 o'clock and the price demanded was $1.90 a bag. The high price now asked will undoubtedly put a brake on the consumption. There did not seem to be any marked demand this morning, whether it was that people were temporarily supplied or that they were economizing is not known.

Sarsaparilla by the bottle was also offered at 50 per.

Hay remained at $15 with quite a number of loads on the market. At this price it was reasonable, but it can scarcely be accepted as a substitute for potatoes, butter and eggs.

Pork and beef was plentiful, but lamb was decidedly scarce.

The man with the big family can buy beef cheaper than he who buys for two or possibly four. And the explanation is this:

"I have beef at several prices," one farmer stated.

"If you want a heavy quarter you can get it at 8c, but if you want lighter beef it will cost you 8½c front and a cent extra for hinds."

Just then a retired farmer looked over the load and when asked to buy found that all the light quarters were gone. "The rest is too heavy for our family. There is only my wife and daughter besides myself. But even if that a hind quarter would last us until the warm weather came." He was still talking family affairs when he reporter passed on.

IN OTHER TOWNS

In Picton butter sells at from 32c to 35c, eggs 30 to 35c, and potatoes at $1.25 a bushel, which is about $1.90 a bag. In Kingston eggs brought 40c, butter 32 to 35c, beef 6 to 8c and 4 to 10c; potatoes $1.25 a bushel.

LOCAL PRICES

To-day's prices on the market were as follows:

Butter, 35c to 37c to 40c.
Eggs, 37 to 38c.
Chickens, per pair, $1.10.
Chickens, each, 60c.
Geese, $1.10 to $1.25.
Apples, Talmans per bag, $1.25 to $1.50; bellflowers, per bag, $1.25
Potatoes, per bag, $1.90.
Pork, 10c to 11c.
Lamb, 9c to 10c.
Beef, fronts, 8c to 9c.

INTERESTING INFORMATION IN REGARD TO THE LOCAL PUBLIC LIBRARY

Reports Presented at the Annual Meeting on Thursday Night Contains Much of Interest to Public

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD:

As my term of office as Chairman of the Board expires to-night, it is perhaps my duty to give a short statement of the affairs of the Library.

As you will learn from the Librarian's report, the number of books now in the Library is 10,249, of which 1,036 were purchased during the year 1911, and the number of books taken out by members from the 14th February, 1911, the day the Library was first opened, until the 31st December, 1911, was 42,737, which shows that it has been well patronized. The Reading Room has also been extensively used, and at times quite crowded, and more accommodation in the way of tables and chairs is required in it. The number of members on the 31st December last was 2,380; the cost of maintaining the Library and supplying new books, etc., was $4,646.81, distributed as follows:

Salaries	$1,925.72
Books and magazines	1,163.01
Lighting and heating	711.55
Furnishings, bookbinding, insurance, printing, etc.	846.53
	$4,646.81

The Librarian and his assistants have had their time fully occupied, not only in attending to the wants of those taking out books, but also in arranging, classifying and cataloguing the Library, and they have all taken a great interest in their work, and deserve the commendation of the Board. The question of instituting a children's department was left to a special committee, but owing to the fact that the Librarians were so fully occupied with arranging the books, it was thought well to let that matter stand in the meantime. In addition to the gifts of the books, etc., referred to in the Librarian's Report, the Library was fortunate in being presented with a valuable picture, now in the Reading Room, given by a donor whose name was not disclosed, and it is hoped that others may be induced to copy this good precedent and assist in making the rooms more attractive.

In the year 1854 the late John Langton, then Member of Parliament for this County, and afterwards Auditor-General, in the course of an address to the members of the Peterborough Library Association, said: "I have been most anxious that the Library Association which we have been forming in this town, should also embrace a Mechanics' Institute, because although a collection of books is an essential part of such an institution, a Library alone does not meet all the objects which I am desirous of promoting. A Public Library is designed to develop a taste for reading and to afford facilities for the cultivation of literature generally, without a special preference for any particular department, a Mechanics' Institute on the contrary may in one sense be said to have a more confined object, being chiefly intended to promote the study of the physical sciences, but in other respects it embraces a larger field, by enabling its members to prosecute those studies, not from books alone, but by the gradual accumulation of a museum of philosophical apparatus and more especially by means of the delivery of lectures."

This, it appears to me, is as applicable to-day as when spoken 58 years ago at what I understand to have been the first meeting of a Society from which the former Mechanics' Institute had its start, and of which our present Library is the outcome. Our Library, although it has taken the place of the former Mechanics' Institute, has so far only been a place from which books can be obtained or where members can come to read. It should be more. Some effort should be made to increase its usefulness as an educational institution, and the Board might, if it approves of carrying out this idea, consider how this can be satisfactorily done.

I desire to express my appreciation of the interest every member of the Board has taken in the affairs of the Library and the time and attention each has given to its management, and also to say that to the Chairman and Members of the Property Committee of the City Council the Board is greatly indebted for the assistance received from them in making the Library what it is; but the Library is indebted for its existence, if not primarily, at any rate financially, to the munificence of Mr. Andrew Carnegie and the interest evinced in the institution by Mr. Richard Hall, the executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie gave the sum of $30,000 in cash for the erection and furnishing of a suitable building, and from the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls the Library is the recipient of income from an endowment of $10,000, as well as the proceeds of the sale of the building on Simcoe Street, amounting to $11,000.

Tablets testifying the appreciation of the public for these gifts are being prepared and will be placed in the building.

F. H. D. HALL,
Chairman.

Peterborough,
February 1st, 1912.

Librarian's Report.

Dear Sir,

I beg herewith to present my report on the work accomplished in the Library during the past year.

The building was thrown open to the public on Tuesday, 14th February, 1911, and the number of members who had joined up to 30th December inclusive was 2,450—Adults 2,144, Juveniles 315. Seventy-nine members, 72 adults, and 7 juveniles relinquished their tickets during the year owing to various causes, such as leaving the city or objecting to the payment of fines for overdue books. In this connection I may state that the overdue fines left unpaid during the year amount to $1.35, the largest unpaid fine being 30c.

Books in the Library.

The number of books in the Library at the present time is 10,249. These are classified as follow:

Juveniles	707
Refer. and Gen. Works	409
Philosophy	152
Religion	404
Sociology	362
Philology	18
Natural Science	366
Useful Arts	202
Fine Arts	159
Literature	770
History	938
Biography	797
Geography and Travel	634
Fiction	4117
Magazines	130
	10,249

Books Purchased.

The books purchased amounted to 1,036, and were classified as follow:

Geography and Travel	87
Biography	91
History	111
Literature	137
Natural Science	32
Useful Arts	35
Sociology	87
Fine Arts	2
Fiction	445
Religion	3
Reference Works	86
Total	1036

Number of Volumes Issued.

The number of volumes issued to 30th December inclusive was 42,737, fiction, of course, largely predominating:

Fiction	31535
Philosophy	100
Philology	30
Literature	742
History	1621
Natural Science	999
Sociology	4538
Useful Arts	451
Fine Arts	114
Magazines	108
Geography and Travel	1393
Biography	771
Religion	335
Total	42737

I am glad to report that the card system for the issue of books is working well. During the year only one volume was deliberately stolen. Its value was 70c. As the purloiner had removed from the city and the whereabouts of his family was unknown the book was lost to the Library.

Some seven or eight volumes which had been unfortunately taken to infected houses or been in houses when an infectious disease broke out were also lost to circulation.

In four or five instances where books had been lost by borrowers or damaged in a material way a demand was made for reimbursement, which was in every instance cheerfully complied with.

It is impossible to state to what extent books may have been removed from the shelves without the formality of having them entered at the desk prior to borrowing them. I am fairly convinced, however, that loss—if there has been any loss—has been slight, as we have no record of any valuable volume having gone astray during the year.

There has been a considerable amount of theft from the reading rooms, more especially in the early part of the year, and our magazine files are sadly depleted in consequence.

There was also a certain amount of mutilation of papers and periodicals, but nothing of this sort has been noticed since a notice to the effect that culprits would be severely dealt with if discovered was placed in the papers.

The Reading Room.

The Reading Rooms were extensively patronized during the whole year, the attendance, at a very conservative estimate of 30 a day, amounting for the ten and a half months to 8,220, exclusive of Sundays and holidays.

The Juvenile Section.

The Juvenile Section of the Library is the one that needs the most attention this year. Although many books were purchased to strengthen this department, the avidity with which the young people have fastened on what has been provided for their intellectual pabulum has reduced not only some of the new books, but very many of the old to a somewhat disreputable condition.

Book Circulation.

The circulation has kept at a lively and healthy pace throughout the whole time the Library has been in operation. There was, of course, a slight falling off in the summer months, but a very fair average was maintained.

The highest Saturday output was on 1st December, when 494 books were borrowed, and the lowest on 18th February, for which day the record shows an output of 116.

359 volumes had to be discarded during the year and upwards of 3,000 were repaired and placed again in circulation.

In addition to the books already enumerated, there are stored in the basement some 152 volumes of a technical character, which are entirely obsolete and worthless for library purposes, and also some 50 books which, owing to the absence of first or second volumes, are rendered practically valueless.

Donations.

We have received some very welcome presents during the year from friends of the institution, chief among them being some valuable works from the estate of the late Mr. A. C. Dunlop, which were presented by his daughter, Miss Dunlop.

Other donors were:

Colonel Stevenson — Volumes of Hansard.

Ottawa Canadian Club—Transactions of the Club for 1910.

C. W. Ricketts, Toronto—The Gold and Silver Coinage of England to Reign of George III.

George Lennox—Poems.

The Examiner—Newspaper Annual.

Amer. Theos. Society—The Changing World (Mrs. Besant).

Mr. D. Burritt—5 volumes of fiction.

Mr. Bradley—1 volume of fiction.

Thomas Allen—Greek Lexicon.

Intern. Tax Association—Reports for 1909 and 1910.

British Government—2 vols. Life of Lord Durham.

A Friend— 2vols. Pier's Plowman.

We have also received from different departments of the Federal Government gifts of great value in the shape of maps, brochures, and pamphlets, as well as the ordinary publications detailing the work of the various departments. For these, we are in large measure indebted to the kindness of our late member, Hon. J. R. Stratton, who always turned a ready ear to our requests for Government literature. Our present member, Mr. J. H. Burnham, is also proving assiduous in helping us, and through him we are indebted for many gifts of maps from the Geographical Department, as well as a magnificent panoramic view of the Rockies and two fine volumes on the Champlain Tercentenary, entitled, "The King's Book of Quebec." The panoramic view of the Rockies has not yet arrived, but it is expected shortly from the department.

The Staff.

We sustained a distinct loss at the beginning of the present year by the resignation of Miss Cahill, the first assistant. Miss Cahill, during her short tenure of the position, had proved herself admirably adapted to her duties, and her resignation was greatly regretted, not only by her coworkers, but by the public in general. Miss Aylmer, the former second assistant, who took Miss Cahill's place at her departure, is eminently fitted for the position, and I have no doubt will prove as acceptable to the public as was her predecessor. Miss Sullivan, our second assistant, is doing excellent work and proving unremitting in her duties.

The janitor, Mr. Mathieson, has been a very efficient and faithful guardian of the library, and has striven in every way possible to discharge his duties properly.

Work Accomplished.

We were unable to obtain the services of the Government cataloguer till July, but notwithstanding the serious delay we have made fairly satisfactory headway with the classifying and cataloguing, and have been enabled to carry on the work without inconvenience to the public. At the present time about two-thirds of the volumes in the Library are shelf-listed, about one-half catalogued, and the whole of them classified. We are enabled, therefore, to lay our hands on any book without much trouble, as they are placed in their proper sections on the shelves. The work of cataloguing and classifying has devolved largely on the assistants, and it gives me pleasure to pay a tribute to Miss Cahill and Miss Aylmer for the really excellent work that they have done in this department.

The record of what has been accomplished shows much that will never need to be done again. The whole system has had to be re-built on a different foundation, and this has, of course, meant the practical establishment of a new library. The re-painting, re-classifying, accessioning, equipping with card pockets and cards and looking after the repairing of a library of over ten thousand volumes has kept the staff busy, and much has been left undone which, it is to be hoped, the present year will see brought to fruition. It will take probably another year before the cataloguing of the maps, pamphlets, and other literary matter will be completed, but the library now stands in solid favour with the public, and as they see it gradually emerging into greater and greater usefulness, there can be no doubt but that that interest will become intensified.

One extremely gratifying feature of the work has been the warm interest evinced by the boys and girls from our public schools and from the Collegiate Institute. They have made splendid use of our reference and reading rooms, and in common with the older users of the Library have comported themselves in a manner that has added zest to the work. The anxiety that everyone, old or young, has shown to conform to the rules laid down by the Board has been one of the most pleasant and conspicuous traits of our Library patrons.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. M. Delafosse,
Librarian.

According to an official announcement made recently the Hollinger Mines Company will soon amalgamate with the Miller-Middleton Dixon-Gillies claims—15 in all—giving a total acreage of approximately 550 acres, all of which is situated in the already proven richest ore zone in Porcupine.

Stockholders in this, the banner gold mine of Canada, if not in America, will have the first opportunity of participating in the new stock issue soon to be brought out.

Valuable rights are contained in this merger but unless you are a registered holder of Hollinger stock, the profits which will probably accrue from this source will not inure to your benefit. We have prepared a digest of the report on the Hollinger Mine, which we will be glad to mail free of charge on request.

E. M. Macdonald Urges Imperial Naturalization Scheme

GRAIN BILL WAS UP

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Practical Imperialism in the form of a common system of naturalisation was urged upon the Government last night by the Opposition.

E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) reintroduced the question of imperial naturalisation, on the motion to go into supply. Under the draft bill submitted by the last Imperial Conference, five years' residence would be required. He hoped the Government would deal with the matter without delay and make representations to the authorities in England, so that it could be dealt with during the present session of the Imperial Parliament.

Hon. George E. Foster declared that the Government was studying the question with a view that an answer should be given to the Imperial authorities at an early date. The matter was in a more forward state than ever before. There was a deeper sense of the necessity of doing something to add to the status of all members of the Empire.

Hon. F. D. Monk was of the opinion that Canada should urge upon the British Government the recognition of a shorter time of residence than five years.

Hon. Frank Oliver thought there would be a difficulty of putting into a form of words a proposal to grant Imperial citizenship to those who came to our shores, and at the same time preserve to us the right of our own citizenship within our own borders.

The House spent most of the afternoon in committee on the grain bill.

A special emergency bill to amend the grain act was put through its second reading. It provides that cars may be diverted to expedite the removal to terminal elevators of grain that is in danger of destruction by damp.

Hon. J. D. Hazen introduced a bill founded on a resolution passed through committee for a further loan of $6,000,000 to the harbor commissioners of Montreal in order to complete the scheme of improvements at that port begun under the late Government.

Mr. Hazen intimated that, as the plans for the harbor contemplated a total expenditure of $18,000,000, no doubt further loans would have to be asked for later on.

Hon. Mr. White moved the House into committee to consider a Government motion to authorise the payment out of the consolidated revenue fund of sums sufficient to discharge the obligation of the Government as determined by the judgment of the Privy Council on the appeal of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co.

In view of the large sum involved the Minister of Finance thought an explanation was due to the House.

In 1905, said Hon. Mr. White, the G.T.P. sold £3,200,000 of 3 per cent. bonds at 92 1-2, realising $14,569,754. In 1909, £2,000,000 bought at 80, $7,773,406, and in 1910, a further issue of £2,000,000 at 80 brought $7,856,418. Taking the difference between the par value and the amounts realized, gave approximately $4,960,000 for which the Government was responsible, under the Privy Council judgment, and to provide for which he introduced a supply bill.

Further than this the company had £5,515,200 of 3 per cent. bonds, which they were still able to issue under their charter. Supposing these to be sold at the same rate as those already issued, they would leave a liability to be assumed by the Government of $5,185,617, or added to the liability already incurred, a total liability of approximately $10,090,000.

Grain Handled at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Feb. 3.—The Canadian grain inspection department has issued figures of grain handled at this point for the first five months of the grain year, from Sept. 1 to Jan. 31, showing a big increase as compared with the same period a year previous.

Grain shipments for the five months just closed totalled 91,483 cars as against 59,177 cars the previous year, or an increase of 32,306 cars, or 54 per cent. Distribution of this increase is as follows: Canadian Pacific 50,777, against 36,514 cars; Canadian Northern 23,768, against 18,111 cars; Grand Trunk Pacific 8,776 against 4,099 cars; Great Northern 2,283, against 313 cars.

WILL FIGHT THE DECREE

Evangelical Alliance is Arranging a Campaign to Protest Against the Ne Temere Decree

A BIG CONVENTION

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Meetings to protest against the ne temere decree are to be held by the Evangelical Alliance throughout the country and a mass meeting will be held in Massey Hall about the first of March, preceded by a conference in the afternoon of the same day, at which delegates from all parts of the country will be present and speak on the subject.

This campaign was decided upon at a special meeting of the alliance held yesterday afternoon to consider the matter from all sides.

A delegation will wait on Sir James Whitney within a few days to seek his advice in the matter and ask for his co-operation.

A letter from the secretary, Rev. E. D. Silcox, gives an outline of the campaign. He says, in part:

"The Evangelical Alliance, of which I have the honor of being secretary, has for some months been quoted (and sometimes misquoted) in regard to the ne temere decree. I, therefore, wish to make a few statements of general interest in order that our position may be clearly understood.

"Our alliance contends that there should be one uniform marriage law for the whole Dominion, and not as it appears to-day, one law for Quebec and another for Ontario. It matters not by whom a couple is married, whether a Roman Catholic priest or a Protestant minister, so long as these are the accredited men to perform such a ceremony. Neither does it matter, or ought not to matter, whether one or both of the contracting parties are Protestant or Catholic.

"The greatest possible interest is being taken throughout Canada in regard to this question. I am daily in receipt of correspondence which evinces this interest. Many of the writers express the strongest desire that something definite will be done which will settle once for all this vexed question.

"At our committee meeting, it was decided to arrange as far as possible for public meetings to be held in all the centres of population and that at these gatherings delegates be appointed to attend a conference to be held in Toronto about the first week in March.

"We cherish the hope that all those throughout the province having received blank petitions will get them signed and returned as soon as possible, and, if any pastor or congregation has not received these, will they write to me at once. I shall be only too glad to forward as many as may be required."

Fourteen Men Drowned.

Portsmouth, Eng., Feb. 3.—The British submarine "A3" sank yesterday morning after a collision with the British gunboat Hazard off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight.

The "A3" carried a crew of eleven men, whose fate is not yet definitely known. It is believed, however, that all are lost, and that the vessel is full of water.

Torpedo practice had been in progress for some time, and the submarine "A3" was partially submerged when she came into collision with the gunboat.

Besides the regular crew of ten and a lieutenant who were on board the submarine, the Admiralty states that three other lieutenants were on the vessel going through a course of instruction, and were drowned when the submarine sank, making a total of fourteen deaths.

Gomez Would Take Job.

San Antonio, Feb. 3.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez, candidate for vice-president and former confidential agent for Madero at Washington, is prepared to assume the presidency, if there is a successful revolution in Northern Mexico. Discussing the matter here yesterday, he said:

"I understand the revolutionists endorse the plan of Tacubaya, which declared for me as President of Mexico. I will not lead an armed force, for I am a man of ideals and not a man of arms," continued Gomez, "but I will accept the Presidency if it is offered to me."

Senor Gomez denied that he had incited any rebellion in Mexico or would participate in an uprising.

IRON BOUNTIES AGAIN.

Borden Ministry Succumbs to the Steel Men.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—The Government has decided in favor of granting substantial bounties for the encouragement of iron making in Canada, is the statement which is current in Ottawa to-day on good authority. The great smelting industries at Sydney and the Soo were established largely by means of bonus aids. The last of these expired in June. These were the bounties on steel rods. There had previously been bounties on buffets and other forms of iron and steel, which had expired, and which Finance Minister Fielding did not renew.

The Government had decided that the state of the industries and the prosperity of the country warrant a restoration of the bounty aid. Therefore, it has been practically decided to give a bounty of a dollar a ton on pig produced from foreign ore, and a dollar and a half a ton on pig produced from domestic ore.

These bounties will likely run until the tariff commission is appointed and has looked into the question of aid for steel works. It is likely that then the bounties will be dropped and the steel industries aided by means of tariff protection for which they have always expressed a preference.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY

Orange Lily is daily curing the most obstinate cases of Female Disorders. Falling of the Womb, Leucorrhoea, Painful and Suppressed Menstruation, etc., etc., are all of them relieved from the start by its use, and a few weeks' or months' treatment accomplishes a complete cure. This remedy is a positive, scientific preparation, and is based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. It is an applied treatment; that is, it is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering parts, and it, therefore, acts with all the certainty of the known laws of chemical action. As it comes in direct contact with the diseased tissue, it cannot help have a beneficent influence. I receive from 10 to 50 letters daily, speaking of the benefits and cures it is performing, and so sure am I that it will do what is claimed for it that I will send, absolutely free, a 25c box to every suffering woman who will write for it. Price $1 per box, which is sufficient for one months' treatment. Address, MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

ULSTERMEN ARE BITTER

Correspondent in Belfast Predicts Serious Riots

80,000 AT BELFAST

London, Feb. 3—The Morning Post's Belfast correspondent is responsible for the statement that from 60,000 to 80,000 men will gather at Belfast next Thursday, the date of the proposed home rule meeting, animated by its tense hatred over what they regard as the treachery of Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Lord Pirrie, in advocating home rule for Ireland. The correspondent says 30,000 men will be armed with revolvers, and a great majority of them also with clubs, which will be one foot longer than the police batons.

Continuing the correspondent says the objectors to the meeting have no quarrel with John Redmond or Joseph Devlin, who always have been Nationalists, but they consider Mr. Churchill and Lord Pirrie have been bought to pass and hasten the establishment of home rule. The Dublin Castle authorities, the correspondent concludes, are cognizant of the preparations, and are aware that 7,000 troops will be necessary to keep order, but so far they have done nothing.

Sir Edward Grey has received the following telegram from a Melbourne meeting: "Six thousand loyal citizens assure you of the moral and material support of a majority of the Australians in defence of religious and civil liberty. The United Empire of Australia is unchanged since 1906 when 100,000 electors addressed the crown against home rule. Hold the fort, brave Ulster. No surrender."

Would Mean Separation?

London, Feb. 3.—John Mackinnon Robertson, M.P., addressing an Irish meeting in London last night, added an interesting contribution to the anxiously debated question whether under home rule, Ireland would control the customs and excise. Mr. Robertson said that, to give Ireland complete and absolute fiscal autonomy, would be tantamount to separating her from the Empire. There was no hope, he declared, of carrying the home rule bill on such a footing as this, and he trusted that the home rulers would realize that fiscal autonomy was outside of practical politics.

The Times differs with The Daily Chronicle's forecast of the home rule bill published Friday morning, which said that the Irish Parliament would have full control of the customs and excises.

The Times declares the Imperial Government will retain control of the customs.

Another B. C. Hold-Up.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 3.—The most spectacular and the boldest hold-up in the city's recent wave of crime occurred shortly after nine o'clock Thursday night, when a lone bandit, armed, but unmasked, entered McIntyre's Cafe, in Seymour street, one of the biggest in the city, and flourished his revolver at the heads of thirty men and women seated at the tables. The bandit apparently awaited his opportunity, which came, when the cashier was called to the telephone. He dashed through the front door, made his haul in a few moments and disappeared.

Succeeds Sutherland.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—H. A. Macdonell Collingwood is the new director of colonization for the Ontario Government.

He succeeds Donald Sutherland, who resigned to contest the constituency of South Oxford in the recent federal election, and was successful.

BEAR CATS HANG UP A LEAD OF SEVEN DEFEAT TRENTON IN FAST GAME. 12 TO 5

Biggest Crowd of the Season Saw Local Juniors Put Away Lawson Whitehead's Aggregation Here Last Night.

CAME FROM BEHIND

The Bear Cats will go to Trenton on Tuesday night with a lead of seven goals.

The game little local junior aggregation defeated Lawson Whitehead's much-tooted Trenton team, including the renowned Hobe Armstrong at Brock street rink last night by 12 goals to 5, leading at half time by 6 goals to 2. The biggest crowd of the season, some fifteen hundred fans, including one hundred enthusiastic rooters from Trenton saw the game which was a fast and remarkably clean exhibition between two speedy teams who played hockey from the drop of the hat. It was a game of the calibre that makes hockey the fascinating pastime that it is—full of excitement and with something doing every minute of the sixty. The crowd was tickled with the game and elated with the fine showing of the Bear Cats.

Although on end the Peterborough youngsters won by a comparatively large margin, they had to exert themselves every second of the game to look after the fast visitors. In fact, the Bear Cats had to come from behind twice and at one stage, early in the second half the score was only 6 to 5, with Trenton working like fiends to tie the score. Then the gameness of the Bear Cats asserted itself, as it has done in a pinch in their games this season. Instead of losing their heads and their heart as many a team has done under the circumstances, they went at the visitors at such a speedy clip that the Whitehead youngsters faded before the fierceness of the attack and from then on to the end the local kids were all over the black-suited seven. They were steaming down on the Trenton nets in line and passing nicely, taking the rubber right in for their goals, and they checked back desperately with the result that the Trenton team, who had been tearing along at a rapid clip in the early stages, wilted. It was a notable and well-deserved victory on the part of the Bear Cats who determined to annex another win right in Trenton on Tuesday night. They are not worrying about the big Trenton rink ,as they figure they will soon be right at home on the larger surface. At any rate the team are determined to keep up their winning streak.

The Bear Cats would have won by a larger margin had they had any luck in shooting. Time after time especially in the first half, did they work in on the nets only to shoot wide or to have Young nail their shots. The marksmanship was better in the second half, however. All through the homesters showed much more team work and a better system of attack than did the visitors. The local forwards, by neat passing, worked the rubber in on top of Young and nearly all their goals were scored from close in, while on the other hand the visitors almost invariably shot from outside the defence. There is no question as to which is the superior of the two styles. The Petes never let up for a moment. When Trenton rallied after half time and ran in three goals in five minutes, almost tieing the score, the homesters did not give up for an instant, but came back at the Whitehead bunch with an earnestness that soon took all the fight out of the team from the east. The forward line played together unselfishly on the attack, while except for a few moments in the first half, they were demons at back-checking. All through the last half they were back with every Trenton rush, their work in this respect being of championship calibre.

The game throughout was fast and exciting and entirely free from roughness. The penalty list was very light and most of the sentences were for minor offences. Both teams played a gentlemanly, clean game; they were out to play hockey and did so all through the piece.

Dwyer did some clever work in the nets for the Bear Cats, getting in the way of a number of likely shots and clearing quickly. He had not a chance with some of the shots that beat him. "Pete" Milloy played his usual hard-checking game at point, breaking up rushes with his customary success, while his rushes always helped. The crowd liked the way he came back to his position after a rush. Fred Denison was a tower of strength both on the defence and on the attack. His checking was good all through and his brilliant rushing kept the Trenton defence on the jump. Although he did not score himself, his speedy dashes marked by magnificent stick-handling were responsible for three or four scores, and he fed his forwards continually. Every man on the forward line worked his head off and all four were going at fast as ever at ish. Weir at rover, was resp for some of the prettiest work of the night. The little fellow kept steaming in on the Trenton nets regardless of the heavy defence, one of his scores in the second half being of a sensational nature. He eluded Armstrong, wheeled around Labey, falling down as he did so, but rolled over on his knees and tipped the rubber past Young from that position. His checking back could hardly have been improved upon and he was going all the time. Clancy showed great stick-handling, speed to burn and an effective shot from the side. He contributed some pretty individual dashes and combined nicely as well, while he never failed to come back when Trenton had the rubber. Hall, who was handicapped by cramps, had hard luck in his shooting in the first half, but in the second period he found himself and played the centre position to a nicety, figuring in nearly every combination rush. Kennedy played an effective hard-working game at right wing, looking after his check in grand style and scoring a couple of goals himself by following in for the rebounds. The goal he scored on Denison's shot from the side was one of the prettiest of the game.

Trenton showed a very speedy team, their best asset being their fast skating. From point through to centre they are fast, but they lack the team work of the Petes and have not the boring in qualities that distinguishes the play of the latter. Hobe Armstrong, whom Chaucer Elliott pronounced a second Fred Taylor, is the fastest man on the line-up. He gets away very fast and is a magnificent skater with a terrific shot, his style being very much like that of Bill Stoddard of Lindsay, inasmuch as he generally shoots from outside the defence instead of trying to go through. Young is a good goal minder and Labey at point a hard checking defence man. On the forward line the honours went to Sprentall and Tripp. The former had all kinds of speed, a good shot and he was always going while the little rover is a fine stick-handler and fast skater.

Wallie Hern of Stratford refereed and his work made an instantaneous hit with both teams and spectators. He missed nothing and was entirely fair and impartial. The teams lined up as follows:

Hobe Armstrong did not waste much time in giving the crowd a sample of the work for which he has become famous. From the face-off Clancy rushed, but Labey blocked and Armstrong secured the rubber. He shot down the rink to where Denison and Milloy were awaiting him with the double point defence system and surprised the rear guard, Dwyer included, by sending in a bullet-like shot from outside the defence, beating the Peterborough goaler completely, the puck landing in the top corner of the nets. Trenton 1, Peterborough 0.

Nothing daunted by this inauspicious opening, the Bear Cats went back at the Easterners. A combination rush resulted in a goal by Clancy but Referee Hern had rung his bell to penalize Thripp and the play was called back. Weir, however, took the rubber away from Armstrong as he was starting a rush and slammed it past Young for the first Peterborough goal, while the crowd nearly hoisted the roof. Trenton 1, Peterborough 1.

For the next few minutes the play was remarkably even with both teams rushing in turn. Finally Sprentall secured as Denison started a rush and his low shot from the side stole through a tangle of legs and sticks for a fluky goal, putting Trenton into the lead again. Trenton 2, Peterborough 1.

Back went the Bear Cats again and assumed the aggressive, Denison got away for some beautiful rushes which were dangerous more than once, but Young was in the way. The Petes' forward line was passing nicely, but had hard luck when in close, the attack seeming to fall to pieces at the crucial point, the shots either going wide or straight at Young. Milloy served a two minute sentence for tripping. Finally, however, after twelve minutes 'hard playing, Clancy came through with a pretty rush and although Young blocked the shot, Weir was on hand to poke the rubber into the nets for the tieing goal. Peterborough 2, Trenton 2.

One minute after Clancy put the Bear Cats in front, never to be headed. He secured the rubber at centre and uncorked one of the prettiest dodging rushes of the night, winding up with a neat shot which fooled Young. Peterborough 3, Trenton 2.

Thripp was sent to the side again for tripping. While he was off the Bear Cats increased their lead. Denison broke up a rush and got away for a pretty dash. He skated around Armstrong, drew Labey out and then passed to Hall, who batted the rubber into the nets. Peterborough 4, Trenton 2.

A moment later Hall and Denison got away again for a pretty combined dash, but Hall's shot went wide. Then Hobe Armstrong was benched for tripping. While the Trenton captain watched the proceedings from the penalty box, Milloy came through with a pretty rush, which ended in a neat goal by Clancy on a shot from the side. Peterborough 5, Trenton 2.

Just before half time Hall was benched for loafing. Peterborough went further away at the beginning of the second half. A minute after the face off, Kennedy started a rush, passed to Hall, who handed it to Weir, and the little rover found an opening. Peterborough 6, Trenton 2.

Once again Armstrong showed the crowd something about quick scoring. The puck went back to him from the face-off, and he broke away for a nice rush and shooting from outside the defence, beat Dwyer in fifteen seconds. Peterborough 6, Trenton 3.

Peterborough forwards got right through on top of Young, but he picked off the shot. Then Armstrong and McGorman combined for a nice goal, Armstrong doing the scoring. Peterborough 6, Trenton 4.

The visitors were having the best of the going at this stage. They were coming down with speedy rushes and shooting accurately and for a few minutes had the Bear Cats apparently on the run. When Labey came up the side and fooled Dwyer with a high, swift shot, leaving the score 6 to 5, there was jubilation in the ranks of the visitors and Trainer Tommy Daly passed the word out to shoot at every opportunity.

Then the Bear Cats showed the fighting qualities that earned their name in Lindsay. They failed to crumple up under the Trenton attack, but unloosed more speed and from then on to the end were all over the black-suited aggregation from the mouth of the canal. Thripp was benched for loafing at this period. While he was on the side Bollie Weir electrified the crowd by a beautiful dodging rush through the Trenton defence, tipping the rubber past Young. Peterborough 7, Trenton 5.

A minute later Hall sent the Bear Cats' stock up still higher by scoring after a combination rush with Weir which fooled the Trenton defence completely. Peterborough 8, Trenton 5.

The Bear Cats were going great guns and the visitors began to weaken under the pressure. When they attempted to break away the Petes' forwards who had not been checking back properly in the first half, were back with every rush and they were given little opportunity, while Denison and Milloy were playing splendidly together on the defence.

Denison broke away for one of his speedy jaunts down the side and shot dead on. Young blocked the shot, but Kennedy followed in and got the rebound in grand style, slamming the rubber into the nets before the Trenton goaler could turn around. Peterborough 9, Trenton 5.

Sprentall drew a penalty for slashing and was hardly back on the ice before Armstrong was chased for dumping Denison. The Petes took advantage of the opportunity to score another goal, Hall doing the trick on a pass from Weir. Peterborough 10, Trenton 5.

There was nothing to the game at this stage, but the Bear Cats. They were full of going and kept tearing down on the Trenton nets. It was only a question of how big a lead they would have to carry to Trenton and they kept plugging away. Clancy made it one more by taking a pass from Weir and shooting from the side. Peterborough 11, Trenton 5.

Denison came down with a beautiful rush, eluding the whole team and bored in on the nets only to lose the rubber when a score seemed certain. A moment after the Petes came back with a combination rush and Kennedy slipped another past Young, the final score of the game.

The summary follows:

1 Trenton, Armstrong 30 secs.
2 Peterborough, Weir 1 min.
3 Trenton, Sprentall 4 mins.
5 Peterborough, Clancy 1 min.
6 Peterborough, Hall 3 mins.
7 Peterborough, Clancy 1.30 mins.
Half Time—
8 Peterborough, Weir 1 min.
9 Trenton, Armstrong 30 secs.
10 Trenton, Armstrong 2 mins.
11 Trenton, Labey 3 mins.
12 Peterborough, Weir 3 mins.
13 Peterborough, Hall 1 min.
14 Peterborough, Kennedy 2 mins.
15 Peterborough, Hall 3 mins.
16 Peterborough, Clancy 3 mins.
17 Peterborough, Kennedy 1 min.

Penalties—Trenton—Thripp 3, Armstrong 2, Sprentall. Peterborough — Hall 2, Milloy.

COBOURG NEXT OPPONENTS FOR THE INTERMEDIATES

Cobourg defeated Oshawa last night by 8 goals to 4 in Cobourg, winning the round and district from the automobile town by two goals. Peterborough will play in Cobourg in a second round intermediate O.H.A. game on Wednesday night, and a monster excursion will be run, leaving the G. T.R. station at 7 o'clock. There will be a big crowd of fans on hand to see the battle. The return game will be played here on Friday night next.

TORONTO CURLERS LOSE TO PETERBOROUGH

Six rinks of the Toronto Victorias journeyed to this city yesterday with the evident intention of competing with the local aggregation in a friendly match, and at the same time annexing the big end of the score. As regards the first half of their well-defined plans, they were successful. They found no lack of curling material, who were ready and willing to offer themselves up as a sacrifice if necessary, but, thanks to a combination of good luck and a little concentrated efforts on the part of the local knights of the stanes, they were not called upon to assume the role of unwilling victims to the prowess of the Toronto curlers. Games were played in the afternoon, which resulted in a win for the Electric city curlers by a two figure score that would look like a joke in print.

In the evening they were again taken into camp by the six local quartettes to the extent of 16 shots. Following is the summary of the evening games:

WHAT STRIKES YOU IN NEW BRUNSWICK

PEOPLE ALL HAVE CONFIDENCE IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Everywhere you can find people who have been cured of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Bright's Disease or some other form of Kidney Disease — cure is always Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Cameron's Mills, Kent Co., N. B., Feb. 2.—(Special.)— The one thing that strikes a visitor to New Brunswick is the confidence its people have in Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for any and all forms of Kidney Disease. They have used them and they know by their own experience that Dodd's Kidney Pills, are all that is claimed for them. Everywhere you go you find this confidence. It is expressed in this village by Mrs. Joseph P. Daigle.

"I have great confidence in Dodd's Kidney Pills," she says, "Six boxes cured me of my Kidney Disease."

All over the Province you find people who have been cured of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Backache, or some other form of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills. You cannot find a case in which they have been given a fair trial that the results have not been beneficial.

CANADA LIFE'S SPLENDID SUCCESS

Surplus Earned and New Policies Surpassed Previous Records

In an address which was both analytical and illuminative, Mr. E. W. Cox, General Manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, yesterday laid before the annual meeting the record and standing of that great company.

Dealing, as it did, with an institution that nearly everybody has a personal interest in, the facts, referred to in the address would, in any event ,arouse a measure of general interest, but treated as they were, with a clarity and grasp of the subject which made the most complicated figures seem plain, the address was listened to with the closest interest.

The speaker, introduced by Hon. George A. Cox, the President of the Canada Life, referred to the progress of the Company in the past twelve years, the period in which the present management has been in charge, as follows:

"At the end of 1899, our total Assets amounted to $21,364,062, and today they amount to $44,257,341—a growth of $22,893,279, in the twelve years. While our Assets have been thus increasing we have not been overlooking our policyholders, for, in these twelve years, we have paid in cash, to them, or their beneficiaries, $27,084,645. Combining the two items, you will see that we have paid to policyholders or their representatives and placed to their credit during this period the sum of $50,000,000, in round figures, or to be exact, $49,977,924".

The business of the Canada Life now totals $135,615,000, and the policies accepted and issued, in 1911, were for $13,798,000. This formed a new high record, as did also the policies issued in Canada, for over $9,000,000. It was announced that it is the policy of the company to extend the Canadian business.

The rate of interest earned of the Canada Life has been gradually rising since 1899, and this is an important factor in the earning of surplus, for it was pointed out that no less than $923,000 was added to the surplus account from this source. The surplus earned in the year was $1,204,000, the greatest in the company's history. Favourable mortality and a continued low expense ratio were other contributing elements.

The Western Mortgages of the Company were touched upon and note made of the thorough and efficient organization of the loan department. The Canada Life mortgages now total $14,153,000, and no losses have ever been incurred in connection with them.

The Vice-President, Mr. J. H. Plummer, dealt with the investments of the company, and, having recently personally inspected the securities paid a high tribute to former members of the Investment Committee, who had been responsible for their selection. He pointed out the growing responsibility of the Directors, owing to the rapidly increasing assets, and noted that the steadily rising interest rate indicates their success.

The Canada Life, in its long and successful career, has never published a more satisactory statement of its affairs than the present one.

Robin Hood Mills Are To Be Rebuilt At Once

Examiner Special:

MOOSE JAW, SASK., FEB. 4.—(Special)—Saskatchewan Flour Mills Company, Limited, will immediately rebuild Robin Hood Flour Mills, at Moose Jaw, with a capacity double that of the old plant. In addition to flour and oatmeal mills, the Company will build a one-half million bushel elevator. Owing to the very deep snow in British Columbia, it is impossible to get immediate delivery of a sufficient quantity of Canadian lumber and consignments are being rushed from different United States points. In addition to flour mills, the City Council have within two weeks closed with five different reputable manufacturing concerns, who will, at the earliest possible date, commence active building operations on their new plants.

BITTER STRUGGLE UNDER SURFACE IN MANITOBA BOUNDARY QUESTION

OTTAWA, FEB. 5.—There is a general feeling that a bitter struggle is going on under the surface with regard to the Manitoba boundary question. Neither Mr. Cochrane nor Mr. Rogers were in their places in the House on Friday for more than a few minutes all day, and the stormy exit from the capital of Hon. R. P. Roblin, followed almost immediately by the appearance of Hon. W. H. Hearst, Minister of Lands in Ontario, lent weight to the impression that the Borden Government is face to face with a problem that demands settlement.

Whitney Losing Patience.

It is believed that with the arrival of Hon. W. H. Hearst, the successor to Hon. Frank Cochrane, in the Ontario portfolio of Lands, Forests and Mines, the boundary dispute between the Provinces of Ontario and Manitoba assumed a more acute stage. The presence of the Ontario Minister indicates that Sir James Whitney is beginning to lose patience, as the day for the opening of his Legislature draws near and there is still no appearance of a settlement.

Mr. Hearst was discretion itself with regard to the present state of the controversy between his Government and that of Hon. R. P. Roblin. Beyond giving an emphatic denial to the story published in the Mail and Empire that the Borden Government had come to a satisfactory arrangement with the two Governments, he would say nothing, but the emphasis which he put on the denial, spoke more loudly than any comment.

The truth of the matter is that the Borden Cabinet is as far, or farther than ever from having arrived at a settlement. Between Hon. Mr. Roblin, who represents the staunchly Conservative Province of Manitoba, to which Mr. Borden owes a big debt on the one hand, and Hon. Frank Cochrane, to whom Mr. Borden's debt for producing the goods in Ontario is even bigger, on the other, the Premier knows not where to turn. The indiscretion of Hon. Colin Campbell of Manitoba in announcing a triumphal settlement many weeks ago has complicated matters in Manitoba, where Mr. Campbell will probably be asked to produce the settlement. Mr. Cochrane is as adamant where the rights of Ontario are concerned.

Rogers is Eclipsed.

It may be asked where Hon. Robt. Rogers is in all this turmoil, when his adopted Province is battling so strenuously for her rights. Strange to relate, Mr. Rogers is taking a back seat in the whole matter. It is no secret that he and Mr. Cochrane hold vastly divergent views on the question of the boundary, and in the clash of wills Mr. Rogers has, for the time at least, and to all outward appearances, suffered a temporary eclipse. Political wiseacres say that Manitoba is more than likely to get the small end of the purse when it comes to a settlement. The Roblin Government is in a precarious state in Manitoba, and it is expected that the next election there will see it defeated. Weighed in the balance, Ontario is of considerable more importance to the Federal Government than Manitoba, and when the claims of the two are put in opposite balances the Dominion Government may well give the needed push which will mean much both in territory and prestige to this Province.

A Storm in Quebec.

"The Government is in a nasty situation," said a Nationalist sympathizer. "There is no doubt whatever that Separate schools are being established as rapidly as possible, and should the Government attempt to continue in the new territory the condition of things that obtain in the older parts of Manitoba, there will be a storm raised from one end of Quebec to another. I cannot speak for what Ontario will do or say, should a concession be made to Quebec, but I can say what will happen if it isn't."

THINK OF IT

Stop and think a moment about that cough that bothers you so much.

You must have been run-down when you got it, for if you had been perfectly strong your system would have thrown it off in two or three days.

Take our advice about this—what you really need is to build up your strength and enrich your blood; then the cough will disappear. We know it.

Carl Schultz of Coney Island, N.Y. says: "It only took two bottles of your delicious cod liver and iron preparation, Vinol, to put me on my feet again when I was all run down with a severe cough and cold which had lasted two months. I am recommending it to all my friends."

Vinol is the greatest strength creator and body builder we have ever seen, and besides its value in healing up weak sore lungs, it gives new strength and vitality to all weak, pale, run-down people. We guarantee Vinol to do this and give back your money if you are not satisfied. New Superintendent For St. Paul's Sunday School

Yesterday Mr. S. Keyes, one of the staff of the Normal School, was installed as Superintendent of St. Paul's Sunday School, taking the place of Mr. Wm. Madill, who has ably and acceptably filled the position for the past eight years.

Mr. Madill, in introducing Mr. Keyes to the teachers and scholars, said that he was being succeeded by a gentleman who would without a doubt, satisfactorily fill the office of Superintendent. He bespoke for him the hearty support of the teachers and scholars.

Mr. Keyes, in a few words, thanked the teacher and scholars for the honour conferred on him. He would strive to merit their confidence, and would do his best to promote the growth and influence of the school. He was pleased to learn that Mr. Madill had consented to act as Assistant Superintendent so that they all would have the benefit of his advice and help.

A feature of the occasion was the presentation of a large and handsome picture by Rev. Mr. Macdonald, the missionary sent by St. Paul's church to Corea. The presentation was made by Mr. King, on behalf of Mr. Cowan's Bible class.

Nomination Of Trustees For Otonabee Separate School

An aftermath, if not a direct result of the agitation, a year ago, against the election of a Catholic as a trustee of School Section No 8, Otonabee, is the decision to establish a separate school in that section. A meeting of the Separate School supporters in this section will be held on Thursday morning next, at the residence of Mr. Samuel Redmond, for the nomination of trustees for the new school, and the taking of the preliminary steps for its erection all the necessary requirements of the Ontario School Act having been complied with.

Mr. Richard Redmond has donated several acres for he site of the new school which will be located near the present Public school, in that section.

This action on the part of the Separate School supporters of the section, is no doubt due to the course of a certain clique, who endeavoured to remove from the Board of Trustees a Catholic who had been properly elected, according to the School law. It will be remembered that in the litigation that took place, feeling was aroused over what some considered a trifling matter. It seems unfortunate that the matter cannot be arranged so that the Public School can be continued, as the above action necessarily means its closing.

COUPLE WERE APPREHENDED

Case of North Country Couple Aired in the County Court This Morning

REMANDED FOR A WEEK

Full of pathos and disgusting circumstances that have seldom been parreled in court history; such was the case which was aired before Magistrate Edmison in the County Court this morning.

Apparently ignorant of the enormity of the charge registered against him, William James Shaw unravelled a story in the court room this morning, revealing the degrading conditions under which the accused, and one Elsie Parks, have been living since the 23rd of October. Purporting to be man and wife, they travelled up and down the country, begging here and there. Sometimes they would remain for several days in one neighbourhood, and then move on to the next.

Several days ago High County Constable Cochrane was notified of the circumstances of the case, and he decided to apprehend them. After driving over many miles of territory, without success, he returned to the city, where he received word that the pair had been seen in the vicinity of Buckhorn. He then notified Constable Montgomery of Buckhorn, to arrest the couple, which he did, locating them at Windover's. Constable Moore was detailed to bring them to the city, which he did, arriving here Saturday afternoon.

They were remanded for one week, and in the meantime, further evidence will be secured pertaining to the case.

WATCHING FOR BODIES

Special to The Examiner

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., FEB. 5.—Practically no effort is being made to recover the bodies of Burrell Hecock and Mrs. and Mrs. Eldridge, the victims of yesterday's accident. The only thing that can be done is to watch the river banks and the whirlpool when they appear at the surface. This may happen within ten days or the bodies may never be recovered. The crews of the Gorge trolly cars are constantly on the watch for bodies and are usually the first to discover them in the lower river, so if any of the three reappear word will at once be brought to the city. The supts. of reservations on both sides have posted notices warning tourists of the danger of ice, but neither of them feel they have authority to prevent people going on the ice bridge if they want to.

Monument To The Heroes

Special to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., FEB. 5.—Burrell Hecock, the seventeen year old Cleveland lad, who unselfishly and courageously gave up his life in the awful ice bridge fatality yesterday in an endeavour to save Mr. and Mrs. Staunton, will remain in public remembrance as one of the greatest heroes of the world-famed cataracts. Stanton died for his wife, Hecock died for two total strangers. Already there is a proposition to place a monument to his memory on the brink of the whirlpool. Hecock's father was here, this morning, but nothing could be done regarding the recovery of the bodies. He was an only son, but Hecock, senior, seemed to take comfort for himself an wife out of the fact that Burrell died a hero. There was no lack of testimony to that fact from many spectators who saw the tragedy.

CASCARETS CURE A BILIOUS HEADACHE

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse Your Liver, Stomach and Bowels and You Feel Great by Morning

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets — they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

TERRIBLE ACT OF INSANE MAN

Examiner Special:

MOOSE JAW, SASK., FEB. 5—John G. Klunde, a wealthy land prospector of Garrison, North Dakota, was murdered by a man who went suddenly insane, and then committed suicide on the Canadian Pacific eastbound express near Swift Current this morning. Both bodies were removed here. The insane man was not known to the passengers.

BELFAST SITUATION CAUSES ANXIETY

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 5.— This week opens in this hub of the British Empire with a mingled feeling of gratitude and apprehension. There is sincere thankfulness of the safe arrival home of their Majesties after several weeks' absence in that veritable hot-bed of sedition against the British Crown, the Indian Empire. On the other hand, there is much cause for anxiety as to what may happen this very week in that other fiery limb of Imperial Dominions, Ireland. The question uppermost in the minds of all serious-minded Britishers is, what will Thursday next bring forth. That is the day set for Winston Churchill's much advertised pronouncement in ultra-Unionist Belfast on Home Rule for Ireland. Last week's counter demonstration by the Presbyterians against Churchill's expected announcement was but a preliminary peace meeting, but even there, there were mutterings of a coming conflict which would not be overlooked, and already five thousand troops are on their way to Belfast to keep order next Thursday. Thinking men are to-day asking, is Ulster in earnest or only bluffing. It is pointed out that in the north of Ireland, religion is tragedy, and the Ulster Protestants are determined to resist Home Rule.

MULTITUDE OF MERGERS.

Canada in 1911 had 41 mergers, according to the Monetary Times. The authorised capital involved in 39 of these amounts to $344,000,000. Such mergers are inevitable, are in line with modern progress and ought economically save much waste and duplication. But under present practices they are generally hugely overcapitalized. Usually also a big merger implies a certain degree of trade monouoly, and so long as human nature is what it is, any kind of monopoly, and so long as human careful watching. Monopoly is to commerce what autocracy is to government; either may be just and amiable, but the tendency is the other way.. Mergers tend, by concentration of management and plant to reduce operating expenses, but human nature will not permit the purchasing public from reaping an undue advantage from this potential advantage.

THE FRUITS OF GROWTH.

The Dominion Parliament has voted six million dollars for the improvement and extension of Montre l Harbour. It is a good and pleasant sign of progress that the extension of the trade of Canada demands enlargement of the port of Montreal. The growth of the trade of Montreal, or rather of aCnada, for Montreal is our commercial metropolis, is indicated by the facts that the revenue of the port in 1891, twenty years ago, was $262,965, and in 1910 it had increased to $836,118, almost four times as much. Each year there had been a substantial increase. Naturally, the expenditure on current account had grown in proportion ,and while it was $202,000 in 1891, in 1910 it was $756,000. The work of developing the harbour will have to be continued for many years and when the present programme is completed, and eighteen million dollars spent, as proposed, it is anticipated that it will be found that the commerce has grown so that there will have to be further enlargement of the facilities there. At the pace Canada is growing, our expenditures in providing the media of growth will have to be maintained, if not increased. The national expenditure forced by national development, in the interests of further development, is well justified.

THE FLAG IN DANGER.

A despatch printed in another column, states that lumber is being "rushed from different American points" to rebuild the Robinhood flour mills and elevators at Moose Jaw. Now, according to the Gospel of loyalty, preached by the Conservatives at the last Dominion elections, here is where the flag comes to the dust, the tide of empire is cut, and imperial collapse comes. We are actually buying things from the Yankees. To this disloyal conduct on the part of the Robin Hood people, we have the government itself making a flag-ripping and empire-rending contribution. Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has made arrangements by which Western Canadian wheat is to be shipped out south, over United States railways, thus diverting railway traffic from west and east to north and south. Of course, there is a lot of nonsense about such talk, but it is precisely in line with the arguments advanced against extended trade with our neighbours by the politicians in the general elections of September. We were to be gobbled up by the United States if we committed the enormity, of exchanging untaxed turnips and potatoes with them. They tell us that reciprocity is dead, but the government which gained power by absurd cries of danger to the flag, and British connection, is showing, by the partial adoption of its advantages, that the principle is still existent, and that the question of reciprocity is still a debatable one.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Toronto minister, and a Presbyterian at that, says that tobogganning develops manhood and should be permitted on Sundays "with proper regulations."

Can moral and religiously perfect Ontario, furnish a companion municipality to the village of Sbennington, Quebec, which passed a local option by-law without a single "wet" vot being recorded?

When the Premier announced the date of the election for South Renfrew in the Commons yesterday afternoon the Liberals laughed with glee. And why, asks the Ottawa Free Press, should they not They were the Davy Crocket and the Government was the coon, and the coon came down.

The "open" winter is not confined to Canada. In England, sheep and cattle, excluded from pastures, are starving and one Peterborough family that went to New Orleans to gather January roses in the open air, were caught with only summer clothing, by a drop of the thermometer to two degrees below zero.

Rev. Dr. Hincks, Toronto, is coming to his right senses. He contrasts the solidity of Roman Catholics with the divisions of Protestantism. Striving to imitate the good in the lives or creeds of others is better than trying to build up one's own faith by tearing down and abusing that of another. The best religious faith is that whose tenets are practised.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has introduced, with trifling alteration the grain bill originated by the Laurier government. He says he is not the father of the bill, but only the Foster father. He recognizes that both transportation and storage facilities for the west are inadequate, though there is storage in the west for 105 million bushels.

"MUD" AND "HONOUR."

(Toronto Telegram.)

"A little less MUD—a little more HONOUR" is Major R. W. Leonard's remedy for inefficiency in places of public responsibility.

But Hon. Frank Cochrane had to throw "MUD" in the form of a dismissal at the administrators of the National Transcontinental contract before Mr. Cochrane could throw "HONOUR" at Major Leonard in the form of an appointment to administer that contract.

"HONOUR" may be a surer cure for public inefficiency than "MUD." Yet the country would not now enjoy the really great value of Major Leonard's services at the head of the National Transcontinental work if "MUD" had not been freely and finally thrown at Major Leonard's predecessors in that high responsibility.

CHICKENS ARE COMING HOME.

(Ottawa Free Press)

It does not require an expert student of the political situation in Parliament to realize that the Borden Government has got to that stage of is career when the pre-election chickens are coming home to roost.

The Conservative party promised a tariff commission with full publicity. It now proposes a secret commission which is nothing but an advisory board to the Cabinet.

It promised a more active naval policy. It now proposes to do nothing in the matter of naval defence at all.

It promised nationalisation of telegraphs and telephones. It now proposes to refer that subject to another commission of investigation.

It promised the giving of the natural resources of the prairie provinces to those provinces. Now, it is hedging upon this issue until it is in a position where it can hand over those atural resources to Conservative governments in Alberta and Saskatchewan, which it will not do within the lifetime of this Parliament.

It promised automatic issuance of election writs. It is now withholding the writ for South Renfrew for a purely partisan purpose.

It promised a settlement of the Manitoba-Ontario boundary dispute, which would satisfy everybody. Today it finds itself in the midst of a fierce quarrel between the Governments of Manitoba and Ontario.

All these questions have got to be grappled with and decided before the present session ends. It will not satisfy the people of Canada to be told that this subject and that has been referred to a commission. That is not the principle of responsible government upon which our constitution is founded.

The Government of the day has its responsibilities, and it cannot escape them by reference of difficult questions to commissions or to the courts. Ministerial responsibility remains as strong a feature of our government to-day as it has been since 1840, and to attempt to shelve that responsibility, which is evidently the policy of the Borden Cabinet, must be, and will be, strenuously fought by the Liberal party.

Mr. Borden let loose his brood of chickens when in opposition. Now that he is in power, he must take care of them. If he will not do so willingly, he must be compelled to do so by every legitimate means in the hands of the Liberal party.

WILL CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hendry who during the past twelve years have had charge of the Children's Shelter, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Friday, Feb. 9th. About eighty invitations have been sent out to relatives, most of whom will come from Lindsay and that district. Mr. and Mrs. Henry have many friends in Peterborough who will learn with pleasure of this event and will hope that the future will afford them many opportunities of celebrating the anniversary of their wedding.

OTTAWA PARAGRAPHS

Growth Canadian Railways—Conservatives in Caucus—Bourassa Wants Naval Law Repealed—Outside Service Commission—Renewal of Bounties on Steel and Iron—Perley Back From Europe—Lemieux in Fighting Mood

The growth and development of Canadian railways, and, generally speaking, their prosperity, are indicated in a very complete and well-prepared report by John Lambert Payne, Comptroller of Railway Statistics, tabled in the House on Friday. The total track is 25,400 miles, an increase of 689 miles. At the end of June last, the period covered by the report, 7,000 miles of road were under construction, of this 1,578 miles were in actual operation at that date, though not formally declared to be so by the Railway Commission. In the year $118,391,514 was added to the capital liability of the railways, of which $61,650,300 was in stocks and $56,741,214 in funded debt. The capital liability is $1,598,689,201, or $56,821 per mile.

The Inside of the Caucus.

Nothing but gloom is discussed at Conservative caucuses. When is George Perley going to get home from talking to the Pope in Ottawa Valley Latin, helped out with the sign language? What does Billy Maclean mean by threatening to bring on Ne Temere again? What will moderate protectionists say to the renewal of the steal—be careful with that word. Mr. Printer—bounties? For heaven's sake cut the session short and keep any more of the chickens from perching. You can't shoo them all off with Royal Commissions—we must have a little responsible Government left. Even J. Hampden Burnham, who has been throwing out his chest as the boss vaticinator ever since he guessed right twice on Ne Temere — even Hon. Burnham, we repeat, sees not much good in chickens that come home to roost. Of what use are chickens to a prophet unless you can look inside them and see what the crop is going to be next year?

In Fighting Mood.

Rodolphe Lemieux, ex-postmaster-general, was in fighting mood on Friday evening when he addressed the Young Liberal Association.

"The Right Hon. R. L. Borden came into power through the Ne Temere, and through the Ne Temere he will probably meet his political doom," he declared.

He pictured the premier faced with two problems—the Ne Temere and the Manitoba boundary question — and declared that he was unable to handle either of them fairly and fearlessly, being afraid of his Ontario majority and unable to trust his Quebec allies.

He said that the exaggerated campaign cries that gave the Conservatives their majority, would have an unfortunate sequel for that party.

In a signed article, which occupies a large part of the front page of Le Devoir, Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist chieftain, calls on Premier Borden to repeal the Laurier naval law, and takes him to task for not having taken the matter up before. His argument is that Lord Beresford in his book, ("The Betrayal,") has declared the British navy to be in a badly disorganized condition, and that therefore, the Canadian people should not have anything to do with it. It says the only course to be followed is the repeal of the law.

"Why does the federal government and the majority which supports it hesitate to repeal this law?" he concludes.

"The election of the premier himself, the verdict of Sept. 21 last, condemned the naval law no less than the reciprocity pact. If the treaty had been signed would the government have hesitated in demanding its annulment. What does it fear, then, in repealing this absurd law which no one wanted, sincere imperialists no more than arrant Nationalists?"

An emphatic denial was given to The Mail and Empire story that the boundaries question was settled by Hon. W. H. Hearst, minister of mines and forests in Ontario.

He was in Ottawa Friday in conference with the government. Lengthy sessions were held between Premier Borden and Mr. Hearst and Hon. Frank Cochrane representing Ontario, and Hon. Robert Rogers representing Manitoba. Mr. Hearst said that so far nothing is settled.

The ministers are indignant at the stories which have been sent out that a settlement has been made.

No Settlement Yet.

Mr. Hearst said nothing has been decided upon. He is anxious to get the matter settled so it can be presented to the Ontario legislature for ratification.

Strong Citizenship.

The Duke of Connaught made his reply to an address presented to him by the Canadian Defence League, which set forth as its object the development of strong citizenship and physical and military training of the young men and boys of the Dominion.

"I am glad to have the opportunity of meeting the representatives of the Canadian Defence League, and to hear something of the objects of your association. These objects, as concisely summed up in the last paragraph of your address, have my full sympathy. The first essential of military training is the production of a healthy, disciplined manhood, and no thoughtful person could possibly dispute the desirability of this subject. Health and discipline are necessary for our daily life and for the successful conduct of business, and an effort to secure them for the rising generation cannot be laid open to the charge of militarism, which has sometimes been brought by the ignorant against associations such as yours. I wish you every success in this work, which you have so patriotically undertaken, and to which you are unselfishly giving your time; I trust that the Canadian Defence League may long continue to benefit the young men of the Dominion of Canada."

Outside Service Commission.

To place the whole outside service of the government under a commission instead of following the custom heretofore in force, of making such appointments on the basis of political recommendation, is a radical reform contemplated by the Government In giving effect to this policy the party would be implementing its promises when in opposition.

Renewal of Bounties.

The steel and iron interests have won out in their demand on the Borden Government for a renewal of the bounties which expired last June and which Laurier refused to renew. It is learned on authority, that the Government intends to grant a renewal of the bounties on pig iron, pending investigation by the new Tariff Commission.

Will Increase Them.

The bounty granted during 1910 was ninety cents per ton on pig iron manufactured from Canadian ore and forty cents per ton on pig iron manufactured from foreign ore. It is proposed not only to renew this, but to increase it to $1.50 per ton on pig iron manufactured from Canadian ore and $1.00 per ton on pig iron manufactured from foreign ore. The subsidy to be paid this year on this basis will amount to probably $750,000.

Perley Back From Europe.

Hon. George E. Perley returned from Europe on the Empress of Britain on Friday. He said he had a delightful trip abroad.

"What does the Admiralty think of the Canadian naval situation?" he was asked.

"Oh," replied Mr. Perley, "I was not over on business, so I do not know. I was rather run down after the election and went across for a loaf and rest. I spent my holiday at Cannes in the south of France." Mr. Perley denied that he had gone to Rome to interview the Vatican.

PREACHING TO THE HEATHEN

Pastor Russell Delivers a Message of Love on India's Coral Strand.

Travancore, India, Feb. 4.—The Foreign Missions Committee of the International Bible Students Association has reached here. Pastor Russell of the Committee is widely known in this District. His coming has been a topic of interest for several weeks. Not only are Christian natives alert to meet him, but their heathen countrymen are, also, interested. Mohammedans have been inquiring, Has Pastor Russell any special message for us? The arrangement is that the Pastor shall spend a full week in this District and be at Madras next Sunday. He will, of course, be speaking every day and, although this will be done through an interpreter, the natives are keenly alert to hear what they call, "God's Love Message." Addressing a large crowd under rather unfavorable circumstances, the Pastor said:

I have chosen as my text on this occasion the Message of the angels at the birth of our Redeemer—"Fear not! Behold, we bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people." (Luke ii, 10.) I feel that I am not entirely a stranger to many of you, nor unwelcome to me. For a considerable time I have seen regular reports sent in from this District to the International Bible Students Association, of which I have the honor of being President. These reports informed us of your growing love for God and for the Message of His grace set before us in the Bible. Everything of interest that transpires amongst you here is promptly reported to us—the numbers who attend the meetings, the numbers of adults immersed and the numbers of children consecrated by their parents.

These reports in turn are published to the Bible Students all over the world. We want you to know of the Christian love of these children of God of various nationalities who are represented by the Committee now before you. We desire to know of your spiritual state and of what may be done wisely and economically to forward the same. Our Society is not wealthy, but the little that it possesses is most cheerfully and economically used in the service of the Lord and His Cause.

Even some of your faces are familiar to us, for Brother Devasahayam sent us the photos of his native assistants of this District. No doubt he explained to you his own marvelous experiences, as he told them to us: How, as the son of a native Methodist missionary, he thought to follow in his father's footsteps, after obtaining an education. He came to America, and, as a result of a four years' course in a Methodist College in Ohio, found himself an agnostic—a Higher Critic, an Evolutionist, a thorough unbeliever in the inspiration of the Bible. Too honest to preach what he no longer believed, he abandoned missionary intentions.

Later, six Volumes of "Studies in the Scriptures," published by the International Bible Students Association, brought the brother back to the Bible and to a fuller and more intelligent faith than he had ever before known. Then he had a Message of "good tidings" for his race, and God's providence sent him back to you; and now the true light, through his instrumentality, has reached many of your hearts and brought gladness through a more intelligent knowledge of God, through His Word. Ah, dear friends, we all know what a joyful Message of Truth has come to you, and we trust that you will be faithful in letting your light shine before others and thus glorify your Father in Heaven.

Two days ago, on the Island of Ceylon, my attention was drawn to the tomb of the good Bishop Heber. Immediately to my mind came the words of his well-known hymn,

"What though the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's Isle,
And every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile!"

From childhood I had sung those words, and finally found myself on Ceylon's Isle. But, my dear hearers, I am not so sure but that the dear Bishop exaggerated a little the vileness of the human types of this vicinity. Everywhere, indeed, I see on every hand, and, if vileness be measured by our great Creator by lack of wealth, then certainly you are vile in comparison to some more wealthy. But can we really believe that this is the Divine standard? Shall we not rather believe the words of Jehovah, "Man looketh upon the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart" (I. Samuel xvi, 7.)

I am not here to flatter you—not here to say that poverty is a proof of purity of heart. On the contrary, it is my duty as a minister of Christ to declare that there is none righteous, no, not one. But I may say to you that, admitting that all men have sinned—come in ways more peculiar to one nationality and some to another, it is ours to point out the need of an Atonement for sin and the fact that "the Blood, (the sacrifice) of Jesus Christ our Lord, cleanseth us from all sin"—"Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is no other Name given under heaven among men whereby we must be saved"—Jew or Gentile, barbarian, Caucasian or Indian.

I believe, therefore, that we cannot do better than to tell you the "Old, Old Story" of God's love manifested in Christ, the Redeemer. My text tells that Old Story in precious words of life, which had well-nigh been lost during the darker ages and since; for many of you may be surprised to know that the vast majority of people in Christian lands have very slight conception of the love of God. Indeed, I am sorry that it is true, but the faith of many Christians, as expressed in their creeds, is more terrible, more God-dishonoring than are the beliefs of any heathen in the whole world.

I am glad to tell you, however, that really very few people in Christian lands any longer believe their own creeds. I know not how much of them are preached here. True Christian people are much better than their creeds. They have a sympathy for you who live in these parts and for residents of other benighted lands. Many of them give liberally, whether wisely or not, in their desire to benefit the heathen.

I assure you that however much their creeds assert it, these kind-hearted people do not believe that the masses of mankind are bound to eternal misery because of not having heard of the "Only Name." They really do not know what they believe. The smoke of the "dark ages" still prevails to such an extent that their eyes of understanding cannot see "the length and the breadth and the height and the depth of the love of God, which passeth all understanding." They do know, however, that although they are fallen from God's image through sin, they still have too much of His God-like quality of love to torture anybody, or even dumb brutes; hence they realize that there must be some mistake in the creeds which they have so long possessed, which consign all except "the elect" to eternal misery.

Note in our text the terms of a blessing intended of God for every creature. Two thousand years before the angels uttered those words God gave the same Message of hope and joy to Father Abraham. Let those of this audience who are Mohammedans, as well as others, call to mind the promise to which I refer. It was the promise with the oath. God, foreknowing that the fulfillment of the promise would be long delayed, made oath to it, so that all who trust in Him might have the consolation of that promise. And what is the promise? God said to Abraham, "In thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

Abraham was twice glad! He rejoiced that the curse that had rested upon the race would ultimately be lifted; secondly, he rejoiced that the blessing of the Almighty would reach mankind through his posterity. Neither Ishmael nor Isaac was the promised seed—neither blessed the world. Neither Jacob nor Esau was the promised Seed of Abraham to bless the world, for neither of them did the work. Neither did the nation of Israel succeed in blessing the world; nor did they attain eternal life for themselves. The Divine Purpose looked down to Messiah and saw in Him the real Seed of Abraham through whom eventually Divine Power will be exercised and Divine Grace be shed abroad among men.

According to the Scriptures, the Messiah, the Deliverer, is composite—composed of numerous members. Each one of these members must be tested and proven in respect to his loyalty to God and to the principles of righteousness before he can attain to his glorious reward of the divine nature. God has foreordained how many shall constitute this Messiah company and what shall be their character qualifications, according to which they may make their "calling and their election sure."

They must be so loyal to God and to the principles of His righteousness that they will gladly sacrifice every earthly interest, yea, life itself. It will be readily seen that there are not very many of such deep devotion as this, in the whole world. However, God, who knows the end from the beginning, declares that His purposes shall not fail, which means that He will succeed in the appointed time in finding the predestinated number of the proper faith, obedience, character.

The primary restrictions were that this glorious opportunity to become members of the Messiah, "the Seed of Abraham" for the blessing of the world, must be first offered to the natural seed of Abraham. Only after the worthy of these had been gathered could this great privilege be extended to others. But mark you well—the selection of this special class does not involve the "non-elect" in eternal torment, nor in any disaster. On the contrary, the gathering of the Jewish church is as an assurance on God's part of the fulfillment of His larger promise, that through these saintly ones, the Messianic Body, great blessings are to be showered upon Abraham's natural seed; yea, and upon all the families of the earth.

The blessing of the world will be Restitution. If, as the Evolutionists tell us, the Bible theory, that man was created in God's image, is wrong and he is really the off-spring of an ape, then Restitution would be the worst thing that could possibly come to mankind—to restore him to simian conditions. But the Bible is quite right in giving the Divine declaration to man that he was created perfect and upright and in the image and likeness of God and that our defilement came through the sin of disobedience and that our degradation came through heredity and that we needed to be redeemed with the life of another—that "as by a man came death, by a man also should come the resurrection of the dead." The simple story of the Bible is of human degradation and death, of redemption and of a coming time of uplifting from sin and death conditions to perfection and life. This offer will be as world-wide as was the condemnation which came upon our race through Adam. For six thousand years our race has been living under a reign of sin and death, but the Seventh Thousand will be the great Sabbath typified by Israel's Jubilee Year, in which all debtors went free and every man returned to his former estate.

The glorious possibilities of that thousand years are variously presented to us in the Bible. It is to be the New Day, to be ushered in by the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His beams. Ignorance and sin, sorrow and death, shall flee away—darkness and superstition shall vanish. Satan shall be bound for a thousand years and deceive man no more. Messiah will reign with Divine Power, as Priest upon His Throne. He will extend mercy to those whom He rules. He will instruct them, succor them, uplift them, and, as the hand of God, will wipe away all tears.

Meantime the earth itself will be made to "blossom as the rose," and to "yield her increase," and "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad." "The knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the sea." The result will be that "every knee will bow and every tongue confess" to the glory of God, for all who shall reject this wonderful demonstration of Divine Power and love will be esteemed unworthy of any further favors and will be destroyed from among the people, in the Second Death. St. Peter tells us that all the holy Prophets told this blessed story of coming restitution. See his plain statement of the matter in Acts iii, 19-23.

We must not forget that in the Divine arrangement a sacrifice for sins was necessary. Because of his disobedience, Adam was condemned to death, but not to eternal torment, as our creeds mistakenly declare. His race in him, when he sinned, shared his penalty; hence we are a dying race—mentally, morally and physically wrecked. God could not justly set aside His own sentiments and declare us worthy of His favor and its gift of eternal life. But since all came into this condemned condition through one man's disobedience, it was possible that all should be released from the death sentence through the sacrifice of one Redeemer. "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive, every man in his own order."—1. Corinthians xv, 22, 23.

Here we have an important question: Has a Redeemer been provided so that God can justly permit Messiah to awaken the sleeping members of our race and to uplift all out of sin and death, back to human perfection and an earthly Eden, world-wide? The answer is, Yes. Jesus left His heavenly glory and was made flesh, "that He by the grace of God should taste death (not eternal torment) for every man." (Hebrews ii, 9.) His reward of the Father was a glorious exaltation to the right hand of Divine Majesty, "far above angels, principalities and powers." Thus He was qualified to rule and to bless those whom His death redeemed.

Why, then, does the Messianic work delay? Why did Jesus not immediately begin the work of restitution? The Bible answers the question most clearly. It assures us that before that work can begin there must be selected from amongst men, by a special call and by special tests, a saintly class, a "little flock," to whom it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom in jointheirship with His only Son, the Redeemer. So then, what remains is for all of this class to finish their course with joy and then, by the First Resurrection, to pass beyond the veil to be forever with their Lord as spirit beings—partakers of the divine nature, far above angels, principalities and powers.

Then the spiritual Seed of Abraham will be complete, and then it will begin its work of blessings, first the natural seed of Abraham, and, subsequently, all the families of the earth. If at first we were inclined to feel impatient of the long delay, we are checked by the thought that if the work of God in the selection of the spiritual Seed of Abraham, "like unto the stars of heaven," had been completed sooner, we would have missed the glorious opportunity of becoming members of it. Rather, therefore, let us rejoice in the delay, realizing that the world in general suffers nothing in death, but merely sleeps until the resurrection morning. Let us be glad and rejoice and give glory to God and strive to make our "calling and our election sure" to a place in Abraham's spiritual Seed, of whom St. Paul declares, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed and heirs according to the promise." (Galatians iii, 29.) How glad we well may be and how much we well may rejoice in the glorious Plan of our God, whose length and breadth and height and depth transcend our highest hopes and ambitions.

"Is it Paul Farley's career, or Felix Fleming's life?" asked the demon self, and Paul's heart made a great upward bound and quivered back with a long, vibrating pain. "Neither," he breathed, clenching his hands, "neither one nor the other. I can, I will be strong, and come what may, the sacrifice, the suffering, is mine, not his, and with a wild gust of contrition he stooped impulsively, and touched the bruised forehead lightly with his lips.

"What was that?" Felix asked, opening his eyes and fixing a dazed, unseeing gaze on Paul.

"A fly, sir," he returned readily; "I flicked it off with my handkerchief."

The low, rich, familiar voice dispersed the dream shadows and brought his torpid faculties into full play. He shifted his position, pulled himself upright by the arm of his chair, and stared at his visitor with wide-open eyes. In the strain of the silence Paul heard the ticking of his watch, and his own irregular breathing. A gust of wind shook the framework of the casement and rumbled in the chimney, then a door blew vigorously to, somewhere below stairs, and with a jar the hollow fire caved in, a bright flame shot up and illumined the room, and Paul's sombre figure stood out prominently in the red light. Felix saw a dark, composed face confronting him, with the slightest suspicion of boredom about the handsome eyes and thin, short upper lip.

"Why are you here? What have you come back for?" he demanded with angry alarm.

"Wiseman sent in his estimate of the mill cottages, Sir Thomas brought it to me, and I proposed going back with him. I explained the cause of my absence, and he saw no objection to my returning, provided you knew of it. I have come to tell you that I am back for good—shall I put on some coal?"

He mended the fire and resumed his seat, diving his hands into his trousers pockets lest the squire should see their palsied motion.

"You have come back for sheer wanton foolery, and you will not stay. You understand me, Farley; I shall not allow you to stay."

"May I smoke, sir, or will it annoy you?" he asked with cheerful pleasantness.

"Look here, Farley, it's no use your trying to carry it off with a high hand; no amount of bombast will go down with me. I am determined you shall return to town, even if I have to carry you there, and I can be deuced obstinate if the occasion warrants, as I daresay you know."

"You don't take into consideration, Mr. Fleming, that I am not my own master. I am not at liberty to come and go as I please. I don't see how you can expect me to—"

"I don't take anyone or anything into consideration except you, and I am perfectly sure when I have seen Sir Thomas you will be at liberty to go wherever I think it's right for you to be."

Paul looked at the set face, at the angry glint in the bright eyes, and wondered whether a little judicious coaxing would soften the flinty, implacable front.

"Felix," he said, in a wheedling tone, seating himself on a wooden stool close by the squire's chair, "don't you think it's a little hard for me to feel that you are getting all the kicks and I all the ha'pence?"

"I dont understand the metaphor; explain what you mean."

"Well, this accident of yours—"

"Oh, is that what brought you down? A pity you heard of it, and hearing it, a pity to have let it trouble you."

It does trouble me horribly. Mr Fleming, if that woman comes back here and finds me gone she will vent her spite on you."

"Nonsense," he said, smiling. "I can take care of myself."

"You can't. This accident proves it. I am sure she had a hand in it, and why in the name of all that's wonderful and mysterious in creation should you take upon yourself the result of my wrong—why should you shield me from what it is my duty to face?"

Felix laid a hand on his shoulder, and left it there.

"My dear lad," he said in a low, moved voice, "are we always sure in what direction our duty lies? Is it not possible to mistake rashness for a virtue and foolhardiness for courage? Self-preservation is a duty. We none of us stand alone; we are linked by the subtle sympathies of mind, by mysterious, kindred magnetism, and, therefore, susceptible to reflected pain. You cannot harm yourself without hurting others, for the spirit is neither blind nor deaf, and thus a man's wayward act may blast a brother's soul. Moreover life is good; one ought to be too grateful for the life of the heart, and the life of the body to permit a vain, romantic folly to destroy such a precious gift. And life must be very sweet to you, Paul, so full flavoured as it is, so promising of a rich harvest, don't—"

"Felix," he interrupted, looking up into the pale, pained face, "is not life sweet to you also?"

"Yes, but mine is not in danger; yours is in imminent peril."

"You cannot convince me—there is fear, a horrible, ever-present fear. I am as much imbued with the idea that danger menaces you as you are that it threatens me."

"What a ridiculous boy you are!" he said, wearily closing his eyes. "Which train do you go back by this evening?"

"Not any train. I am not going back."

Psoriasis Was Cured

After Five Years of Suffering —Three Doctors Failed and Said Case Was Incurable

Itching and Burning Was Terrible Until Relief and Cure Was Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Psoriasis is another name for chronic eczema. It is the worst form of this dreadful itching skin disease. Once eczema has reached this stage it is usually considered incurable.

But here is a case which proves again the wonderful healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Not only does relief come quickly, but the resulting benefits are thorough and lasting.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Gemecon, Ont., writes: "I thought it my duty to write you telling you the great benefit I received from using Dr. Chase's Ointment. For five years I suffered with what three doctors called Psoriasis. I doctored with three different doctors, with no good results, and one of our noted doctors told me if any one offered to guarantee me a cure for $50.00 to keep my money in my pocket, as I could not be cured.

"The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head. The itching and burning was hard to bear. At last my brother read in the paper about Dr. Chase's Ointment as a healer. I got 3 boxes, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise the ointment enough, and you are at liberty to use my testimony, as I hope thereby to induce other sufferers to try the same."

ARE YOU AILING

WEAK AND NERVOUS

To-day the common complaint with weak men and women is lack of kidney vitality. Here you have the cause of your ill-health.

Wouldn't it be wise to use a time-tested remedy like Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they cure that "ailing" feeling in one night. Next morning you feel like new—bright, fresh, and happy. Appetite improves, dull, sallow color gives ruddy and clear, proving that great good is being done by this scientific medicine.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills A Sure Cure

No Appetite—Bad Color—General Debility.

"I was run down," writes Mr. Albert E. Dixon, of Fairhaven P. O. "My color was dull, and appetite was poor, and I constantly suffered from rheumatism.

"I found it hard to sleep and felt worn out and tired all the time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills made an instant change. I grew strong, my blood was restored, rheumatism vanished. To-day I am vigorous, cheery, and healthy in every respect."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills when you're well, when you're sick, whenever you think a purifying tonic will do you good. Sold everywhere in yellow boxes, 25c each, or five for $1.00. Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

RICHARD HALL & SON

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

A sentence uttered by a woman who has made a great success as an interior decorator has impressed me much. It was this: "We not only try to furnish with taste, but we try to fit the room to the person who is to occupy it, and make it a characteristic and desirable setting for the personality of the owner".

How many rooms one enters, in which it is evident that no such effort to embody the individuality of the occupant in the furnishings of the room has been made.

Little after touches, such as the presence of magazines or music, the lavish distribution of embroideries, the nature of the tows of books on the book-shelves, may suggest and depict to us, the character of the persons who inhabit the room, but in the actual furnishings themselves, there is frequently no relation to those persons. Mission was in style when this room was furnished, and so the room consists of so many set pieces of mission. Circassian walnut was the rage when that couple married, and therefore, their slender purse had to be stretched to purchase a few inferior and inartistic pieces of the reigning wood.

The woman who blindly follows the dictates of fashion in gowning herself, with a complete indifference as to whether the particular style is becoming or not, is quite generally censured. I believe that the woman who has the most time, the most interest, and hence the deciding voice in this matter—with like devotion to fashion and indifference to individuality, is equally at fault.

There are becoming rooms as well as becoming gowns. A successful living room is an appropriate setting for the people who inhabit it. I refer especially to the living room, because that is the centre of the home—the room in which the largest proportion of its inhabitant's waking time is apt to be spent, and the room where there is most opportunity for individuality. The furnishings of a dining-room, a bedroom, a kitchen, must be, to a certain extent, conventional, and must cotain stated articles of furniture, but there are absolutely no particular appointments which have to appear in a living room.

Now, very few of us can afford to employ interior decorators, but we can all employ taste and individuality in furnishing our homes. We can choose the colour or colours which are to prevail i our rooms with reference to ourselves. Everyone, I believe, has a colour which peculiarly belongs to him.

Again, we can choose the style of furnishings just as carefully. Don't subscribe to mission, just because mission is the rage. Mission is just as unbecoming to certain people as tailored shirtwaists and stiff collars. Don't get mahogany just because mahogany is expensive. The exquisite graining and colouring of golden oak might be thought more beautiful that mahogany, if it chanced to be more costly. Don't buy an oblong table and a davenport, just because these are the style, if in your heart you really like a round table and a couch better. Remember, that styles will come and styles will go during the years you will probably live with that furniture.

Don't stock up with old-fashioned furniture, just because you know that is considered artistic. There are people to whom old-fashioned furniture belongs, and people to whom it does not, just as there are girls who look charming in quaint flowered muslins and fichus and other old-time styles, and other girls on whom such styles look incongruous and irrelevent.

Don't try to get everything at once and lower your standard of quality in order to encompass quantity. Have the essentials just as you want them, and be willing to wait for the fill-ins. Far better that your home should be a bit bare at first, than it should be well stocked with cheap and meaningless furniture.

Don't try to furnish a home in a week, a month, or a year. Home building—I don't mean house building—should be the dream and labour of a lifetime. I wish our girls might be taught the technique of home furnishing in the public schools, and from then on might each plan and dream about her home until the time to make the dream a reality should come.

Some of the homes, of course, would never materialize. But think of the benefit accruing to those which really did come true. And surely no beautiful dreaming can ever be a loss even if the reality never follows the dream.

BOY SCOUT LEADERS TO HOLD A CONVENTION

The Boy Scout Movement is again launched out upon another year's work, which promises to be most successful. The returns for 1911 show that our leading citizens are realising that the movement is an ideal one for boys; helping to develop in them the true spirit of manliness that will be of benefit to them all through life. Boys are taking an interest in the welfare and future of this Canada of ours, and are beginning to realize that if we are to become a nation, they must every one of them do their part towards this end, and not only themselves, but they are also helping the other fellow who may, through circumstances, be a little downhearted. 7,000 boys in the Province of Ontario alone trying to live, day by day, that they may be of service to their fellow-man; 7,000 boys doing their good turn every day, 365 days of the year, 2,555,000 good turns done each year, at the present strength, which will double during 1912. Yet, in the face of this some will say that Boy Scouts are being trained for the purpose of going out to shoot the other fellow. What utter nonsense! "There are none so blind as those that will not see". To those who are opposed to the movement I would say: Secure the "Canadian Boy Scout" and read before making your final decision as to the value of the movement among boys. We have, during the past few weeks, been somewhat misunderstood in so far that the proposed Cadet Camps have been termed "Boy Scout Camps." The Boy Scout movement is a separate organization, working along its own lines, under the principles as laid down in the "Canadian Boy Scout," that of making clean, healthy, all-round citizens of the lads throughout the Dominion. Boy Scout camps are held either by combined towns or districts, or in individual troops, and financed by the boys themselves, or by friends of the respective troops or districts. During 1911 the majority of the troops held camps which were a success.

The time is now opportune for a gathering together of all those who are associated with the Boy Scout movement. Realizing this, the Provincial Council for Ontario have called a Conference at Toronto for Feb. 23rd and 24th, next. The Conferences will be held in the City Hall and a splendid programme is being arranged, which will be composed of talks by our leading Scout officers and others, and in which all phases of Boy Scout life will be dealt with. The social end will be well taken care of and we hope to have a rousing convention with representatives from all parts of the Province. The railways are giving special rates. If you have not already been reached by the Secretary of your district, write the Provincial Secretary, Room 301 Lumsden Building, Toronto.—H. G. Hammond Provincial Secretary

Fourteen below zero was the lowest for Saturday night. A cold wind prevailed all day yesterday and continues to-day which makes it feel very cold, although the thermometer is not at a very low figure. Two above zero was the lowest last night.—W. P.

HE REPUDIATES RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. Burnham sent 500 copies of Hansard, containing his remarks, in justification of his vote to kill Mr. Lancaster's bill to annul the Ne Temere Decree to Col. Miller, Division Court Clerk, for local distribution. Mr. Burnham announced the fact so conspicuously—in black-letter type—in the columns of his newspaper organ, that a correspondet in Saturday's Examiner, criticised Col. Miller for taking the responsibility. The Examiner is glad to say that the correspondent did Col. Miller an injustice. The latter called this morning to state that while the Hansard copies were sent to him, he refused to have anything to do with the distribution of them; and insisted that they be removed, which was done, and they now have some other "office of publication". He made this statement with such warmth and feeling that there can be no doubt of his determination not to be made a medium for the exploitation of the erratic methods and struggles for the limelight of the member for West Peterborough.

THEY INJURE CHILDREN

Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physics May Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are too apt to do more harm than good. They sometimes cause griping, nausea, and distressing after-effects, and may actually injure the health, thus establishing a life-lasting annoyance.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as a safe and dependable remedy for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies not only relieve constipation, but help to remove the cause of this ailment. They also frequently overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition.

There is really, in our opinion, no similar medicine so good as Rexall Orderlies for the purpose to which it is directed, especially for children, aged and delicate persons. They are prepared in tablet form and in two sizes of packages; 12 tablets, 10c., 36 tablets, 25c., and 80 tablets, 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

ANNUAL RALLY

The annual rally of the Young People's Christian Endeavour Society of the city, will be held to-night, Feb. 5th, in the George Street Methodist Church. The Rev. Jas. Rollins will take the chair at 8 o'clock, and the meeting will be addressed by the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., of Peterborough. Special music will be rendered by the George Street choir. All young people of the city are cordially invited.

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

MR. M'CLELLAN'S PRESENTATION TO GOVERNOR-GENERAL

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was the recipient on Friday of a unique gift from the Superintendent of the Trent Canal, Peterborough, Mr. J. H. McClellan. Some time ago the Belgian Minister of Public Works was the guest of the Government on the "Bessie Butler," and the Superintendent of the Canal, Mr. McClellan, accompanied him on a trip through the Trent Canal. In recognition of the courtesies shown him on that occasion the Belgian Minister, on his return, sent to Mr. McClellan a fine and rare steel engraving of the late Queen Victoria, executed by a Belgian artist when she was still Princess Victoria at the age of seventeen. Mr. McClellan arrived in Ottawa, intending to present the engraving, which has an historic interest, to the National Museum, but on the suggestion of the Minister of Militia, it was decided to give it to his Royal Highness, as being of special value to him. Hon. Mr. Hughes accompanied Mr. McClellan to Rideau Hall on Friday, where the presentation was made. His Royal Highness was greatly interested in the engraving, the portraiture being one he had never seen before. It will be placed in a prominent part of Rideau Hall.

Otonabee Farmer Strikes From Shoulder On The Milk Question

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I would like to express my opinion on the milk question. First, we will take the sanitary character of the milk, which all agree should be of the best, but how are you going to get it as long as the sewer is running into the Otonabee river, where hundreds of cows are drinking every summer, not only the people's cows that are sending milk to the city, but cows that butter is made from. Take the sewer out of the river at Little Lake and what comes out of Lakefield. I think there is more harm in people going down the river in the summer and making tea out of it, than to drink our milk. We agree to you having an inspector, but he should inspect other stuff, such as beef, pork and butter. If you dont' drink it in milk, you eat it in other ways. And as far as this man goes in last night's paper, he never saw a farm; if he did, it was a long time ago. I bet that he don't get up at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning and work till eight or nine o'clock at night. If he did, he wouldn't talk that way about the price of milk. He wants to come out a while and we will show him if he can raise it and peddle it any cheaper. He wants to learn more about it before he starts talking against it, or start to farm and raise milk himself. I bet you that he don't work for the same money that he did five years ago, and still he thinks the farmer ought to. It costs a farmer just as much to live as it does him. They don't get what they eat sent to them. I wonder what he would do without them? Milk is cheaper in Peterborough to-day than in any other town or city in Canada. We can get 8 cents a quart here at the station to ship to Toronto, and I can prove it to you if you want proof. Now then, first get pure water for the cattle to drink, for if you don't, how can you get pure butter, beef or milk. All we want is fair play.

Yours truly,
Otonabee Farmer.

THE ASSESSOR QUESTION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see from the public press, that one plank in the policy of our new Mayor, is that we have only one Assessor in this city, and that his appointment be permanent. Now, as an old citizen of Peterborough, and one who has some considerable knowledge of the affairs of this city, I believe this policy to be a very bad one for our citizens at large.

In the first place, the position of Assessor is one of the most important and most responsible in our civic administration. In order that justice may be done to property owners generally, an Assessor should be thoroughly qualified to do his work, which requires at least some experience and four or five continuous years' service, at least. If one person is to be responsible for our assessment, two heads are better than one, especially in a case like this, where so many different problems are to be decided. The appointment of two men for Peterborough has proven satisfactory in the past, and I believe a change would prove a disappointment. It will be more expensive and if we are to judge from cities of about the same size, that have tried the experiment of one Assessor, such as Brantford, it has proved a failure, as that city, after a two-year trial, was glad to return to the old system of two Assessors, appointed each year. One permanent Assessor was too expensive for Brantford, and we are logical in concluding it will be too expensive for us. The system of one Assessor is only workable in a large city, where they are able to hire assistants, who help the Assessor in his work. We are not able to pay a permanent Assessor and the assistants he would require. Our taxes are sufficiently high, in fact, too high, now. If the entire policy, outlined by our Mayor, be carried out, where will our taxes be in a year or two?

The question naturally arises, why does our Mayor, who has been in the Council for several years, want a permanent Assessor? He had the opportunity of supporting this question before, but always opposed it. Does he favour it now because he will have the appointment really in his own hands? Dame Rumour has it that the man he wishes to appoint is already picked out, notwithstanding the advertising of the Council. Does the Mayor feel he controls enough men in the Council to do just as he pleases in this mater? He is a very large property holder. Does he want an Assessor favourable to him, personally, and make that official a permanent fixture in the city? I think we have a sufficient number of good men in our council to frustrate any such design.

The one great claim our Mayor appears to have in one Assessor being appointed, is that he (the Assessor) would be at his duties the whole year round; then, why not allow the two men the same privileges and he will have better results, particularly so, when the expense of two will be less than in the appointment of one.

Two good men, properly bonded and equally responsible in the performance of their duties, is without doubt the best and only proper way for a city of our size.

With respect, I am,
Yours truly,
"Economy."

If The Hair Root Is Not Dead, Do Not Despair

Falling hair means scanty hair, and scanty hair means baldness. The whole trouble is caused by dandruff germs that destroy the natural nourishment that is supplied to the hair root.

PARISIAN SAGE, the scientific hair nourisher, penetrates into the roots of hair and not only kills the germs but supplies the hair root with just the kind of nourishment it should have.

If you are getting bald; if your hair is falling, don't wait till too late, but get a bottle of PARISIAN SAGE to-day.

It is possible to save your hair and prevent baldness if the hair root is not dead.

PARISIAN SAGE is guaranteed to satisfy every user, or money back. It stops falling hair, scalp itch, and banishes dandruff in two weeks. It is a refined hair dressing that puts a radiant lustre into faded, dull hair. Fifty cents at Wm. Medill's and dealers everywhere.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

People and the Theatre.

"There are plays on the stage today that rival in ribalry, the worst things put on during the reign of Charles II" said Tyrone Power, now playing in Canadian cities in "The Servant in the House," to a recent interviewer:

"A girl can kick up her heels in a musical comedy and pack the house at every performance, but the mental exercise of a strong drama like this is too much for some people."

"Your gentleman who wants to laugh whenever he goes to the the theatre will go to some trivial thing, and behave like a grinning monkey at the inanities that are handed out as jokes—jokes that were not to be tolerated in the homes of the people who laugh at them."

"Years ago there was a large following for the theatre among the culturd and studious classes. Where is it now? It has retired into its studies and libraries, and it must be won again for the theatre. It can only be won by good plays."

"Do you know that there are very few good actors in America now — I mean real, well-trained actors? They don't train them now like they used to in the school of Sir Henry Irving and Augustine Daly. It is practically impossible to properly cast a good play now for lack of actors. Nowadays actors don't study. Some actor happens to make a hit in some part that suits his personality, and they immediately have a play written to order for him and star him in it."

"Picking types for stage characters? That's rot. You might as well go out on the street and pick up some man with a long white beard to play King Lear, or a man with a hooked nose for Shylock. Brains are the main thing for the actor who essays a big role; and he should study it and approach it with a great amount of modesty."

"The stage is degenerating into a zoological garden, whereas it should be one of the most beautiful and beneficial influences on earth.

"I don't give a rap whether I make $1, or $1,000,000—I'm going to play 'The Servant in the House' for the rest of this season.

"Some people yell for better plays and the elevation of the stage, but the actor who puts on those good plays they leave to starve in the gutter.

"The Servant in the House' may make $50 profit per week, while Anna Held may make $10,000. I would rather put on a good play and make $50 than to make $5,000 by playing something unworthy. That's not a pose—it's a fact."

SIMPLICITY OF HAIR DRESSING NOW FASHIONABLE

Women Favour Parted Locks, Puffs, Pompadours, Coronet Braids Going Out.

The present fashion of wearing the hair, softly parted, without puffs and braids, demands a naturally fine head of hair, and women with thin, faded locks are at their wits' end to know how to make their hair grow well. The first step toward this end is to keep hair and scalp in a healthy condition by the systematic use of a stimulating tonic.

HAY'S HAIR HEALTH contains all the health-giving ingredients needed by the starved hair roots. It destroys dandruff germs and encourages rapid growth of strong, new hair. Those hopelessly dry, faded looking locks grow soft, lustrous and youthful and the whole appearance is improved. You can get it at any druggist's for 50c. or $1.00 per bottle or from the Philo Hay Spec. Co., Newark, N. Y.

After cooking and draining spinach cut it fine and reheat it into a saucepan put plenty of butter and some flour; when incorporated add the spinach; reheat the spinach in this mixture and serve immediately, adding a dash of nutmeg just before taking up.

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 143

"The Stampede" Is Coming On Saturday Next

A. G. Delamater, the well-known theatrical producting manager, is this season presenting "The Stampede," a stirring comedy-drama, affording opportunities for huge scenic effects equal to its predecessor, "The Round Up," although the locale of this later play is in another section of the Western wilderness. In "The Stampede," the political element is more prominent, and the comedy is more agreeably polite, the first act transpiring in Washington, D.C., at an evening reception, where the serious plot is developed amid an atmosphere of music and laughter. For the remaining acts the settings are in Arizona Desert, and the Witch Creek Indian Reservation, permitting a panoramic effect of vast distances positively startling in its vividness and sublimity. In no Belasco production has closer study been given to the smaller details which combine to form an elaborate and truthful picture; special mechanical contrivances have been constructed for the big stampede effect, expensive electrical devices are employed, lighting and incidental music is carefully calculated to quicken the pulse during the tense moments of the play. In another respect, does "The Stampede" differ from "The Round Up". In the new play, instead of a tremendous fusillade of bullets, only once is a shot fired. 'The Stampede' will play on Saturday next, matinee and night, and the sale will open Thursday morning.

THE RESULTS OF NATIONALIST ORATORY

Food For Families of Children Made Food for Powder in the Navy

OTTAWA, FEB. 4.—Following Mr. Bourassa's emphatic demand in Le Devoir on Friday for an immediate repeal of the late Government's naval law, there appears in The Canada Gazette the notice of an order in Council dealing with the naval service, which in view of all the circumstances has a humorous aspect. The Cabinet Council last week solemnly passed an order providing that when any seaman of the Canadian navy is killed on duty or dies from wounds or disease contracted when on duty, whether in naval action or otherwise, the Governor in Council "may sanction the payment of a gratuity to his widow and family according to the merits of the case, but not exceeding a total of one year's pay and allowances such man was receiving at the time he was killed."

Thus is the wind tempered to the wives and children in Quebec whom Nationalist orators have taught to dread the loss of husbands and sons ruthlessly torn from them to fight the battles of England on foreign seas, to be "made food for powder."

A further anomaly of the present situation is an advertisement in The Gazette announcing that the Civil Service Commission will receive applications from candidates for the position of accountant for the navy yard at Halifax, an indication that the present naval staff is being increased rather than abolished.

LAWYER'S FEES UNCHANGED

Although wages and the cost of living have been advancing, and have reached figures that will form a marked contrast with those that existed thirty years ago, the lawyers claim that their fees are just where they were a generation ago. In the days when Mr. A. Boultree was president of the Peterborough Law Society, Mr. D. W. Dumble vice-president, and Mr. Jas. F. Dennistoun, secretary, a list of the fees was prepared, printed on a card and distributed among the various law offices in the town. To-day a few of them remain, and though faded and seared with age, the fees for professional work may be still plainly read.

"There you are," said a lawyer a few days ago, "that proves conclusively where we lawyers stand in regard to present day cost of living. We are receiving just the same fees we did in 1873, the year that list was prepared, and yet you often hear remarks about our professional charges. I understand that some charge even less than that, but they may be called price cutters, just the same as in any other business, I suppose.

Not only are fees unchanged, but a few years ago the jurisdiction of the county court was increased in civil action for damages. Suits for damages down to $300 and slightly less are now tried before the County Judge, instead of in a higher court as formerly. This was another source of revenue largely reduced to compensate it."

This lawyer was by no means complaining about conditions, but merely made the statement, as if the ordinary citizen was not aware of the facts and the information might prove interesting. It is interesting to note that a mortgage can be drawn up for the same fee as our grandfathers would have been called upon to pay, and the other regular fees of those days are still in force, after forty years.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Why Select An Outsider?

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wish you would give me space in your valuable paper to place a few remarks before the public of this city. Has the Dominion government and the city of Peterborough to have a man come from Toronto here to act as a foreman on a government job, while we have, right here in this city, men who have forgotten more than he ever learned, idle. Yes, they go after poor old John Cronin and Daddy Taylor, who were only getting the small sum of $1.50 per day, and we have here an outsider come here and get 4 dollars and probably more, per day, 'knowing nothing' and not even one word said.

If one of our highly esteemed citizens went up to Toronto to lok for a government job there, what would the consequences be? He would be chased out of the city. Why not the same here, at once, and give one of our worthy carpenters the honours of foreman? Hoping the matter is taken into consideration at once, and send these people where they belong,

Yours truly,
JUSTICE.

Successor To Mr. O'Bourne

It has been officially announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway authorities that Mr. James O'Bourne General Superintendent at Toronto has been transferred to Vancouver, and that Mr. J. Arundel, the General Superintendent of the C. P. R., at Winnipeg, has been appointed to succeed Mr. O'Bourne at Toronto.

This is the gentleman that will have charge of the General Superintendency of the C. P. R. work in Ontario, and the City Council of Peterborough will require to get in touch with Mr. Arundel at the earliest possible opportunity. A representative of the Examiner, speaking with Mr. O'Bourne, before the change had taken place, learned that that official had practically decided upon enlarging the platform and improving the conditions of the travelling public at Peterborough station, and it will require a little prodding to get the work under way. The City Council will kindly keep this in mind.

Struck By Falling Snow

A well known East City resident, while passing the Toronto Loan and Savings Company's premises Saturday, was almost annihilated by a ten bushel avalanche of snow. It left the party concerned in such a dilapidated and disorganized condition, that they found it necessary to seek shelter in a nearby store, where repairs could be undertaken in comparative seclusion. More than one unwary citizen has been the victim of a similar fate during the past few days.

CANINE COMMENTS

One of those attractive performances which from time to time are enacted, took place Saturday on Aylmer street when a couple of dogs, surrounded by many others, disagreed and proceeded to chew each other forthwith. This naturally had a magnetic influence upon those who chanced to be in the vicinity and in a very short space of time a crowd had accumulated.

To the casual onlooker, the remarks passed by certain of the gathering, though perhaps not without significance in some cases, were highly amusing. One man said he was waiting for one of the combatants to drop as he was just going in the direction of Matthews' factory. Another, that there was a certain dog in the north end of the city that attacked him frequently ,and a third that a tribe of five dogs had taken possession of his verandah this morning.

From the remarks of a workman one could gather that some time ago he had put his dinner by the roadside, but on going to reclaim it he found the food had been spoiled by dogs.

Meanwhile of course the canine antagonists had dispersed, but before the crowd had scattered a lady, chancing by, exclaimed, "The disgusting brutes. It was only my muff that prevented me from being bitten by one of them this morning." The comedy ended with laughter, when a rather extravagant man said, "There seems to be about fifteen d—— dogs to every person in Peterborough now."

"The Stampede" Is Coming On Saturday Next

A. G. Delamater, the well-known theatrical producing manager, is this season presenting "The Stampede," a stirring comedy-drama, affording opportunities for huge scenic effects equal to its predecessor, "The Round Up," although the locale of this later play is in another section of the Western wilderness. In "The Stampede," the political element is more prominent, and the comedy is more agreeably polite, the first act transpiring in Washington, D.C., at an evening reception, where the serious plot is developed amid an atmosphere of music and laughter. For the remaining acts the settings are in Arizona Desert, and the Witch Creek Indian Reservation, permitting a panoramic effect of vast distances positively startling in its vividness and sublimity. In no Belasco production has closer study been given to the smaller details which combine to form an elaborate and truthful picture; special mechanical contrivances have been constructed for the big stampede effect, expensive electrical devices are employed. Lighting and incidental music is carefully calculated to quicken the pulse during the tense moments of the play. In another respect, does "The Stampede" differ from "The Round Up". In the new play, instead of a tremendous fusillade of bullets, only once is a shot fired. 'The Stampede' will play on Saturday next, matinee and night, and the sale will open Thursday morning.

THE RESULTS OF NATIONALIST ORATORY

Food For Families of Children Made Food for Powder in the Navy

OTTAWA, FEB. 4.—Following Mr. Bourassa's emphatic demand in Le Devoir on Friday for an immediate repeal of the late Government's naval law, there appears in The Canada Gazette the notice of an order in Council dealing with the naval service, which in view of all the circumstances has a humorous aspect. The Cabinet Council last week solemnly passed an order providing that when any seaman of the Canadian navy is killed on duty or dies from wounds or disease contracted when on duty, whether in naval action or otherwise, the Governor in Council "may sanction the payment of a gratuity to his widow and family according to the merits of the case, but not exceeding a total of one year's pay and allowances such man was receiving at the time he was killed."

Thus is the wind tempered to the wives and children in Quebec whom Nationalist orators have taught to dread the loss of husbands and sons ruthlessly torn from them to fight the battles of England on foreign seas, to be "made food for powder."

A further anomaly of the present situation is an advertisement in The Gazette announcing that the Civil Service Commission will receive applications from candidates for the position of accountant for the navy yard at Halifax, an indication that the present naval staff is being increased rather than abolished.

LAWYER'S FEES UNCHANGED

Although wages and the cost of living have been advancing, and have reached figures that will form a marked contrast with those that existed thirty years ago, the lawyers claim that their fees are just where they were a generation ago. In the days when Mr. A. Boultree was president of the Peterborough Law Society, Mr. D. W. Dumble vice-president, and Mr. Jas. F. Dennistoun, secretary, a list of the fees was prepared, printed on a card and distributed among the various law offices in the town. To-day a few of them remain, and though faded and seared with age, the fees for professional work may be still plainly read.

"There you are," said a lawyer a few days ago, "that proves conclusively where we lawyers stand in regard to present day cost of living. We are receiving just the same fees we did in 1873, the year that list was prepared, and yet you often hear remarks about our professional charges. I understand that some charge even less than that, but they may be called price cutters, just the same as in any other business, I suppose.

Not only are fees unchanged, but a few years ago the jurisdiction of the county court was increased in civil action for damages. Suits for damages down to $100 and slightly less are now tried before the County Judge, instead of in a higher court as formerly. This was another source of revenue largely reduced to compensate it."

This lawyer was by no means complaining about conditions, but merely made the statement, as if the ordinary citizen was not aware of the facts and the information might prove interesting. It is interesting to note that a mortgage can be drawn up for the same fee as our grandfathers would have been called upon to pay, and the other regular fees of those days are still in force, after forty years.

Broken Ice Bridge Sweeps Sight-seers Into The Whirlpool

Sunday Tragedy at Niagara Falls Witnessed by Large Crowd on Either Shore, Unable to Lend Assistance---Husband and Wife Died Together---Young Hero's Efforts Were Vain---Victims Carried Out of Sight on Ice Floe.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 5.—Eldridge Stanton and wife, 19 Nanton avenue, Toronto, and Burrell Hecock, employed as clerk by a railroad office in Cleveland, lost their lives yesterday about noon, when the great ice bridge broke away without a moment's warning, carrying them to death in the whirlpool rapids. Four others who were on the bridge when it broke from shore escaped.

It was not definitely known until late last night that Mr. and Mrs. Stanton had perished, although little hope of their safety was entertained from the early afternoon. Descriptions of the appearance of the man, who died heroically in seeking to rescue a woman, the couple resigning themselves to their fate after failing to secure themselves to a rope thrown from the cantilever bridge, tallied with the appearance of Mr Stanton and his wife, and their non-appearance confirmed the worst fears. Late last night A. N. Allen, proprietor of the Allen House, American side, where they had registered on Saturday, told the press that Mr. Stanton's suitcase and Mrs. Stanton's satchels were unclaimed. He said they had been frequent guests at his hotel.

With a report like a cannonade the bridge broke loose just before noon. Hecock and his friend, Ignatius Roth, Cleveland, were the only ones of the score on the bridge that did not anticipate danger and rush towards the shore. They had never visited the falls before and thought the noise of the moving bridge was part of the scenery. The frantic yells of their companions in peril finally induced them to rush towards the Canadian shore.

There were only seven people in actual danger, the others being on the shore side of the crack that immediately formed. William Hill, who conducted the shack on the bridge, leaped from danger to shore. Before the bridge had moved a hundred feet, he leaped over ten feet of the water.

Michael Emendorfer, Lockport, N.Y., and Phillip Wending, Portland, Oregon, escaped by leaping ashore on the American side just below the upper bridge. Roth made a desperate leap for shore 700 feet below the upper bridge and escaped after being wet to the skin. He was taken to the Lafayette Hotel and sent home late last night.

Hecock lost his life through his efforts to aid in saving the woman. After Roth reached shore, Hecock and the man and woman became separated, Hecock being on one ice floe and the man and woman on another. They slowly floated down the stream while hundreds looked on helpless to save them. Before leaping, Wending hesitated a moment to take hold of a woman, but she fainted, her falling nearly precipitating the rest of the party into the river. Just as her rescuer had the woman firmly in his grip the ice gave way from under them and the two were separated. The woman fell backward but recovered somewhat and he made good his leap to safety. With a suddenness that was appalling the current swept the loosened floe on which the party of four remained hoping again hope for relief, into midstream where the sail to death was begun.

Directly behind the party was the shack that remained intact until the bend of the river was about to be rounded. Here the shack collapsed and the sight proved too much for the prisoners looking on. Down on their knees dropped the two unwilling passengers, each raising arms aloft, pleading for succor. Then there was a cry from another quarter when watchers on the Canadian shore shouted to the victims to take a chance by jumping across the short interval from the structure they stood upon to the apparently solid portion that clung to the bank.

A movement was made in that direction, but as if to mock the attempt at escape, the ice began to disintegrate under their feet. Now all four were parted from one another, each had a floating island.

All this time, Chief Utz of the city fire department had as many men as he could spare engaged in rescue work. The aerial truck was rushed to the upper bridge and from there was despatched to the old maid of the Mist landing with the view of heading off the unfortunates, but the ice floes played pranks that upset every plan formulated by the firemen for the relief of the marooned.

Tired of their movements, restricted a their territory became limited, the prisoners suffered from intense cold. Hecock stood still frozen to the cake on which he stood. His was the last figure seen erect from the upper bridge where everyone, wherever, awaited to give the slightest aid to the people below.

In both cases the men caught the ropes that were hung from the bridges under which they passed, but in both cases they failed to hang on. Hecock was high in the air before he let go.

Hecock reached his rope by running nearly to the edge of his icy haven, and grabbed the irons. When he tried to get his both feet up on to the irons the man slipped and nearly dropped into the water. But he stuck, and the men above pulled with all their might, and succeeded in getting the poor fellow probably sixty feet. Then he fell back, Kamp, exhausted, into the river. His head appeared for a brief second, and then he disappeared beneath the slushy ice that filled the mouth of the gorge. Being benumbed, his exertions in trying to climb caused him to let go his hold.

Just after Hecock was submerged in the waters, the floe on which Mr. and Mrs. Stanton had taken refuge passed beneath the cantilever bridge.

The man made a desperate effort for the rope and succeeded in getting hold of it. The woman, in desperation grasped him about the waist, and the additional weight resulted in disaster for both. The rope slipped from the man's numbed grasp and they passed on to their fate. Their going was pathetic in the extreme. The woman rose from her cramped position on the ice and stood by her companion's side. With hands clasped together, they entered the terrible rapids, bravely, unwaveringly.

WORLD SHOULD DISARM.

Lloyd-George Says All Would Be Richer and Happier.

London, Feb. 5.—David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, took the occasion while he was making a speech at the City of London Liberal Club Saturday afternon to declare that the reports of a split in the British Cabinet were entirely unfounded.

He also assured his audience that the alleged feud between himself and Premier Asquith was a myth.

Mr. Lloyd-George also made his first incursion into international politics since the speech delivered by him last summer which so inflamed public opinion in Germany, when he said that all nations must realize fairly what conditions of peace must be.

Speaking on the subject of the reduction of armaments, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said he believed that the present was an advantageous moment to consider the question. It was in the interests of France, Germany, Russia and Great Britain that there should be a better understanding.

He continued: "I believe with candor, frankness and boldness, it is attainable. The world would be richer for it, taxes might be reduced and the money which would be saved that is now spent on armaments could be devoted to developing the resources of the country and improving the conditions of the people. The cornerstone of sound finance is peace on earth and good will among men."

BRITAIN'S SECRET SHIP.

Admiralty Lays Keel of the Largest Ever Built.

London, Feb. 5.—The new battleship, the keel of which was recently laid at Portsmouth dockyard, the first of the five armored ships of the 1911-1912 program, will be known as the "Secret Ship." It is generally known that she is to be the largest battleship built for the British navy, that she is to have an anti-torpedo battery of six-inch instead of four-inch guns, as in older ships, and that there is to be a great improvement in the compartments to prevent sinking in case she is torpedoed. Beyond this, however, the Admiralty are introducing changes which are to remain a secret for the time being at least.

Usually the laying of the first keel plate is attended with some ceremony and naval attaches and others are invited. On this occasion, however, only the dockyard officials, Miss Evelyn Moore, daughter of Admiral Sir Arthur Moore, who performed the ceremony, and a few ladies were present. Newspaper men and photographers were rigorously excluded. This ship is to be completed in two years, but it is quite likely that she will be ready for service before that time. Immediately her first plate was laid, workmen commenced putting other plates in position, so that before the afternoon had passed the vessel commenced to take shape. In fact, a great deal of the material was ready before the actual work of construction commenced.

Churchill Expected to Deliver Notable Utterance at Belfast

THURSDAY'S MEETING

London, Feb. 5.—It would be impossible to over-estimate the importance to the Irish Home Rule cause of the "collision of incompatible ideals," as the Earl of Dunraven calls it, that is scheduled for Feb. 8 in Belfast.

Mr. Churchill's chivalrous determination to address the Nationalists in the Orange stronghold has brought the whole controversy, in the judgment of Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, a staunch friend of the Irish patriots, to a new turning point.

As the event will be big with influence upon his own future, it is thought probable that Mr. Churchill, who makes no secret of his willingness to go much further than a majority of the Ministers on behalf of Ireland, will take advanced ground.

By persons who are aware of the favor in which he stands with Mr. Asquith ad who know how much freedom his chief allows him, it is thought that the First Lord of the Admiralty will indicate the chief features of the home rule bill, until now a close secret.

There is little doubt that he will make a speech that will knock the famous Ulster deliverance of his father, Lord Randolph, into a cocked hat.

In the Unionist camp there is a noisy show of belief that home rule is dying fast; that "the bubble will be pricked at Belfast"; that the Radical coalition will have been smashed ere "Grouse Day," Aug. 12th that the next general election will leave the Liberals in a hopeless position in Parliament, and that Bonar Law, with a shibboleth of "new men, new policies," will clear away the "socialistic and Irish secessionist heresies" and begin a "genuinely prosperous era for the Kingdom."

Troops For Feb. 8.

Belfast, Feb. 5.—The lord mayor of this city sent a requisition to the parks' committee to provide accommodation for 5,000 troops who are to concentrate here on Feb. 8, the day of the home rule demonstration at which Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, are to speak.

At a meeting of the parks committee the lord mayor's request met with strong opposition, the committee adjourning without taking a decision until to-day.

Elaborate arrangements have been made by which on the day of the home rule meeting those parts of the city in which disturbances are likely to occur will be placed practically in the hands of the military, who will line the main thoroughfares leading to Celtic Park and guard the intersecting streets.

Bishop of Athabasca Dead.

London, Feb. 5.—The Right Rev. George Holmes, Lord Bishop of Athabasca, Canada, died Saturday from internal hemorrhage. He had been Bishop of Athabasca and acting Bishop of Mackenzie River since 1909. The remains will be buried in Highgate Cemetery on Thursday.

The late bishop was born in Westchester, England, in 1860, and educated at the Church Missionary College, London. For some time he did lay work under Prebendery Webb Peploe at St. Paul's, London.

On coming to Canada, he went to the diocese of Rupert's Land and labored there in 1885 and 1886. He was ordained deacon by the Bishop of Athabasca in 1887, and priest in 1888. He was afterwards made an archdeacon by the Bishop of Athabasca, and became Bishop of Moosonee in 1905. In 1909, he succeeded to the bishopric of Athabasca.

Good Roads Convention.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—The Good Roads' Association of Ontario will hold a convention at Ottawa next Thursday, Feb. 8. After deciding on their policy, the delegates will wait on the Government to discuss the form of proposed federal, assistance to the highways of Ontario.

It is understood the delegates will particularly discuss the question of the class of roads to which grants should be made. Some want trunk roads only, while others urge that assistance be granted to all roads.

Starved In Sanitarium.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 5.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Linda Burfield Hazzar, accused in the Kitsap County Superior Court at Port Orchard, of having starved to death Miss Claire Williamson, a wealthy English patient at the Hadsard "starvation sanitarium," returned a verdict of manslaughter last night.

SET FIRE TO WIFE'S BED

Ante Mortem Statement Accuses Husband of Dastardly Crime --Shantyman Faces a Charge of Murder

RESCUED BY NEIGHBOURS

North Bay, Feb. 5.—Fred. Yearly is under arrest at Warren, in connection with the death of his wife, which occurred at a Sudbury hospital yesterday morning, and he will be taken to Sudbury on Monday, if committed for trial at the preliminary hearing. Yearly has made no statement and will not admit that he knows anything of the circumstances which resulted in his wife's death.

Mrs. Yearly has been subjected to spells when her mind seemed to be unbalanced, and one of these occurred about a week ago. Her husband, who was working in the lumber shanties, was sent for and came home. Five children, ranging from two months to 10 years of age, were taken charge of by the neighbors while the mother was ill. When the husband returned, she wanted the children at home, but he refused, and the couple had words over this.

On Saturday morning, observing the reflection of fire from the windows, neighbors entered the house and found Mrs. Yearly unconscious on a blazing bed. Upon being rescued and cared for, she recovered consciousness and said that her husband had beaten her on the head with a hammer, poured coal oil on her bed and set it on fire.

She repeated this story several times in her conscious periods. Her skull was fractured. Mrs. Yearly was about 35 years of age. The family have reside in and about Warren for the past ten years.

Mrs. Nickle Buried.

Kingston, Feb. 5.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Nickle, mother of W. F. Nickle, M.P., took place on Saturday and was of a private nature. The chief mourners were W. F. Nickle, Hugh Nickle, B. W. Folger and a number of grandchildren.

Would Buy Sacred Treasures.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 5.—A Franco-American syndicate has offered Chao Erh Hsun, the viceroy of Manchuria, to purchase the sacred treasures in the palace at Mukden for $600,000, according to a telegram received here from that city Saturday.

Got A Pain In Your Back?
IF YOU HAVE HEED THE WARNING.
You get a pain in your back, and you wonder what is the matter. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.
Heed the warning; cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.
If you don't do this, serious complications are very apt to arise, and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease; the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.
On the first sign of a pain in the back, Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.
They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the backache and prevent any further complications arising.
Mr. Stewart Johnston, Richardson Mines, N.S., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my back, and I had to give up work. I tried Dr. after Dr., and was getting no better. I had almost given up hope when I began to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I took three boxes of them, and found I was completely cured. I feel I owe my life to Doan's Kidney Pills."
Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.
It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.
THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.
THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print in every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.
It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

"I was Crippled, could hardly walk and had to Crawl down stairs at times on my hands and knees. My doctor told me I had an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism. I was in the hospital for weeks, but was scarcely able to walk when I left it. I read about bought a bottle and began to get better from the start, and for the past six months I have had scarcely any pain and am able to walk as well as ever." J.H. SANDERS, P. O. box 5, Rockaway, N. J.

Few medicines are of any benefit for rheumatism, but Mr. Sanders tells plainly what Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine did for it. One ounce of salicylate of soda added to one bottle of Nervine makes an excellent remedy for rheumatism, which is now known to be a nervous disease and therefore subject to the influence of a medicine that acts through the nerves, as does

Sufferers from rheumatism seldom fail to find relief in the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine, with salicylate of soda.

Sold under a guarantee that assures the return of the price of the first bottle it fails to benefit. At all Druggists.

BIG CROWD WILL SEE THE GAME IN COBOURG

Many Are Going by Special Train Wednesday Night---Bear Cats Journey to Trenton To-morrow---Both Teams Will Practice To-night---C.G.E. and Lock Works Draw in Mercantile League Game---Hockey Happenings.

Great interest is being taken by local hockey fans in the Intermediate O. H. A. second-round game, at Cobourg, on Wednesday night, and another big crowd of fans will accompany the blue and white team to the Lake Shore town on the special rain which leaves Peterborough sharp at 7 o'clock. It should be one of the best games of the year in the district, and will be worth going a great deal further than Cobourg to see. The Cobourg aggregation has a strong, well-balanced team and the Petes will have their work cut out for them. They are determined, however, to annex another victory, and keep up their winning streak. The return fare is $1.25, with a 65c rate for children. The Peterborough team is in good shape, and with a half-hour workout to-night, will be in the pink of condition for their important fixtures this week. The return game with Cobourg, will be played here on Friday night.

The Bear Cats journey to Trenton to-morrow, for the return game with Lawson Whitehead's team. The squad will go down on the 1.40 p.m. G.T.R. train and although there is no excursion any local fans who desire to go down may secure club-rate tickets for $2.25. A number of enthusiastic supporters are arranging to go to Trenton with the Bear Cats to-morrow and then drop off at Cobourg for the intermediate game the next night, returning to Peterborough on the special.

TORONTO CRITICS ON THE CHANCES OF PETES TEAMS

The good record of the Peterborough intermediate and junior O.H.A. teams is causing the Toronto sporting writers to sit up and take notice. The News says:

Peterborough clubs are cutting a wide swath in the O.H.A. this season. The Intermediates are called as the team to beat for honours in their division, while the juniors on the strength of their victory over Trenton Friday night look exceedingly dangerous. The latter disposed of the champion Frontenacs handily, holding them to an 8 to 0 score at home and were picked by the experts for the championship. They may overcome Peterborough's lead in the return match, but it is hardly probable.

The Star weekly says:

The wise critics look for Preston (last year's champions,) Midland and Peterborough teams to reach the semi-finals in the intermediate series with Paris, Mount Forest and Cobourg as the dark horses. In the junior series there will be some great battles with Orillia, Woodstock, Peterborough Toronto Canoe Club and University of Toronto most fancied. It will be a great struggle for both cups and the honours will be well deserved by the winners.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The Bear Cats are determined to add another victory to their long list by beating Trenton on their own ice to-morrow night. The team will have a twenty-minute workout to-night at 7 o'clock sharp, and every player is asked to be on hand sharp on time.

One of the closest Mercantile League games of the season took place on Saturday night at Brock St. Rink, when the Canadian General Machine Shop and the Lock Works teams battled to a 1-1 tie. There was no score in the first half, but soon after half-time, the Machine Shop team hung up a goal, which looked good to last. However, the Lock Works came back with the tying counter, shortly before time was called and the score remained unaltered until the final whistle sounded. The teams were evenly matched. The cyclonic rushes of Joe Huard, for the Lock Works, and the Fred Taylor dashes of Mortie McGill, for the Machine Shop, were features. Leo Derocher refereed the game in finished fashion.

The Mercantile League fixture, scheduled for to-night, between the Clerks and the C. G. E. Tool Room has been postponed until the latter part of the week.

The All Saints' team will practice to-night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, in preparation for their Trent Valley League game, here, with Campbellford on Thursday night. By the way this promises to be one of the best Trent Valley fixtures of the season. Campbellford trimmed the Saints, at home, and are coming up here determined to repeat the feat. On the other hand the All Saints are burning for revenge, and as they need the game, besides, to remain in the running, they may be counted upon to work at top speed from the drop of the hat.

Manager, Mr. Thomas Brownlee, of the C.G.E. Ry. Motor Dept., has accepted the challenge thrust upon him by Mgr. Richard Price of the Ind. Motor Dept., for a game of hockey, to be played at the Brock street rink on Tuesday night of this week, from 9 till 10, for an oyster supper. The Ry. Motor Dept. have signed u, a few stars, among them Mr. Hector Donovan, the white man's hope. The question is, can he come back?

Mr. Jimmie Callaghan has got together a number of singers, who will endeavour to keep the spectators amused throughout the game. Billy Clarke Sweet of the C.G.E. has consented to take the responsible position as mascot. The teams will line-up as follows:

Ind. Motor Dept.	Ry. Motor Dept.

The Canadian Express Hustlers met the Dominion Express team in the Brock street rink on Saturday evening last, and were defeated by 9 goals to 0.

It was said to have been one of the best games played in the city this year, but it was afterwards discovered that the speaker was one of the Hustlers. It is to be understood, of course, that the real cause of the Hustlers' defeat was the fact that they had not a full team, while "Neversweat" Sarginson actually put up a couple of dollars on the Dominion team—how could the Hustlers expect to win. However, they bear their antagonists no malice and invite them to a return game.

As has already been intimated, the game was a good one. That fact is not disputed by either team. After only a minute's play the six wheelers banged the puck through and followed up shortly with another. The Hustlers were lost in the first half, and as to the Dominion goal there might as well have been a pile of brick in the goal, as Thornton, as no goals could be scored. Wiggler Pidgeon was like a cigarette end in a snow drift in the first end of the game—dead, entirely. A yell in the ear awakened "Slumberland" Sharp, who, in the excitement of the moment, made two or three good checks. "Neversweat" Sarginson did not live up to his title, as he perspired quite freely, but it was evidently the excitement of the prospect of winning his bet that heated him, as he did not score. Bootle's Baby Chouinard, after a thorough search, found the puck in the after portion of the game and in the excitement of having captured it, in attempting to clear it from the goal, put on such a speed as caused him to collide with the fence and displace two of the boards. At this stage several were heard to inquire where Sanderson got his shin pads.

The line-up was as follows:

Six Wheelers—Goal, "Whiskers" Thornton; point, Sandy Sanderson; cover point, "Beefer" Fleetwood; centre, "Slugger" Harrison; rover, "Stooner" Stanton; right wing, "Giggler" McGregor; left wing, B. Wise. "The Hustlers" Booter Club, ably conducted by Messrs. Platt and Edwards, rendered some choice selections, and at the end of the game, Mr. A. G. Carruthers took the lads ogg the Dominion team to the Dominion Cafe, to supper.

Sporting Editor Examiner:

A has 14—6; B, 13—5; C, 12—4; D, 7—3; and E, 11—5, all in favour of Peterborough. Which wins?

Hockey Fan.

Answer—The correct score was 12 to 5 and an dthe winning percentage .706. A's percentage is .700; B's .722; C's .750; D's .700 and E's .696. As far as percentage goes A and D are tied, their score beating the others but as A's figures are closest to the actual score he is entiled to the pool.—Sporting Editor.

THE NEW SPORTING ANNUAL.

The best little sporting reference book of the year is the "Police Gazette Sporting Annual" for 1912, published by Richard K. Fox. It is a compendium of best performances in all branches of sports; ably compiled and edited by Sam C. Austin, a well-known sporting writer and critic. The athletic records are the records of the Amateur Athletic Union, and officially accepted by that organization; the rowing, yachting, racing, trotting, pacing, automobile bicycling, football, aeroplane and swimming records, made all over the world, are officially correct. The base ball statistics were furnished by the National Baseball commission, and include the details of the world's championship series.

The main feature of the book, however, is the pugilistic records, and includes the history of every boxer of prominence in the world. This splendid book is made doubly attractive by its high-calss illustrations and photos of the champions. It is authentic and reliable, and stands today an authority on the subjects upon which it treats. The price is ten cents; postage two cents extra.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

This is due to the unrivalled purifying action of Burdock Blood Bitters on the blood, coupled with the thorough manner in which it cleanses and expels the impurities from the body.

Mrs. Richard Coutine, White Head, Que., writes:—"I have been bothered with salt rheum, on my hands, for two years, and it itched so I did not know what to do. I tried three doctors, and even went to Montreal to the hospital without getting any relief. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got three bottles, and before I had the second used I found a big change, and now to-day I am cured."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about 35 years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NOT AUTHORIZED BY THE SOCIETY

A woman purporting to be a representative of the Children's Aid Society, has been canvassing the city the past few days soliciting subscriptions for the maintenance of the Society. "The Children's Aid Society never appoints agents or canvassers to collect money," said Mr. Cochrane this morning. Therefore it follows that any party undertaking to do so on their own initiative, renders himself or herself liable to punishment if caught.

The police have been informed of the case in question, and with the aid of a good description of the guilty party, an early apprehension will no doubt result.

Mr. Alex. Reid was one of the victims, he having been approached by the woman carrying a book, in which were the autographs of several citizens who had contributed money to the Society. Mr. Reid was induced to part with fifty cents.

Lame Back Cured

Just rub the painful spot with Nerviline; not much rubbing, because Nerviline is made to penetrate. You'll not suffer long after Nerviline is applied, for it acts like lightning, swift and sure. Nerviline is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for—wherever there is pain. Apply Nerviline and the pain disappears.

No remedy so thoroughly cures lame back, stiff joints, sore muscles, lumbago, and cold in the chest as

Nerviline

The farmer, the mechanic, the man who works at hard labor, is subject to the baneful influence of dampness, fog, and inclement weather. It's hard for him to escape pain. What he needs at home is a bottle of Nerviline, which gives instant ease to every kind of pain.

Nerviline is about four times as strong as the ordinary liniment. It gets right at the core of pain and cures it as no other remedy can. Its strong and concentrated is Nerviline that one application is always as good as six ordinary rubbings with other liniments. Try a large 25c bottle. Sold everywhere.

O'K

Extra Mild, Remember

Many people would drink ale, in preference to all other malt beverages, if ale did not make them bilious.

This O'K brew is brewed especially for those people. It is extra mild and extra light, and lets you enjoy the creamy deliciousness of real old English ale without the heaviness and excessive bitterness. In easily—opened seal stoppered bottles. No broken cork or tinfoil in the glass.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet

For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

BIG RECEPTION TO THEIR MAJESTIES

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 5.— There was great enthusiasm on the part of the populace when their Majesties arrived at Buckingham Palace, being greeted by crowds of people who sang the national anthem, "Auld Lang Syne" and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" to which King George responded by appearing on the balcony of the palace.

MANITOBA TO BE SACRIFICED

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, FEB. 5.—There seems no doubt but that the government has decided to sacrifice Manitoba for Ontario in its boundary legislation. The way matters are now shaping a settlement will be reached within a few days, which will give Ontario a Hudson Bay port, high she has been demanding, while Manitoba will have to be content with an additional interior acreage.

Her, is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

OBITUARY

MRS. ARCHIBALD REYNOLDS.

A well known and highly respected resident of Springville passed away yesterday at Nicholls Hospital in the person of Elizabeth Wright, wife of Mr. Archibald Reynolds, storekeeper at Springville. The deceased who was fifty-eight years of age, had been a resident of this district for a long period and her many good qualities had earned for her a host of friends who will deeply regret her death.

She is survived by her husband and a family of seven children, four sons, Joseph, 479 Bolivar street, George, 510 College street, Peterborough; Roland, of Scott, Sask., and Albert, Springville, and three daughters residing at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, lot 23, con. 11, Springville ,on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the Eraserville cemetery.

MRS. W. J. MASON.

The late Mrs. W. J. Mason, whose death was announced Saturday, was seventy-one years of age, and a native of Hope county, Ontario. When a child she came with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Morrow, to Peterborough, where she had resided for the past fifty-seven years. While in this city she engaged actively in church work, particularly in connection with the George Street Methodist church of which she was a member.

In the year 1863 she became the wife of Mr. Wm. J. Mason, of Peterborough. Of a family of six children, four boys and two girls, four survive her. Three of the children. Mrs. H. B. Conway, of Brantford; Mr. Walter Mason, of Bellevue, Ohio, and Mr. E. F. Mason, of this city, were present at the funeral services this afternoon, the other son, Mr. W. A. Mason, of Bellevue, having left the city last week under the impression that his mother was fast recovering.

Mrs. Mason's death, after a short illness of three weeks, came as a shock to her many Peterborough friends.

The funeral took place this afternoon at half-past two, from the late residence, 60 Murray street, to Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. Isaac Couch conducting the services.

Applications For Assessor

Will be Opened at To-night's Meeting of the Council

The regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening and the activity displayed during the first month will doubtless be given a new impetus by the recent committee meetings. One question to be settled is the appointment of a permanent assessor. The committee of the Whole Council decided to advertise for applications with six replies being received up to the expiration of the appointed time, Saturday at four o'clock. There may be a debate to-night on the advisability of making the office permanent. The garbage by-law will hardly receive much attention as the Property committee have but recently taken it up.

WHY NOT PETERBODOUGH?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see by the "Globe" that the Superintendent of the Trent Valley Waterway has presented to His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, a steel engraving of the late Queen Victoria, executed by a Belgian artist, when she was Princess Victoria, and at the age of sweet sixteen.

This is all very nice from Mr. McClellan's standpoint; but what about Peterborough? No doubt the Belgian artist has long ago presented her late Majesty with a copy of the same engraving. Now, why could not our genial Superintendent of the Canal, which canal belongs to the people, not have given this excellent steel engraving to the Peterborough Public Library, to be hung upon the wall? The walls of the Library need something of this kind, from time to time, but this suggestion would not have—I think I'll say no more. Anyone having pictures of public value to give away, should not forget that the Public Library walls are yet unadorned, and if there is any objection to the Public Library, there are the walls of the lecture room of the Collegiate Institute that might be made picturesque.

Yours sincerely,
"A Lover of Art."

IN DREAD OF CROUP

BARLEY WANTED

5000 bushels of barley wanted. Parties having barley for sale, can find a market for it at Kendry Station. Highest market price paid. Parties living near Peterborough can make arrangements for loading at C. P. R. Station, by writing or telephoning T. E. Wilson, Springville; telephone 101, ring 2.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expectoration and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

EVENING WITH WHITTIER

The members and friends of the Y. W.C.A. are reminded of the literary meeting Tuesday night, when the Rev. F. J. Sawers will give an evening with John Greenleaf Whittier. Miss Florence Scott will sing. A general invitation is extended to those who desire to attend.

TO PROTECT FISHERIES

Two Fast Cruisers Will be Built for Patrol Duty on Pacific Coast

THE INTEREST OF CANNERS

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Yesterday was fisheries par excellence in the Commons, and many of the men who come from the seaside ridings delivered addresses upon their pet grievances.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries announced that two swift protection cruisers would be built to replace the present vessels, which F. H. Sheppard (Nanaimo) declared to be the laughing stock of the Pacific coast.

The licenses, said Hon. J. D. Hazen, had been administered in the past for the benefit of the canners alone. He had repealed the regulation which prohibited fishermen from selling their catch elsewhere. He also announced that an arrangement was being sought with the United States for the mutual regulation of the whaling industry.

In reference to a request of J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro) for papers dealing with steam trawling outside of the three mile limit, Hon. J. D. Hazen stated that, as that system was firmly established in Great Britain, the U. S. and other countries, there would be great difficulty in getting it prohibited by international agreement.

H. S. Clements (Comox-Atlin) pleaded for an adequate protective service for the fisheries of the Pacific coast. Over 200 foreign vessels were fishing or poaching there at the present time, with an average catch of 65,000,000 pounds a year. The Jap fishermen were not in the best interests of the fisheries of the Dominion. They were depriving the whites of their rights.

G. H. Barnard (Victoria, B.C.) said that the present patrol vessels, the Quadra and the Kestrel, were the laughing stock of the Pacific coast. As for the Canadian navy, it was a joke.

H. H. Stevens (Vancouver) declared that 10,000 Japanese were engaged in fishing on the coast of British Columbia. The whole industry had passed into the hands of an alien race. This was a direct result of the immigration policy of the late Government.

The argument that the canneries could not afford to pay white fishermen, he declared "absolute twaddle." He called upon the Government to cancel the permit of the New England Fish Co., which shipped all the good fish to the American market, leaving British Columbia only the bruised and second-class article.

F. H. Shepherd (Nanaimo) claimed that hundreds of boats came into Canadian waters to poach.

Hon. J. D. Hazen did not think this statement at all exaggerated. The fisheries protection and patrol services had been hopelessly inadequate hitherto. In the estimates now before the House was a sum of $275,000 for the acquisition of two fast vessels for fisheries protection and another for patrolling the British Columbia coast and enforcing our laws within the three mile limit. These he hoped to be able to build in British Columbia. The Kestrel, he said, would be sold. While the new vessels were building two whaling steamers would be chartered to do patrol work.

As to the argument that this work should be transferred from the Naval to the Fisheries Department, he was not impressed by it. It was a question of administration, both being under the control of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The fisheries protection fleet was in a sense a militant fleet, being largely engaged in keeping out poachers.

No licenses had been issued in British Columbia and none would be issued in future, except to bona fide fishermen. It was indefensible to issue a license for $25 to a person who would sell it in a short time for a considerable sum.

The administration of the British Columbia fisheries in the past, said Hon. Mr. Hazen, had been largely in the interests of the canners. So many licenses had been issued for each cannery, and these men could only sell their catch to the cannery. If the cannery said on a certain day that it would only take so many fish, the fishermen had to dump the rest into the sea. This regulation had been repealed last Saturday, and the fishermen was at liberty now to sell his catch at other places than the canneries.

As to the whale fishery, that could only be dealt with by international arrangement, as it was carried on outside the three-mile limit. Capt. Bernier of the Arctic had reported that this industry was being destroyed.

Hon. Mr. Hazen announced that he had taken the preliminary steps towards an arrangement with the U. S. by which this industry should be preserved for the people of both countries.

Railway Magnate's Will Missing.

New York, Feb. 6.—Although it is understood that he left an estate valued at approximately $40,000,000, it became known yesterday that the will of the late Edwin Hawley cannot be found. His private papers have been partly searched, but the will has not yet been discovered. Until it is found the disposition of Mr. Hawley's vast estate, including his great railroad interests, will remain in doubt. He made the will in 1903, naming as executor, his partner, Frank H. Davis.

Pressmen Meet.

Bowmanville, Feb. 6.—The Lake Shore Press Association met here yesterday. There was a good attendance of members, and temporary President James was in the chair. After organization was completed, the following were elected officers of the association: President, W. J. Watson, Vindicator, Oshawa; first vice-president, S. Farmer, Star, Port Perry; second vice-president, I. Wilson, Sentinel-Star, Cobourg; secretary, A. S. McLeese, Reformer, Oshawa; treasurer, John Murkar, News, Pickering; executive committee, the above officers and G. W. James, News, Bowmanville; Thomas B. Lapp, World, Cobourg.

The following were the papers read: "Advertising," by W. J. Watson; "Country Correspondence," by M. A. James; "Editorial Policy," by S. Farmer; and "Job Printing," by C. A. Goodfellow. Mr. Lapp of The Brighton Ensign, contributed some valuable information on the question of country correspondence.

BACK AGAIN TO ENGLAND

King George and Queen Mary Return Home

CANADA'S CONGRATULATIONS

London, Feb. 6.—King George and Queen Mary returned to England yesterday from the most memorable journey ever undertaken together by a King and Queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

After an absence of three months, during which they have been crowned Emperor and Empress of India, and had received the homage of many of their princely vassals in the vast eastern empire, they were welcomed back to London in the most hearty manner.

Their present stay in the British Isles will be only a short one, as they are due to pay a round of state visits to European courts this spring and summer.

After breakfasting on board the Medina with Queen Mother Alexandra, the Prince of Wales and the other royal children, Their Majesties landed and were saluted by the guns of the forts around Portsmouth. On the quay were drawn up guards of honor of bluejackets and soldiers, who presented arms, while a military band struck up the National Anthem.

The King inspected the guard of honor and then boarded a special train in which he with the Queen and the royal children traveled to London, through a country covered thickly with snow. All the stations along the route were decked with flags.

A large assemblage of notables was waiting at Victoria Station when the train pulled in soon after midday. An archway bearing the words "Welcome Home," in gold lettering on a blue ground, was erected across the platform where Their Majesties alighted.

Premier Asquith with other members of the Cabinet were the first to greet the King and Queen. Then came a group of members of the diplomatic corps and prominent officers of the army and navy in brilliant uniforms. The lord mayor and the sheriffs of London, and the lord mayors of the principal cities of the British Isles, all wearing their regalia, were also present to welcome Their Majesties.

When the greetings were over a procession of five royal carriages was formed. The King and Queen, with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, occupied the first carriage, which was drawn by four horses. With its escort of Life Guards in their brilliant uniforms with shining breastplates and helmets and floating plumes, the procession proceeded to Buckingham Palace, passing through Victoria street to Parliament square, and then along Whitehall and the Mall through streets thronged with cheering enthusiasts.

Religious services of thanksgiving for the safe return of the King and Queen from the first visit ever paid by reigning sovereigns of Great Britain to their Indian possessions, will be held this afternoon in Westminster Abbey, and the churches throughout the British Isles.

Canada's Congratulations.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—The safe return of His Majesty the King and the Queen was signalized by Canadians by the following cablegram, sent to Their Majesties by the Governor-General yesterday:

"The Government and people of Canada humbly desire to offer their heartfelt congratulations upon Your Majesties' home-coming, and they rejoice in believeing that the series of stately and splendid pageants which have marked Your Majesties' progress through India, testify that the spirit of affectionate loyalty which animates the people of Canada is shared in equal measure by our fellow-subjects in those far-off lands, from which through the blessing of God, Your Majesties have safely returned.

(Signed) "Arthur."

Death of David Dowsley.

Brockville, Feb. 6.—The death is announced from Frankville of David Dowsley, a prominent figure in the Township of Kitley. For more than half a century he had the honor of occupying the post of president of the township agricultural society. Of the three sons surviving, two are doctors, G. C. Dowsley of Manitoulin Island, and D. H. Dowsley of Ottawa. He was in his 88th year.

Business Block Burns.

Hamilton, Feb. 6.—One of the most serious fires which has visited Hamilton in years, and one which in its early stages threatened destruction to a block of business houses in the heart of the city, started in the book bindery of the Robert Duncan & Co., 19 North James street, about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and, although for the most part confined to that building, burned stubbornly all day, and was not finally extinguished until last night.

The loss caused by the fire will approximate $75,000. Two-thirds of this sum represents the damage to the Duncan plant, which is practically destroyed, and the remainder is divided among Cloke & Son, stationers, etc., 16 West King street, whose loss will be between $20,000 and $25,000; the Nordheimer Piano Agency, 18 West King street, whose premises were damaged to the extent of probably $2,000, and the Harris Bakery, which lost $500 worth of flour stock in a cellar close to the Duncan building.

Killed by Madman.

Moosejaw, Sask., Feb. 6.—An unknown man became suddenly insane on the eastbound express near Swift Current yesterday morning and terrified the passengers by firing repeatedly with a revolver, killing John G. Klundt of Garrison, N.D., a wealthy land speculator, who was returning home from Medicine Hat with his brother, Guslen A. Klundt. The maniac then suicided.

Both bodies were removed from the train at this point. The murderer, an old man, had a ticket for Campbelltown, N.B. Klundt was asleep at the time. He was shot through the back of the head by the first shot from the lunatic's revolver.

Klundt's brother said he did not know the murderer.

After firing wildly through the car, the man turned the pistol on himself and blew out his brains.

Bitter Over Sentence.

London, Feb. 6.—Indignation in this country is rapidly growing at the sentence imposed upon Bertram Stewart, a prominent London lawyer, who recently at Leipsic was found guilty of espionage and ordered confined in a fortress for three and a half years. Stewart's trial lasted five days and when the verdict was announced he declared vehemently that he was innocent and that he wanted everybody in England to know it.

It is suggested that a movement be organized for the boycott by British tourists of all German holiday resorts, as a protest against what is almost universally characterized by the newspapers as a "judicial scandal" and "a gross miscarriage of justice."

The feeling has become more embittered than ever.

SOUR, GASSY UPSET STOMACH REGULATED

Just a Little Diapepsin Ends Indigestion in Five Minutes

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order Stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feelings like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved in five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent. case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

ANOTHER WAR IMPROVEMENT

German Engineers Said to be Testing Secret Engine That Will Make Obsolete Large Dreadnoughts

WILL BE BIG ADVANTAGE

London, Feb. 6.—The British Admiralty has received news from a reliable source that a type of internal combustion engine has been brought well toward completion by German engineer experts, which, if it fulfills the expectations of its designers, should give the German navy an immense advantage in its race for supremacy against the British and against all other navies of the world.

A prominent engineer, who has learned of the main details of this engine—which its designers have endeavored to keep secret—said yesterday: "I can conceive that a vessel may be designed, using these engines, which would make the latest Dreadnaught obsolete, and it would look as if the revolution was imminent. For such a vessel, the radius of steaming might be multiplied by three or four, or the thickness of armor it could carry greatly increased, or the vulnerability much diminished."

In one of the principal works in Germany a marine plant has been completed, after exhaustive studies and expensive experiments, by a most able and confidential staff, which can be destined only for the use of the navy. It is of 18,000 horsepower, consisting of three engines of 6,000 horsepower each, one to each propeller. Each engine has three cylinders, producing 2,000 horsepower each, the cylinders being double action, the explosion occurring on both sides of the pistons.

The incorporation of such an installation in a war vessel means the abolition of boilers and smokestacks, also the saving of the space occupied by bunkers, as the engines would require less than one-half pound per horsepower hour, which would mean one hundred tons of oil per 24 hours for full power and full speed. Any kind of crude or refined oil may be used.

BUDGET IN A MONTH.

Hon. Mr. White Is Busy Preparing Tariff Commission Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Contrary to the rumors that have been prevalent during the past few weeks, the budget will not be brought down to the House until the first week in March, or, at the very earliest, the latter part of the present month.

Hon. Mr. White is prevented from announcing his budget in a few days by the attention which he is bestowing upon the bill for the appointment of a tariff commission. Originally, it was thought that Hon. George E. Foster would be the parent of that scheme, but as it was found that all the work of the commission, its findings and its investigations, dealt directly with the tariff of the country, it was decided that Hon. Mr. White would take charge of the bill. Day and night he is devoting himself to it.

Granted that the budget is brought down in the beginning of March, the House cannot prorogue until Easter at the very earliest. It was anticipated that it would do so about the middle of March, but this is very improbable now.

Memorial For 1812 Heroes.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—The Premier was waited upon yesterday afternoon by a large and representative deputation from the "memorial to the heroes of 1812-1814 Association," accompanied by a number of Conservative members of Parliament, who asked that the Federal Government should erect at the entrance to Queen's Park, Toronto, a fitting memorial in granite and bronze to the men who fell in those campaigns.

Major W. Hamilton Merritt introduced the deputation, which included Col. D. M. Robertson of the 48th Highlanders, and many stalwart imperialists of the stamp of Alexander McNeill, ex-M.P.

The Premier gave a reply which was regarded as favorable, but the delegation will have to wait for the supplementary estimates to see whether they were successful or not. He stated that the noble example of the United Loyalists had been always an inspiration to Canadians.

Socialist-Liberal Coalition.

Munich, Feb. 6.—The Diet elections, which have attracted uncommon interest resulted yesterday in considerable losses to the Clericals and Conservatives, and gains to the Liberals and Socialists. A novelty of the campaign was the alliance of the Liberals and Socialists with two peasant organizations in an effort to overcome the huge Clerical majority. With the aid of a small Conservative and Agrarian party coalition they succeeded in reducing the Clerical strength by 11 and the Conservatives by 10. The Liberals had a net gain of 11, the Socialists 9, and the Peasants 1.

The new House is made up as follows: Clericals 87, Liberals 37, Socialists 30, Peasant League 4, Conservatives 7.

Garrison Rebels.

Mexico, Feb. 6.—A special to The Herald from Ciudad Camargo, 80 miles south of Chihuahua, says that a portion of the small garrison stationed there rebelled on Sunday. Gen. Gonzales has gone there to combat with them.

Parents Should Know

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of school children than usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some dull at school because of eye strain, some did not require glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate timely attention saves your child much misery, and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

Mrs. Mary Leavitt Dead.

Boston, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Mary C. Leavitt, for forty years an honorary president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and a traveler in many lands in behalf of temperance, died in this city yesterday. Mrs. Leavitt was born in Houkinton, N.H., in 1830, and married Thomas H. Leavitt at Thetford, Vt., in 1857. She traveled 200,000 miles, and with the aid of interpreters, spoke to people in 51 languages in behalf of temperance, morality and Christianity.

Rebels Take Town.

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 6.—Reports received here state that Casas Grandes and Pearson, Chihuahua, are in the hands of rebels, declaring themselves for Emelio Vasques Gomez. At Pearson the rebels disarmed the police on Sunday and took the town. Fighting also is reported at San Andreas.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

by JOHN MARCH

Felix sat up, drew his thin arm from his shoulder, pushed him a little from him, and stared up at him. Paul clutched the mantel-shelf, and leaned weakly against it, his head bent, the heat of his passion smouldering, dying slowly back into a pained, cold reserve. Felix stretched out his hand, and took the damp, limp one hanging at Paul's side.

"After that spontaneous confession, don't you think it would be to my lasting sorrow if I did not strain every nerve and sinew to secure your safety? Come now, Paul," he said, persuasively, "if your positions were reversed, wouldn't you advance the same request?"

"I might," he said, turning his great eyes upon the tired, handsome face; "but I wouldn't wring all the gladness, the youth, the melody of life from a fellow's heart, if I desired and exacted this cruel exile. I would—would share it."

He withdrew his hand, covered his eyes with it, and laughed, a little, hysterical sob of a laugh.

In the quiet of the hush footsteps came along the passage, and the door opened to admit Agnes and the happy, cheery doctor.

CHAPTER XXIII.
SIR THOMAS' PROPOSAL

Jack Hunter's keen professional eye went from Paul's pale, strained face to the squire's feverish flush of exhaustion. He took in the situation at a glance, and crossed over to the side of his patient. Agnes, enraptured at the meeting, danced up to Paul pinned him by both arms, and shook him in sheer delight.

"You are not married, I hear! You failed to secure the catch of the county at the eleventh hour! Oh, you muff!"

"How is Mr. Fleming to-day, doctor?" Paul asked.

"He was getting on splendidly this morning, but he has gone back tremendously. By Jove! you have a pulse, Felix; you ought to be in bed!"

"Rubbish!" he returned, peevishly. "I have had an argument with Farley, and I daresay I am excited, a bit feverish and flustered. I want him to go back to town; he had no business to come down at all."

"Heard rumours about this unfortunate job, and came to find out the truth for yourself?" Hunter remarked, glancing at him. "When do you return, to-night?"

"I came partly on business and partly—I don't think I shall go back," he broke off, watching the squire's bright eyes.

"Yes, you will, Farley; I insist upon it, I—open the door, Agnes, the room is too hot, I—give me some whisky, Hunter; I feel a bit queer."

"He'll go," Hunter interposed with his native kindliness, "if it's only to pull your pulse down, Fleming."

Jack Hunter fixed his eyes on Paul with an expression in them that said volumes, and made more impression than the most powerful argument could have achieved. The fine delicate springs of Paul's character, morally and intellectually strong, knit to a temperament susceptible to heroic tendencies, vibrated and answered to the martyrdom the doctor's truthful eyes assured him was indispensable.

Shivering with a cold premonitory chill, he clenched his hands, looked at Felix, and moistened his dry lips.

"I'll go," he said, with profound pathos, bending over him, a hand on either arm of his chair. "Please don't trouble any more about it; get well, and—keep well—nothing else is of any importance."

"You will go, Paul? You will keep faith with me?"

"I give you my word—on my honour. I will go either to-night or the first things in the morning, if possible to-night—I am sorry to have vexed you."

"You're a dear fellow—God bless you!" Felix whispered.

Paul jerked himself upright, looked blindly round for his hat, and hurried from the room.

The doctor tripped downstairs, followed by Agnes, and found Paul in the hall below, looking pale, woebegone, and spiritless.

"Now, young man," Hunter said, briskly grabbing his arm, "pull yourself together and jump into my trap."

"I am glad you gave way," Hunter remarked, as they passed through the open gate on to the turnpike. "Felix is a strong man; he has a splendid constitution, but in his present state extreme agitation, mental excitement in any guise, is disinctly bad for him."

Paul maintained a perplexing silence. Hunter eyed him narrowly; he missed the sparkling gaiety, the wit and pathos of the young man's intelligence; he felt slightly injured and nettled by the unusual reticence.

"You are very much averse to going?"

"Very much," he returned, laconically.

"Might I ask why?"

"Because"—he choked a little—"I have a presentiment something black and horrible will happen to Felix in my absence."

"You think, failing you, our adorable Roweno will give her attention to him; chaw him up somehow?"

"Yes, I do; I wish I had not pledged myself to stay away. I—there would be no harm, doctor, in my running down each day?"

"Now, take my advice, Farley, and don't pull a long face over this. It isn't worth it. Throw it off; go back and enjoy yourself. Go to the theatre, to places of amusement—there are plenty of good things going now. Don't moon about with your thought and heart at Weyberne, because it's foolish and debilitating, deteriorating to the nerve tissue, and can't do anything but harm to yourself and your cause."

Paul smiled, in spite of his despondency, at the Herculean task the doctor sketched out for his benefit and relaxation.

"Well," Hunter said, watching the dissenting profile, "you can make an effort to take your heart and mind away along with your body to the 'Pendennis,' and if you promise me that, I'll make a corresponding effort on my part, and, metaphorically speaking, keep my hand on Fleming's shoulder. He won't be out of doors for at least a week or ten days, and when that interesting day dawns I'll pack him off to town and telegraph you which train to meet—what's that in the road?"

"I don't know—why, I believe it's the Wycherly boy. Pull up, doctor, I wonder what he is doing here."

"Mother on her wedding trip, little son enjoying his spell of unrestrained liberty. Shall we give him a ride?"

Paul assented with a lightsome laugh that pleased Hunter exceedingly, and stooping, he made a snatch at the little fellow and hoisted him up by the belt that fastened his tunic. They stood him on the cushion between them. Paul wound his arm around him, pushed back his own hat, removed his glasses, and turned his face up to the child.

"Do you know me, chappie?" he asked eagerly; "you said you would recognize me again anywhere."

"Yes, I know you," he answered, stroking his face; "you are the man who kissed me; you are the man who keeps the goat away."

"Bravo!" Paul exclaimed, lifting him down. "You're a smart boy! Is mother at home" he asked, as the child cuddled to him.

Guy shook his head, gave vent to a hoarse laugh, and licked his hand. Paul started; the action shocked him. The contact of the little warm tongue opened up a vista of a dreary waste of childhood. With his delicate insight and fertile imagination he beheld the rough, harsh, lonely child-life, the poor little life spent outside The Larches in the stables, in the kennels, out among the animals and brute creation, from whom he had received all that he knew of love and kindness. That this ruined piece of humanity was the instrument selected by Mrs. Wycherly to accomplish any fell design, Paul never doubted for an instant. He felt he held the future, the arbiter, of Felix's fate in his arms, and in the throe of, the wretched conviction the boy's head rested like a lump of lead upon his heart. The vastness of his powerlessness, his inability to meddle with what was shrouded in impenetrable mystery terrified him. There was nothing he could do but wait; wait with a bleeding heart for the "something," that was casting its black shadow in advance across his path. He looked from the boy's innocent face to the myriad of calm, serenely-smiling stars, and tried hard to believe that up above, behind that stretch of laden blue, there existed a Supreme Omnipotent Power allied to a tender, tearful Pity; a something he might depend upon, that would combat, would frustrate disaster, and prove all-sufficient for every anxious racking fear, for every separate human need.

They were in the private road, now belted on either side by acacia trees, and Hunter pulled close to the hedge as he perceived the Hall brougham approaching. Sir Thomas leaned from the window and shouted to Birch, who brought the greys to a standstill in masterly style beside the doctor's gig.

"I am going to the station to meet Lady Hargrave," he said, in a voice that quavered like the speech of an old man; "I shall want to see you, Farley, on my return. I shall expect to find you in."

"Yes, sir," he said, somewhat surprised. "I shall be in and at your service."

The brougham sped on, and the gig came slowly out from the hedge.

"There's something wrong," Hunter said with conviction.

"Yes, Sir Thomas looks as if he had received some kind of a blow. What are you going to do with the boy?"

"Take him back to The Larches."

"I don't expect to be able to go to London to-night, but I will hurry off early to-morrow. I'll get down here. Thank you, good-night. Take care of the poor, wee chap, and above all, sir, take care—keep in touch with Felix"

Hunter waved his whip, gave a non-assuring answer, turned his trap carefully round and was soon out of sight. Paul finished the journey with an easy swing gait, and, entering the library to seek for letters, found James on his knees tending the fire.

"Something has happened since I went out; may I know what it is, James? I might be of some use."

"You are very good, sir; you always are. It's the master, sir, he's sorely troubled, and I'm afraid you can't bear his burden for him. He's a good master. I was brought up with him, as you may say, having lived page with Sir Thomas's father. We were boys together, you see, sir. I grew up a young man alongside of Mr. Tom. I've known and entered into most of his joys and sorrows, sir, and a trouble like this weighs on me like as though it were my very own."

"May you tell me the trouble?"

"You are bound to know it, sir; it's the young lady—Miss Judith."

"What has she done?" he asked in a sudden bewildering fright. "Has she—has she done anything to—James, you know what I mean—I don't like to put it into words."

"No, sir! no, no," he said, terrified at the expression on Paul's face. "She have threatened to, but the Lord send it mayn't come to that."

Paul took out his handkerchief and wiped his forehead.

"Reputation be hanged!" he exclaimed, unloading his overcharged heart. "I beg your pardon, James," he added immediately, grasping the man's hand, "but I am so awfully relieved. I—well—I couldn't tell what had happened."

"It might be worse, but it's bad enough. I've always heard, sir, the reputation of a young lady in Miss Judith's station is very delicate and easily smirched. It's like a bank, sir, the least breath of suspicion or doubt that all's not exactly square brings about a panic, and it's out-and-out ruin or years of uphill work to recover the public confidence."

"Reputations are not so easily damaged nowadays, James," he said, smiling, and turning over the letters. "Woman has walked so completely into man's sphere, and they are working so naturally and equally, shoulder to shoulder on the same plane in life that it's difficult to lay down a boundary line where one sex may step over and the other not."

James looked, smiled, and left the room with an enlightened air, although he was not altogether convinced of the efficacy of the sentiment. Paul read, answered, and filed the letters with marvellous celerity, and commenced to unlock the drawer containing the electioneering documents, when Sir Thomas's well-known step sounded in the hall outside. He looked up hastily in time to see the baronet close and lock the library door.

"I don't wish to be disturbed," he said in answer to Paul's look of surprise. "I want a word with you, and it must be alone—absolutely private and confidential."

The fresh face showed sallow in the lamplight, the clear eyes looked bleared, the strong hearty voice sounded subdued and quavering. The man's whole demeanour had obviously undergone a flagrant change. He seemed feeble and timid, not sure of himself, and his troubled eyes had an imploring expression in them when they met Paul's.

"You are not well, sir," he said, drawing his own especial chair to the fire; "you will sit here?"

Sir Thomas dropped into it, thankful for the substantial support it afforded his trembling limbs.

"Can you bring to mind, Farley, the day we discussed Judith's infatuation for you?. Do you remember," he proceeded, as Paul bowed in answer, "do you remember me saying I would never allow a daughter of mine to marry a man in your position, of your social status, and precarious antecedents?"

Paul, leaning on the writing-table staring at him, bowed again.

"Well, I retract that statement. If you have the least regard for Judith, a spark of feeling for her that she can fan into a flame, I shall be willing, proud, pleased, to welcome you as my son-in-law."

Sciatica AND Lumbago

Suffered for Twenty-five Years and Could Get No Relief

Now Tells of the Wonderful Results Obtained by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

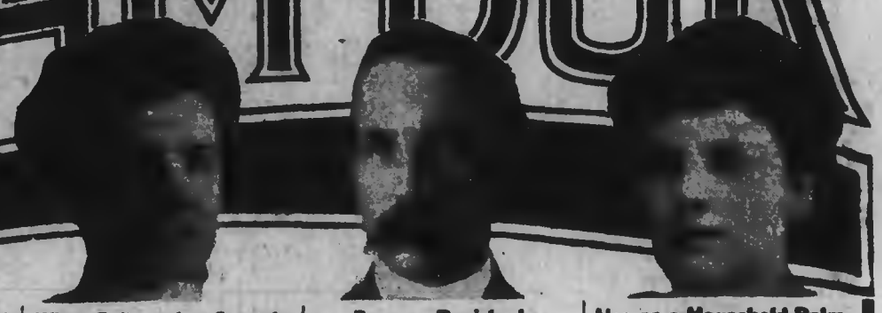
Sciatica, neuralgia and sciatic rheumatism are the result of a run-down nervous system. For this reason all treatments must necessarily fail which do not build up the nervous system.

Mr. Collins suffered for twenty-five years and never was able to obtain satisfactory treatment until he began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. While the Nerve Food forms new blood and restores the exhausted nervous system, the Kidney-Liver Pills invigorate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont., writes: "It affords me pleasure to be able to speak favourably of two of Dr. Chase's medicines—the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I had been a sufferer for twenty-five years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried almost all the medicines I could hear of, without one particle of benefit, until I commenced to use Dr. Chase's. I noticed an improvement before I had used two boxes, and the benefits obtained by continued use have been wonderful. I have so much confidence in these two medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends, and I have yet to hear of a single case in which they failed to give satisfaction."

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

ZAM-BUK



We want every person who is suffering from any skin injury or disease to personally prove the merits of Zam-Buk.

Read the experience of these three persons—possibly one of them may be well known to you—and then make it a personal matter. If you cut out this advertisement, write across it the name of this paper and mail it to us with a 1c stamp (to pay return postage) we will send you a trial box of Zam-Buk free!

Zam-Buk is a proved cure for eczema, ulcers, abscesses, poisoned sores, chapped hands, cold sores, cruptions, cuts, bruises, burns, scalp sores, babies' chafed or chapped places, and all skin injuries and diseases. It also cures piles. All druggists and stores 50c, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

What Followed a Scratch.

Mrs. Brown 7 Calumet Ave., Montreal, says:—"While busy in the kitchen one day the oven door fell off, striking my right leg and inflicting a nasty scratch. While this was painful, I never thought it would become a serious wound, but to my surprise it became very much inflamed and very painful. I found that the dye from my stocking had got into it and poisoned it. The pain and inflammation got worse and the wound discharged freely. At this stage someone advised me to try Zam-Buk and I obtained a supply. This balm counteracted to draw out the poison at once, reduced the inflammation and soothed the wound. I naturally persevered with Zam-Buk and within a few weeks the wound was quite healed."

Eczema Banished.

To be covered with sores which sometimes itch and burn and then, when rubbed, cause acute agony—sores which look repulsive as well as cause pain—sores which have defied all remedies that have been applied to them—what could be worse? Yet this is the lot of scores of people to-day who suffer from that terrible disease, Eczema. To all such sufferers we will send trial box of Zam-Buk free! Write us, sending 1c stamp to pay return postage.

Mr. Wm. Dangerfield, 958 Lipton St., Winnipeg, says:—"Last winter I suffered from Eczema. After trying lotions, salves and powders given me by the doctor, which failed to do me any good, I tried Zam-Buk. This proved equal to my case and cured me."

Use as a Household Balm.

Mrs. W. Blair, 91 St. Catharine St., Hamilton, speaks of the value of Zam-Buk as a household balm. She says:—"I one day slipped and fell against a Morris rocker, knocking my knee very badly. The knee turned black and blue and was very painful. I rubbed Zam-Buk well into the injured member and it was indeed surprising how quickly I found relief. The swelling was soon reduced and pain and discoloration banished. By perseverance with Zam-Buk my injured knee was well again in a couple of days.

"I have since proved it to be the handiest and best balm for household purposes. A few applications of Zam-Buk gave me ease from rheumatism also!"

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

INTERESTING REPORT OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE CONVENTION

Mrs. Edwards' Address at Meeting of Warsow Women's Institute Contained Much Information.

WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

Following is a report of the Women's Institute Convention in Toronto as presented to the Warsaw Women's Institute by Mrs. Edwards:

The meeting opened promptly at 9.30, with Superintendent Putnam in the chair, by the singing of "O Canada."

Business methods in the institute was taken up by different delegates, showing the mistakes and the successful methods which each had found. The great difficulty seemed to be to get the members to undertake responsibility. The necessity of working committees was pointed out by Mrs. Scripture, which would use tact, giving to each member what they could best do, and so get every one to help, not leaving the officers to do all the work. She said they increased their membership by inviting in their neighbours. Their money they expended in public library, aid in abolishing the white slave traffic and paid part on subscription to Women's Home Companion for each member of the institute so that they could all have it in their homes.

Miss Coates thought timidity a good frame work for better things, and advised a committee of three members to write short addresses and give to timid ones and so get them to take part.

The roll call seemed to meet with the best success, some adding a fine if the members did not respond, but a delegate from Garden Hill said that was tried in their institute, but they had never received five cents from that source yet. Some of the delegates reported having quite a little money on hand, but Mr. Putnam advised them to put it into something, where they would be apt to get some benefit out of it, and not keep much money on hand.

Demonstration lecture course was then taken up by Miss Watson, Guelph.

Last year the convention appointed a committee to see if something could be done to get some systematic form of instruction in domestic science given to a group of institutes. Miss Watson reported that as a result of this there are at present six institutes in Haldimand and Norfolk, which are receiving a course of lectures on cooking from Mrs. Burns, a well-qualified and especially trained teacher. Their fee is one dollar, and each group has one lesson a week for 15 weeks. At the smallest meeting there were 20 ladies present, while the usual attendance is 40; as many as 78 have attended. Miss Watson dealt with the subject from a financial standpoint and as a business proposition, and then called on Mrs. Burns, who has the work in charge. She told us how she gave eight lessons a week, some evening classes, which would cost between 65 and 70 cents a lesson for supplies. Each member gives a little or they send the list to the store, as they think best. Great enthusiasm was shown by the ladies, and they gladly rendered all the assistance possible in the way of providing material, preparing suitable quarters and helping to clean up afterwards. Delegates from Hagersville and Dunnville were called on to express their opinion of the value of the course. One lady volunteered her husband's opinion that a single dinner of lamb chops cooked according to instructions was worth the cost of the whole course. The question then came up: Could this be made to pay? Mr. Putnam thought it could if the fee was increased to two dollars and fees of 10 cents charged for single lessons from occasional visitors. The government might also attend instructions to sewing and nursing.

After a short address from President Creelman, the subject of programmes and literature was taken up by Miss Reynolds, East York. Programmes, she said, in order to be interesting, must be up-to-date and original, and in order to meet this demand members must keep themselves up-to-date by reading, thinking and utilising the libraries. Do not copy from something some one else has said in preparing a paper, but think it out for yourself, and do not forget to pass on good papers. This has been a great mistake.

At Welland demonstrations were given by members during the year in crochet work, basket-making, needlework, etc., and they found the people would turn out for a practical demonstration when they would not come to an ordinary meeting.

Short addresses were also given on extending and encouraging the work. Many items were mentioned, such as lectures given by nurses, doctors, dentists, bankers or lawyers, which would be of great help to the members. One institute went to the school as a body, cleaned up the yard and made gardens. They also gave pictures to the school and took lunch with them; a good time was the result. In another institute they left one meeting every year for the young ladies to provide for. They were left to prepare the programme just as they chose, and gave it as a surprise. This seemed to work well. This institute also gave one dollar for every two from the council toward paving the streets.

Mrs. Haldimand, Kingsville, said their plan was to never ask members to help; just put their names down. They had printed programmes bearing rules, and after each meeting they have an open discussion, making every one feel responsible to take part, making it more like an experience meeting. You cannot enjoy the meetings if you do not take part. They have what she called a miscellaneous committee of three; one drops out and a new member added each meeting to carry on the work. They also have penny collections for the sick. She advised having a series of topics and having a committee save newspaper clippings bearing on the subject. A good plan in getting up a paper is to draw "a wagon wheel" and add the spokes or outlines while you work. She thought the men ought to be encouraged by giving them an occasional oyster supper. Good reports were considered of great value.

The formal opening was held in the afternoon. Mrs. Endacott, Orangeville, presided, and gave a short address. She recommended having a definite object in prizes for gardens or the holding of a fall fair.

The address of welcome was then given by Mrs. James Hughes, city. She took as her keynote, the premise that all civilization has come through organization. For this reason, she was heartily in sympathy with this men," she said, "you are uplifting the universe." The institute is leading women out of the old ruts and prejudices towards better methods, and is supplying topics of conversation infinitely better than mere gossip.

Mrs. L. C. Burns was not able to attend, so Mrs. Whyte, of East Elgin, replied with a parody on "The Charge of the Light Brigade," for she had come to help the convention. Woman only in this century has discovered her opportunity, and is being educated to better living. All things in the home depends on the housekeeper. She says, "We are made for social intercourse and for what it leads to." If citizens would be one in thought what a power for good they would become. Comradeship makes each one stronger. The institute makes brighter mothers, it is individual in its work and social in its fruit; work is sacred, even the desire to work; may it take on a new dignity—my blessing, not my doom.

MR. PUTNAM'S ADDRESS.

The superintendent's report was received with applause. The Women's Institutes are looked upon as leaders in a very important and comparatively new work among home-makers, and are commanding the respectful attention of public men and women of prominence as never before. If the organization has done nothing else, it has taken women beyond, but not above, those things which concern the every-day routine of the home. Their lives have been broadened and their influence directed to the betterment of morals, education, life problems, community interests, etc., and as we stand true we are bound together and make our lives brighter, but care should be taken to reach out the helping hand to those who need it most.

We have 654 institutes with a membership of 19,091, an increase of 3,000 in the year, with a total attendance of 150,000 for the year. Mr. Putnam said on the whole he had found members very ready to respond to any call he made, and the longer the work continues the better the work. He advised sustained effort along the line of upholding the local school; the co-operation with agricultural societies in connection with fall fairs, although it was not necessary to render financial assistance to fairs, as they were much more liberally supported financially than institutes. We should be careful to avoid monotony in our regular work and also the other extreme of endeavouring to cover too wide a field in too short a time. He thought it wise to leave room for visitors to help and even develop a passion for carrying through that which we undertake. A list of mottoes was printed and given to each delegate. These are now in the hands of our president.

Dr. Helen McMurchy followed with an illustrated lecture on Social Service. Here we were brought face to face with a view of our country that we, in the quiet seclusion of our homes, are either ignorant of, or ignore. She regarded the housing problem for this great foreign population that is continually pouring into Canada as the greatest of all social problems. "Do you think," she asked, "that a plan is more necessary for a house or farm than for a city?" Should squatters be allowed to erect any kind of buildings outside of the city limits which, when taken into the corporation, are bound to make nothing but a slum area? They are going to bring in a bill at the next session of the legislature to tax land outside the corporation where decent dwellings may be built, and she asked for support.

Dr. McMurchy was formerly a medical inspector of the Toronto public schools, and she asked this question: "Do you take as much interest in the election of your school trustees as you should? or do you ever prevent your husband from running by saying 'No, not with that [illegible]'?" If you do, she said, you are really committing a grave crime. Social service consists in looking ahead as well as in setting things right. Public schools could be used more largely than they have been. Fires are often kept on all night. The pictures were object lessons, and afforded much food for thought, although they cannot be described on paper.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The evening meeting was held in Convocation Hall, and was presided over by Mrs. Graham, of Brampton. A couple of short reports were given, some questions answered, and then the Hon. Adam Beck took up the subject of "Electricity on the Farm and in the Home." He gave a very long paper, which I found very hard to report. One statement he made was that electric energy now produced at nine dollars per horse power is exactly one-fifth of the cost of steam generated power. By a series of lantern views, he showed us how electricity is serving in Germany and other parts of Europe to do such work as ploughing, threshing, chopping, silo filling, cooking and even milking. "Agriculture," he said, "takes first place in enriching the province. The crying need is for more comfort, more attraction on the farm and less drudgery, and there will be less trouble to keep the boys and girls there. Now is the agriculturists' opportunity to remedy this. The government is installing the transportation lines and a uniform apparatus. The only duty of the townships is to connect it with the homes."

This was followed by an address by Mrs. Guest, Belleville, entitled "Young Women and the 20th Century." She described the 20th century as a girl with new thoughts, new aspirations, and new purposes, but still a woman, more capable, a more understanding companion and better fitted for the great duties in life. There are 53,000 girls going to school; 17,000 going into offices. Think of the physical and moral dangers of these young workers. She compared mothers' work to-day with grandmothers' work years ago. She says we must study the girls, learn their difficulties, sympathize with them, teach them the value of real things, remembering the influence of school. Duty often works wonders. She declares "the thinking woman of the 20th century does want to vote." Seriously, quietly, practically, she looks upon the vote, not as a "Right," but as a "Duty." Let women be educated in mathematics, science, classics, medicine, law, everything she likes, but you cannot educate the mother-heart out of her. You just make it bigger, deeper, tenderer, more scientific. She will be mother of all who need her. And accepts national motherhood as a sacred trust for "Home and Country organization—The Women's Institute. "When you organize as women you will be one in this great organization."

THE BROADVIEW INSTITUTE.

One of the most delightful and most inspiring features of the convention was the address on "What We Can Do for the Boys" by Mr. C. J. Atkinson, of the Broadview Institute.

Some time ago an account was given in the Advocate of the work that is being done at that wonderful institution in East Toronto, "over the Don,"—an institution not, as some suppose, a home for boys, but one organized and carried on with the sole purpose of educating the lads of the neighbourhood in citizenship, for making them better men and better citizens than they might otherwise be. As a beginning a plot of land was bought about ten years ago, and divided into "farms," on which the boys were encouraged to raise vegetables and flowers. Before long the whole was or-

A POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

For Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Asthma.

Soothing Balsams Are Carried to the Sore, Congested Membranes — Cure Quickly and Completely.

Diseases of the breathing organs are, as you know, excited by germs so minute that only the microscope can reveal them; they are lodged in the tissues, develop there, and cause all the trouble. That is how consumption starts.

If the cause of the disease can be carried by air, why not the remedy? This conclusion lies at the root of the Catarrhozone treatment. The instrument through which you breathe fragrant, healing Catarrhozone splits up into minute particles this invaluable healing and curative agent, thereby enabling the air to carry it to the remotest ramifications of the breathing organs, and diffuses itself over their entire surfaces.

CATARRHOZONE ALWAYS CURES.

It would be absolutely impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without carrying this liquid to the remotest parts of the breathing apparatus. Upon healthy tissue it has no action, but upon diseased tissue and upon the micro-organisms which infect diseased tissues its action is so wonderfully curative that the disease is completely abolished. Then the tissue heals.

EARLY TREATMENT IS WISE.

Catarrhozone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, or bronchitis, or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhozone. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membranes of the throat and nasal passages. Under these conditions we call it catarrh. When it extends to the bronchial tubes, we call it bronchitis. The condition is the same, the causes which produce the diseases are identical, and the remedy, Catarrhozone, acts equally promptly and efficiently upon the different forms of this disease. Your case is curable. Get Catarrhozone to-day; two months' treatment (guaranteed) price $1; small size 50c. Sold by all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A Sunday Morning Visit to Mark Street Methodist Church

(By Roy Gilray.)

The history of Mark Street Methodist Church dates from the year 1872, when the bar of the hotel at Downer's Corners was put out of commission. Owing to the aggressiveness of the Bible Christians under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Butcher, the spirit of alcoholism gave place to a great revival, the first meetings of which were held in the room which formerly contained the bar. Those who assisted Mr. Butcher in the evangelistic work were young men from the Bible Christian Church (now Murray Street Baptist Church), four of whom are living to-day, three in Peterborough and one in Beaverton. Later on the services were held in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, and in 1873, while Rev. Mr. Copeland acted as assistant to Mr. Butcher, the Mark Street Bible Christian Church was built on the present site. In these early years the young minister or assistant had Mark Street under his special care, but changed pulpits with his senior minister every other Sunday. Rev. Mr. Copeland was succeeded by the Reverends McHammond, Roberts, and Baer.

In 1884 the union of the Methodist and Bible Christian Churches took place, after which Mark Street formed a separate pastoral charge.

The next fourteen or fifteen years saw the following pastors come and go: Reverends Wilson, Brown, Thompson, and Thom. These were year sof varying success, which ebbed and flowed according to the popularity of the preachers.

During the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Moore, in 1888, many alterations were made to the church. The cellar was dug out and a basement provided for the better accommodation of the Sunday school. The tower was added and new seats installed. After this wave of enthusiasm struck the church things seemed to go along better. The membership made steady progress, notwithstanding the allurine attractions of the glittering churches across the river.

The Rev. C. E. Cragg, B.D., the present pastor, has started in with the wave of popularity decidedly in his favour. In consultation with several embers of his congregation, they all speak in eulogistic terms of his work. His great activity among his flock and his anxiety for their welfare, together with a practical sympathy and brotherly feeling in his sermons tend to increase his hearers as the weeks go by. I am told that it is quite the common thing at the Sunday evening services to place a number of extra seats, the congregations are becoming so large.

Rev. Mr. Cragg might almost be classed as a Peterborough boy, for his father, himself a velued minister of the Methodist Church, lived here while his four sons attended our Collegiate. Well do I remember those days, when the halls of the old Collegiate on Murray Street resounded to the tread of young men (with ambitions) as they vied with each other in the arena of debate in the famous literary society, whose popular president was one of the "Cragg boys."

It is fortunate, indeed, that Mr. Cragg is the product of a Methodist minister's home, for with that invaluable experience to guide him, he is trained for his work as a novice can never be. Fortunate, too, was he in the choice of a helpmate. He selected her from among the most prominent workers of the George Street Methodist Church. No small measure of Mr. Cragg's success may be attributed to the splendid assistance of his devoted wife.

* * *

Last Sunday morning, though cold, saw a large congregation at Mark Street Church. They are a very friendly people, and are particularly attentive to strangers. One instance I noticed, that of a lady who seemed to be a member of the church, shook hands with another lady and inquired if she were a stranger. Being informed that she was, the member welcomed her to the church and hoped she would come again. To see that the little courtesy was appreciated one had but to look on the beaming face of the stranger, who hastened to explain that on account of the coldness of the morning she had dropped into Mark Street because it was so handy, and she had enjoyed the service very much. This little incident when examined carefully especially from the viewpoint of the stranger, impresses upon every student of Church Union that the very best thing that could happen the Methodists and Presbyterians of Ward Five would be the construction of a good church on the corner of Mark and Hunter Streets, where all could join forces in an organized effort against the gian evils of the day.

The choir rendered excellent music, which added greatly to the effectiveness of the service. During the offertory Mrs. Dr. Middleton delighted the audience with a beautiful solo entitled "My Task."

Rev. Mr. Cragg, in his sermon dealt with the question of Church Union, and chose as his text part of John 17:21, "That they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us."

He introduced his remarks by giving a brief history of the movement which has for its one object the amalgamation of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches of Canada.

The negotiations began in 1899 when the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, at the urgent request of its Home Mission Committee, appointed a committee to meet and confer with representatives from other evangelical churches, having power to enter into any arrangement with them that will tend to bring about a more satisfactory state of things in the Home Mission Fields, so that the overlapping now complained of may be prevented.

The Methodist Church appointed a similar committee in 1902, and in the same year the General Conference of the Methodist Church at Winnipeg went a step farther and recommended a measure of organic union wide enough to embrace all the evangelical denominations in Canada.

The Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists were the only ones that signified a desire to join the movement.

The first joint meeting of the three denominational committees was held in Knox Church, Toronto, in 1904. A short time previous to this session the convenor of the committee for the Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. Cavan, one of the strongest advocates of Church Union, passed to his reward. Rev. Dr. Warden was appointed to succeed him, but before the second meeting of the joint committee in 1905, Dr. Warden had been called to his eternal Home. Rev. Principal Patrick, of Winnipeg, was appointed in Dr. Warden's place and sad to relate, he, too, died about one year ago while travelling in Scotland.

The Basis of Union as adopted has been divided into five parts: Doctrine, Ministry, Polity, Administration and Law.

Owing to the lack of time, the reverend speaker was unable to go very fully into any of these, but impressed upon his hearers the differences that existed between the new articles of Doctrine and those so long cherished by the Methodist Church. While the main features of Methodism were incorporated yet he regretted the omission of certain elements which had made the Methodist Church what she is to-day. Nevertheless he rejoiced that there were some things included which his Church had neglected in the past.

He was also glad to see under the "Polity" that local preachers were to be retained. These had been the main-stay of the Methodist Church in the early days of our country and are now a source of great power to the churches in the Old World.

Another feature which Mr. Cragg thought would be beneficial, was the removal of the time limit from the ministry. Under the old system it often happened that the congregation was extremely desirous that the pastor should go before his time was up while in other cases the pastor would be a great deal happier if he could leave before the expiration of his period.

After presenting the main features of the Articles of Union, Rev. Mr. Cragg, in a very fair and impartial manner, brought to the attention of the congregation the main arguments—for and against—which had arisen since union was first suggested. Some Methodists mourn the loss of their glorious name, the passing away of the history of the sect which has meant so much to them, so much to their forefathers, in whose steps they have been so proud to follow.

In marshalling the arguments in favour of Church Union, one could easily see which side the speaker favoured. His heart is with the movement, but in no uncertain tones he reminded his hearers that they were to feel perfectly free in using their own judgment which ever way they thought best.

He cited the great possibilities that of ours. Here the greatest question that confronts the Christian Church to-day is the proper taking care of the immense tide of immigrants that are pouring in at the rate of 300,000 or 400,000 annually.

Recently in New York City, at a great Missionary Convention representing all churches, Dr. Arthur J. Brown, an authority on foreign mission work, stated, during the course of his remarks, that the greatest problem that confronts the Churches of the United States to-day is the denominational rivalry.

If we in Canada are to profit by the regrettable experience of the United States we must provide for this tremendous inflow of population by putting a stop to all overlapping and wasting of time, men and money. There is a great demand being made on the Church of God in Canada at the present time.

As an instance of overlapping the speaker referred to his pastorate in Haliburton, a village of 250 to 300 inhabitants, where four churches existed. His congregation, the Methodist, numbered about 55 members, Baptists had a membership of 30; the Presbyterians about 40, and the Anglican Church totalled about 100, including children. The four ministers received a grant of $1400 from the home mission funds of their denominations. They seemed to do nothing but chase one another around visiting on all the members of their congregation about every other week, and in some cases trying to outdo their rivals. The whole situation was ridiculous in the extreme, and was most humiliating to an ambitious man. In a city, of course, these conditions do not exist owing to the presence of sufficient population.

Then the experience of the Methodist and Prebyterian Churches in the past should be an incentive to union. Previous to 1874 there were three Presbyterian and five Methodist Churches in Canada. In 1875 the three Presbyterian bodies united forming the Presbyterian Church of Canada. In 1874 three of the five Methodist bodies united, and in 1884 a final amalgamation was brought about, forming the Methodist Church of Canada.

Each union was followed by a sweeping revival, showing conclusively that God was in the movement.

Rev. Mr. Cragg concluded by a brief reference to the remarkable spirit of unity and tolerance that has grown up of late between the three Churches. Various enterprises found them on a common platform. Pulpits were frequently exchanged. The methods of evangelism were identical.

The expressions of opinion as already taken on the ballots showed that the Congregationalists favoured it by a 90% majority, while the Presbyterians showed their approval by a majority of 85%.

He was confident the present movement was of God, and if the union should become an accomplished fact it would prove a great blessing, not only to the Churches of Canada, but throughout the whole world.

Try This Home-made Cough Remedy

Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PICKLED APPLES.

Take six pounds of good cooking apples, prepared as if for a tart, strew plentifully with salt, and stand for 24 hours, then drain from moisture Put into a stewpan three pints of malt vinegar, ten shallots finely shred, three-fourths of a pound of loaf sugar merio, ground ginger and flower of mustard, also a dozen each of cloves and pepper-corns. Bring to boil and cook altogether for ten minutes. Now add the apples and cook for about 17 minutes more, or till the apple is tender with smashing. It is delicious with cold meat, curry or hash. It keeps well if closely covered and kept in a dry place, but is quite ready for use as soon as made.

WAS SO RUN DOWN

COULD NOT DO ANY WORK.

Thought She Was So Far Gone Nothing Could Cure Her.

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS Made Her Strong and Healthy.

Many women get run down, and are unable to look after their household duties, owing to their nervous system becoming unstrung, and when this happens, the heart starts to work in sympathy with the nerves. In Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is combined a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders, as well as act on the heart itself. Mrs. F. McFadyen, Brookside, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you stating the benefit I have received from using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This spring I was so run down I could not do any work, and one day a neighbor advised me to try your Pills. I told her that I thought nothing could cure me, as I was too far gone. But she told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and before I had finished them, I began to improve, and when I had finished the one box I was as strong and healthy as any person. Anyone who is suffering from heart or nerve troubles should take your Heart and Nerve Pills and they will soon discover their worth."

CHURCH UNION

Some Lessons Learned From Visiting the City Churches

(By Roy Gilray.)

Since last November I have visited the majority of the churches in the City, and the facts that have impressed me most are, the multiplicity of churches, and the large number of empty seats to which the ministers address their remarks.

An examination of their financial statements is most interesting. Combining all the congregations visited, I find that, approximately, they represent a capital investment of $600,000, the interest charge of which amounts to $25,000 per annum. Then the salaries of clergy, cost of music, and other incidentals, make a total of some $60,000, which, added to the interest, makes a grand total of $75,000 per year. Now the first question is, "What is being accomplished with such an expensive equipment and such a heavy outlay?" Next, "How many souls are being added to the register in the Golden City?" And, most important of all, "If we were to invest the same amount of money in foreign fields, or even in our own North-west, and were to supply the same amount annually, would not the tangible results be infinitely greater?"

Yet we say we are giving it to the Lord, but it does not take much comparing of figures to realize that we are cheating the Lord out of a large share that is now going to waste through useless dovetailing and unnecessary duplication.

The plan of union is simply an application of rigid economy to the missionary work of the Church in particular along ordinary commonsense business lines, in order that much greater results may be effected than is possible under the present system.

We hear a lot about giving up this belief and that doctrine. Take my word for it, there is not so much in that as appears on the surface. The question is more the calibre of the men expressing their views.

Take a case in point. The pastor of one of the churches, that considers itself too exclusive to join the movement for union, told me that if I chose to stay for sacrament in his church, I did so at my own risk. Mark the word RISK! (And I heard that right here in our own fair City.)

Now, if it is so dangerous for a Methodist to partake of the sacrament in a church that is not Methodist, how much more dangerous is it for a Methodist preacher to associate, much less chum, with a pastor who is not a Methodist. Yet, who ever saw two Methodist, two Presbyterian, two Baptist, or two Anglican clergymen in the same town real chummy?

So you see, it is not a question of dogmas so much as it is a matter of water seeking its own level.

Looking away from the local situation to a broader and more comprehensive view of the matter, we are constrained to forget all trivial misgivings and petty personalities and to realise that the whole affair should be reasoned out thus:

The Greatest Good to the Greatest Number

The twentieth century is Canada's opportunity.

Canada has already led the way in more than one movement of prime importance to the cause of Christ. Youngest of the nations, yet heir of all Christian centuries, God has turned the eyes of the world toward Canada, so that to-day in many things we are called upon to lead.

First of the British Colonies to send missionaries to the foreign field, first to adopt a national missionary policy, first to unify a dismembered Presbyterian and a divided Methodism—it seems as if Divine Providence were ready now to use us in the newest and freest of the nations to mark the way for that larger union in which churches of Divine origin and different names will come together for a common testimony and a common service in the presence of a great need. Never before has a nation started with so rich a heritage, and at the same time so unfettered by the traditions of the past.

If the existing churches do not make good in Canada and produce a social and national life with more of Christ's spirit embodied therein than Europe or America has yet known, then these churches are doomed.

The Church of Christ has an opportunity in this country to-day that is new, and because of that the Church is on trial in Canada as in no other land. The comparative failure of the churches of the United States, east and west, has been due to over-denominationalism.

Think what the condition of things would be in our North-west to-day had not our fathers been wise enough and Christian enough to forget old-world divisions and effect the union that has given us one Presbyterian Church and one Methodist Church in Canada.

Even here, right in our midst, we are wasting money enough and men enough through overlapping to evangelize a whole race of heathen.

The greatest problem before the Church at the present time is the securing of a sufficient number of suitable men for the ministry. Men are kept out of the ministry and are leaving because of low salaries. The Church of Christ cannot afford to perpetuate conditions which waste men and money, and discourage the hearts of missionaries and turn aside young men of high spirit and broad outlook from the work of the Church.

The competition of a variety of denominations in a community which can support only one efficient congregation is a burden to high-minded men in the ministry. The very qualities of mind and heart necessary to a conscientious pastor and a good preacher are the qualities which render a man sensitive to the sting of ministerial conditions in an over-churched neighbourhood.

There are many small villages in which four and sometimes five or six congregations are to be found, each with its own minister and its own church to support and many incidental expenses to meet. Four ministers at an average of $700 or $800 cost that community $3,200 per annum. If these churches unite, one church, one minister, with an assistant, will be sufficient to supply the religious needs of all, an adequate salary can be paid the clergy, a good edifice can be built and supported, while the offerings to missions, both home and foreign, can be doubled or even trebled.

What Canada needs, for life at home and missionary aggressiveness posed of all who hold and teach the Christ-Gospel, and who would work together in the unity of the Spirit for the redemption of the lives of men. Such a Church, united, equipped strongly led, would be the centre of life and inspiration, social as well as religious, in many a community now perishing because the vision has failed.

The basis of union does not ask us to give up anything that is positive or valuable in our present church life and doctrine. The question is not "What are we to give up in the interests of unity?" but "What can we give to a united Church?" The union we need is one that will take in all the richness of the past history and experience and all the fullness of the present life and thought of the three contracting Churches. A united Church would be richer and broader in its experience, more adequate in its presentation of truth, more completely the body of Christ, and more effectively the sword of His Spirit than any one of the uniting Churches.

To show how easy it is to adjust differences of thought and doctrine as well as church government, let us look for a moment at the change that took place recently in New York City.

Two famous clergymen, Dr. Aked and Dr. Jowett, both Englishmen (who ever heard of them changing their minds?), both changed their work from successful fields in the Old World to take up new duties in America.

Dr. Aked arrived in New York four years ago and assumed the pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. He now goes to San Francisco, and will adapt his ministry to a Congregational pulpit.

Dr. Jowett was brought up a Congregationalist, and has for several years ministered to one of the largest and most influential Congregational churches in the world. The church has been absolutely independent and democratic, and from that atmosphere he passes into the more rigid government and atmosphere of Presbyterianism.

Is this a sign that, as the tide of true religion flows up the shore, the little barriers that separate pool from pool are being eliminated? We trust it is.

IN HUMOUROUS VEIN

Two Real Golfers.—On the Aberdeen links on Christmas Day darkness had fallen, but still two enthusiastic golfers persevered with the game. They had either made a late start, taken longer to get round, or—well, it was Christmas Day. One was explaining to the other where the next hole lay, and was asked if it was in line with a certain chimney-stalk. "Not quite," replied the explainer, "to be exact, it lies right behind the moon and the bathing station."

Pawky Advice.—A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows: "I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon." In the next issue this answer appeared: "When the nag is looking all right, sell him to someone."

Where They Differed.—An old Scotsman, having a friend on a visit, one day took him to see an ancient cemetery in the village—the only sight, in fact, it could boast of "Whit dae ye think o' that?" he inquired. "Hoots, man," said his friend, viewing the dilapidated condition of the graves, "before I'd be buried there I'd dee first." "Aw, weel," said Sandy, "as faur as I'm concerned, I mean tae be buried na ither place if I'm spared!"

Not What She Meant.—A minister's wife in the Highlands was calling on a new parishioner—a poor woman in very humble circumstances. "And are you quite alone in the world?" asked the lady. "Och, no," came the reply. "I have a infidel mother, but she's on the Prodigal Board." The visitor did not recover until she realized that what was meant was nothing more sartling than "an invalid mother on the Parochial Board."

The Golfer's Diet.—A golf "analyst" is anxious to know what are the principal foods of Vardon, Braid and Taylor. Really, we need to put our foot on these dietists (says a commentator) whenever we see them as they will be advocating particular meats and drinks for particular shots—say sausages and buttermilk for our tee shots and asparagus and Tokay for our short approaches.

His Conscience.—"Look here! are you the man I gave a square meal to one cold, bleak February morning?" "Yes, mum." "Well, do you remember you promised to shovel all the snow out of my back yard, and then went off without doing it?" "Yes, mum. An' me conscience smote me! That's the reason I tramped all the way here through the blazing sun to finish the job!"

Where Would They Go.—Architect (displaying the plans): "Here is the front elevation, with the outside window and circular gallery; this is the east elevation showing the oriel window." Teddy (enormously interested in the new house): "And where are the two mortgages pa said he was going to put on?"

ODDITIES OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

HYPNOTISM OVER THE TELEPHONE.

An extraordinary experiment in hypnotism over the telephone was made recently in the State of Ohio. The hypnotic subjects were ordinary telephone operators, and the influence of the hypnotism reached them over the wires from a distance of over 130 miles. Six doctors checked the experiment. Fernando Lontenheimer attempted to apply his hypnotic power in this manner from Pittsburg, Pa., to Canton, Ohio, and one of the operators, of whom ten tried to receive the influence, was entirely subjected. When the voice from Pittsburg stated categorically that his left arm was numbed, the limb thus attacked fell limp, and the doctors were able to insert pins in it without affecting the sensibility of the operator. "Lift your right leg," commanded the Pittsburg magician; the command was obeyed and the six doctors could not press the limb down. The dramatic moment arrived when the subjected operator was informed politely but assertively that he was a stone. He immediately rolled off his seat, and the six doctors, trying to compress his chest, were unable to overcome the resistant surface.

HURT IN COURTEOUS ACT.

Policeman Mannelly, of the Philadelphia traffic squad, is hovering between life and death, due to his courtesy in assisting a gray-haired woman to cross the street. The old woman stood bewildered on the sidewalk, watching the various vehicles flash by. Seeing her hesitation, Mannelly hastened to her side. Holding up his hand as a signal for the wagons and automobiles to stop, he took the woman by the arm and started with her across the street. In the middle of the street a patch of ice made walking treacherous, and the policeman fell heavily, his head striking the asphalt. The woman came down on top of him. She was unhurt. Mannelly lay still, and was lifted, unconscious, into an automobile and taken to the hospital, where the physicians declared he had received a severe concussion of the brain.

A REMARKABLE OPERATION.

A truly remarkable surgical operation was performed in the Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn, the other day on John Wischowsky. Wischowsky's stomach, with which he had trouble for two years, was opened and the surgeons found an obstruction, a tumor about as big as a two-for-five orange, at the place where the stomach opens into the small intestine. It could have been extremely dangerous to excise the tumor. The only alternative was to make a new connection between the stomach and small intestine. So the surgeon severed the intestine, made a hole of equal calibre in the stomach, and sewed together the edges of the two incisions. The wounds healed rapidly. Wischowsky, who has left the hospital, eats anything he wants.

INTERESTING REPORT

ganised into a township, with reeve, councillors, constables, etc. Later developments were a parliament and courts, regular lectures and evening classes, annual fairs, manual training and many other things.

The motto at Broadview, Mr. Atkinson said, has been, "Learn to do by doing." After ten years' experience, he saw no reason for changing it. "Get the boys to do things for themselves," he said, "rather than do those things for them." He had noticed in boys generally a leak of respect for those in authority, but had found that by giving them responsibility of their own, this tendency was greatly lessened. "Self-government" had at all times been found effective at the Broadview Institute. It had been noticed repeatedly that to give the worst boys "office," had worked wonders in changing their procedure and their views.

It had been found necessary to establish courts at Broadview in the interests of good order. Occasionally, depredations had been made in the garden, tools had been stolen, etc. At first, he had been present at the courts, but after a time found that the boys managed well by themselves. As an instance, he told of one case in which some grievous offence had been committed by an outsider, a boy who, when threatened with a higher court, chose the alternative of coming, with an irate mother, to the Broadview court, where his guilt was successfully proved, and a sentence of "a fine of 35 cents and four hours' work on the roads of the township" imposed. Out of the court, with the boy, came the now subdued mother, at last quite willing to acknowledge the guilt of her son. "Well?" said Mr. Atkinson. "He's guilty," said she, "and he'll do the work if I have to stand over him with a stick." By this and other examples, the speaker showed that a very effective plan to get a boy to respect other people's property is to let him have some property of his own.

Another problem in the training of boys is to counteract the tendency towards cruelty which some of them seem to possess. Mr. Atkinson had found, in such cases, that letting them keep pets had brought about a gradual but sure change, both towards animals and humanity.

Boys had often been charged with laziness, but he believed that few boys are actually lazy. Like other people, they don't like to do things that are not congenial. Start them off on congenial work and they are ready enough. Try to find out the work they like, the work they are best fitted for, and put them at that. At Broadview, besides gardening, they build fences, dig post-holes, and make various articles. Usually, they want to work longer than required.

The Problem of Morals.—By suggestion, get the boys to take hold of this matter themselves. "A Moral Reform League" has been formed at Broadview. At present the boys are in the midst of an election, and the ground on which the battle is being fought is in regard to which "party" has the most advanced platform on morals.

At the institute, one problem had been that the boys, having found that they could make money there, had become too anxious for merely financial success. Mr. Atkinson had pondered long as to what counteracting influence could be brought in to bring a higher and better side of their nature uppermost. At last it was suggested that the lads "adopt a boy," — a scheme that met with enthusiastic assent. A committee of three lads was appointed to go out into the streets and choose a boy. They spent quite a little time hunting before one was decided upon. Their decision proved to be a cripple from the slums, short, but good natured. He was brought to the institute and given the very best it afforded. They called him "Little Scotty." It was coming near Christmas, and Mr. Atkinson told a touching little story about Scotty's Christmas. The boys planned to make it a real surprise for Scotty, and each one helped. They told him about Santa Claus and how to hang up his stockings. He had never heard of these things, but the boys insisted, and he finally hung up his stockings, thinking it was some joke they were playing. When he was gone to bed the boys took the stockings down and carried them away downstairs, made a lot of big long stockings, and started filling them with all the presents, and finally labelled them and hung them around the fire place, all everything

HAD VERY BAD COUGH.

Tickling Sensation In Throat.

Could Not Sleep At Night.

A bad cough, with that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat, is one of the most aggravating coughs a person can possibly have.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will quickly stop that tickling in the throat which causes the dry cough that keeps you awake at night, for the simple reason that it is so rich in the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, it cannot help but do otherwise.

Miss C. Danielson, Bowsman River, Man., writes:—"Last fall I had a very bad cough and a tickling sensation in my throat. It was so bad I could not sleep at night, so I went to a druggist and told him I wanted something for my cold and he advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup which I did, and after taking one bottle I was completely cured. Let me recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to any one who suffers from a cough or throat irritation."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

Has the "Black Knight" come to your home?

Let him show you the quick and easy way to shine the stoves.

"Black Knight" takes all the hard work and dirty work out of stove polishing.

It's a paste—so there is no watery mixture to be prepared.

Just a few rubs with cloth or brush brings a mirror-like shine that "you can see your face in". And the shine lasts!

Most dealers handle and recommend "Black Knight" Stove Polish. If your dealer cannot supply it, send us, for a big can—sent postpaid.

for Scotty. When he got up in the morning he went first thing to look to his stockings but they were gone. Then he said, I might have known better, and he turned away. But the boys were up and ready, and as he went back they called from downstairs for him to come down. Santa Claus had been down there. He started stumping down the stairs, and when the boys showed him he burst into tears. His heart overflowed with thankfulness. He concluded by saying, "What we put most into we get most out of."

"My Child's Future" was taken by Mrs. Norman, of Toronto. She wished to give three cheers for Mr. Atkinson for the good work he is doing. The father creed must give place to the child's ideal. "I believe most emphatically," she said, "that we will never have a right sort of world until men and women stand side by side as combatants, neither having rights, but both having privileges, and keep the child always first." Everything that touches the child life should be considered. The two great elements that affect it are heredity and environment. The best conditions of both should be afforded — the best parents the most attractive and sanitary homes. "Every person is the result of how and where they were born." It is not our fault that most of us became wives and mothers without any knowledge of what we were doing. You have a power that you have not yet realised. The child is an individual and also a social being; we must train them under these heads; care is not enough. Train them to develop the best that they may serve the world. People that are always kindly speak no ill of others. Prisons and reformatories are not the best. If that money were spent on the children it would make good citizens. Children are everything. Don't say you are all too busy; absolutely nothing must come between mother and child. Let the pies remain unbaked or the house unswept rather than neglect the child. People are all good until influence presses upon them. "Our boys and girls," she said, "are sent out of the home without any protection or warning against the dangers which they are to encounter." From the age of four years children begin to ask questions of their birth. Is it better for you to tell them wisely and truthfully or let them find out from the street, school, or other source? What you do not answer some one else will. Because we do not like to talk about these things is no excuse. When the question comes up reasonably tell them as a duty. We should aim to make our children better than ourselves.

In the afternoon the presiding officer was Mrs. W. F. Stephen, nee Miss Laura Rose, then of Guelph. Mr. Putnam terms her Grandmother of the Institute. In her address she said: "Grow enthusiastic over something." Have a garden where you may bring your sorrows and bury them. Having some special interest will bring about you a circle of sympathetic friends. Too many women drop all their accomplishments as soon as they are married. The most beautiful sight to me is to see a mother playing the accompaniment for her daughter. Do not let your daughters take all the painting lessons. It is often lack of ambition, not years. She told of an old lady, 82 years old, who had gone to a university. A young girl was heard to say, "She had nothing to talk about; an old lady of 83 years advised her to read a book and talk about it." Always hope for the future. To travel hopefully is better than to arrive.

Dr. C. J. Copp, of the St. John's Ambulance Association, said: This association was organized in European countries 34 years ago, at the close of the Franco-Prussian war. The Red Cross Society of England cares for those injured in war, but this society cares for those who fight the battles of life in mines, machine-shops, on railways, etc. The Canadian branch was founded by Dr. Ryerson, and has its headquarters in the Governor-General's residence, and all certificates are signed by him. It is a teaching affair, and classes can be conducted in any town by a medical man who will comply with the requirements. The course of first aid to injured is as follows: What to do for a splintered bone, arterial hemorrhage, venous hemorrhage, capillary hemorrhage, ...fits and convulsions, how to prepare a room for accidents, arrange a triangular bandage, and carry patients. This course takes six weeks, and examinations is conducted by another doctor. Another course in home nursing. It includes fresh air, beds, drafts, infectious diseases and how to prevent, tuberculous patients, how to make a bed to lie in for years, how to change sheets and be economical in laundry, poultices, plasters, invalid cooking, take temperature, pulse, etc. This information would be valuable in homes where they cannot afford a trained nurse.

A course in home hygiene for mixed sexes,—What is air, its uses, its source, ventilation, water, sewage and disposal, clothing, teeth and bath. Given in ten lectures.

Literature concerning these courses will be sent to every institute. If a doctor can be secured to give the lectures, Dr. Copp will provide supplies and all necessary information. Fee 25c.

"The School: Its Relation to the Community," was discussed by Miss Hotson, a school teacher from Parkhill.

Although Miss Hotson did not say that women should have a place on the school board of trustees, she said that since everything a child learns or does in the schools falls upon the mother more than the father, she should have a say in every school question. When problems concerning the school, the teacher or the children are to be brought up, the most experienced men and women should be on hand to talk things over. The school is the educational institution of the community. They own it. They should use it, and see to it, that it supplies what they want. A good teacher is an invaluable asset to the community and should have their loyal support. As a result of the suggestion of Miss Hotson, a Child Welfare Committee was named by Mr. Putnam as follows: Miss Hotson, Miss Guest, Mrs. Norman, and Mr. Atkinson, with two rural mothers to be added later.

WATER SUPPLY.

Dr. W. T. Connell, Queen's University, gave a very practical talk on "Water Supply." He said, in part: Many people think they can depend on the good appearance and taste to guide in choice of water supply. The water, however, may be very dangerous and polluted while palatable and clear. The first settlers in Ontario found all water clear and good, but improper sanitary arrangements have polluted many springs.

The main source of supply is the surface well and the artesian well. Surface wells go down to the level of saturation, possibly only four or five feet, but sometimes 100 to 150 feet. Artesian wells run through the level of saturation and clay belt to rock water.

Out of 1,000 samples of water tested, two-thirds showed germs from intestinal canals of man or animals. Such things of dangerous character enter the well through lack of elevation, or through improper curving of mouth of the well, which allows drainage water to run back and carry in worms, frogs, toads or mice. The loose covering of the well mouth admits the same thing. Often wells are situated to get drainage from manure heap, or house slop-water, or drainage from outbuildings. Thus wells become polluted, and typhoid results.

Danger to artesian wells comes through fissures in the rock which allows infection to be carried to deep well water.

The spring well water is ideal if properly protected. Trees should be cut from near it, and a ditch made to throw surface water off. If this is not done, the danger is the same as in the surface well.

All well water which contains excretions of man or animal is not dangerous, since the normal man or animal does not excrete dangerous germs. Were it dangerous, the death rate in Ontario would be very much higher. That kind of well water is not just the kind we like to drink. Nor can we be sure when danger will enter. One-third of typhoid cases were traced to the house drainage, and two-thirds to wells situated near a pig pen, a barn, or to neglect in removing excretions of animals watered near. Four-fifths of all typhoid fever cases traced were water carried.

Dr. Connell illustrated his talk with lantern views, which made it exceedingly clear and interesting.

At the evening session Miss Watson, Guelph, presided, and Mrs. Parsons, Forest, gave a paper on "A Woman's View of Life." This paper seemed to be almost a continuation of what Mrs. Norman said in the morning.

She claims we have no right to condemn wrongdoing in girls. We should help her up instead of pushing her down.

Relations help to make many marriages, and marriage is what you make it. Whatever you take into it is what you get out. Don't be jealous

ONE SINGLE PILL GAVE GREAT RELIEF

FOUR BOXES CURED HIM

PLEASISVILLE, QUE.

"I suffered from Kidney Trouble for several years, and tried numerous remedies and doctors' prescriptions without permanent relief, my case being chronic. After seeing about Gin Pills, and as it is a well known fact that Juniper without alcohol is excellent for the Kidneys, I decided to try Gin Pills. One single pill gave me great relief. I have now taken almost four boxes of Gin Pills and find myself completely cured. No more bad humor—increase in weight—clear eyes—fresh color—more strength and vigor. This is what Gin Pills have done for me".

H. POWIS HERBERT.

Gin Pills will do the same for you—if you have any trouble with your Kidneys or Bladder—or if you suffer with Pain in the Back or Rheumatism. Try them before you buy them. One Cube to a Cup for this causes endless amount of trouble. Remember your faults are as disagreeable to them as theirs is to you. She strongly advised girls never to run away to be married. Their own parents are more apt to care more for their future than strangers. What a boy does in his own home you will be very apt to find him doing in others. A good son makes a good husband. "Choose a quiet man," she says, "for when he finds fault you can be sure he has reason to." "Women can do the talking." She then touched upon women refusing to become mothers. "We are," she said, "temples of the living God. Are we too cowardly, too selfish, to do our duty to our country. If nothing else, the love of our children will repay us."

Mr. Harris, Toronto, gave an illustrated lecture on "Our Dumb Animals."

Mr. Harris is managing director and secretary of the Toronto Humane Society, which exists for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Their work is to look into all cases reported to them. The public, he says, must be educated to develop the quality of Christian love in their lives. The boys and girls must be taught to be kind to the animals as well as to one another. How often, he says, have you seen a father give his little boy a whip and tell him "to whip mother." They are taught too that the whip is for to whip the horse. He showed a goodly number of pictures, which were very interesting indeed to see, and were much enjoyed by the delegates.

With a vote of thanks to Mr. Putnam for the noble work he had done during the year, and the singing of the National Anthem, the tenth annual convention was brought to a close.

A HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur Makes Gray Hair Vanish---A Remedy for All Hair Troubles

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of colour and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Comany of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is thin or turning gray, get a bottle of this remedy from your druggist to-day, and see what it will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agents, Warne Drug Co.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Potato water is good to take mud stains from cloth.

Sunflower seed make better bait than cheese for the mouse trap.

Jellied veal can be deliciously seasoned with lemon juice and celery salt.

Equal parts of milk and lukewarm water are excellent for sponging palms.

A pinch of borax in cooked starch will make the clothes stiffer and whiter.

It is better to wipe meat with a wet cloth than to let water run over it.

A bread pudding may be deliciously flavoured by a few slices of candied orange peel.

Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odour in the house.

When blowing out a candle, hold it high and blow upward to keep the grease from running.

Hot biscuits, generously buttered and spread with currant jelly are delicious served with game.

To place ferns upon the window sill means their death, as they cannot live in [illegible]

A better iron rest than the ordinary metal stand is a firebrick, as it does not cool the iron so rapidly.

Waferlike slices of bread, spread with caviare, sprinkled with lemon juice and salt, make tasty sandwiches.

Clean copper by rubbing it with lemon dipped in salt. Rinse in clear hot water and polish with a soft cloth.

Use paraffine paper which lines biscuit boxes to polish flatirons. It is also a good lining for the cake tins.

Banging the oven door is responsible for half the heavy bread and cake. The door should be closed very gently.

A variety may be secured by baking potatoes with a slice of bacon inside. The bacon is put in a hole made by an apple corer.

A delicious jelly is made of gelatin, flavoured with grape juice and served with blanched nuts and whipped cream.

A pinch of salt will make the white of an egg beat quicker.

Cook barley in the liquor in which ham or corned beef has been boiled, adding a potato or two if salty. This makes a delicious and a nourishing soup.

Cold cooked shrimps and asparagus mixed in equal quantities with mayonnaise makes a delicious salad.

If one is accustomed to making toast in the oven of the gas stove, she will find it an economy to buy a small toaster for one of the gas burners. This toaster does not require nearly the amount of gas that the oven does.

To empty or clean out any large bottle or jug, take the neck in the right hand and hold the base firmly with the left. Revolve swiftly four or five times in an upright position then quickly turn the mouth down and hold it still. You will be surprised at the velocity with which all the liquid comes out.

A common stone jar, with a lid such as is used in keeping pickles, butters, etc., makes as good a casserole as the expensive ones we buy. Cooked in it, the toughest meat, with a few vegetables, seasoning, and plenty of water, make a nourishing meal; an old hen becomes as tender as a young chicken. It can be used for steaming brown bread by setting the mould in it, surrounding with water, then on with the lid, into the oven, and no watching until it is done. Beans can be baked to perfection, and fruit made into fine preserves in it.

A piece of bedticking about a yard square, preferably old, will save your kitchen towels. This square should be hemmed and a loop of tape by which to hang it fastened a one end. It is the best kind of holder for handling hot utensils or taking pies and cakes from the oven.

Ground glass globes, whether plain or figured, will be brighter and whiter if, after being washed in soap and water, they are rinsed and then allowed to drain instead of being wiped.

BAD FIRE IN HAMILTON

HAMILTON, ONT., FEB. 5.— A fire, which broke out in the Duncan Lithographing plant, at the corner of York and James street, threatened to wipe out a valuable business block this morning, but was finally got under control with the loss of two hundred thousand dollars. Hydrants were frozen up and the firemen were late in arriving, through a misunderstanding of the alarm. It was thought part of the block would have to be dynamited to stay the progress of the flames.

TEMPTING FATE.

Police Needed to Keep Sightseers off Ice at Niagara.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 6.—Even after Sunday's terrible calamity, the worst in the annals of Niagara, when three people were carried to death when the ice bridge disintegrated, it required the vigilance of several officers on both sides of the river yesterday to prevent venturesome spirits from attempting to cross the mass of slush ice that formed another bridge immediately the fatal structure floated away with its human victims. Authorities on both sides of the river will take immediate action as to closing ice bridges to tourists in future.

Although many river fatalities have disturbed the peace of mind of residents of the twin power cities, nothing has cast such a gloom over neighboring municipalities as Sunday's accident. In many humble homes prayers were offered up for the repose of the souls of the river victims. The accident was the only subject discussed yesterday. People spoke of it in hushed voices, tears springing into the eyes of strong men, accustomed to Niagara exacting her toll of human lives.

Oliver Stanton, brother of Eldridge Stanton, N. P. Butcher, father, and P. B. Butcher, brother of Mrs. Eldridge Stanton, arrived yesterday morning from Toronto.

The party saw provincial police authorities and made arrangements for special agents to scour the river between the Whirlpool and Queenston at different times, in hope that the bodies may be found.

Harry Hecock, father of Burrell, who lost his life in a fruitless attempt to save the woman, arrived here from Cleveland yesterday, and returned home last night after giving up all hope of recovering the youth's body.

Enraged at a prisoner named Lloyd Nelser, a young man named Edward Cullens, sent down from Niagara Falls, stabbed Nelser four times with a knife in the Kingston Penitentiary yesterday. Nelser is seriously hurt, but it is expected he will recover.

Sir James Keeps Counsel.

Toronto, Feb. 6.—There is ground for belief that the Manitoba boundary question is settled. Nothing official in the way of an announcement may be expected till the Legislature opens, but the remarks of Sir James Whitney yesterday afternoon, would tend to the belief that something definite with regard to the boundary question is on the way from Ottawa, and may be officially received by the Premier of this province at any moment.

"I have heard and read rumors about the boundary question," said Sir James Whitney, "but I am not in a position to say anything that would be interesting as coming from me. Should I receive any information in the near future, I shall be glad to say something on the matter."

Peaceful Meeting Likely.

Belfast, Feb. 6.—Self-denying resolutions passed by the Unionists and Orangemen yesterday give promise of a peaceful meeting on Feb. 8, when Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, will deliver addresses before the Ulsterites on the question of home rule for Ireland.

The Unionists profess to be satisfied at having fenced Mr. Churchill to speak in a Nationalist quarter and in a ring fenced by bayonets. The Liberal Association last night proposed to the Unionist council that both should cancel their engagements at Ulster Hall for Feb. 7 and 8. A decision on this matter will be taken to-day.

MR E. HAMPTON, HUNTER ST. WAS WITH THE STANTONS ON THE FATAL ICE BLOCK

An Eye-Witness of Sunday's Tragedy at Niagara Falls--Covered With Coating of Ice, He Was the Last to Reach the American Side Without Running.

The great ice bridge disaster at Niagara almost claimed as a victim one of Peterborough's residents, as was ascertained this morning when an Examiner representative paid a visit to Mr. S. Hampton, of 64 Hunter St., who was present at and saw the catastrophe.

"It was a very rough day," he said, "the thermometer registered 4 below zero and the spray, scattered by a wind travelling at the rate of some seventy miles an hour, swept up the gorge and froze where it fell. I was covered by a coating of ice about three eighths of an inch in thickness. There were very few people on the ice when it broke, he continued, "for on noticing signs of the separation of the ice the people gradually left for the sides. I was the last to reach the American side without running," he added.

Referring to the cause of the non escape of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton, Mr. Hampton told his interviewer that the general concensus of opinion among those present was, first, that the toques and helmets worn by the unfortunate pair, prevented them from hearing the warning cries, and second, when discovering their predicament, they were unable to move quickly enough to reach the sides on account of spikes, which were fixed to their shoes.

On the Same Block.

Mr. Hampton had met the deceased lady and gentleman and had stood upon the actual block of ice on which they sailed to their doom.

From the American side it was not possible to see farther than the bend of the river, so that Mr. Hampton did not see what transpired after the ice rounded the bend with its human freight. They passed under the International bridge, but it was impossible to do anything from the bridge and the ice was being hurled round and round by the turbulent waters as in a whirlpool. Mr. Hampton did not see anything of the boy Heacock after the ice on which he stood had parted from the main.

In concluding, Mr. Hampton said that there were two shacks built on the ice from which refreshments of various discriptions could be obtained. Both these buildings and their contents were lost in the waters, but the men in charge left earlier for the shore.

Prior to the event recorded, Mr. Hampton was engaged in taking photographs, but at present he is unable to determine whether his efforts will be successful or not, owing to the severity of the weather conditions.

A SUBJECT SUGGESTED FOR DISPASSIONATE DISCUSSION

There is no general election in sight for the immediate future, nor any municipal election. There are no burning political matters to excite the public mind and prevent the dispassionate consideration of local matters in the best interests of the citizens.

The Examiner has always been active in the advocacy of what it considered would conduce to the best welfare of Peterborough, and now that there is no election in sight to excite controversial prejudices, it has something to suggest.

Now, at a time, when matters can be considered fairly and on their merits, the Examiner would like to have somebody point out where its views on the power question are at variance with the public interests, and space will be freely given to any citizen desiring to present his views. If anybody can show the Examiner wherein it may be wrong, it will be glad in the interests of the city to know.

Peterborough, in relation to power development and availability, is situated entirely differently from the towns and cities of western Ontario. We have local power development by private enterprise to a very important extent, and sufficient to meet our reasonable needs for some time to come, and with the late past and present influx of industries, for a considerable period.

The Seymour Power Company, as it is known, is a strong body, backed by millions of capital. It has at present a development at Auburn of electric power to the amount of, say, 2,000 horse power—1,000 actually being produced, with facilities for 2,000. With the Government giving the company No. 4 dam and uniting this with No. 5 dam, now owned by the company, there would be a joint development, equal to 4,000 H.P. There are about 1,200 developed now. Uniting these two powers would produce 2,800 H.P. in excess of present development, not taking into account the 2,000 H.P. developed at Auburn, and the power that could be switched on from other places.

At $10 per horse power, 2,800 would cost $28,000; at $15 per horse power the figures would be $42,000 per annum.

Now, is it not evident that this available power can be more cheaply converted to economic use for Peterborough than any other power—with no cost to the city for development or transmission, or distribution, especially as the company must have a market.

This being the case, is it not incumbent upon the Power Company to find a market for its power? Is it not plainly in the interests of the company to encourage and help the establishment of industries in Peterborough, to buy and use its otherwise unemployed power? If to effect this it becomes necessary for the company to financially back proposed locating industries, has it not got capital enough behind it to help establish good customers for its power, thereby helping the city?

On the other hand the city goes into a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission and pledges its credit to bring power to the borders of the city, which has to pay its share of interest on the cost.

Then when the power is brought to the city boundaries, the city must erect transforming stations and build distributing lines at its own expense.

What then? This must all be done, this large expenditure incurred before we can be in a position to bid for industries on the basis of Hydro-Electric power, and will those waiting for sites to locate be willing to wait?

Then again, the city must be prepared with inducements; what will they be? Free power, exemption from taxation, free sites or the erection of buildings?

The Examiner is inclined to contend that the city would be better off in view of the considerations submitted, in the hands of the Seymour Power Company than in its own hands. In the former event we are provided, without preliminary or subsequent cost, with power at a low rate, and with the help of a strong company which has equal, if not greater interest than the city in securing the location of industries that will buy its power.

The company cannot increase its present rates, and there is nothing to prevent their reduction, through the intervention of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

When the Cordage Company was established the inducement to subscribe for stock was power at $10.00. When the Canadian Cereal Company was being floated the same inducement was presented.

It is to be remembered that there are many other things beside the price of power that enter into the calculations of especially, small industries. In many of these a matter of $4 or $5 extra per horse power would be a smaller matter than a great many other things, such as a good supply of local labour, etc.

Now, with the Seymour Power Company having power to sell at a price regulated, if necessary, by Government Commission—with no preliminary expense to the city for development, transmission and distribution—with a company anxious to pay interest on the unused power it has for sale—with its interest to establish industries in Peterborough to sell its power to—would, or would not, the city be in a better position doing business with the Seymour Power Company than in doing its own power provision work?

The sole object of this article is to bring out discussion. It is not written in the interests of any company or in any hostile attitude towards the Hydro-Electric Commission, and any ratepayer that chooses will find our columns open to a fair discussion of the subject on its merits. If the Examiner is wrong in the position it suggests, let the wrong be shown. Let everything be brought out that will conduce to placing the city in the best possible position in relation to the important subject of electric power.

The Examiner has only one object in view: to bring out all the facts bearing on the power situation. If our suggestions are wrong, we want to be shown. We care not from what source the city gets power on the most advantageous terms. We are in no way interested, except as citizens, in either of the proposed sources.

A NEW MOVEMENT ON FOOT

Local men who invest in advertising, advertisers and advertising men, will hear Toronto Expert discuss their problems. Meeting in Hooper's Palm Parlours.

There's going to be a new deal in this here town.

The movement shot ahead last evening when the specially selected committee as appointed early in December, met in the Y.M.C.A. parlours to discuss and formulate plans for furthering the interests of local advertisers and local ad. writers and ad. men.

Local men who spend good money in advertising will be invited to meet next Tuesday evening at 6.15 for dinner at Hooper's Palm Parlours, to afterwards listen to an advertising expert from the Toronto Ad. Club.

Subjects of vital interest to local advertisers will be discussed, the idea being to increase local advertising in efficiency and make every $100 in value as now gotten in advertising, represent $125.00 and more.

There will be ideas going. It is fully expected that all who are interested in getting results from their advertising will receive from this meeting value of inestimable worth.

DEBT OF CITY IS NEARLY MILLION AND HALF

The demand of the Peterborough City Trust for 1912, was presented to the City Council last night, and showed a total of $88,734.25, which is the sum of the interest and sinking fund in connection with the city's debt of $1,414,303.55. It will be remembered that at Mayor Bradburn's banquet, a few weeks ago, Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the City Trust Commission, intimated that this year's demand would be about $80,000.00, and the rough estimate then made was within $8,000 of the required amount.

Although the total debt amounts to nearly a million and a half, a glance at the above summary shows that nearly half that figure is not against the city. The debt for water works and local improvements, paid by a frontage tax, is paid by those benefitting from these improvements. This, then, reduces the total debt by $603,272.79.

Thos who have recently read these columns know that although the city's debt is nearly a million and a half, it is amply offset by the city's assets. The debentures are provided for by a sinking fund, and will be paid as they fall due. Debentures of $12,000 mature this year, but, as stated, they are provided for.

TO BAR AEROPLANES FROM WAR

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 6.—Prominent writers, including Lord Coleridge have memorialized the Hague Arbitration tribunal to permanently prevent the use of aeroplanes in war, on the ground that civilized nations should introduce no new machinery for slaughter.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

Five Persons Dead From Gas

Examiner Special:

PHILADELPHIA, PA., FEB. 6.—Gas escaped from a broken main, and entered into a sewer, and then into a house, and killed five persons and leaving eight seriously ill, here this morning. The inmates of the house were found dead in bed.

NO TRACE OF BODIES

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., FEB 6.—No trace of the bodies in Sunday's ice bridge fatality has been found up to three o'clock to-day.

W. J. HENRY PERMANENT ASSESSOR AT $1400

Council Makes the Appointment With Several Aldermen Voting to Retain the Old System—Richard Hall Appointed to Trust Commission for Five Years.

ROUTINE OF THE SESSION

The regular meeting of the City Council was held on Monday night, with Mayor Bradburn presiding, and with Aldermen Buller, Duncan, Gillespie, Gordon, Duffus, Brown, Johnston, Anderson and Morgan present. The 57th Regimental Band in their room across the hall, practising selections from "The Chocolate Soldier," provided the accompaniment for the evening's programme.

A communication was received from Mr. E. C. Patterson, reminding the council that the property owners on Hunter street, between Park and Belmont streets, had petitioned last year that that part of Hunter street be paved, and asking that the work be commenced as soon as the weather would permit. The request was left with the Board of Works.

STATEMENT OF ROLLS.

Statement of rolls for the year ending 31st January, 1912, was submitted by Tax Collector W. J. Green, and passed to the Finance Committee:

Total amount on roll	$223,218.01
Total amount deposited	207,209.04
Balance	$ 15,018.97
Less 2 per cent discount on first payment	3,343.87
Balance	$ 12,575.10
Amount collected in January and deposited	$ 792.42

HARVEY STREET SEWER.

A communication was received from J. C. Shook, representing the Dickson Lumber Co., asking for an outlet for sewage from the property east of Harvey street, between McDonnel and Dublin streets. Referred to Board of Works.

Ald. Buller—There is no use sending it before us. This request has come before the Board of Works every year since I have been a member of the council.

Mayor Bradburn—Now that you are the chairman of the board you might be able to provide sewerage accommodation for this property.

Ald. Buller—What are you going to do? We need the money for building a septic tank there. That is the only way. Well, leave it with us, we'll see what we can do with it.

A petition from residents on Princess street, asking for a concrete sidewalk on the south side between Park and Lock streets was referred to the Board of Works.

LARGER GRANT TO LIBRARY.

Mr. F. Adams, secretary-treasurer of the Public Library Board, asked on behalf of the board that $4,000 be granted for 1912 to maintain the library and provide for the expense of managing it, the money to be paid in twelve equal monthly instalments. Referred to Finance Committee.

Ald. Johnston—How much of increase is that over last year's expenditure?

Mayor Bradburn—$1,000.

Peck, Kerr and McElderry wrote that the McDonald Estate would have the section of Rink street east of George street vacated by the 1st of April, as requested by the city. Received.

Mrs. M. Ferguson, 266 Simcoe street, wrote asking for $500 damages for injuries, consisting of a broken arm, received by a fall on Aylmer street on January 22nd. Referred to Legal Committee.

Ald. Johnston—The drippings from the eaves on George street freeze into little ice mounds on the sidewalk and make danger spots along the street. I believe this accident

ALLAN STUDHOLME ADDRESSES LARGE GATHERING OF WORKERS AT THE NEW LABOUR HALL

He Deals With the Labour Problems in a Lucid Manner---Tells the Labour Man How and Why He is Lawed Out of Existence---Present Compensation Act a Failure.

Allan Studholme, Labour member representing East Hamilton in the Provincial Legislature, who addressed the labourites of Peterborough in their newly dedicated hall last night, is a keen labour enthusiast. He is a man short in stature, and spare, but he possesses enough energy for a score of men. He is a real live wire, with a keen sense of humour and a dash of cynicism about him. He has been designated as the foremost living labour advocate in Canada, having been associated with the movement during the greater portion of his life. "I have always worked with a view to advancing the labour man's interests and will continue to do so in the future, for there is nothing else worth working for," was one of the statements made by Mr. Studholme during the course of his address. Needless to say, it brought forth a round of applause from the large gathering.

Mr. David Moore, President of the Labour Council in this city, was the chairman of the evening, and in his introductory remarks, expressed his pleasure, not only at the honour and responsibility of acting as chairman, but also for the opportunity of saying a few words in behalf of the labour union of Peterborough, under whose auspices the guest of the evening was present. Peterborough had perhaps, one of the best organized branches in Canada, but it lacked the vim and energy which was so necessary, if the good work of the union was to be further promulgated. That the young men were beginning to appreciate the value of trade unions was shown by the increased demand for membership. In conclusion the speaker formally declared the new hall open, and henceforth it will be known as "Labour Hall."

Prolonged cheering followed this declaration.

Allan Studholme.

In rising to speak in the smoke bedimmed hall, which circumstance could be indirectly attributed to the liberal supply of clay pipes and tobacco, which was distributed gratis at the door, the speaker was greeted with vociferous cheering. In a speech of less than an hour's duration, he dealt with the labour problem in an abstract manner.

Allan Studholme aroused perhaps the greatest enthusiasm during his discussion of the educational, social and economic conditions of Great Britain, especially in the thickly populated districts. He spoke of the Lloyd George Budget as being the best means of equalizing the wealth of the country. It takes away a portion of the rich man's surplus wealth and gives it to the poor man, who has not enough. He also urged the men of Peterborough, especially the rising generation, to sacrifice an evening or two each week with a view to studying the labour movement, and attending the meetings. "What you want is more organized work," declared the speaker.

Lawed Out of Existence.

For the Workman's Compensation Act, as at present in force, the speaker expressed disapproval. The workingman goes to law, and he is lawed out of existence. "It is not law we want; it is common sense justice," said the speaker amid prolonged cheering. Laws are made from time to time, which even the makers themselves cannot understand, and when the working man goes to seek redress by means of these laws, he finds that even the judges themselves are unable to interpret some of them. He carries his case from one court to another, until he reaces the Privy courts, which is the highest court in the land. Failing there, he comes back and starts all over again. The speaker attributed this condition to the fact that the labour men were so irresponsive to their rights, inasmuch as they did not elect men to parliament who would consider their interests. They were too closely welded to their own party, with the result that

Will Rival The Erie

TORONTO, FEB. 6.—From all parts of Ontario this morning comes word of satisfaction with the Government's proposed placing in supplementary estimates thirty millions for the Welland canal scheme. Ex-President Gourlay of the Toronto Board of Trade, who led the delegations of Ontario Board of Trade to Ottawa, regarding this project says it means that Canada will be able to hold up her end in competition with New York's great Erie canal.

A CONSERVATIVE CRITIC.

The Ottawa Citizen, Conservative, has the following gentle reference to its leader, Sir James Pliny Whitney: "There is no reason why each municipality should not adopt the tax method it thinks best and there is only one reason why they do not do so. Sir James Whitney is that reason. He'll be dum sizzled before he'll concede one iota of local option in municipal taxation. What's the use of having a Provincial Premier, he would like to know, if his power to serve the people is to be limited to an endeavour to discover what the people want? A real Provincial Premier will, of course, always know what is best for his people, and in the case of Ontario municipalities if they don't like what Sir James prescribes they may jump it."

MONEY AND HARD TIMES.

If circulation of money, distribution of money for wages and in paymen for supplies, will fend off hard times, Canada is in for another year of good times.

The Winnipeg Telegram makes this estimate of the number of men who will be needed for railway construction in Canada as soon as the spring opens:

C. N. R.	15,000
G. T. P.	15,000
C. P. R.	20,000
Hudson Bay Line	10,000
Total	60,000

The Telegram says that the three companies named will expend $50,000,000 in construction and improvements this year, and that at present the requisite number of men do not appear to be available.,

THE NIAGARA TRAGEDY.

The man twice put aside chances of rescue, thinking only of his wife. The boy of 17 might have made the shore had he not turned back to help the man and woman. Another man, on shore risked his life in saving one of those imprisoned on the floe.

Here was a deal of heroism packed into a few tragic moments. The hare-brained and the suicides who have drunk Niagra's stream, the fools and cowards and criminals of the race are in some way atoned for by such courage as shone out of the dark whirlpool. Humanity's star burns brighter for those victorious deaths.

Misgivings sometimes arise, whether the passing of war would not soften the fibre of men. But peace, a calm world and a long peace, brings forth its own heroism. Any day may see on the railway, in the factory, at sea, in the city conflagration, in the works of men and in the lives of women, the supreme occasions suddenly arise which test the spirit's mettle. Exhibitions of heroism never fail to confirm our faith in the potentialities of human nature. In war it is the leaders or official heroes who take the conspicuous place and draw admiration. To the ordinary man there is even more support, comfort and stay in the deeds of the less formal heroes of peace.

Those who perished in Niagara River had probably nothing in their every-day round to mark them apart from the rank and file of travellers between life and death. Shocking as their fate may be, their last hour, illumined by the spark that "disturbs our clod," is also an inspiration, and in a great degree a reassurance to readers of the event.—London Advertiser.

UNIVERSITY DIVIDENDS.

Apart from the abstract question of the value of a university education, the question of the wisdom and profit of spending half a million a year of Provincial money upon the manufacture of graduates, is to be considered. If the university graduates, practically made by the help of the funds of the state, become an asset in the national life—additions to the intellectual wealth of the country—little objection, and much credit, can be taken. But if we spend money to turn out university graduates to enrich a foreign country, to become factors in increasing the forces of our national rivals in commerce, art, manufactures, etc., the matter taken on a different aspect. In another column is reproduced a summary of the address of Dr. Bryce of Winnipeg, chairman of the National Commission on Education, before the Canadian Institute. Dr. Bryce makes the astonishing statement that there are more than 600 graduates of Toronto University engaged in research work for the United States, doubly lost to Canada, in that we get no benefit from their education for which we have paid, and in addition they are helping our national industrial enemies to become stil more formidable rivals.

This certainly indicates a new line of enterprise for our federal and provincial governments. Dr. Bryce points out that there are numerous problems of research to be solved, and it would be a good thing if our government would take steps to employ our own home-made university graduates in research work that would not only recoup, in the mere narrow book-keeping sense, the province for the money spent in their education, but would turn to actual wealth our sources of wealth, the convertible resources of the country now dormant and useless. A thinker like Dr. Bryce, should set our statesmen thinking, but when statesmanship is become reduced to the scramble to get office and subterfuges to retain hold upon office, the better part is too apt to be neglected. We boast of our progressiveness, but we are neglecting matters of deep import; we are merely scratching the surface of our resources and ignoring the rich rewards from development of the lower levels, the hidden wealth. We are training college graduates to enrich our neighbours. We can blame neither our graduates nor our neighbours that employ them. The young men get employment that gives them a chance to put their knowledge to practical use, and our neighbours get the benefit of their trained skill. If we created a home market for our Canadians brains, we would be building up a strong and self-reliant nation. Scientists tell us that Ontario farms could be made to produce double the crops they are now producing. In like manner, by putting our university graduates upon research work in connection with our natural resources, the commercial and industrial crop could and would be infinitely increased. We invest in Ontario five hundred thousand dollars a year in Toronto University; we should draw the dividends.

A RICH HARVEST FROM INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH

Abundant Work in Canada for Canadian University Graduates

"There are over 600 graduates of Toronto University engaged in research work in the United States," said Dr. Bryce, of Winnipeg, chairman of the National Commission on Industrial Education, in an address before the Canadian Institute on Saturday evening. "These bright young Canadians are a national asset, and our Governments, Dominion, provincial and municipal should take advantage of them. Nature has given Canada great resources, and we don't know how to use them. I have a list of 100 problems which, if solved, would be of great commercial value. How valuable it would be to have 100 men engaged on these 100 problems. It would be a national asset".

The subject of Dr. Bryce's address was "The Crying Need of Industrial Research in Canada." A few of the important matters which needed investigating, he said, were what to do with the tremendous heaps of metallic cobalt which were of no known use now; how to separate nickel from the low-grade metals; how to utilize straw, wood waste, tar as a by-product, waste in wood pulp, which, he said, was 50 per cent.; how to dispose of smoke and sewage, how to find a remedy for sulphur in coal, how to find the cause of explosibility of coal dust, how to obtain a safe bleaching agent, improvement in paper making; how to acclimatize corn, alfalfa and wheat; methods of meeting hurtful insects, methods of using fish waste, the treatment of British Columbia ores by electricity, investigating the qualities of illuminating gas, and a number of other problems touching the ordinary matters of everyday life.

Canadians were too self-satisfied, he said. Nothing had been more impressed upon him than this by his visits with the commission to other countries, where he found vastly superior educational systems to our own. In this country efficiency and skill were not valued. Apprenticeship was almost unknown, and illiterates abounded all over the country. The result was that business was conducted uneconomically and the waste was enormous.

The real remedy for the manufacturers was not higher duties and big combines, but industrial research. Thinking men agreed that Canada needed better elementary schooling, better High Schools, and better special scientific training in the universities. In Germany there were 4,000 trained chemists at work for the Government and industrial concerns, and in this country there was practically none. Those young Canadians who showed an adaptability for scientific work were employed in the United States, and the speaker mentioned the names of some of the most prominent research men in the country to the south, with the comment that all those he named were graduates of the University of Toronto. All these wanderers, he said, could have been saved by judicious Government action. While six and a half million dollars a year was given to scientific research in the Empire, only $80,700 was given by the Canadian Government, and that was for experimental farms.

If Canadian manufacturers were to succeed no legerdemain would be responsible for it, only hard work, and co-operation among the different branches of the Government with the manufacturers and the wealthy men who were willing to spend money in furthering the industrial welfare of their country.

OTTAWA LETTER

Boundary Question Said to be Agreed Upon---Railway Investigation---The Grand Trunk Guarantee

It is understood that the boundaries question has been amicably settled between Ontario and Manitoba, as a result of the conference between Hon. W. Hearst, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, and the Government. There probably will be no official announcement until the bill is brought down.

There seems no doubt but that the Government has decided to sacrifice Manitoba for Ontario, in its boundary legislation. A settlement will be reached within a few days, which will give Ontario the Hudson Bay port, which she has been demanding, while Manitoba will have to be content with an additional interior acreage. It is believed that Hon. Messrs. Cochrane and Rogers have reached an agreement between themselves and that all that remains is to lay the matter before Council for endorsement. Mr. Rogers is prepared to let his former colleague, Mr. Roblin, whistle if he doesn't like it.

F. P. Gutelius and G. Lynch Staunton, the Commissioners, who have been appointed to investigate the cost of the Transcontinental Railway, were in Ottawa on Monday, and had an interview with both Hon. Frank Cochran, Minister of Railways and Major Leonard, chairman of the Transcontinental. They will start work at once.

If a Blunder, Whose?

The man who wants to get at the facts in connection with this extra $10,000,000 in guaranteeing the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific is invited to read the speech of Hon. W. T. White and judge of the matter for himself.

In his speech the new Minister of Finance states the case in the simple words of a financier explaining a situation and not a partisan seeking to make a case. He presents it purely as a business matter.

Some, however, will merely read the headlines and skip the speech, and people whose opinions subsist on such food as headlines afford will conclude from the Mail and the World that the Laurier Government made a blunder which will cost Canada $10,000,000.

Those who will take the time to read and consider Hon. W. T. White's speech as it appeared in the Mail or any other paper will arrive at a very different conclusion, and place the blame in an entirely different quarter.

The Government agreed to guarantee to the extent of 75 per cent. on a fixed cost of construction per mile, the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific for the prairie and mountain section of the road, the company to guarantee the remaining 25 per cent. of the bonds. It was found, however, that the 3 per cent. Government bonds issued for the purpose did not, owing to the fluctuations of the market, sell at par, and did not yield the revenue agreed upon. Very properly the Laurier Government made a subsequent undertaking to "implement" the original arrangement. The purpose of this second agreement was, we submit, self-evident. It was to make good the original agreement, the purpose of which had failed, owing to a slump in the stock market, and to remove the limitation of $30,000 a mile on the mountain section. When a dispute arose, this was the stand taken by the Government. A case went to the Supreme Court of Canada and the Government's view was sustained. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway people then carried their queer case to the Privy Council in England, and secured a verdict.

If it be true that the people of Canada are paying $10,000,000 more than they should, or any fraction of that sum, to the G. T. P., the fault does not rest with the Laurier Government for any blunder committed but upon the Privy Council in England, which interpreted the agreement as the Government did not understand it, and as the Supreme Court of Canada did not understand it.

How the Grand Trunk Pacific ever happened to think of carrying their freak case to the Privy Council, where they got their freakish and astonishing decision, must puzzle the Canadian who examines the facts, and stares at the results.

The carrying of cases to the Privy Council in London, meets with the hearty approval of eminent lawyers. But as for the people of Canada, we submit that the result is in nearly all cases, disastrous to public interests. The atmosphere of the capitalist and investor seems to befog all London.

The problems we are working out here seem to be wholly uncomprehended in the Privy Council. The City of Toronto had a careful bargain with the Street Railway Company, perfectly good in Canadian courts. It has been utterly defeated in the Privy Council. The right of the city to enforce a schedule has been lost. The right of Toronto to regulate the speed of street cars, the most dangerous vehicles on our streets, has been lost. The control of the streets we have laid out and made has been taken from us; the control of the street railway which we own and have leased on terms for a period has been taken from the municipality—and taken always by the Privy Council in England!

This $10,000,000 touch which the Privy Council has laid upon the people of Canada, contrary to the delivered opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada is but a fly-bite alongside the vast bulk of fines, jolts, and bumps which this country gets from a court which seems to know nothing about Canada, except that it is a geographical division of the world, in which capitalists make investments.

It is about time that the Supreme Court of Canada were made supreme.

DON'T BE DECEIVED

Newbro's Herpicide is the Only Original Remedy

Just because you happen to see or hear the statement somewhere that some other preparation will kill the dandruff germ, stop falling hair, and is just as good as Herpicide, don't be fooled and allow yourself to be swindled out of your money.

You want Newbro's Herpicide, the remedy that has been tried, has stood the test of time and now has more satisfied users than all other similar preparations combined. An attempt to sell you something else is merely another effort to profit from the good name established by the only genuine dandruff germ destroyer.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

It may be claimed that other hair remedies will do the same things, but Herpicide really does them. Its years of success prove this.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich.

All druggists sell Newbro's Herpicide. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. McDermid and Jury and Payne's drug store, are special agents for Peterborough. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed.

instead of recruiting parliamentary representatives from the labour ranks, they are sending capitalists, and non-labourites, to make for themselves, laws.

Approved Co-operative Stores.

"Statistics tell us," continued the speaker, "that out of one hundred per cent. of the wealth produced by the labouring man, but seventeen per cent. reverted to him; the other eighty-three per cent. went to the manufacturer or the capitalist. Out of the seventeen per cent. the labour man was called upon to provide for his family all meet the requirements of life. Mr Studholme favoured the co-operative stores system, as adopted in different parts of Great Britain. He instanced several cases where these institutions had contributed large sums of money to charity, and had proved a boon in congested districts, where the cost of living was high. He also favored an even distribution of wealth. "Trace the true history of the man who possesses too much wealth, and you will invariably find that it is productive of more misery and barr to him than good," said the speker in conclusion.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the splendid musical programme provided. The selections rendered both vocal and instrumental, were of a very acceptable character, and of such a nature as could not fail to appeal to lovers of good music.

IF I HAD EGZEMA

I'd simply wash it way with that soothing liquid, D.D.D. Prescription. The very first drops instantly stop that awful itch. We have sold many other remedies for skin trouble, but none that we could personally recommend as we do the D.D.D. Prescription.

W. J. Henry Permanent Assessor

was caused by an ice formation of this kind.

Mayor Bradburn—In a case of that kind you might make the owner of the property a party to a suit, but it is difficult to prevent the water dripping when the sun shines on the roofs or on a mild day.

A letter was received from Mayor Throop, of Guelph, asking for support to secure the amendment of the Provincial Health Act so far as it concerns or deals with the inspection of all animals before and after killing. The act only permits a municipality to control the killing of animals within the limits of the municipality, while to properly protect the citizens the act requires to be amended, so that it controls the inspecting of all animals, before and after killing, that are offered for sale in said municipality, or all dressed meat that comes into the city must have the necessary inspection tag attached to it before it can be offered for sale. Referred to Property Committee.

J. G. Pickard, Toronto, general contractor, wrote asking that if the city intends to build an incinerator in connection with disposal of garbage, that he be given the privilege to furnish plans and estimate of cost of erection.

Mrs. C. Rose asked that her restaurant licence of $5 be remitted. Finance Committee.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner wrote expressing his appreciation to the council of the honour of being appointed by them as member of the Library Board. Received.

Bernard P. Welsh asked that if the council intended to purchase trees or shrubs this year that he be given an opportunity of providing them. Property Committee.

Ensign J. H. Merritt, on behalf of the Salvation Army Band, asked for a grant of $250 to the band fund, in return for which concerts will be given in Victoria Park as usual. Finance Committee.

A request from the Salvation Army was also received for a grant to their social work endeavour, and was likewise left with the Finance Committee.

EXHIBITION DEPUTATION.

A fairly large deputation from the Industrial Exhibition was present to ask that the city's annual grant be increased. Mr. J. H. Garbutt, as president, was the first speaker.

"Our buildings are in a state of decay," he said. "By not securing a lease we could not proceed with buildings. Last year we obtained a lease with an option to buy. We built a grand stand, but other buildings are required. We need better entrances, with turnstiles, but our receipts have not been large enough. With financial assistance it might be possible to make the improvements. We would, therefore, like to have the city make us a larger grant if possible."

J. Js Turner, Sr.—We spent $3,600 on the grand stand, but our buildings are in such a state of disrepair that we have almost to beg merchants to exhibit. The city's grant last year was $400, and we hope it will be increased during 1912. We have a five-year lease at $500, which is much less than the property is worth, and with aid we hope to make the exhibition a credit to the city.

Mayor Bradburn—The people of Peterborough feel that the Exhibition is a good thing for the city, but the question is where the money is to come from. This matter will be dealt with, but the citizens who are directors of the Exhibition know what the city is up against.

REPORTS PASSED.

The reports of the various committees were read and adopted. The work covered by them has already been published.

FINANCE REPORT.

The following report of the Finance Committee was adopted on the motion of Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ald. Morgan:

That the demand of the Board of Education be paid in monthly instalments as requested by the board.

That one copy of the Municipal World be ordered for the City Offices, and a cheque for subscription price be issued.

That the arrangement with the Bank of Toronto for carrying the city's account be renewed on the same basis as last year, viz., the bank to allow on all credit balances 3¾ per cent and to charge on debit balances up to amount of combined credit balances 4½ per cent, and to charge for all amounts in excess of the combined credit balances at the rate of 5 per cent.

Ald. Duncan stated that advertisements had been placed for applications for a Sanitary Inspector, but no report was ready, as the time for filing them did not expire until Thursday.

Mayor Bradburn stated that he had been requested by the Finance Committee to interview the Board of Education, with a view to having their demands for 1912 reduced. He found that no reduction could possibly be made, as the great amount of their requirement is fixed and must be met.

Passing of By-Laws.

Ald. Duncan moved the first reading of by-law 1644, to appoint an assessor for Peterborough.

Ald. Anderson—"I am under the impression that no one of the applicants is qualified to take the full responsibility of this position. Mr. Henry has had one year's experience in the work, but I do not think he is in a position to undertake the duties. I move, in amendment, that W. J. Henry and W. H. Thompson be appointed at a salary of $760 as heretofore.

Ald. Buller—"I have much pleasure in seconding that. I think two heads are better than one".

Ald. Duffus — "Did Mr. Henry mention in his application anything about an assistant".

Mayor Bradburn—"No, he followed the advertisement as it was published."

The vote on the amendment was lost. It was supported by Ald. Buller, Morgan and Anderson, those voting against it being Ald. Brown, Johnston, Gillespie, and Duncan.

City Trust Commissioner.

A by-law was passed for the appointing of a City Trust Commissioner. Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that Mr. Richard Hall, the retiring commissioner be reappointed for five years, if he will accept the position.—Carried.

Sewer Assessment.

By-law 1646, read by Ald. Anderson, provided for the manner of assessing land abutting on streets in which sewers are constructed under the local improvement sections of the Municipal Act. It reads as follows: In the case of sewers constructed in 1911, and hereafter constructed, the sum of 50 cents a foot frontage shall be specially assessed upon the land on both sides of the street abutting directly on the work the remainder of the cost of such sewers shall be borne by the Corporation.

A by-law to increase the salaries of the firemen was passed.

A motion was passed amending the dog-by-law, that bitches be prevented from running at large. The section was read that provided that dogs should be kept under control on the street.

Ald. Gordon asked if that did not mean that they must be kept on the leash, but the Mayor decided to let sleeping dogs lie, and asked that the amendement be passed as read.

C. P. R.'s Request.

A communication from G. W. Hatton regarding the granting to the C. P. R. of a piece of propery, about one-tenth of an acre, under water, along the river front, between Sherbrooke and King street, was next considered.

Ald. Morgan—"I think the city should get $500 for it. I move that this property. The C.P.R. usually gets the big end. I was told that this property would be worth $1,000 to the Company, and I think the city should ge $500 for it. I move that it be sold to the city at that amount.

Ald. Buller—"I do not see the use of holding up the C.P.R. in this case. The land is of no value to any one. It can never be used as a water front. I don't want to give anything away, but in this case I can't for the life of me see what use could be made of it.

Mayor Bradburn—That is my view. If it is worth fighting about, it would be bad policy to give away anything of value to us.

Ald. Johnston wanted to defer action and have the Council look over the property in the morning.

Ald. Duncan—I looked over it. I'm not in favour of giving the C.P.R. one inch; when we are not getting anything from them. They stick us for everything they can.

Ald Brown—"If it is of any use to them they should be willing to give $500 for it."

There was some consideration as to what course the Council should pursue and it was finally decided to defer action, until after the aldermen saw the property and received further particulars regarding the agreement with the Company. The Council will visit the place in a body on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock.

Park for West Ward.

Ald. Brown considered that the West Ward had been overlooked in the matter of the laying out of a park. He thought that some steps should be taken to provide one. The question was left with the Property Committee on motion of Ald. Anderson and Johnston.

Milk Tests.

It was moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Brown, that the Medical Health Officer be directed to send in his reports of the analysis of milk inspected by him, showing the names of the vendors and the percentage of butter fat in each case. That they be made fortnightly, and that they be made accessible to the press.

Ald. Gillespie thought the suggestion of frequent and careful tests a good one, but that it was a little premature. After the appointment of a Sanitary Inspector a more rigid enforcement of that part of the milk by-law could be made and the tests could be properly taken. Milk tests vary to such an extent that it is almost impossible to make them fair to the dealers. Even when taken on the farm, a test taken in the morning might show two per cent. of butter fat; in the evening from the same cow it might be six per cent. This was an absolute fact for it had been shown by actual experiments.

Ald. Morgan—"We want the tests of milk just as it goes to the people. The Medical Health Officer has all the facilities for making these tests, and the fairest way is to have the milk tested just as it is delivered before breakfast.

Ald. Gillespie further explained how milk might vary and how one man's milk might show a large percentage, and another's a low figure, and yet neither might be an absolutely fair test."

Mayor Bradburn—"Let the Medical Health Officer make the tests as he is supposed to have been doing in the past; if he considers them fair let them be published.

Ald. Gillespie—One milk man told me his milk had not been tested yet, and he has been delivering it around the city during the past two years.

The Motion Carried.

The motion was then voted on, those supporting it being Aldermen Morgan, Anderson, Brown, Duncan, and Gordon.

Ald. Duffus called attention to the need of lights at the corner of King and Maitland streets, and Donegal and McDonnell streets.

Mayor Bradburn was given authority to send telegrations to other cities whenever he deemed it advisable.

On motion of Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ald. Buller, the city's grant to the Poultry Association of $75 was ordered to be paid.

The Council then adjourned.

GRAND TO LIVE.

And the Last Laugh is Always the Best.

"Six months ago I would have laughed at the idea that there could be anything better for a table beverage than coffee," writes an Ohio woman, "now I laugh to know there is. (The effects of tea and coffee on the system are similar because they both contain a drug—caffeine.)

"Since childhood I drank coffee freely, as did the other members of the family. The result was a puny, sickly girl; and as I grew into womanhood I did not gain in health, but was afflicted with heart trouble, a weak and disordered stomach, wrecked nerves and a general breaking down, till last winter, at the age of 38, I seemed to be on the verge of consumption.

"My friends greeted me with 'How bad you look! What a terrible colour!' and this was not very comforting.

"The doctors and patent medicines did me absolutely no good. I was thoroughly discouraged.

"Then I gave up coffee and commenced Postum. At first I didn't like it, but after a few trials and following the directions exactly, it was grand. It was refreshing and satisfying. In a couple of weeks I noticed a great change.

"I became stronger, my brain grew clearer, I was not troubled with forgetfulness as in coffee times, my power of endurance was more than doubled.

"The heart trouble and indigestion disappeared and my nerves became steady and strong.

"I began to take an interest in things about me. Housework and homework became a pleasure. My friends have marveled at the change and when they enquire what brought it about I answer 'Postum, and nothing else in the world.'" Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Returned From The Panama

Mr. A. Grant, superintending engineer of the Trent Canal, has returned from a pleasure trip to the Panama. "Just wanted to see the canal before they let the water into it," said Mr. Grant to the Examiner this morning by way of explanation, as to the object of his trip.

The engineers expect to have a thirty-foot head within the next two months, which in the course of a year will be brought up to the specified height of eighty-five feet above sea level. Mr. Grant was away about a month, and was one of a party of tourists to visit the canal zone.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

There is great interest in Peterborough over the Trent Valley League game at Brock street rink on Thursday night in which Campbellford will clash with All Saints'. Tommy Moffatt's team have to win this battle in order to keep in the running, and the blue and white aggregation will send out the best line-up they have had this season. Campbellford beat All Saints in the former town, but the Saints say they can turn the trick here. Anyway you look at it, it should be a game well worth seeing.

A big crowd of fans is going to Cobourg to-morrow night with the Peterborough Intermediates for their first game in the second round. A special train will leave the G.T.R. station sharp at 7 o'clock, returning after the game. The return fare will be $1.25 for adults and 65c. for children. The team had about its snappiest practice of the season last night with every player out and all going at top speed. They are determined to keep up their winning streak by beating Cobourg in the Lake-shore tomorrow night. The team will be identically the same as battled through the first round without a defeat. Cobourg comes back to Peterborough for the return game on Friday night.

The Bear Cats left for Trenton on the 1.40 G.T.R. train to-day to play the return game with Lawson Whitehead's team. The local youngsters are determined to win right in Trenton. The team had a splendid twenty-minute workout last night and is in good condition for the battle. The line-up will be as follows:

Goal—Dreyer.
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Denison.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall.
Right wing—Kenneally.
Left wing—Clancy.

SHOULD AVOID EXTRAVAGANCE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—There would seem to be no doubt that our School Board is actuated by good motives in considering and meeting the demands of the educational situation. At the same time let them remember that expensive projects have followed one another with startling rapidity.

This may spring from an accumulation of arrears requiring to be dealt with, but under the circumstances the Board should cut out all unnecessary or extravagant expenditures.

Under this head would seem to come the proposition (if correctly reported) to purchase no less than six acres in connection with the East Ward school. Surely by no possibility can so much land be required for a play ground, nor would there seem to be any probability of that locality becoming densely populated. But even if there were, the School Board's duty would only seem to be to provide land enough for reasonable recreation of scholars.

Bet this is only one item in a policy which may possibly have too much regard to the supposed and uncertain needs of the future and too little to the present and certain financial condition of the taxpayer. With the size of families steadily diminishing and present probabilities in regard to new factories, there may not be any greatly increased number of children to be provided for. But in any case, do not load the whole expense upon one generation.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

WAR HAS BEEN DECLARED!

The Fair Crusaders Say, "Consumption Must Go"

(By Roy Gilray)

A good start is half the battle. The war on the White Plague, our national enemy, has been taken up in earnest by the ladies of Peterborough. In response to the appeal made by Mesdames Kendry and Travers, a large representative gathering assembled in the Public Library last night, for the purpose of organizing a Women's Auxiliary in connection with the Peterborough Health Association.

The following officers were appointed:

President—Mrs. Jas. Kendry.
First Vice-Pres.—Mrs. R. B. Hall.
Second Vice-Pres. — Mrs. Walter Stalker.
Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. R. W. Travers.

Great enthusiasm was manifested throughout, which augurs well for the crusade against that home-destroying disease—consumption.

Mrs. Kendry briefly outlined the objects of the Auxiliary; the chief aim being to enlist the sympathy and co-operation of the ladies of the city to assist the Local Health Association in carrying out its laudable plan of wiping out tuberculosis, in our midst.

She said it would require at least 500 or 600 ladies—the larger the number the greater the enthusiasm and results—to make the campaign a success; and, to help swell the coffers, a nominal membership fee of 25 cents was suggested.

W. H. Moore, K.C., President of the Peterborough Health Association, in a few well-chosen remarks, congratulated Mrs. Kendry and the ladies present on the hearty response of so many on this their initial meeting.

He pointed out that the Association, was a regularly organised society, the purpose of which was to do some good for the community at large and more particularly the amelioration of that dread disease—consumption.

He was delighted to say that the work of certain ladies had resulted in securing approximately $300 from the sale of stamps and calendars.

Referring to Sanatoria, he said they were a good thing but required a lot of money to carry them on. Mr. Beck when last here, did not hold out much encouragement that Peterborough could maintain a Sanatorium. London, with a population of some 50,000, found it difficult to raise sufficient funds to cover the maintenance.

To the citizens of Peterborough, it was a question of working along the lines, as suggested by the local Association, which could be carried out quite easily, and would be an incentive to go on for larger results later on.

In Peterborough, one out of twelve, and in Toronto 1 out of 8, fail to conquer the disease. This is a lamentable fact, when we consider it is a preventable disease, that it need not exist if contagion is destroyed, and people live proper sanitary lives.

Dr. G. Stewart Cameron, Secretary Treasurer of the Peterboough Health Association, was the next speaker. In introducing his remarks, he said he had often been asked to explain the reason for the organization of the Association. For answer, he referred to the conditions in Peterborough and vicinity. Each year, there are 25 deaths from tuberculosis, and 75 others are afflicted with it. So, in 12 months there are 100 people either die or are a prey to the disease. Up to the present no effort had been made to control the malady. Conditions were such that there are many persons exposed to contagion, who cannot, or who neglect, to take the ordinary precautions to protect themselves. With such conditions existing as in the face it is the duty of the Association to provide some means, whereby the afflicted may be helped, and those that are exposed to contagion may be instructed in the proper care of themselves.

At this point he outlined the articles of incorporation, which were broad enough to include more extensive work should the requirements of the city demand it.

Members pay an annual fee of $1 which goes to swell the general funds. Life membership is placed at $100, to be paid either in one sum or in four instalments.

It is the purpose of the Association to continue their policy of education by lectures and by distributing literature. They also propose appointing a district nurse, to cost in the neighbourhood of $1,000 a year, and supplying some necessaries and comforts to the poor, such as clothing, food and medicines, which would mean a further expenditure of $200.

In short, money was needed, and in providing this, the effort should not be spasmodic, but should be undertaken with a view to permanence.

Since its formation, last April, the Association has not accomplished very much, but they have been careful to lay a good foundation, and all that is necessary now is the hearty co-operation of the ladies, and success is assured.

The ladies are contemplating doing something on a large scale, an undertaking of great magnitude, which will give every citizen an opportunity of helping, and which, if successful, will prove one of the greatest blessings to the City of Peterborough, and make it a city of healthy, happy homes.

ASSESSOR QUESTION WAS DISCUSSED BY COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE COUNCIL

Met in Committee to Open Applications for Position of Permanent Assessor--Street Watering to be Paid by Frontage Tax --- Board of Trade to Co-operate With Manufacturers' Committee.

Prior to the regular monthly meeting of the Council on Monday night, the Committee held a brief, but rather important meeting with Mayor Bradburn presiding and all the Aldermen present with the exception of Ald Graham.

Mayor Bradburn stated that the Board of Trade usually had three representatives on the Manufacturers' Committee, and that they took an active part in the consideration of matters, relating to new industries, etc. Is it your wish that this plan be continued this year, the Mayor asked.

Ald. Buller—"I do not see any reason why it should be discontinued. These members of the Board of Trade represent the business men of the city.

Ald. Gillespie took the same view.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that the arrangements be continued as in the past.—Carried.

Street Watering for 1912.

Mayor Bradburn explained that according to the new act in force street watering cannot be charged on the assessment, but must now be paid by the city out of the general revenue.

Ald. Gordon—"It does not seem fair that people should have to pay for street watering when they are not getting the benfit of it.

Ald. Anedrson—"The frontage plan is the only one."

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the City Engineer be instructed to secure frontage measurements, in order to be in a position to have street watering paid for by a frontage tax on all streets to be affected by street watering, and that the cost of street watering be paid this year according to the frontage tax plan.—Carried.

In taking up the applications for the position of Assessor, Mayor Bradburn stated that one letter had been received by mail at 9 a.m., on Monday.

"What do you wish done with this" he asked.

Ald. Morgan—"I wouldn't consider it."

The Mayor—The letter is post marked, 5p.m., Feb. 3. If they do not forward their applications according to advertized requirements they are the losers.

Ald. Duncan—An applicant, after sending in his application may mention his price, thinking himself safe and another may take advantage of this information at the last minute.

Ald. Gordon — Is it settled that there is to be only one assessor?"

Mayor Bradburn—"It was settled last Monday night."

Ald. Buller—"I didn't vote for it: I was never in favour of it".

Mayor Bradburn laid the late application on the table, having decided not to open it.

The Applicants.

His Worship opened the letters received as follows: The first was from M. W. H. Meldrum offering to accept the dual position of Assessor and Industrial Commissioner, at a salary of $1,500 a year.

The others were as follows:
Thos. McKee. $1,400.
W. J. Henry, $1,400.
H. Carveth, $1,400 or $600, if an assistant were appointed.
W. H. Thompson, $1,400.
Jas. Doody, $1.75 per day.
T. B. McGrath, $1,200, or $700, if an assistant were appointed.

Mayor Bradburn asked what action the Council intended to take with these applications.

Ald. Buller—"It is my opinion that we should appoint two assessors. It will be cheaper and more satisfactory to the city at large Brantford tried the one-man system and found it expensive and a failure.

Mayor Bradburn—"How is it expensive?"

Ald. Buller—"You could have it done for $1,200 a year."

Mayor Bradburn—"No you can't; we paid $1,400 last year."

Ald. Buller replied that it used to be done for $1,200, but the Council had raised the salary and he expected to see the new official's salary go up $100 a year in the same way.

Ald. Brown—"It is not how cheaply it can be done, but how well."

Ald. Gillespie—"That's the point".

Mayor Bradburn—"Do you wish to change your position from that taken on Monday night?"

Ald. Duncan—"Not mine".

Ald. Johnston spoke in behalf of Mr. McKee, whom he considered had given general satisfaction, and who possessed a long and valuable experience.

Ald. Duncan—"To bring the matter to a head. I move that W. J. Henry be appointed assessor at $1,400 a year."

Ald. Brown—"I take great pleasure in seconding that motion".

Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Gordon, that two assessors be appointed.

Mayor Bradburn — "We will put that first to settle the question."

Ald. amendment was defeated.

Ald. Duffus—"I move that Mr. McGrath be appointed. I think he has proved his ability, and his tender is $200 less than Mr. Henry's".

Ald. Duffus failed to secure a seconder to his motion.

Another amendment was then put forward. Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that Thos. McKee be appointed at $1,400 a year.

Ald. Gordon moved an amendment to the amendment, that Mr. Meldrum receive the appointment.

Ald. Gillespie—Mr. Meldrum has tendered for a dual position and I do not think it should be considered, as he has asked for $1,500. Was Mr. Henry's work satisfactory last year, he asked.

Ald. Duncan—"I heard no complaints".

Ald. Gillespie—"Do you feel satisfied that he is capable of doing the work alone?"

Ald. Duncan—"I do".

Ald. Gordon did not get a seconder to his amendment to the amendment, and Ald. Johnston's amendment was defeated.

Ald. Duncan's motion was then submitted and carried.

Ald. Anderson—"I am not satisfied that any one of these applicants is thoroughly satisfied to perform this work and I move that W. J. Henry and W. H. Thompson be appointed at the same salary as last year."

Ald. Buller — "That's along the right line".

Mayor Bradburn—"I think Ald. Anderson is rather late in bringing that motion".

And there the matter dropped with a recommendation of the Committee of the whole Council to be brought before the Council in its regular session for ratification.

Wants Rolls Published.

Ald. Brown—"I think the assessment rolls should be published this year."

Ald. Gordon—"What would it cost?"

Mayor Bradburn—"About $1,000.

I cannot see why it is necessary to publish the rolls. They can be seen at any time by those who wish to.

Ald. Brown—"But most people do not want to come up here to see them."

Ald. Anderson asked, on behalf of the Peter Hamilton Co., for permission to back their teams over the sidewalk in order to take goods in and out of the factory.

Ald. Morgan—"What about the other merchants? I want to help the Company if I can; but we are setting a precedent and others may be making the same request.

Ald. Gordon—"I think we should grant this request, and if it is abused we can rescind it."

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the Company's request be granted; they to assume all liability for damages.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use feed the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefit.

Young People Of The City Hear Instructive Address

The Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., Rector of All Saints', Renders Helpful Talk to Large Portion of the City's Youth in George Street Church Last Evening.

A large number of the Christian young people of the city, representing the various churches, assembled last evening in the school room of George street Methodist church, where the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., rector of All Saints church, delivered a very instructive and helpful address dealing with the subject of "Service."

The chair was occupied by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, B.A., pastor St. Andrew's church, and prior to the address some of the members of the choir rendered vocal selections which were thoroughly appreciated by the gathering. After having introduced his subject, the Rev. Mr. Grobb went on to say:

"Job says, 'Our old men shall dream dreams, and our young men shall see visions.' It is characteristic of an old person to fall into a reverie of the past, and for a young person to dream of the future. What a magnificent thing the future is; what big things it contains—it contains anything—it contains everything.

As an old person is different from a young one, so also is a young person different from an animal, having the power of decision. Every person has a great question mark in his life. It is the power of doing something and it is the doing of something that makes us individuals. It is the best thing about us that we are individuals—the fact that we can do something of our own initiative.

What a big thing an idea is. An idea is the biggest thing in the world—it rules the world. The man who has an idea, has the best thing in the world. Even this building was once an idea. An idea creates something that is going to live.

The fact that we are individuals means that we are different from everyone else. You are absolutely different and that is the next best thing in life. Sometimes we try to imitate other people. That is the worst thing we can do. If we want to do a thing, we must do it ourselves. We are all different then. If a person does a thing, it is done differently from anyone else, if one says a thing it is said just a little differently from anyone else. If any one should see you a couple of blocks away, they would know you because of your gait, your whole bearing.

Now what does all this do; it brings us back, it seems to me, to the thought of "Service." Our lives are not to be wasted—they must be used, and it is that on which the Gospel takes its great stand. The whole power of a man is to do something and at the end of a man's life the whole question will be, 'What have you done?'

What is it that takes us from the world and enables us to do something FOR the world? It is the vision of God's love, as we have it revealed in Jesus Christ. This service is the one thing that is going to bring us real happiness in this world. You remember the story of the young ruler who thought he lacked nothing. 'Sell all thou hast,' said Jesus, 'and give to the poor.'

GREAT CHANGE IN A FEW DAYS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Wm. Gervais a New Man.

His Muscles Cramped, He Was Very Irritable and He Had Headaches —Dodd's Kidney Pills Changed It All.

Hitchcock, Sask., Feb. 5.—(Special.)—Mr. Wm. Gervais, well known and highly respected here, is telling his friends of an almost miraculous change Dodd's Kidney Pills have made in him. He is a man of few words, but he speaks straight to the point:

"My muscles would cramp," Mr. Gervais says: "My head ached and I was very irritable until I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two boxes made a new man of me."

A change in a few days from a nervous, irritable condition, with an aching head and a presentment that a serious illness was hovering over him, to rousing, energetic health was what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for Mr. Gervais. That's what they have done for thousands of others on the prairies. No matter where you go you will hear of cures they have made. If you don't know from your own experience, your neighbour will tell you they are the one sure cure for any form of Kidney Disease.

Awarded $16 And Costs

The case of a traveller vs. a local manufacturing company for alleged wrongful dismissal was tried in the County Court yesterday afternoon, before His Honour Judge Huycke. The plaintiff sued for forty dollars, and was awarded a judgment for $16 and costs. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendants.

FRONTAGE TAX RATE

Change in Method of Paying for Street Watering and Sewer Construction

SHOULD BE NOTICED

In future, sewer construction work and the expense of street watering will be met by a frontage tax in each case.

This is the result of two motions that were passed by the Council at last night's meeting. Reference has already been made of Ald. Anderson's plan to pay for sewer construction by a frontage tax and the equalized rate has been placed at 52 cents a foot. The property on each side of the street in which the sewer is laid will be taxed at the rate of 52 cents a foot, and any cost above that amount will be met out of the general taxes.

The change in the manner of meeting street watering expnss was occasioned by the new act. Formerly street watering was paid for by a special rate on the assessment of real estate on the streets benefitted. It was felt that to meet the cost from the general fund would be unfair to those who received no benefit from the work. Hence the reason for Ald. Gordon's motion that in future street watering be paid for by a frontage tax, the details of which will be arranged. Ratepayers should notice these changes as they are bound to be brought into action with the passing of winter.

The Apsley Telephone Co.

(From a correspondent.)

When Mr. Stratton was in Apsley four summers ago steps were taken to form a company known as the Apsley Telephone Company, for the construction of a telephone line from Mt. Julian to Apsley. Stock was subscribed for and sixteen miles from Mt. Julian to Apsley, of metallic line has been constructed, and twenty-four miles of grounded line, north and east from Apsley has also been installed. There are now thirty-seven telephones on these lines, and all those having telephones are well pleased with the service. Up to date, four hundred and eighty (480) shares of stock have been disposed of to the value of $2,205.00, and there is a balance on hand, after the fourteen miles that were constructed last season, amounting to $33.75, but there is $55.72 to pay for work done, which leaves the Company $21.75 in debt. This amount will soon be liquidated by rents of telephones. No dividend will be paid this year, as the earnings of the Company have been used for improvements. It was the intention of the Company to build six or seven more miles this summer to connect with Clydesdale, but nothing definite has been decided upon.—Com.

"SANITAS" ON THE DUTIES OF A SANITARY INSPECTOR

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the Council's decision—a highly commendable one—to appoint a Sanitary Inspector for the city, it may be interesting to the public, generally, to know the qualifications that are required in such an official in London, and other cities and towns of England, whose sanitary system is the envy and wonder of foreign countries. He must possess a certificate (generally of the Sanitary Institute of Great Britain) showing himself competent for such office. This certificate covers a knowledge of water supply, pollution of water, plumbers' work, ventilation, and warming, sewage and refuse removal, infection and disinfection, inspection of foods, diseases of animals used for food, etc.

In addition to the duties devolving upon him, in this respect, he has to enter from day to day, in a book kept for that purpose, particulars of his inspection, and of the action taken by him in the execution of his office. Also to keep books, so arranged as to form a continuous record of the sanitary condition of each of the premises in respect of which any action has been taken under the Health Acts. From this it will be seen that a Sanitary Inspector's office is one that cannot be adequately filled by any Tom, Dick or Harry, who relies solely upon his olfactory organ as a guide to insanitary conditions.

As the sanitary question is one of vital importance, let us hope that the Council will be able to find a man possessing some, at least, of the qualifications outlined above, together with the tact and diplomacy necessary to fill such an onerous position.

Yours faithfully,
"Sanitas"

The [illegible] whose auspices the concert is to be held expect a packed house on the occasion.

CATHOLIC CLERGY CONFER

OTTAWA, ONT., FEB. 6.—Archbishop Langevin, of Manitoba and Monsigneor Stagni, Papal Delegate to Canada, left this morning for Montreal to attend conference of Archbishop Bruchesi and other prominent clergy and laity regarding Separate schools in Manitoba.

CHARTER HELD UP

OTTAWA, FEB. 6.— The Ontario government protested before the Railway committee of Commons this morning against the renewal of the charter of Georgian Bay Canal Company, and did so so successfully, that the bill was held up for at least a week. Hon. Adam Beck and Mr. Lynch Staunton put up a vigorous fight on behalf of the conservation of water powers and insisted that every drop of water in Ontario belonged to the province. Considerable opposition was shown by members from Ottawa Valley, but it was evident that the members of the committee were much divided on the question.

STILL ANOTHER

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see by the Examiner that "One Who Knows" is still pressing for justice to be done in connection with the recent sale of liquor to a blacklisted carpenter, but I am afraid he will look in vain for justice, as I am informed that the License Inspector in this case, has allowed the time to pass by, in which to lay the information. This being so, "One Who Knows" may as well bring his case to the attention of the Provincial License Inspector, and perhaps he will investigate the matter and also call the attention of the License Commissioners here to the actions of the Inspector. Mr. Stewart has completely failed in his duty in this case, as well as others, and some steps should be taken to see whether he is going to enforce the law or whether he is not.

Yours truly,
ANOTHER.

ENJOYABLE "AT HOME"

The Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus held a very successful "At Home" last evening in the K. of C. Hall, when all the amusements peculiar to such a function were indulged in.

The evening opened with an euchre tournament, the victors being: Ladies' prize—Miss Teresa McNamara. Gentleman's prize—Mr. C. H. Pennefather. After refreshments had been served a portion of the gathering repaired to dancing and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The Misses Norris supplied the musical element.

OPPOSED RENEWAL

Georgian Bay Application Comes Up at Ottawa

RUSHING THE GRAIN BILLS

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Parliament spent the entire day in committee on the grain bill, getting through all except schedules and a few clauses which were left over for further consideration.

Just before the House adjourned at 11.30 p.m., Hon. G. E. Foster announced, in response to a question by Dr. Schaffner (Soo), that wheat and oats for export was being and had been carried for some time to Minneapolis and Duluth at the same rates as to Port William and Port Arthur. Application had been made for the cartage of grain to those points for consumption in the United States, but this had not been allowed by the United States commission to take place earlier than the thirty days required by the commission. This restriction, said Mr. Foster, had now been waved, and, speaking generally, barley, wheat, oats and flax for consumption in the United States was being carried to Duluth and Minneapolis for slightly higher rates than to Fort Arthur and Fort William, and by the latter part of February they would be carried at the same rates.

Mr. Foster's emergency bill to amend the Manitoba Grain Act to facilitate the shipment to hospital elevators of damp grain was given its third reading and passed.

Vigorous protest was made by influential deputations before the railway committee yesterday to the renewal of the Ottawa-Montreal and Georgian Bay Canal charter.

Hon. Adam Beck and G. Lynch-Staunton, K.C., represented the Ontario Government; J. P. Turcotte, ex-M.P., the Quebec Government; Mayor Hopewell and Controller Parent, the City of Ottawa, and Ald. Lapointe, M.P., the City of Montreal. The conservation commission wrote suggesting an amendment that no works shall be started by the company till authorized by the Government, and any rates charged for power shall be subject to the Railway Commission.

J. G. Turriff advocated the construction of the canal as a Government work.

J. A. Ritchie, K.C., claimed the [illegible] dollars on surveys alone. The company had not expropriation powers and it was absurd to think the company would expend a hundred million dollars merely to develop water powers.

Hon. Adam Beck frankly declared that the bill involved the confiscation of public lands. The Province of Ontario had a decided interest, as it owned the waters and land in the province. The drainage area was 50,000 square miles.

Furthermore, a stated case was before the Privy Council, and nothing should be done which might be prejudicial.

A million horse-power would be developed by the scheme. The Hydro-Electric Commission was supplying power at $25 per horse-power less than private companies. It would be apparent, therefore, what an immense value was attached to the company's charter.

"If the canal is built by the Government," said Hon. Mr. Beck, "we will develop the water powers."

Mr. Macdonald asked: "Is this great canal project to be stopped because the Hydro-Electric Commission objects?" There should be a declaration [illegible] by the Government regarding the matter.

Hon. Frank Cochrane said: "We have had insufficient time to deal with the matter."

George Lynch-Staunton, K.C., said Ontario did not object to the canal, but to its rights to water powers being unencroached upon. The Dominion had no right to encourage other people to take the powers of the province. In doing so it would be a law unto itself and be guilty of unwarrantable conduct and a breach of duty. The Dominion, he admitted, could authorize the canal, but under the clock of it canal scheme it could not give away provincial rights to powers. The provisions in the bill were as wide and ruinous as the powers in the Ontario bill last session. Under its powers they could go as far as Labrador or Niagara Falls. They could monopolize the waters on the Ottawa River.

Mr. Ritchie: Most unfair comment.

Mr. Staunton: As a private transaction not a man on the committee would pass the bill.

Messrs. Germain, Fripp and Hon. J. Taggart made comments favorable to the project.

"Build the canal as soon as you like, but maintain our powers," answered Mr. Staunton. "I have been coming here several years," he declared, "and have found the Government very liberal in giving away the rights of the people."

The bill will be taken up again next Tuesday.

Big Paper Mill for Thorold.

St. Catharines, Feb. 7.—A new $1,-000,000 paper mill, to employ 300 hands, is to be established near Thorold. The township council Monday passed a bylaw on to the ratepayers for a vote on the 28th, to fix a nominal assessment for twenty-five acres of land near the smelter. James Beattie is named as the trustee. An unnamed Chicago firm supplies the capital.

Flight in Hydro Aeroplane.

New York, Feb. 7.—The first successful flight of a hydro aeroplane in this section was seen late yesterday, when Frank T. Coffyn ascended from the middle of the Hudson River, near 23rd street, and flew about for sixteen minutes up and down the river, at a height of 300 feet.

Ex-Shah Bribed to Leave.

Teheran, Feb. 7.—With the consent of Great Britain and Russia, the Persian Government, through the Russian consul at Astrabad, will inform the ex-Shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, that it is willing to allow him a pension and grant amnesty to his adherents on condition that he quit Persia without delay.

The Foreign Minister, in an interview, yesterday said: The Government is willing to grant the ex-Shah 50,000 tomans ($109,000) a year.

Committed Perjury to Marry.

Belleville, Feb. 7.—Edward Symons was yesterday sentenced by Judge Deroche, to one month in jail and fined $50 for committing perjury. Symons procured a marriage license at Tweed Village, taking his affadavit that he was a widower, whereas he has a wife living in the county. His wife was in court when the sentence was pronounced. Liquor, it is alleged, was the cause of Symons' trouble.

King of Denmark Ill.

Copenhagen, Feb. 7.—While taking his customary walk yesterday, King Frederick was seized with a sudden illness. He returned to the palace and was ordered to bed. It is stated that the king suffered a chill. A bulletin issued last night says that his condition is considered satisfactory.

Dr. Rutherford Resigns.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Dr. J. G. Rutherford, veterinary director-general and live stock commissioner, has put his resignation in the hands of the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Martin Burrell, and is to come into effect on March 1.

DECREE IS ASSAILED

Bishop Farthing Vigorously Attacks Ne Temere Order

IS A "HORRIBLE SCANDAL"

Montreal, Feb. 7.—The charge delivered by Rev. Bishop Farthing at the opening session of the Montreal Diocesan Synod yesterday was mainly devoted to the marriage question, and the head of the diocese expressed the sentiments of the Protestant church in regard to the ne temere decree.

He pleaded first for the sanctity of the marital contract, then exposed the conflicting position brought about in two famous cases, and concluded by a denunciation of outsiders interfering in Canadian marriage laws demanding also a uniform marriage law recognised by the state.

"When there has been a marriage against which there has been no objection save that of religion," declared the bishop, "it seems to me a horrible degradation of human life for the church to separate the two persons and permit the contracting parties to marry again."

Referring to the Hebert case, judgment in which is expected at the end of the week, the speaker declared that the state had authorized Methodist ministers to solemnize marriages, and it was the duty of the state to see that its license was honored.

He also referred to the recent marriage annulment case, wherein civil effect was given to an ecclesiastical decree, declaring the marriage of two Roman Catholics, married eight years ago by a Roman priest, before the requisite number of witnesses and in a Roman Catholic Church void, on the ground that they were of the third or fourth degree of consanguinity and had not received special dispensation to marry from the church, as is necessary, according to ecclesiastical law, under such circumstances of relationship. This annulment, he said, was a horrible scandal, which should arouse the whole Dominion to action.

King's Message to Canada.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—The Duke of Connaught yesterday received the following reply from the King to a cable sent Monday night, conveying the congratulations of the Canadian people on the safe return of the King and Queen from their Indian tour:

"Please assure your Government of my deep appreciation of the message which you have sent in their name and on behalf of the people of Canada, congratulating the Queen and myself on our homecoming.

"From the happy experiences of past visits to the Dominion, I am confident that my Canadian subjects are inspired by the same feelings of loyalty and affection as those which have been so strikingly evinced toward us by the people of India."

Looking For the Bodies.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 7.—Although experienced rivermen declare their belief that the bodies of the three ice bridge victims will never be recovered, men in the employ of relatives of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton, Toronto, who lost their lives Sunday, with Burrell Hecock of Cleveland, are patrolling the lower river day and night, in an effort to recover the remains. A close watch is being kept on the whirlpool and along the river in Queenston. Great fires are being kept burning on the lower river bank, but rivermen look upon the efforts to recover the bodies as absolutely futile.

Rumors were around yesterday of the recovery of the bodies, and hundreds of people went to the whirlpool to witness the rescue work.

Arundel Moves to Toronto.

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—The following official changes have been announced here: J. T. Arundel, who has been C.P.R. superintendent in Winnipeg, was yesterday officially transferred to Toronto to become general superintendent of the C.P.R. F. F. Busteed, formerly superintendent at Vancouver, will be general superintendent at Winnipeg when his health will permit. In the meantime D. C. Coleman, formerly superintendent at Nelson, now superintendent of car service, is appointed acting superintendent at Winnipeg, to discharge the duties Mr. Busteed will later take up.

Favor Church Union.

Kingston, Feb. 7.—Brock street Methodist Church voted in favor of church union unanimously at Cataraqui—only one member voted nay; and at Grace Church, Gananoque, the vote stood in favor of union 24 to 8.

Forty ice-cutters, employed by Kingston Ice Co., Ltd., went on strike yesterday, asking for an increase from 15c. to 20c. per hour, and a dozen teamsters asking for 40c. instead of 30c. The strike is not yet settled.

PRELATES TO MEET.

Is Manitoba School Question to Come Up Again?

Montreal, Feb. 7.—The Star says: "All the archbishops of Canada will meet in Montreal to-morrow to meet Mgr. Stagni, the papal delegate to the Dominion, who reached here yesterday, to keep his appointment with the hierarchy of the Catholic Church.

"Ottawa believes that the purpose of the gathering is to discuss the school question which arises out of the proposed extension of the boundary of Manitoba.

"The Manitoba school question was a difficulty which arose during the last days of the previous Conservative administration, and was afterwards treated by the Laurier Government.

"The decision reached has at no time been satisfactory to the Catholic authorities, who believe that they lost considerably under the provision of the act.

"What is desired by the Catholics is a separate school organization similar to that of the Province of Quebec.

"The gathering will be the largest and most important of its kind held since the council of Quebec, which took place in the latter city previous to the eucharistic congress.

"During his stay in Montreal Mgr. Stagni will be the guest of his grace Mgr. Bruchesi at the archbishop's palace, Lagauchetiere street west.

"The question of the decree ne temere will not be discussed at this gathering, as the hierarchy consider this is a matter concerning the members of the Catholic Church alone."

DESTROY THRIFT.

Cartwright Denounces British Old Age Pensions.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Sir Richard Cartwright, in a defence of the Government annuities system, in the Senate yesterday, said that there were nearly 3,000 annuities instead of 514, as the Minister of Trade and Commerce had mistakingly announced.

One reason the annuities plan did not receive even greater consideration from the working classes, for whose benefit it was more particularly intended, arose from ignorant and ill-judged conduct of mischievous demagogs, both in and out of Parliament, who did not scruple to assure the people intended to be benefited by the act, that if they would only wait long enough they would be perfectly certain to get what the act proposed to give them and for nothing at all.

Sir Richard denounced old age pension proposals as destruction of thrift. Sir Richard said the worst enemies of the working classes were those who seek to pauperize or degrade them into recipients of pensions they had not earned, and further, that Canada should not make preparations to relieve the submerged tenth, but to see that no submerged tenth exists in Canada.

Bomb Went Through Mails.

New York, Feb. 7.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Helen Taylor, killed by the explosion of a bomb in her apartments last Saturday night, grew deeper last night with the disclosure that the package containing the infernal machine was apparently sent by mail instead of having been delivered by messenger, as had been supposed.

The police and Coroner Feinberg, both admitted yesterday that their case against Charles M. Dickinson, who was with the woman when the explosion took place and who will be arranged by the coroner to-day on the charge of homicide, had many weak points, and unless more definite evidence comes to light meantime, it was intimated that Dickinson would be discharged.

Unable to Store Wheat.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 7.—The congestion of traffic on the Canadian railroads which resulted in sweeping reductions of freight rates to permit Canadian grain to come into the American head of the lakes for elevating and storage, is more serious than at any time since its inception, according to news from Port Arthur, Ont.

The advices tell of 3,500 cars already billed to Fort William over the Canadian Northern, which cannot be moved. There is no place to store grain when it arrives at Fort William. Thirty million bushels are frozen on the ground or in western elevators. In addition, there are 1,000 cars of grain that are on tracks between Winnipeg and Port Arthur, making 4,500 cars on the Canadian Northern alone.

Car Over Bank; Five Killed.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 7.—While running at a high rate of speed yesterday morning an electric car on the Scott Haven division of the West Pennsylvania Railroad jumped the track near Coulterville, Pa., twenty miles from Pittsburg, and went over a two hundred foot embankment.

The dead are: Lake Donnelly, aged 20, miner, Greenock, Pa.; Chas. Smith, aged 35, miner, Greenock, Pa.; William McClan, aged 21, miner Greenock, Pa., and two unidentified men.

The car contained twenty persons, miners on their way to the mines near Scott Haven.

PARLIAMENT OPENS TO-DAY

Thirteenth Ontario Parliament Under Way—Review of Notable Events

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Toronto, Feb. 7.—A comprehensive survey of provincial progress and expansion will be outlined in the speech from the throne at the opening this afternoon of the thirteenth Parliament of Ontario.

Reference will be made to important legislation that has been carried out during the past year.

Among the events of interest that will likely be referred to are the coming of the Duke of Connaught to Canada, the coronation of King George V. and Queen Mary, at which the province was represented by the Lieutenant-Governor, the Prime Minister and the Minister of Agriculture.

Comment will be made on the prosperity of the province generally, and especially with regard to agricultural development. Among other subjects mentioned will be the completion of the Hydro-Electric scheme, the progress made with the new Central Prison farm at Guelph, and the success of the board of parole. The Grand Trunk Railway's running rights over the T. & N. O. will also be referred to.

Progress in mining development and in agricultural instruction will be alluded to, as well as the Government's policy for the settlement of New Ontario.

The number of important bills emanating from the statute revision commission and the various Governmental Departments will be touched on.

Mention will also be made of the advantage that will come to Ontario through the co-operation of the Federal Department of Agriculture with the Provincial Government.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Ernest Brunell, who stole $12,000 from a C.N.R. express car at Regina on Nov. 30, was sentenced to four years.

Hon. G. E. Foster proposes to substitute "Canada" for "Manitoba" as the name applied to wheat grown in the west.

The King and Queen and royal family attended a thanksgiving service in St. Paul's yesterday on their safe return from India.

Hon. Adam Beck, in a conference at Ottawa, urged the establishment of local sanitariums in Ontario to cope with tuberculosis.

The Galt Council will renew the franchise of the Galt, Preston and Hespeler Railway for a consideration of $640 per annum.

Gen. Leonidas Plaza, leader of the Government troops in Ecuador, has pacified the coast provinces of Manabi and Esmeraldas.

A committee from the American Falls will go to Albany to ask the Legislature to appropriate a quarter million dollars for the hundred years' peace celebration in 1915.

Sacred vessels of solid golds and rich ornaments valued at $10,000 were destroyed when the Roman Catholic Church at Iberville was destroyed yesterday. The big church was valued at about $75,000.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai carries the edict in his pocket naming him as high commissioner, with absolute powers, and making him a virtual dictator, says a Pekin despatch to The Daily Telegraph.

Brantford will investigate the local gas company on account of the shortage of gas which is being generally alleged throughout the city. An alderman yesterday charged that there was less gas and greater charges than usual.

Thirty-three indictments, most of them said to be against labor union officials, were returned by the federal grand jury yesterday afternoon as a result of the Government's investigation of the dynamite conspiracy at Indianapolis.

The funeral took place at Barrie yesterday of Miss Louise D. Lee, Barrie's oldest and most widely known school teacher. She had the unique record of having taught the same form in the central school for forty years, and for two years previous in a private school.

Can't Oversee Employes.

Washington, Feb. 7.—A bill to make it illegal for employers of labor, during Presidential elections, to threaten employes with a shut down of factories or reduction of wages should certain candidates or parties be successful, was introduced yesterday by Representative Pepper, Democrat, of Iowa. A fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for not less than one year are provided as penalties in the bill.

Sir William at Halifax.

Halifax, Feb. 7.—Sir William Mackenzie and D. B. Hanna were in Halifax yesterday. They arrived on Monday night, accompanied by A. Laird, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Sir William was here in connection with the interests of his railways and mines in this province and was in conference all day with the chiefs of those departments and his solicitors. Sir William, Mr. Hanna and Mr. Laird left this morning for Montreal on their private car, attached to the Intercolonial Express.

Youths Under Arrest.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—George Preuss and A. Cooper were arrested here last night charged with the shooting affray which took place here on the 29th, when Photographer Yost was shot through the breast when he attempted to hold at bay a would-be burglar. The young men are 16 and 17 years of age respectively and will have to face two charges when they appear in police court — that of burglarising Wolf-Hards' hardware store on Jan. 14 and shooting Yost on the 29th.

Some of the stolen property has been recovered.

May Prohibit Aerial War.

Brussels, Feb. 7.—The interparliamentary peace council, summoned here on Feb. 10, will have an important program for consideration. This includes, among other questions, the proposal of Count Albert Apponyi, the former Hungarian Minister of Worship, relative to the ratification of The Hague conventions by the Parliaments, the Russian proposal relative to the organization of procedure for mediation, and reports on the limitation of expenditure for armaments and the prohibition of aerial warfare.

Warning to U. S. Steel.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Judge Gray, in the United States Court of the Third Circuit, has issued an injunction restraining the defendant's in the Government's anti-trust suit against the U. S. Steel Corporation, from destroying books and papers desired by the Government.

The injunction was issued on a petition of the Department of Justice, which alleges that several thousand papers and documents, which were used in the Government's criminal prosecution of the "wire pool" last fall, have been destroyed.

THIRTY YEARS OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA CURED

"Ever since I was a little girl, thirty years ago, I had suffered tortures from eczema in one of its worst forms. The disease runs in my family, and mine was of a scaly and most disfiguring kind. The eczema formed in round rings, and then spread all over my face and limbs. I have been unable to get relief from hand to foot. I was born in Leamington, which is famous for its sulphur baths and mineral waters, and one would think that after taking the treatment there for so long, or at least while the disease would keep away, I may have been cured, but it was not. I attended the —— Hospital for years and years, so you will see I gave it a fair trial. Everyone in the town knew of my case. My face was covered very badly. A doctor said one time I should never get rid of it. I spent pounds in doctors' bills, and I attended several hospitals but nothing did any good.

"About six months ago I saw an article in one of the papers about Cuticura Remedies. I took the advice, and commenced to use the Cuticura things. To my astonishment an improvement set in after the first application. I used the Cuticura Soap, and my hair, which had been a complete mass of scales and scurf, began to look in splendid condition. I then bought a box of Cuticura Ointment, and this cleared my skin wonderfully. In a few weeks' time all traces of the scaly eruptions had completely disappeared. Now my skin is clear and healthy, and thanks to the Cuticura Remedies I am completely cured of eczema. All my neighbours were astounded. The Cuticura Remedies are worth their weight in gold, and one tablet of Cuticura Soap goes further than four cakes of ordinary soap. It has brought happiness into my home." (Signed) Mrs. Taylor, 17, Francis Road, The Cottenham, King's Norton, Birmingham, England, July 24, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, but those who wish to try them without charge may do so by sending to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 137 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. skin book.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"No; don't answer on the spur of the moment; take time to consider, to inspect the advantages accruing from such a position. You are ambitious, you have your eyes on a Ministerial secretaryship, but my influence can carry you considerably beyond that. I have found out who supplied the 'Times' with those half-dozen articles which caused that furore; consequently, my son-in-law and the man who wrote them is competent to fill any post the country will be willing and anxious to offer him. I wish to be quite plain, straight, and honest with you. I had hoped this mania of Judith's would wear itself out in time. A while back I thought she intended to content herself with Pelham, but the unfortunate relapse, this recrudescence of the malady, has swept her off her balance. Still, given what she desires, I believe the child will be as mentally healthy as you or I, and Judith really is a nice, pretty, lovable girl. This interview is somewhat humiliating to me, and goes against the grain, Farley, but I promised Judith I would make this concession; I promised I would do my utmost to induce you to propose to her. It came to pass like this: I carelessly left your letter about, I don't know where, but Judith found it and hit upon a bold questionable stroke. Not knowing of your sudden return, she went yesterday to the Pendennis,' ostensibly to compromise both herself and you. She left a note saying what she had done, and that she was sure you would save her good name. My wife went to town to-day to fetch her, with the news you were here, and a message from me that if she returned I would do all in my power to bring you two together. Will you look at the proposal all round and tell me if you can meet my wishes?"

"But they are not your wishes, nor are they mine. I am sorry, sir, you should have been harassed, coerced, and driven into making me this generous offer; I feel honoured, sir, I ——"

"You are wrong, Farley; it's my wish as well as Judith's. I like you, in fact, the feeling goes beyond mere liking, and I should be exceedingly proud of you, I am sure. My wife feels as if you were an elder boy—she liked you from the first—and as a family we—we would each do our part to make you——"

Sir Thomas blew his nose, and looked up into Paul's flushed face.

"You have been, so good to me, sir," he said earnestly. "I honour, I esteem, I respect you beyond measure. I am so grateful for all yours and Lady Hargrave's kindness that I would sacrifice a great deal to set your mind at rest, but I cannot marry Miss Hargrave, I——"

"I would make it worth your while, Farley."

"I am sure you would; you are the best husband, father, and master that ever breathed, and it hurts me acutely to hear you ask for what I know I cannot give."

Sir Thomas covered his face with his shaking hands. He appeared old and crushed, feeble and crestfallen.

"This is my last hedge," he said, pathetically; "I've taken it and come dead against a high blank wall. God help us all if Judith fulfils her ghastly threat."

"Don't take it so much to heart, sir; don't let the trouble get a hold on you; don't let it make an old man of you," Paul implored, watching the tears ooze between Sir Thomas's fingers. "Things won't be as bad as you think; we shall be able to find some way of escape."

"Can't you do it, Farley? My dear boy, you shall make your own terms."

"I have none to make and if I had I should leave them in your hands, knowing in any case you would do what was just and right."

"You won't marry her, Farley?"

"Sir, I would serve you on my knees with my last breath; but I cannot, indeed, I cannot do what you ask. But there is one thing I can do—I can leave if you think it wise and wish it."

"I think it would be wise, but I don't wish it," he said, rising and walking up and down. "I ought to send you away; I ought to have done it long ago, because I am less able to do without you now than I was then. I must think it over, I——"

"Mr. Fleming is anxious for me to return to town. I came back to-night to ask permission. Suppose I stay away until you have had time to think it over, and have decided whether to have me back again."

"Perhaps that will be best; I am quite at a loss; I don't feel able to judge; there is so much for and against."

"Meanwhile, don't worry yourself with a single figure, sir; I can attend to things just the same. It will only make a difference of a few hours' delay, and if you want to see me, a wire to say you are coming will prevent my being out of the way."

"Thank you, Farley," he said, looking at him regretfully, and holding out his hand. "I wish I knew of some inducement."

"The very fact of knowing you wished it would be sufficient inducement if the thing were practicable or possible," he returned, gripping his hand. "I wish I had a quarter of the respect and affection for your daughter that I have for you, sir."

They both smiled, looked at one another with moist eyes, and turned away.

Paul packed his valise in the morning and went to London by the first up train after breakfast. Leaning back in a second-class carriage, a cigarette in his mouth, and scanning the theatrical announcements in the "Morning Post," he resolved to take Hunter's advice and endeavour to stifle this additional trouble under a fund of pleasurable excitement. Accordingly he decided to visit the Haymarket and see Madame Bernhardt in "La Tosca" the next night.

CHAPTER XXIV.
LA TOSCA.

Rowena Wycherly, deliriously happy lay smiling in a velvet fauteuil; her voluptuous beauty enhanced by the negligence of a tea-gown, which was in itself a charm.

At her desire they occupied a private room at the Cecil, and Rowena was judiciously employing the twilight by rolling cigarettes for Hare, who lounged opposite to her, his satin-slippered feet on the rail of the fender. She was radiant with health and beauty, with lambent life and laughter, her heart tingling with keenest thrills of love and anticipated pleasure. A delicious perfume exuded with her every movement; it floated away on the warm atmosphere, carrying an ethereal essence of her living, breathing beauty to the soul of the quiet man watching her.

With the advent of the waiter, the afternoon tea, and the glare of the electric light, she rose, pushed her chair back, and shook out the folds of her silken skirts.

"Tea, darling?" she asked, caressingly, casting a handful of cigarettes into his lap as the door closed.

Hare stood up, threw the remainder of his cigar into the fire and stretched himself lazily.

"I never saw you smoke a cigar, Paul, until yesterday—or the day before was it, or the day before that—I mean the day we were married, dear?"

"It was the day before that, Rowena. It is difficult to know what has become of this week; we have let the days and hours race ahead or lag behind just as they pleased; we have taken no account of time; we have just breathed, lived and loved."

"Do you care for a cup, Paul?" she asked, laying a hand on his and poising the teapot in midair with the other.

"Not much," he answered smiling; "but I'll have some if you want me to be sociable."

She set the teapot down, sprang up and moved the table into the centre of the room.

"You don' care for it, dearest, and I am not going to make a martyr of you. I would rather have one midget of a kiss from you than all the tea and dainties in Christendom."

She pushed him back into his seat, dropped gracefully at his feet, curled her arms round his knees, and turned her wondrous face to him.

"How I love you!" she whispered; "how I love you! Paul—sometimes I can't breathe; I feel stifled, suffocated, with the mountain of love on my heart."

He bent his head, put his lips to hers, and kept them there in one long-drawn-out soulful kiss.

"You have changed," she said, with subtle perception, "and I know the day, the hour, the moment, the change came."

"Tell me, you witch," he said, stroking her gleaming hair.

"'Twas the night you came from town, the night you brought the ring; the moon shone full in your face and I saw——"

"Well?" with a tender pleasure, "what did you see, sweet?"

"I don't know—it was not love; it was something that changed the expression of your cold inscrutable eyes. I saw them glitter as if there was a flame at the back which grew stronger and brighter and fiercer each moment."

He laughed softly, drew her closer, and rested his head on hers.

"It was love, Rowena, love that had lain dormant in its rudimentary embryo state for weeks, and you, you sweet fay, you witnessed its heavenly birth!"

"I believe it," she cried, passionately, clinging to him with all her strength; "I do, I will, I must believe it; you wouldn't deceive me, Paul?"

"My darling! In our close intimate relationship could I deceive you? You have surely divined the feeling I have for you? You must feel it in my touch, see it in my eyes, and hear it in my voice; say, dear heart, that you know it's there."

"Yes, I know it; I know it now; it's strange, it seems miraculous, but it is certainly there. Paul—dearest, the knowledge, the happiness, the joy, I think, will kill me!"

She gave a sighing sob, as if fatigued by the vehemence of her emotion. He held her in his arms and soothed her with a patient gentleness, with tender epithets and fond endearments. At length he charmed away the oppression, the intolerable sense of a bliss that was half fear. She grew calm, soon smiling and gay, and gradually soared up into her normal, bold, daring brilliancy.

"Shall we dine here or abroad?" he asked, lighting one of the cigarettes she had rolled.

"Here, unless you prefer a change of cuisine?"

"I? No, I am satisfied—quite—and afterwards, Rowena, where shall we go?"

"Look in the paper, darling," she said, coaxingly, "and pick out something nice. We have been to the theatre three nights running, so perchance we have exhausted the best the tip-top pieces."

"I don't think so," he said, drawing a shapely forefinger down the theatrical column. "Why, sweetheart, you said you must see Sarah Bernhardt—here we are—La Tosca!"

She clapped her hands in the old familiar childish way.

"Let us have a box; just we two; a dear, sweet little gilded box quite near the stage. I want to see the divine Sarah close, and I want to be alone with you. Telephone, dear; go down and telephone for the nearest box to the stage."

He laughed, threw the paper down, went outside, and stepped into the elevator, while Rowena, in her ecstatic delight, raised her trailing skirts and revolved around the room, pirouetting gracefully before the pier-glass at the end of the room.

"What shall I wear?" she asked, waltzing up to him on his return; "shall I put on the frock that I wore at the Masked Ball?"

"Yes," he said, catching her to him, "that was exquisite. I can't recall its exact shade or style, but the ensemble was exceedingly artistic; it suited you to perfection."

They dined table d'hote, and afterwards a private brougham conveyed them to the theatre. Rowena was wonderful in a confection by M. Felix, consisting of a vapoury lace over peach blossom silk, and Hare, drawing the ermine cloak higher upon her bare shoulders, marvelled at the vital glow which seemed to radiate from every part of her velvet skin.

She caught his arm as they alighted and ascended to the vestibule. The action was impulsive, and her cloak dropped to the ground. Hare stooped to recover the garment. He replaced it, smiled, and passed on, but the trifling mishap attracted the attention of the waiting crowd, and all eyes followed Rowena's swaying form.

"Ach! Himmel!" exclaimed a tall Jewish-looking cosmopolitan, one of a gesticulating knot of well-dressed habitues. "Ciel! Vot a grand conception! Vot a magnificent woman!"

Hare heard it, and looked jealously down on the corn-coloured head.

"It's yours," she said, lifting her face in consonance with his disturbing start, "the beauty, the magnificence, the conception, whatever there is to admire and to enjoy in me is all yours, Paul—on this planet and through all the divers phases of our dual existences."

He pressed the arm clinging to his, murmured something about his queen of beauty, and then gallantly handed her into the compact box next the stage, and looked around upon the dense massed throng.

She bent forward and gazed upon the sea of faces beneath her, and presently touched Hare's knee with her fan. He had drawn himself within the shadow of the curtain. His heart palpitated, he felt strange and weak. The woman's beauty was overwhelming, it affected his senses like the faint but powerful fragrance of hothouse blooms, and the weird, sobbing music from the orchestra appealed too forcefully, and helped to bewilder him.

"You look pale," she said, forgetful of the reason she desired his attention. "What is the matter with you?"

"Indigestion," he answered, smiling. "I ate my dinner too quickly."

"I am sorry; you won't enjoy the play. Would a cigarette between the acts help it, darling?"

"Possibly; I'll try it later—look! the curtain is up, sweet."

She bent forward, engrossed. Hare became unmindful of his indisposition, and when, later, the curtain dropped, made no attempt to withdraw and test the proposed remedy. Instead, he leaned back in his seat, his hand in Rowena's lap, discussing and challenging the merits and demerits of the remarkable scene.

The night wore on, the gifted actress was at her best. Her lover was being tortured in an inner chamber; she, barred outside, mad with grief, impotent rage, and vibrating with the pain wrung from the racked man, smote with maniacal frenzy upon the panels of the door. The cries, the prayers, the entreaties, the terrible despairing, agonising sobs, echoed and re-echoed through Rowena's head and round the region of her heart. She turned once to look for Hare's hand, and, grasping it, refastened her great, fearless eyes upon the crushed kneeling woman.

With the deafening plaudits the curtain dropped, the tension snapped, the strain was over. She lay back quivering, listening to the storm of applause, her fan before her face, her eyes closed.

"Shall I get you some wine, dearest?" Hare asked, stroking her inert hand.

"Wine? No; look! I am myself again! Oh, Paul—" she put her hand to her heart, "it was a cruel poignant scene. I felt, love, as if the pain were yours."

"He laughed lightly, pinched her ear, and patted her shoulder; then he stooped over her tenderly, excused himself, and left the box to procure a breath of purer air. He was not absent long; a few minutes sufficed to cool himself and drain a tiny glass of liqueur; indeed, he was back before she missed him; before she knew of her return.

Rowena was leaning forward, her arms on the edge of the box, looking down on the panorama of moving figures in the stalls below. He took his seat beside her, and strove to gain her attention, and failing, he laid a gentle admonishing hand on her arm, and spoke to her. There was no response; she was mute, deaf, blind, dead to everything save the wild doubt, the horrible amazement, the repulsive riddle that held her spellbound. With suspended breath Hare's eyes travelled in the wake of her frozen stare, and there, at the back of the stalls, in the middle of the front row of the pit, the light full on his dark, refined face, was Paul Farley. He was standing for a change of posture to ease his cramped limbs, unconscious of ought else save boredom, his face upturned, his glasses glittering, his great melancholy eyes roving round the house in a casual unseeing manner.

Hare could have struck him dead as he stood there, pale and artistically handsome; he could have bitten his own heart in two in the insensate rage that consumed him. The meeting was ill-timed, preposterous, stupefying; he had meant to have told her himself later on when he had won his way with her past all redemption. It seemed an eternity before she could tear her eyes from that slim, prominent figure to rest them on his face with a wide, steady stare.

They travelled backwards and forwards, deliberately and evenly, from the man's scholarly visage in the pit to his own mock likeness, as if she would read his very soul. She was carefully comparing them while he sat still, composed, a veritable Giant Despair under her scrutiny, the hot tide of life seething and surging through his swollen veins.

A joyous burst of music came from the orchestra, played with wild vivacity. He started in nervous affright, shivered with a moral as well as a physical chill, and looked anxiously at Rowena. She was lying back in her fauteuil grasping her jewelled fan, her beautiful face white and stricken. Hare saw she had solved the riddle and lay writhing, half swooning, with horror. He touched her gently, and she opened her eyes. He raised his forefinger and laid it warningly on his lips.

Kidney Pains in the Back

Could Not Stand or Even Turn in Bed —Legs Greatly Swollen

All Doctor's Medicine Failed—Cure Effected by Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Again this great medicine has triumphed over kidney disease of a severe type. From a bed of suffering and helplessness Mrs. Walsh was restored to health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Kidney pains in the back tortured her. Dropsical swellings had set in and she had no reasons to hope for cure since the doctor's medicine failed to even relieve her. Read what the husband says about this remarkable cure.

Mr. Thos. D. Walsh, Pictou, N.S., writes: "Two years ago my wife took to her bed after suffering for a long time from kidney pains in the back. She was not able to stand on her feet or even turn herself in bed. The doctor's medicine was no benefit whatever, that we could see. Sometimes her legs would swell considerably. Reading about a woman in similar condition being cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, we purchased two boxes, and when these were used she was able to sit up. With three more boxes she was restored to health and doing her own housework.

"As for myself I also found these pills all that is claimed for them. I give this statement in order that others may obtain the same ease from suffering as that experienced by my wife and myself."

One pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Here is a New Kind of COFFEE

Never sold in Bulk

And We Give You A Pot To Make It In—Free

To get to the heart of the coffee question, you must do as we did—get to the heart of the coffee berry. The coffee berry is protected by Nature from the insect world, by a tough inner shell or coat. This shell contains tannin and other bitter substances.

It is this shell, roasted and ground up with ordinary coffee, that causes indigestion, headaches and other ill-effects so common with coffee drinkers.

Yet there is no other beverage in the world so thoroughly wholesome healthful and delicious as good Coffee when properly made.

Never sold in Bulk

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

is this good, wholesome, delicious coffee. It contains no chicory and by our special process of grinding, every particle of the bitter tannin-bearing shell is removed. We take out all the injurious parts. We leave the meat—the heart—the flavor—the aromatic essences that mean so much to coffee-lovers.

The Percolator, or French Drip Process, is the only way to make really good coffee. We have secured sole rights at Ingersoll for a practical, economical, reliable French Drip Coffee Pot.

We will give it to you free so that you can try Dalton's French Drip Coffee as it should be made. Read our offer. We have put up Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two Blends

This is the Coffee Pot we are giving away with 1 tin of Coffee at 50c. per tin.

—MILD and STRONG. You can't tell which one you will like best until you try both. Dalton's French Drip Coffee is better and costs less than any other if made in Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot. That is why we make this special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.50) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin EACH of Mild and Strong Blend at 50c. per tin. You buy two tins of our Coffee—one of each blend—to give it a fair trial and we give you the means of testing it FREE, satisfied that you will use nothing but Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

Had Boils On Neck and Arms.

Had Them Lanced But, Got No Relief Until He Used Burdock Blood Bitters.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still, at the same time are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and for you to get rid of them it is absolutely necessary to put the blood into good condition. For this purpose there is no remedy that can compare with Burdock Blood Bitters. This preparation has been on the market for about 35 years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other for the making of pure, rich, red blood. Mr. H. J. Batten, Stratford, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled for several weeks with boils on my neck and arms. I had them lanced by the doctor, but as soon as one went others came. I tried all kinds of so called remedies, but could get no relief till I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I am pleased to say I am now quite free from those most painful things, and feel much better in every respect.

"My boy, of nine years, had a rash come over his back and legs, so we gave him a few doses and now he is all right again."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FIVE DOCTORS GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Said she Would Die of Kidney Trouble

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HER

MOUNTAIN, Ont., Dec. 14th, 1910.

"For six years, I suffered from Bright's Kidney Disease. My legs and other parts of my body were fearfully swollen, and the pain was awful. My urine thought sometimes I was dead, and would faint from the agony. Five different doctors attended me, and all said it was kidney trouble and gave me no hope of getting well. A kind neighbor told me to try "Fruit-a-tives" and mentioned the case of Mrs. Renwick, who was cured by them.

I took "Fruit-a-tives"—and in a short time, I began to feel better, the swelling went down, the pain was easier, and then "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cured me. All my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle, and I am unable to praise "Fruit-a-tives" enough."

"The Irony Of The Inevitable"

A Short Story.

Mitchell went up the stairs two steps at a time. The senator had sent word he would see him at once, and that meant that he was not forgotten.

"How are you, Sam?" said Hillier, cordially.

"First rate, senator. How are you?"

"Fine. Take a chair." He offered the editor a cigar. "Well, Sam, it has been a long time since I saw you. Wish we had a week to talk over old times, but from the crowd you saw in the hotel lobby you can guess this is one of my busy days. I suppose you are up to see about that post-office?"

"Yes," replied the editor.

"The other fellow is pretty strongly endorsed." The senator chewed his cigar thoughtfully.

"I know it," admitted Mitchell, "but they wont go against you."

Hillier smiled. "Taking me for granted, are you Sam?" The editor started to explain. "That's all right," broke in the senator. "How is your conduct now, Sam?" he asked with a reminiscent twinkle in his eye.

"I'm not yet a model for the fourth reader class, I reckon, but guess I average up pretty well."

"Running any whiskey ads.?" The senator smiled, but looked scrutinizingly at the editor.

"No, I've cut them out entirely. Have not touched a drop in five years."

"Good. Can you get a pretty strong endorsement?"

"Yes," said the editor. "I think I can. All my creditors will endorse me, and that will make a pretty respectable petition." He laughed. The senator deliberated a few minutes.

"Well, I'll tell you, Sam, it is a bit irregular as the party is managed now; but you get up the best local showing you can, and I will see that you go through."

"That is all right," he said, as the editor started to thank him. "This is one of your debts that was paid in advance. Rest easy, you will be postmaster before you are much balder than you are now."

When Mitchell returned to Monroe the next afternoon, his office force was surprised at his high spirits; and when his spirits were still bubbling after reading the mail they were amazed. The editor's mail invariably checked any incipient tendency toward light-heartedness, but to-day he read the duns with a smile, and filed them away with a chuckle.

"Won't they be surprised?" he thought, "when they begin to pay up."

He had been paying for five years, but had never "paid up." He was always six months behind; and some of his best talent was used in writing to creditors who always swore they could close him out in thirty or sixty days.

The plant was more than half paid for, but the last year had been a hard one on the Banner, and it was trailing financially a little worse than usual. But trouble was at an end—nearly. Another month and he would be drawing eighteen hundred dollars a year—and could edit the Banner too. He smiled to think of the surprise it would be to the town. No one knew of his acquaintance with the senator. His visit was a secret. His name had never been even mentioned in connection with the office.

Mitchell filled the copy hook with clippings. He could not settle his mind to write. Then he went walking. It was a good town, after all, and a pretty town. He was surprised to remember there had been times when he hated it. There, near the corner of Vine street, was a lot, a very pretty lot. There would be a fine place to build, and it could be bought, reasonably, too. After his petition was circulated, the fellows about town joked him a great deal about his prospects. None of them took his application seriously. It was understood that Steelsmith, the present postmaster, was already endorsed for reappointment. He had been gathering recommendations from committee men and politicians for over a year.

Monday afternoon Mrs. Steelsmith called Mitchell over the 'phone, and asked if he would come up to her house for a few minutes. He went, much surprised. He never was very friendly with the postmaster and his family, and had never been inside their house. It was a new house, and one of the best in town. The little boy and girl were playing in the yard as he entered. He remembered having recently seen Mrs. Steelsmith, happy and contented, holding the baby as he passed the veranda. Now, however, he noticed Mrs. Steelsmith was changed. She had always seemed a happy woman, a little subdued, but unusually joyous. But to-day there was something in her face and movements elusively pathetic. She did not speak for a minute after they were seated. Her face, half turned away, was outlined against the window. Every muscle was tense.

"Mr. Mitchell," she said, "I wanted to tell you something, but I don't know how to begin." She locked her hands in her lap. "I understand you have applied for the postoffice."

"Yes," admitted the editor. "But everybody seems to think it is a joke."

"I know they do. Mr. Steelsmith does. He thinks you haven't any show at all." She put her hand up to the side of her face. It trembled a little. "But you will be appointed," she added, looking squarely into his face. He made no denial or assent, but waited. Her eyes looked down at her hands in her lap, and she picked a piece of lint on her dress. "When we were married," she said, "Mr. Steelsmith was in business. Three years after came the panic. He failed"—her face was turned—"and took to drink." The house was very still. Somewhere a little clock ticked feverishly. Her face was turned toward him now. She was pale, and the fine sensitive lines were sharply drawn. In the pause his imagination quickly filled th egap in her life.

"There were five years," she continued with an effort to keep her voice steady, "then an old friend of ours was in congress, promised to get him a postoffice if he would quit. He did and we came here. We have paid off the old debts, and have our home nearly paid for. He hasn't touched a drop, and he is never bothered with it, unless something worries him, you know."

"Yes, I know," said Mitchell. He waited for her to continue, but she was through. Outside the children were laughing and shouting at their play. "Well, I guess the devil is crying for more reprint," the editor said, cheerfully, taking up his hat. "I must go."

"Good-bye, Mrs. Steelsmith." He held out his hand. "I guess your husband's chances are better than you think." Her eyes met his searchingly for a minute, as she took his hand. His imagination filled another gap. He plucked a nasturtium from the luxuriant bed by the walk, and stuck it jauntily in his buttonhole, and passed out of the gate, whistling. The rest of the afternoon his spirits were so gay the devil ventured to ask him if a rich uncle had died in India. After supper the editor left his boarding house and went down to his office. He wrote a note addressed to the bank that held the principal mortgage on the paper. It was brief. "The Banner has suspended. Take charge at once." At the telegraph office he handed the operator a message addressed to Senator Hillier. "Withdrawn in favour of Steelsmith.—Mitchell."

It was dusk; the air was fine. He strolled down the street. In front of a pair of swinging doors he paused. There was a laugh inside, and the clink of glasses. His hand went into his pocket and brought up the contents, two dollars and thirty-five cents. It was enough. The door swung back and he walked in.

Remarkable Sea Venture

One of the most remarkable sea ventures of modern times is recorded of the United States Navy torpedo-boat destroyer Warrington, which had forty feet of her stern cut away in collision with a schooner, in a storm off Cape Hatteras, and yet kept afloat and was enabled to summon assistance by wireless. The accident to the Warrington took place in a raging gale in the darkness of night, during Christmas week. Eight petty officers asleep in the wrecked part of the ship made a miraculous escape, and none were seriously injured.

The North Atlantic fleet of the United States navy had been ordered to Guantanamo station, in the Island of Cuba, just previous to Christmas. Shortly after putting to sea, a furious gale sprang up, with the suddenness and fury that characterizes Gulf Stream weather, and during the night the wind rose to hurricane violence—seventy miles an hour. For forty-eight hours the wind blew with greater or less violence, and so heavy were the seas that some of the larger cruisers of the fleet were disabled, and obliged to run for home. Even the great Dreadnought Delaware, with her lofty freeboard of twenty-six feet, was boarded by the heavy seas, that crushed in her boats, tore them from their fastenings and swept them overboard.

In such weather the lighter destroyers of only some 1,000 tons displacement, were at the mercy of the elements, and wireless messages began to flutter in to the admiral's flagship telling of their struggles with the tempest. The admiral gave orders that each was to make for the nearest harbour. Some found a refuge in Bermuda, some at Norfolk, Va., and one or two were able to weather the gale and got through safely to Guantanamo.

The Warrington was making her way north, in line ahead, with four other destroyers following. It was between moons, the sky was overcast, and the night very dark. The wind was strong, and heavy seas were running. Suddenly out of the darkness, driving before the gale, with her reefed lower sails "wing and wing," and a smother of foam at her bows, came a large coasting schooner. Her course intersected that of the destroyers at an angle of about 50 degrees. The watch forward, if the schooner had any, must have been asleep, or coiled up under the weather bulwarks, for he failed to see the many lights of the far strung line of destroyers; and the sight of them may have been shut off from the man at the wheel by the foresail. Whatever the conditions, the schooner came driving right through the line of destroyers, and struck the Warrington just abaft of her torpedo tubes, and just ahead of her after watertight bulkhead. Cleanly, as though it were a keen knife of steel, the schooner's stem cut through the destroyer, completely severing forty feet of her stern from the body, stripping the hull plating, with its framing, clear of the shafting, and leaving the shaft protruding aft of the gaping wound in the ship like long trailing tentacles.

Asleep in bunks within the compartment into which the schooner thus rudely intruded, were eight petty officers, of whom four were knocked insensible, though not seriously injured. They were dragged to safety by the remaining four, who escaped uninjured. Fortunately, in spite of the heavy sea that was running, the destroyer's watertight bulkhead held, and she was kept afloat.

But here was a pretty mess! A frail destroyer, disabled in heavy weather off Cape Hatteras, 150 miles from the nearest drydock, with forty feet of her stern gone and another fifty feet open to the sea!

A wireless call was sent out, and brought the revenue cutter Onondaga to the rescue. Lines were got aboard, and after a long tow of 48 hours, the Warrington was safely docked at the navy yard.

The torn plates will be removed, and a new stern built on; new shafting will replace the curiously twisted shafting, the result of the collision; and in a few weeks the Warrington will be back in the service, staunch as ever, in spite of her rough dismemberment.

NOT ONE WOMAN IN TWENTY HAS A STRONG BACK.

THE KIDNEYS ARE TO BLAME NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The poisons that ought to be carried off are sent back into the blood, taking with them a multitude of aches and pains. There is no use of expecting relief until the kidneys are restored to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills are the quickest and most reliable remedy. Mrs. Ed. Baxter, Upham, N.B., writes:—"I take a good deal of pleasure in telling you what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. I was troubled with my kidneys for a number of years and my back was so lame I could not sweep the floor. A friend of mine advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and after using three boxes I am as well as ever. I highly recommend them to anyone suffering from lame back or kidney trouble."

H. RIDER HAGGARD'S NEW BOOK

146 PARIE 147 RIDER HAGGARD

—The title of a book destined to be one of the best sellers for 1912.

The author's name—H. Rider Haggard—assures wide popularity for any story he may write, and competent critics believe "Marie" to be the notable writer's best production.

"Marie" is quaintly or diffidently sub-titled "An episode in the life of the late Allan Quatermain"—but that hardly does justice to the book.

The story is practically a complete and wonderfully fascinating history of Allan Quatermain's early life—a story that also reveals many incidents in the strenuous life of South African settlers more than half a century ago.

The book shows Africa's big mystical philosopher at his best.

Dickens' Birthplace

WHEN the Thackeray centenary was celebrated, less than a year ago, literary men everywhere avowed their admiration for the author of "Vanity Fair," but the people remained apathetic. Now, as the Dickens celebration approaches, we see the contrary spectacle—the people nearly everywhere are preparing to observe the hundredth anniversary of his birth in various ways; new editions and new Dickens books are appearing in notable number; and many signs indicate that the vogue of Dickens, far from waning as literary snobs have predicted, is as widespread and potent as ever.

No wonder, for Dickens is the Homer of the mob, the Burns of prose, to whom "a man's a man for a' that." There is no question that, like the Lord, he must have loved the common people, for he created so many of them. And they loved him in turn. In Belfast, after a reading, a great part of his audience followed him through the street, and one enthusiastic Hibernian seized him by the hand. "Do me the honor," said he, "to shake hands, Misther Dickens, and God bless you, sir; not ounly for the light you've been to me this night, but for the light you've been to me house, sir (and God bless your face!), this many a year."

The fertility of Dickens as a creative artist may be best realized by remembering that no less than 1899 characters appear in the novels. Shakespeare created less than a thousand. Perhaps only Balzac surpasses Dickens in this respect, for in the "Human Comedy" over two thousand persons figure. But none has surpassed Dickens in the individuality and interest of his characters. They live and move and have their being like real men and women. We love them or hate them as we do people that we know. While it has become fashionable for critics to say that the characters of Dickens are not characters, but caricatures, the people who read him and see much of humanity know better. "Look, mamma," cried a little girl in a street car recently, huddling close to her mother, "there's Daniel Quilp." A United States judge not long ago assured the writer that he had met Sampson Brass redivivus a number of times.

Laugh and Cry With Them.

We laugh and we cry with the inhabitants of Dickens Land. No one knows how many subscription papers contain the names of the Cheeryble brothers, how many children get kind words that are meant for Little Nell, how many people are willin' because Barkis was, how many hard hearts have been converted along with Scrooge's, how many have come out strong in adversity because Mark Tapley did.

What is Pickwick but a new Don Quixote, nourished upon English roast beef? What is the junior Weller but a new Sancho Panza, filled with a knowledge of London that is "extensive and peculiar?" What is Micawber but a new Hamlet, lost in the fogs of London business? What is poor Nancy Sikes but Desdemona, dragged through the mire of the thieves' kitchen?

We have all heard the Rev. Mr. Chadband preach his intolerable sermons. How often do we meet Mr. Thomas Gradgrind and hear him praise the virtues of "hard facts." Mr. John Podsnap is still on hand protesting against "anything that would bring a blush to the cheek of a young person."

One characteristic of these Dickens characters is that they carry an aroma with them that reveals them almost at once for what they are. Pecksniff would be known as a sanctimonious hypocrite by people who had never read "Martin Chuzzlewit." Uriah Heep is recognized as a fawning cur at once — there is something sleek, slinking and slimy about his very name.

They form a small army—these men and women and children that are more real than next-door neighbors—an army that will go marching across all the lands where English will ever be spoken, and will help to conquer many countries now unsubdued by that world-conquering tongue. It is an army that wins its battles by the spell of sympathy, and overcomes nations by the might of wisdom and smiles.

Dickens' Humble Origin.

Dickens understood the common people so well and loved them so warmly because he was sprung from them. "David Copperfield" is known to be largely autobiographical, and the original of the impecunious and unpractical Wilkins Micawber was the novelist's own father. Perhaps his early trials must be accounted for by the fact that he was born on a Friday. It was the 7th of February, 1812; the scene of his mundane debut was near the city of Portsmouth, and the full name with which his parents endowed him was Charles John Huffam Dickens.

No school except that of experience, no university but that of life can claim credit for his genius. "He may be said to have educated himself," in the words of Micawber. Fortunately his father had a fair library of well-selected works. Among the books read by the boy were "The Arabian Nights," "Don Quixote," "Gil Blass," the works of Smollett, Fielding and Goldsmith, the essays in "The Spectator" and "The Tatler." Fed upon such food, his imagination expanded into rich sympathy, and an innate power of observation completed his equipment as a great artist. He might have become a vagabond and a derelict of society; but somehow he was rescued from the maelstrom of destiny, and drifted from an attorney's office to the desk of a shorthand reporter, and from that into the purlieus of Grub Street, to wind up in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey, among the remnants of royalty and genius.

Dickens' earliest literary effort was a tragedy—"The Sultan of India"—written during his intermittent school days. "The Dinner at Poplar Walk," printed in "The Monthly Magazine" in 1833, was the immediate precursor of the "Sketches by Boz," which appeared in the same publication, and were collected in book form in 1836. How he came to adopt the pseudonym of Boz is a story that has been often told—a younger brother was nicknamed Moses, after a character in the "Vicar of Wakefield;" pronounced through the nose this became "Bozes," which was shortened to Boz.

Pickwick Makes a Hit.

It was the publication of "Pickwick" in 1837 that first established the fame of Dickens upon secure ground. London read and laughed, and the author's fortune was made. The publishers at first suggested the Nimrod Club as a title, but Dickens got the name of Pickwick from that of a coach-proprietor at Bath, as he virtually admits in chapter 35. Seymour, the artist, had first sketched Pickwick with a lean and hungry look, like Cassius, but Chapman, the publisher, suggested the portraiture of "a fat old beau," and a friend of his by the name of John Foster is the bodily prototype of the greatest comic figure since Falstaff.

From "Oliver Twist" to "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," Dickens poured forth a series of novels that are today the most popular books in English literature. Perhaps no greater tribute to the genius of their author has ever been penned than that of his disciple and literary follower, Bret Harte — the poem entitled "Dickens in Camp," The roaring campfire with rude humor painted
The ruddy tints of health
On haggard face and form that drooped and fainted,
In the fierce race for wealth;

Till one arose, and from his pack's scant treasure
A hoarded volume drew,
And cards were dropped from hands of listless leisure
To hear the tale anew;

And then, while round them shadows gathered faster,
And as the firelight fell,
He read aloud wherein the book the Master
Had told of "Little Nell."

And so in mountain solitudes—o'ertaken
As by some spell divine—
Their cares dropped from them like the needles shaken
From out the gusty pine.

Thus Bret Harte describes the profound impression made on a camp gathering of rude Western miners by the touching tales of the London novelist, and he closes with the fine tribute:

And on that grave where English oak and holly
And laurel wreaths entwine,
Deem it not all a too presumptuous folly—
This spray of western pine!

Even Walter Bagehot's striking title conferred upon Dickens—"a special correspondent for posterity"—does not exhale a subtler praise than this poem, by an American author who owed his style and his philosophy of life both to Dickens.

Originals of Characters.

Dickens drew most of his characters from life, and drew them so well that they were often identified without any trouble. Sometimes the identification caused trouble, as when Harold Skimpole in "Bleak House" was recognized as Leigh Hunt and the boisterous Boythorn as Walter Savage Landor. The explanation that Dickens had meant no harm, and had merely taken the lighter and more amusing phases of character, without imputing the sinister elements to the originals, did not always placate the people who felt hurt, as Hunt had some right to feel. Many schoolmasters wanted to sue or thrash the author, because they saw themselves in Squeers.

Sam Vale, a popular comedian, was the original of Sam Weller. He used to appear as Simon Spatterdash in a farce called "The Boarding House," in which he got off many of those curt, incongruous comparisons that are now known as Wellerisms. "Come on, as the man said to the tight boot;" "Why, here we're all mustered, as the roast beef said to the Welsh rabbit;" "I'm down on you, as the extinguisher said to the candle"—these were some of Vale's sayings, and plainly show the origin of the delightful Sam.

The Brothers Cheeryble were named Grant in real life. They had come penniless to Lancashire, and in the cotton trade amassed a great fortune, which they dispensed quite as freely as the Cheerybles. It was Nasmyth, the inventor of the steam hammer, who came to Manchester as a young engineer with a capital of less than 100 pounds, and was told by the head of the firm that if he ever wanted for wages on a Saturday night he would find 500 pounds ready on demand, "and no security." This offer was accompanied with a most excruciating wink, and Nasmyth learned later that the older brother had a glass eye, which sometimes got out of place when he smiled and required these facial contortions to get it back.

Caricatures, indeed! Most of the Dickens characters seem overdrawn because true to the models. Little Dorrit died only a year or two ago.

His Methods of Work.

The way in which Dickens worked has been described by his son, Henry F. Dickens. He always wrote with a quill pen. The ink he used was blue. At Gad's Hill he had a table on wheels, to accommodate his peripatetic tastes. He derived inspiration from long walks, ten to fifteen miles sometimes, and midnight rambles through the London streets were frequent. While he wrote "A Christmas Carol" he "laughed and wept again, and excited himself in a most extraordinary manner." While writing "The Chimes" he got up at seven o'clock in the morning, had a cold bath and breakfast, and then "blazed away, resolutely and red hot, until three o'clock or so, when he usually knocked off for the day." When he had finished this tale, he wrote to Forster that he had had "a real good cry."

One of his greatest difficulties was in the final choice of a title. "Bleak House" came near to being called "Tom All-Alone's." He had ten other titles in mind for it. "David Copperfield" was at first to be called "Mag's Diversions." After fixing on "David Copperfield" he changed his mind six times. Among the titles he had in mind for "A Tale of Two Cities" were "One of These Days," "Buried Alive," "The Thread of Gold," and "The Doctor of Beauvais." For "Hard Times" he had fourteen different titles under consideration, debating their suitability with Forster.

These things indicate the extraordinary fertility of his invention, and also his remarkable dramatic genius, for he felt all the pity and joy with which he inspired his readers even more keenly than they. Had he written regularly for the stage, as he sometimes did, he would have been a second Shakespeare. He is certainly the greatest humorist of the English race, though he made but one contribution to "Punch," and that was never published. (Some critics might adduce this as evidence of his genuine comic genius.)

His Histrionic Bent.

It is significant that Dickens' first literary attempt was in dramatic form, and all his life long he was obsessed by the stage. He even made up his face when he gave his readings, and it is recorded that he frequently acted out the scenes of his novels as he wrote them. His son, Charles Dickens the younger, told William Winter an anecdote that occurred at Gad's Hill, the splendid home Dickens bought with his earnings.

"Noisy brawls sometimes occurred in the neighborhood," said young Dickens, "but we did not regard them. One morning I heard a great din, shouts and screams, as of a violent, drunken quarrel. At first I did not heed it, but after awhile, as it steadily continued, I went out to our grove, across the road, where I found my father, alone. 'Have you heard the row?' I asked. 'Did you hear any noise?' he answered. 'Yes,' I replied, 'I thought somebody was being killed. What can have happened? Did you shout?' 'I made the row,' he replied; 'I have been rehearsing the murder scene in "Oliver Twist." It was the wrangle of Bill Sikes and Nancy that you heard; I have just been trying to kill Nancy.' 'Well,' I said, 'I should think you have succeeded, for a more damnable racket was never made.'"

Dickens acted many times in quasi-amateur performances, and as Gabblewig, the garrulous barrister in an adaptation of his own story, "Mr. Nightingale's Diary," he made a special hit. It is strange, in view of all this, that his novels have not had better success in their dramatic form. Only a few have kept the stage. "Tom Pinch," based upon "Martin Chuzzlewit," owed its success to E. S. Willard's delightful acting. "The Cricket on the Hearth" lived as long as dear old Joe Jefferson did. "Oliver Twist" is played occasionally because it gives a woman star a part full of gruesome strength. "A Tale of Two Cities," under the title of "The Only Way," served Martin Harvey and Henry Miller for a few seasons. That almost exhausts the Dickens repertoire.

How He Got Gad's Hill.

It was part of Dickens' dramatic instinct that led him continually during his life to prepare for climaxes and to build up picturesque developments from insignificant premises. For instance, he bought Gad's Hill, the house in which he died, probably because he had coveted it as a boy living in the neighborhood. He has told the incident in "The Uncommercial Traveler:"

"'Holloa,' said I, to the very queer small boy, 'Where do you live?'

"'At Chatham,' says he.

"'What do you do there?' says I.

"'I go to school,' says he.

"I took him up in a moment and we went on. Presently the very queer small boy says, 'This is Gad's Hill we are coming to, where Falstaff went out to rob those travelers, and ran away.'

"'You know something about Falstaff, eh?' said I.

"'All about him,' said the very queer small boy. 'I am old, I am nine, and I read all sorts of books. But do let us stop at the top of the hill, and look at the house there, if you please!'

"'You admire that house?' said I.

"'Bless you, sir,' said the very queer small boy, 'when I was not more than half as old as nine, it used to be a treat for me to be brought to look at it. And ever since I can recollect, my father seeing me so fond of it, has often said to me, "If you were to be very persevering, and were to work hard, you might some day come to live in it." Though that's impossible,' said the very queer small boy, drawing a long breath, and now staring at the house out of the window with all his might.

"I was rather amazed to be told this by the very queer small boy; for that house happens to be my house, and I have reason to believe that what he said was true."

No doubt the other attractions and advantages of the house were supplemented in Dickens' mind, when he purchased it, by a sort of poetic justice to his own poverty-stricken youth.

Marriage and Home Life.

The domestic life of Dickens was tinged with strange infelicity and romantic sadness. He married a daughter of George Hogarth, Sir Walter Scott's friend. After 21 years she left him, never to return. There does not appear to have been any real attachment between them at any time; it was the younger sister, Georgina, that Dickens should have married, for she was his constant adviser and the guardian angel of his home. Maclise has left a beautiful sketch of the three, but its elusive delicacy gives no hint of the fatal differences that separated man and wife. There was an elder sister, to whom also Dickens was deeply attached, and who died soon after his marriage. Her memory was with him constantly up to his death—"as inseparable from my existence as the beating of my heart." Georgina was "the best and truest friend ever man had." But never a word of romantic affection or domestic attachment for Katherine, his wife and the mother of his children. Only two letters written before their marriage are extant, and they are conventional missives. The letters written during their married life are dreary and cold—perfunctory performances of a duty that a husband traveling may not neglect.

What the secret was of this misunderstanding no one has fathomed. There was no quarrel, no scandal, no ill will. Dickens continued to send his absent wife handsome checks for her support as long as he lived. But it was her sisters—the memory of the departed one, the practical helpfulness of the living one—who entered into the novelist's life far more than the woman he had married. Why he had married her, under these circumstances, the biographers have not revealed because they have not discovered.

It may be that the story of Dora and Agnes in "David Copperfield" will give the reader who knows the book's autobiographical value some hint; otherwise we are almost as much in ignorance about the heart life of Dickens as we are about the "Dark Lady" of Shakespeare's Sonnets.

Made Several Fortunes.

His writings and his readings made Dickens a very wealthy man, or should have made him so. The fortunes earned by the pen of Scott, and swallowed up by financial misfortune, were duplicated by Dickens, and with little better result. He received also an enormous income from his public appearances, at some of which the people paid five pounds to get into the hall. On the occasion of his second American visit, in 1867, speculators stood all night before the ticket office so as to secure seats when it opened in the morning. In New York at five A. M. there were two lines of 800 people each waiting for the opening of the box-office, and as much as ten dollars was paid to exchange places with some one further up the line. America went Dickens-mad. He made $225,000 in two years from his readings.

With all his genius for coining his brain into gold, he was continually in hot water financially, and there was hardly ever a time when Charles Dickens was not working away at fever heat to accumulate some fund or pay off some obligation. It wore him out, and he died prematurely at the age of 58. His end was pathetic. He came home to dinner from a little chalet which was his workshop. He looked ill, and Miss Hogarth asked him to lie down and rest. "Yes, on the ground," he said, and slipped to the floor. Those were his last words. He died the next day, the ninth of June, 1870.

The London of Today.

London is a different city today from the London of Dickens. The 25 or more inns of Pickwick are nearly all gone, like the coffee houses of Johnson. Fagin's Thieves' Kitchen and Warren's Blacking Factory have fallen before the march of municipal progress. The Old Curiosity Shop, indeed, remains, but that has been proved to be a fake to capture the nimble shilling of the American tourist. One "Dickens building" to undergo demolition recently was the old Insolvent Debtors' Court in Portugal street, back of the Law Courts. It was in this building that many of Dickens' characters "stood in the dock," and some old witness boxes from this court were sold at auction. They brought good prices owing to their association with the great author.

It is a new London that is today the capital of the world. But the real London that will go down to future ages as the London of all time is the London of Charles Dickens—reeking of unsavory smells and full of unsightly structures, but peopled by the warmest-hearted and most jovial company of all the world, by Pickwick and dear Tom Pinch, and Dick Swiveller and Tommy Traddles, by Sam Weller and the Peggottys, and many more who constitute the true aristocracy of fiction.

The cult of Dickens Fellowship is quite a growing affair in England, also in this country, and Dickens' works are being largely read at social and political gatherings. Dickens had much to do when alive with the opening of the wrongs of the poor laws, and in modern times his works are being read in order to throw a light on the early abuses of this system. Workhouse officials are usually referred to in the English newspapers as "Gradgrinds," and other officials as "Bumbles," and Dickens' types and characters are often employed by artists to point the moral of political cartoons.

The Dickens Fellowship have revived interest in all the scenes in London connected with the author. The removal of any house which he described is always heralded by the Fellowship as a "blow at preservation," and they manage to keep the public interest stimulated in Dickens' relics.

WAR OF 1812

As this year is the centenary of the war of 1812, it is very appropriate to publish a short sketch of the life of one of our ablest novelists, "Major John Richardson," who fought in the war, and whose pen has given us a graphic description of the events which occurred during the great engagement.

On the Canadian side of the Niagara River, just where its foaming and turbulent waters issue from the narrow, rocky gorge, stands the straggling village of Queenstown. It was here, on the 4th of October, 1796, that Major John Richardson, one of Canada's ablest novelists, was born. His father, Robert Richardson, was assistant surgeon to the Queen's Rangers, during the war of the revolution. His mother, whose maiden name was Miss Madeline Askin, was a good scholar and a perfect lady. She taught her children not only to write and speak English, but also to write and speak French, an accomplishment well worth possessing in those days. His grandmother, Mrs. Askin, told thrilling stories to John, which enhanced his imagination. It was while listening to these stories that he formed a desire not to be realised until 1832, when he gave to the world his masterly "Wacousta."

At the tender age of fifteen years he decided to fight for his country, and on the 9th of July, 1812, he was appointed a gentleman volunteer in the 41st Regiment, a detachment of which was in garrison at Fort Amherstburg. He fought in every engagement in which this regiment took part, until its disastrous defeat at Moravianstown on October 5th, 1813. At this engagement he was taken prisoner and suffered close confinement for one year. In his first novel, "Ecarte," Dormer, one of the characters, meets with experiences that coincide closely with the actual events in this part of Richardson's career. In the "Canadian Brothers" events in which his regiment took part also occur, and it is in this book that the story of his imprisonment is told. After his release he was appointed lieutenant in the 8th Regiment. He sailed for Flanders to join the Duke of Wellington's army, but Waterloo had been fought and won before his regiment was half way across the Atlantic. He went to Portsmouth on his arrival in England and hearing that he would not have to cross to Flanders he joined the 2nd Queen's Regiment and on April 24, 1816, sailed for the West Indies, arriving there on June 5th. Upon his return from 1818 to 1828 he lived the life of a literary man in London. He wrote short sketches of life in Canada and the West Indies and also produced other of his longer works. The poem, "Tecumseh," published 1828, and the novel "Ecarte," published in 1829. "Tecumseh," Richardson's only poem, consists of four cantos containing in all 188 stanzas.

Captain R. R. Barclay said, in referring to Richardsons novel, "Ecarte":

"Ecarte" is assuredly an able and dreadful essay against the most insidious and ruinous of all sorts of dissipation and idleness, gaming, bad enough anywhere, but in Paris it holds its throne." This novel was severely criticized by "Jerdan," an influential writer on the staff of the "Literary Gazette," and this criticism, says Richardson, prevented him from writing many other books. Nevertheless his pen was busy, for in 1832 appeared "Wacousta." This novel is founded on the designs of Pontiac to possess himself of the fort of Detroit. The interview between Pontiac and Governor De Haldiman in the great council hall of the fort is the master stroke of all Richardson's literary work. For dramatic power and graphic description it has not often been surpassed or even equalled in the language. He has been accused of imitating Cooper in the noval, but his power had already been revealed in "Ecarte," his material had been gathered from his experiences in boyhood, and the desire had been enkindled 30 years before, when he heard those stories at his grandmother's home. His military career was not yet finished, for in 1835 he sailed as captain in the 2nd Regiment, on board the transport "Royal Tai," for San Sebastian, where an army had been sent to assist the Regent Christina to preserve the throne of Spain for her daughter Isabella. From San Sebastian he went to Vitoria, where typhus fever carried off 700 men and 40 officers. He was then appointed commandant, but on Jan. 30th, 1836, he was stricken with the fever.

To his experiences in Spain we owe the existence of three of his works. First one, "Movements of the British Legion." British Legion was the name given to the army sent to Spain. His second book was "Personal Memoirs of Major Richardson." His third work was a satire, not published in book form, but as a serial in the "Canadian Chronicle," of which I shall speak later.

In 1838 he embarked for Canada, accompanied by his wife, whom he had married about 1830.

Having received the encouragement of 250 subscriptions, he decided to publish the "Canadian Brothers" as a sequel to "Wacousta." After the publication of this book he went to his home in Sandwich.

In 1840 he started a weekly paper, entitled the "New Era," or "Canadian Chronicle." The subscription rate was $4 a year. Many of the articles were from his own pen. No paying advertisements or local topics found a place in its columns. While the paper was interesting and instructive it lacked that variety and freshness which characterized weekly papers, so that he could not retain a long list of subscribers at $4 per year. The result was that he became involved financially. He decided, however, to make a final effort by appealing to the patriotism of Canadian people. The appeal was not responded to by any increase in the circulation. He decided upon suggestion of his military comrades to write a history of the War of 1812.

He was qualified in an especial manner for such an undertaking, having been an active participant in several engagements. The story was to be written in three series. The reception accorded the first series caused the writer to postpone the preparation of the other parts, but as the prospect never became any more promising, the history was not completed.

On May 24, 1845, he was appointed Superintendent of Police on the Welland Canal.

On the 16th of August in the same year his wife died.

After being released from the duties of Superintendent he prepared for publication "Eight Years in Canada," and in 1847 the sequel to it, "The Geeard in Canada," or "The Point of Honour."

He revised the "Canadian Brothers" and called it "Matilda Montgomery." His other works were, "Hardscrabble," "Westbrook," or "The Outlaw," "The Monk Knight of St. John," etc.

Major Richardson died suddenly on the 12th of May, 1852, in New York. His remains were taken outside the city for burial, but diligent enquiry has failed to find his last resting place.

Richardson's career was a noble and manly struggle. He knew neither tact nor compromise. He struggled harder for the political principles he cherished, for the social code he respected, than he did for life itself. If we judge Richardson by the literary success that cheered him even among his many days of adversity we can merely wonder that a writer so notable in literary development is now almost forgotten. His works, whether we consider their subject matter, their literary merits or their position in the growth of the novel, place their gifted author high on that roll we choose to designate as our list of Canadian authors.

These productions of his genius are his sole monument. The bright young Canadian lad, who left school to fight his country's battles, had to seek in the land he fought against, an unknown grave, in the teeming solitude of America's greatest city. No votive garland can be laid on that tomb, no admiring young Canadian may visit that shrine.

HASN'T SHE LOVELY HAIR!

How often have you heard this remark? Very often indeed: Everyone admires well kept, luxuriant hair because it is a real beauty in itself; and as Balzac says in his famous work on beautiful women:—"The soul of loyliness of a beautiful woman lies in the tresses of her hair."

Any woman can have beautiful hair if she will but give it proper care with a proper hair dressing. Sageine is such a dressing. It will bring life and beauty into dull faded hair and make it clean, fluffy and attractive.

Since the introduction of Sageine in America it has met with wonderful success and is the popular hair tonic with leading men and women everywhere.

SAGEINE is now obtainable in Peterborough at W. J. Kent's drug store. It is not sticky or greasy and is daintily perfumed. A large bottle costs only 50c. That Sageine will please you is our liberal guarantee. W. J. Kent Money back if it doesn't.

NEW TYPE OF SUBMERSIBLE BOAT

Scotts' Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Greenock, Scotland, announce an important order which has been placed with the firm by the British Admiralty.

The contract is for the building of a submersible boat of the Laurenti type, as built by the Fiat San Giorgio Company of Spezia. The following details are taken from "Engineering":

The Admiralty, in ordering a vessel of the Italian type, the license for constructing which in this country has been acquired by Scotts' Company, again prove their desire to acquire experience of all forms of munitions of war. A feature of the Laurenti design is the construction of an outer hull to give the highest propulsive efficiency and reserve buoyancy on the surface, with the minimum of draught, and an inner hull to minimise the internal cubic capacity while ensuring satisfactory conditions when submerged.

The double skin, which is braced with stays to ensure the maximum of structural strength, is confined largely to the central part, and the space between the shells up to the waterline on surface displacement is utilised to form water-ballast tanks for submergence. Kingston valves are fitted at the turn of the bilge on each side for the flooding of the compartments, and the strucure is made sufficiently strong to enable the water to be pumped out without danger of collapse due to the pressure of the sea water on the outer skin; but compressed air can be, and is normally, used for expelling the water when the boat is to return to the surface.

Over the central part of the ship there is a double decking, with lattice bracing, and valves are fitted on each side above the water-line, through which water automatically enters and leaves respectively for the submergence or emergence of the vessel, which is effected on an even keel. This double-decking extends practically from bow to stern. Vertical bulkheads divide the interior into several compartments. The new British submersible boat will be of the twin-screw type, with twin six-cylinder Fiat engines in one engine-room, with electric motors for propelling the boat when submerged.

The torpedo tubes will be forward, under the bow, and the storage-tubes above it. Italy, Sweden, Denmark, and the United States have had submersible boats of this design. The Swedish boat is the more notable, as she made a voyage from Spezia to Stockholm without escort. She is 139.4ft. long, 14ft. beam, and 8.2ft. draught, and the voyage was made in stages respectively to Carthagena, Gibraltar, Lisbon, Oporto, Vigo, Ferrol, Brest, Portsmouth, Ymuiden, Kiel, and Stockholm, the longest non-stop run—from Spezia to Carthagena—being 790 sea miles.

It is apropriate that the Scotts' Company should be the first of the Clyde firms to build a British Navy submersible boat, since they were the first on the northern river to construct a battleship of the Dreadnought type, and have a century-old connection with the Admiralty. They are to be commended for their enterprise in entering upon a new industry.

SUFFERED

THE TIRET CABLE.

For eight weeks the island of Tiree (West Coast of Scotland) was without telegraphic communication owing to the breakdown of the short cable which spans the sound between Coll and Tiree, and the inhabitants sent a petition signed by 500 of the adult population to the Postmaster-General asking that the benefits of a wireless installation similar to that in use at Tobermory and Lochboisdale should be set up in Tiree. Now, however, the Tiree cable has been restored by the staff on board H.M. cable ship Monarch. The Monarch reached Tobermory on 23rd December and lay off Ulva waiting a favourable opportunity to carry out the search for the broken cable, but not until New Year's Day did the opportunity occur. The short cable was found broken one-third of its length from the Tiree shore, and on the necessary repairs being executed on New Year's Day the Monarch left for similar work on the Arran coast.

A NEW RACING YACHT.

So far it appears only one new 15-metre yacht has been ordered for next season's racing on the Clyde—that for Mr. George Coats, of the famous Paisley thread concern, though there are rumours that Major Andrew Coats, another member of the well-known Clyde yachting family, will rejoin the class, with a new craft. Mr. Geo. Coats's boat has been designed by Fife, and the hull is getting on the way towards completion at the famous Fairlie yard. Mr. Coats's boat, it can be seen thus early, will present a few new features. She will be a more powerful vessel than any that has yet been built to the class, and her sail plan provides for an area of canvas which will require all the great power she will possess to keep her on her feet in anything like a breeze. Everything possible is being done, regardless of cost, by her designer to lighten her load. Aluminium is to be largely used, not only in the matter of decorations, but even aloft, in any place where it can safely be trusted to take the place of either iron or steel. The interior fittings will be of a particularly beautiful character, and will be as light as possible, papier mache being used where it can be made to serve the purpose required.

For And About Women

IN DANGER

Mr. and Mrs. Aschenbrenner were touring Europe and had just arrived at Pisa. Mrs Aschenbrenner was all excited upon reaching the leaning tower of Pisa, and eagerly pattered up the spiral stairway, leaving her husband languidly awaiting her return. As she weighed a shade over the 200 mark, her husband always dug up an excuse when it came to accompanying her on any altitudes above easy falling distance. He was just pondering on the beautiful flow of unintelligible language used by their guide when from the topmost rampart came the "Hi-lee, Ho-lo" trill of his wife, who was leaning far out and waving a scarf. Mr. Aschenbrenner obligingly looked up and then came to life with an anguished roar, "Gretchen, for your life get back. You're bendin' the building!" — Harper's Magazine.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet

For Schools, Hotels, Banks and Private Residences

Heretofore it has been impossible to install a Sanitary System of inside closet without water works and sewage, and you will agree with us when we say that the present outdoor system of closets are not only very insanitary, but are at the same time one of the most fruitful sources of both moral and physical ills.

The "Parkyte" Sanitary Chemical Closet is constructed principally for families and public bodies who live in a district where it is impossible to have waterworks and sewage. It can be placed in any part of a Residence, Store, School, Hotel, Bank, etc.

We have secured the Agency for this valuable Sanitary Closet, and invite investigation of its merits.

THOUGH IT'S "ONLY A COLD"— STOP IT BEFORE IT STOPS YOU

Have you ever heard of a case of catarrh, bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, or pleurisy that did not start with a common cold?

Every cold you catch has in it the makings of one or other of these diseases, if it can break down your defences. And even if it does not develop into something more dangerous, it will keep you thoroughly miserable for a week or two at least.

The wise course, as soon as you feel the cold coming on, is to start taking Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, and keep it up till the cold is knocked out completely. This splendid cough syrup will do the trick quickly and thoroughly.

You can feel perfectly safe in taking Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, or in giving it to your children. We'll gladly give your physican a list of its ingredients if you like. Your Druggist can supply either 25c. or 50c. bottles. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 117

MEXICO THE RESTLESS.

U. S. Troops Preparing to Patrol the Border Again.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 7.—A few hours' developments in Mexico have placed the mobile forces of the U. S. army with marching orders and field equipment. It has been made plain, however, that the Government does not intend to send more troops to the border unless the situation absolutely demands it.

A Pensacola, Fla., despatch says that two companies of coast artillery at Fort Barrancas have been ordered to Texas.

With renewed disturbances across the border and the possibility that the State Department might call upon the War Department to protect lives and property along the line, the plans of the general staff, prepared for a minute's action in just such an event, were spread out at headquarters yesterday and renewed instructions to await marching orders were flashed to army commanders at points from which troops can be immediately mobilized.

Meanwhile several thousand soldiers rest on their arms.

De La Fuente Ready.

Mexico City, Feb. 7.—The Department of the Interior has received advices through secret agents that David De La Fuente, who was one of the signatories of the plan of Tacubaya and is a member of the revolutionary junta formed a week ago in El Paso, is preparing to cross the frontier to engage in an insurrection in favor of Emiliano Vasquez Gomez. He is said to be now at Brownsville, Texas.

David De La Fuente was formerly chief of police here, and later became a director of the so-called "Army of Liberation," which Gomez endeavored to organize. He fled to the United States to avoid arrest for insurrectionary agitation in Chihuahua.

It is confirmed here that Gen. Pascual Orozco has been offered the Governorship of Chihuahua.

LADS TELL ALL.

Farnham Schoolboys Will Await Their Sentence.

Sweetsburg, Que., Feb. 7.—Hearing in the charges against Eugene Bernard and William Hery, the two young American pupils accused of conspiring with young Marchand to burn down the Holy Cross College at Farnham, was held here yesterday before Judge Mulvena.

The boys, who are 14 and 13 respectively, broke down completely and told the whole story of the burning of their college.

Their evidence showed an apparent systematic conspiracy to destroy the college by fire, telling as it did of a number of previous attempts made by older boys, and the running away and expulsion of the culprits.

The brothers had learned of these attempts, but attempted to hush them up, withholding details of what they knew from the police and even receiving insurance money following an incendiary outbreak of fire which did slight damage last autumn.

Bernard told how he had showed Marchand where to start the fire, while Hery confessed to having supplied Marchand with matches.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—There was a small volume of business done to-day on account of the small volume of ocean room. Sales of No. 3 yellow corn were made to arrive at 74½c track. A strong feeling prevails in the market for oats, and price are ½c per bushel higher under a good demand from local buyers for all lots offering. Buckwheat has advanced 1c with sales at 73c to 74c ex-store. A fairly good trade is passing in flour for local trade, but the export demand is quiet. Millfeed is strong under a good demand. Demand for eggs and butter is good, and prices are tending higher.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 75c.

Oats—Canadian western No. 2, 50½c to 51c; Canadian western No. 3, 49½c to 50c; extra No. 1 feed, 49½c to 49c; No. 2 local white, 49½c to 50c; No. 3 local white, 48½c to 49c; No. 4 local white, 48c to 49.

Winnipeg Grain Market.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 6.—The Wheat market to-day was steady and fluctuations were not wide, with a fair amount of business doing during the earlier part of the session. Later transactions were few and far between, altho prices were not affected to any extent.

There was a fair cash demand for all grades, with offerings light, which tended to maintain prices. There was some export business done in No. 6 grade, but little enquiry for others.

Minneapolis Grain Market.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—Wheat closed —May, $1.07⅛; July, $1.08⅝ to $1.08¾; No. 1 hard, $1.08; No. 1 northern, $1.07⅛ to $1.07¼; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅛ to $1.06; No. 3 wheat, $1.05⅛ to $1.06.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—The railways reported 62 cars—833 cattle, 1558 hogs, 1c. sheep, 85 calves and 2 horses.

Milkers and Springers.

The market for milkers and springers was dull and slow, with prices easier. The range in prices was from $35 to $65.

Veal Calves.

The average price of veal calves was $7 per cwt., and the range in prices from $4 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $4.50; rams, $3 to $3.50; lambs sold at $6 to $7.40. Not many choice lambs are coming, and, a few being wanted, that class advanced, but if there should be a decent-sized run come forward, look out for a tumble in prices.

Hogs.

The hog market is firm at steady prices. Selects, $6.60, fed and watered, and $6.25 f.o.b. cars at country points, and we heard of $6.35 being paid.

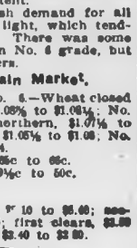
East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 6.—Cattle—Receipts 400 head, active and firm.

Veals—Receipts 150, active and 50c lower, $5.50 to $10.25.

Hogs—Receipts 4000 active and steady; heavy, mixed, Yorkers and pigs, $6.70 to $6.75, roughs, $5.90 to $6, stags, $4.50 to $5.50, dairies, $6.50 to $6.75.

Clean Man



Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man can scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Get health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and not it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade. I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured.

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

"DUPING FILMS"

"Duping films" is the phrase used by moving picture men to describe a flourishing illicit trade in counterfeits of the current films. "Duped" or duplicate films are made by photographing the entire contents of moving picture films as the scenes are projected upon the screen. An ordinary moving picture camera is used for the purpose.

These copies of films afford a very large margin of profit, because the dishonest producer may avoid the cost of mounting plays; he avoids paying the salaries of actors and other studio expenses, and in the case of outdoor productions or travel pictures he avoids the cost of transportation and of delays.

Moving picture manufacturers have found it necessary to combine against the traffic, and rewards are offered for the detection of culprits. Experts detect a "duped" film by observing the projected scenes to determine if they jump about more than an honest film should. Excessive jumping is unavoidable in the case of "duped" films.

Constant jumping is peculiar to all films. It is caused by the wavering of the films as they are moved before the camera lenses. The projecting machine accentuates the wavering on the distant screen and adds a wavering of its own as the film moves in front of the light. Vibrations of the cameras and of the projecting machine produce two distinct sets of movements in addition, all discernible to a trained eye.

Then, too, expert photographers may detect counterfeit films by a fogginess never found in the genuine films.

Operation for Piles Failed

ZAM-BUK WAS THEN TRIED AND WORKED A CURE.

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Mrs. C. Hanson, wife of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was so bad at times that I could hardly walk, and ordinary remedies seemed utterly unable to give me any ease. Finally I decided to undergo an operation, and went to the Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane. There they performed an operation and did all they could for me. For a time I was certainly better, but within twelve months the trouble started again and the piles became as painful as ever. I tried liniments, hot poultices, various 'pile cures,' and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do any good, but still I continued to suffer, and the shooting, burning, stinging pains, the dull, aching and wretched, 'worn-out' feeling that the disease causes continued as bad as ever.

"One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better, and I saw that Zam-Buk was going to cure me. Well, I went on using it, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured. That was three years ago, and from then to the present time there has been no return of the trouble."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, cold sores, chapped hands, varicose sores, burns, scalds, bruises, inflamed patches, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere. 50c. box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

SAFER TO GO TO WAR THAN TO CROSS NEW YORK STREETS

Statistics seem to prove that one would be as safe on the bridge of a battleship in action as on the streets of New York. The fatalities due to congested street traffic and disregard of the rights of pedestrians, is appalling. No fewer than 423 people were killed and 2,004 injured by automobiles, street cars and horse-drawn vehicles in New York city last year. Fewer people have been killed in minor wars of the United States than have thus met death in the streets. Take the Indian wars from 1789 to 1812, a period of twenty-three years. Twenty officers and 726 men, a total of 746, were killed in those wars. That is less than twice the number of street victims in New York last year. The war of 1812, lasting four years, took the lives of 65 United States officers and 1,235 men. That was a hot contest, but the average number of casualties each year was considerably less than 423.

The war with Spain created plenty of excitement, but Spanish bullets and shells did not play the same amount of havoc with United States soldiers as did New York city's vehicles among peaceful citizens in 1911.

According to the figures of the National Highways Protective Society, which tries to record every street accident, involving a vehicle, 183 of the 423 victims of New York's street accidents were children between the age of one and sixteen years. Fifty-four were killed by automobiles, thirty-three by street cars, ninety-six by wagons.

As the city grows, and the number of vehicles increases, the hazards of the streets grow proportionately. Last year's deaths showed an increase of 13 per cent over the fatalities of 1910, when 376 were killed, while the number of people injured was more than doubled. The increase of automobile accidents alone were 38 per cent over 1910. Possibly because of the crowds of Christmas shoppers, thirty-eight people were killed and 164 injured in the month of December alone.

Compared with deaths from other causes, the record of vehicles seems extraordinarily large. Last year 497 people lost their lives in fires in all five boroughs of New York city. That, however, was the year of the Triangle Shirtwaist disaster, which snuffed out so many people in a few minutes. The year before that 329 were killed in fires, or less than the number that met death from vehicles in the same period.

PARISIAN POLICE BOMB FACTORY

The Paris police have built a "bomb laboratory" for the purpose of determining what various bombs are made of and so tracing the criminals. Since the success of the Paris laboratory similar institutions have been started in other European cities. The bomb laboratory was started in Paris for the purpose of investigating and destroying all bombs found in that city. Until the opening of the laboratory the bomb-thrower was enabled to carry on his nefarious work with comparative safety. When a bomb explodes it is shattered in a thousand fragments, and its contents are resolved into gases which cannot be caught and investigated. The effectiveness of bombs depends upon the fact that they are filled with substances which, when ignited, evolve enormous quantities of gas in a minute fraction of a second.

The explosive force of this suddenly evolved mass of gas is enormously increased by the very high temperature to which it is heated by the accompanying chemical reaction. Hence, a bomb which can be carried in the pocket is able to produce terrible devastation. In spite of all these difficulties the investigators in Paris have learned how to follow up a bomb explosion and collect evidence.

Recently an attempt was made to blow up the Municipal Building in Friedberg, in order to rob an adjacent bank during the resulting confusion. The criminals who made the attempt had previously attempted to extort money by sending threatening letters to a wealthy banker in Frankfort, and in order to intimidate him had placed a bomb in front of his residence. The bomb exploded, but a few fragments that had been thrown out before the flames reached them were found embedded in the walls of his house.

These fragments were subjected to a chemical examination, and it was found they contained blasting gelatine. Blasting gelatine is made in many factories, but is made in different ways. It was found that the blasting gelatine in this particular bomb, and in the one exploded at Friedberg, had been stolen from a factory at Saint Ingbert. From these clues the police were able to trace the criminals and finally bring about their arrest.

When the criminal leaves a bomb and the latter is found before it explodes or where it has failed to explode, a great difficulty is presented to the investigators as how to examine the dangerous article without causing is to blow up. Some bombs are so constructed that they explode instantly upon the slightest shock or as soon as an attempt is made to disturb their position. The most important of these are the ones in which the explosion is brought about by means of liquid contained in a glass tube.

The bomb is usually so contrived that the slightest displacement causes a weight to fall on the tube and break it, so that the liquid escapes and comes in contact with substances which, under its action, explode with great violence.

To overcome this difficulty these bombs are destroyed in a shed constructed of light boards and surrounded by a wall of earth and an outer and higher wall of masonry. The laboratory, it should be noted, is in the suburbs of Paris. The shed has no roof, and is so constructed that if an explosion does occur little damage will be done. The bomb when first found is seized with very long tongs of peculiar construction, and without having its position changed, is carefully placed in a safety bomb carrier attached to the bottom of an automobile. The carrier is simply a box supported on gimbals like a compass.

This gimbal suspension keeps the body perfectly horizontal, so that if it is a liquid bomb it will not explode. The machine then proceeds cautiously to the bomb laboratory. There the bomb is removed with the greatest care and placed upon the piston of a hydraulic press, which is connected with a subterranean tube with a press cylinder in the bomb shed. The bomb is placed below a fixed headpiece. The men then retire to an outer room, and the press is set in operation. As the piston rises the bomb is crushed.

It has been proved by experience that the safest method of opening bombs is by crushing them in this way, because all parts of the bomb are left undisturbed, and because the shell is usually cracked before the glass tube is broken. If an explosion occurs the gases can escape through the broken shell without doing much damage, as they encounter little resistance at this point or in the open shed, so that the contents of the bomb are quietly consumed, leaving sufficient trace for the determination of the mixture.

Make up your mind to advertise EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR in the Examiner.

A man who made a fortune selling liniment said recently to the Examiner:

"Rheumatism hits some of your readers every day. My advertisement must be in your paper to catch his eye the very day the rheumatic pains catch his joints. If I miss a day I miss some sales."

There's a big moral in that, Mr. Advertiser.

It applies to the man who sells shoes, groceries, real estate, insurance, dry goods or books as much as to the man who sells liniment.

Anything of merit, advertised every day in the Examiner, is bound to sell.

DO NOT PAY THEIR BILLS

Some Who Attend Queen Mary Hospital and Can Afford to Meet Their Expense Fail To Do So

THE HOSPITAL'S 1st YEAR

The Queen Mary Hospital is doing the work that was intended for it whe nthe Council decided that the city required an isolation hospital and began its construction. It will be remembered that the question then arose as to whether the citizens would isolate contagious diseases when their own families were concerned. In connection with what might be called the first annual meeting of the Queen Mary Hospital Board, Dr. McPherson stated that very few cases are being treated in the home. In this respect the results have been encouraging and the hospital is thus enabled to give the city the complete service that was expected of it.

Just now there are no patients from the city and only a few from outside the city. One feature that is noted by those in charge is that a number who can afford to pay for the services they receive at the hospital, fail to do so. There does not, it is considered, seem to be any reason why they should be remiss in this respect unless it is the desire to get something like an equivalent for their taxes.

The meeting was held yesterday afternoon with Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Duncan present. Dr. Boucher, the third member, was unable to attend.

Dr. McPherson's Report.

A number of accounts were passed, and the following report from the Medical Superintendent, Dr. A. W. McPherson, was received:

"The hospital was opened on March 13th, 1911. At first we had about eight enterprises when all the patients were gathered in from all parts of the town, this number was swelled to fifteen, eight of them being from two families. Our working staff consisted of three graduate nurses and one probationer, a caretaker and his wife, a laundress and a maid. Since that time the number of nurses has not been more than two graduates and a nurse in training. This includes Miss Mowry, the superintendent. During this time the hospital has treated 43 patients, thirty-seven being for scarlet fever and six for diphtheria. Thirty-nine of these were from the city and four from outside municipalities. There was one death. This patient was brought in for an operation.

A Few of the Facts.

The cost of the maintenance of an isolation hospital is light. The first year it is naturally higher than it will be expected to be in the future. The following will give a definite idea of the cost for 1911:

No. of patients treated—43.
Average number of days—28.63.
Total number of days—1231.
Total cost—$3,477.25.
Total receipts from patients—$252.30

GIRL COULD NOT SLEEP

Miss Van Steenburg, a Brooklyn girl, lately found herself unable to sleep. Of course she was worried because there is nothing that will more quickly and certainly wreck health than to be unable to rest at night.

Now sleeplessness is just a symptom of failing health, and is caused by unequal circulation of the blood. Someone evidently gave her some good advice, for she says in a recent letter, "I had been all run down and tired out for some time and got so I could not sleep nights. I had heard so much about Vinol that I tried it and found it highly satisfactory.

It has restored my strength, made me able to sleep and eat well, and I am now quite well again."

This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil (Vinol) does wonders in building up weak, nervous, sickly people of all ages. It makes the blood rich and pure, corrects the faulty circulation and restores appetite. We promise to give back the money in case Vinol does not please you. RUMOURS REGARDING SCARCITY OF WOOD NOT SUBSTANTIATED

Local Dealers Report That the Supply is Fairly Plentiful With No Immediate Danger of Wood Famine.

GREEN WOOD COMING IN

Of late a rumour has been rife in the city that the wood supply is becoming scarce. As to the extent of the shortage, various opinions have been given, and various reports to the effect that the wood in the local wood yards was all sold, caused alarm. This morning an Examiner reporter set out to discover the actual state of the wood situation. On calling at E. Hicks & Co. the situation was found to be such that no cause for anxiety as to the scarcity of wood was warranted. While the orders for wood were unusually large, the supply was plentiful, with plenty of green wood coming in. Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald reports that while the supply on hand was running low, there was no immediate danger of a wood famine. There was plenty of wood in the country, but owing to the heavy condition of the roads, very little was coming into the city.

Reports also indicate that many of the farmers are withholding their supplies with a view to augmenting the present price. No direct results are anticipated from this move, as a further increase in the present high price of wood will cause a great many people to resort to the use of coal. There is a little falling off in the offering on the market these days, as also the individual deliveries by the farmers to the householders, but a continuance of these conditions is not looked for.

The yard of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company is pretty well stocked with tamarack and other soft wood, but with regard to the hardwood there is a scarcity. The reason was given that the farmers are not cutting wood at present, principally on account of shortage in labour.

A visit to the market revealed the fact that every load of wood that came to the market was sold in jig time and a fair price paid.

Three reasons were suggested by the farmers. Firstly, the bad roads before Christmas would not allow of a journey to town with a heavy load. Secondly the severe weather has occasioned the use of an extra amount of wood, and lastly the superabundance of snow prevailing recently, is curtailing traffic in the country.

The general feeling, however, is to the effect that the wood scarcity is only of emporary nature and that no inconvenience of any magnitude will be experienced.

BIG LIBERAL RALLY IN SOUTH RENFREW

Enthusiastic Meeting in Arnprior Town Hall---Hon. G. P. Graham, Liberal Candidate, Speaks

ARNPRIOR, FEB. 6.—The first big Liberal rally in South Renfrew since the issuance of the writ took place to-night in one of the most enthusiastic meetings in the history of the riding. The town Hall was packed to the doors and throughout there was the utmost enthusiasm for Hon. George P. Graham. Among the speakers was E. M. Macdonald of Pictou, who is a Nova Scotian, once more endorsed the project of the Georgian Bay Canal; Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who brought word from the Province of Quebec that the people were still true to Laurier, and that the action of the Government in shelving the ten temere decree had pleased nobody.

Hon. George P. Graham laid emphasis upon the fact that had the Laurier Government been sustained there would have been estimates for the Georgian Bay Canal, as well as for the new Welland. He announced it as a part of the policy of the late Government that those works should be carried on together. The construction of the Welland would save to Canada traffic which might otherwise go to the United States, but at the same time the other great undertaking should be proceeded with and in this way Canada would have the whip-hand in the transportation of the whole continent.

There is every indication here that the honest Conservatives of South Renfrew intend to live up to the spirit of the agreement of last fall, and there is also every indication that despite very lavish disbursements from the "black bag" South Renfrew will elect Mr. Graham on February 22.

The statement published in an Ottawa paper to-day to the effect that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would speak at Eganville on February 19 is not confirmed here. It is announced here that he will speak at Arnprior on that night.

BELMONT MINSTRELS WILL BE A TREAT FOR EVERYBODY

That the Belmont Minstrels will eclipse anything ever attempted in the minstrel line is now an absolute fact. The novelty first part, the catchy ballads, the real coon songs sung by people who can sing, all put together with action and a lot of ginger, will be sure to tickle the most sceptical. The olio or second part (where all the local production fall with a sickening thud), is no entertaining if not more so than the classy first part. A really classy act by seven young ladies and seven gentlemen will be the artistic hit of the performance. George Clark and Holly Shepard in a brand new talking, singing and dancing act will make you laugh. The funny Rube act, with Chris Graham, Bill Cockran, Louie Mendel, Bud Trebilcock and Reg. Turner, will be a scream. The big finale song drill, with Will Meleloy and company, closing with the entire company, will be a fitting close to the big show. Undoubtedly the eBlmont Minstrels of 1912 will go down in history as the best ever.

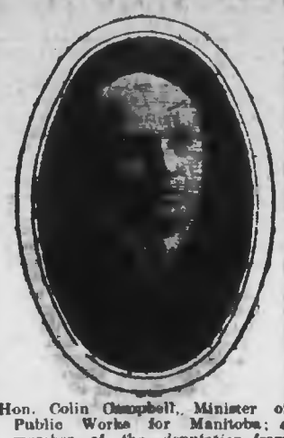
THIRTY-TWO INDICTMENTS FOR DYNAMITING OUTRAGES IN U.S.



Hon. Colin Campbell, Minister of Public Works for Manitoba; a member of the deputation from that Province, which is trying to have the Boundaries extended.

Returned by Federal Grand Jury That Has Been Investigating for Six weeks.

MANY CITIES INTERESTED

Special to The Examiner.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 7.—The Federal grand jury, which has been investigating dynamiting outrages in all parts of the country for six weeks, returned thirty-two indictments in the Federal Court yesterday afternoon. The grand jury was not discharged, and it is understood its work is not yet done. The thirty-two indictments don't mean that only 32 labour leaders have been indicted, for some of the indicements are for conspiracy, and there are as many as three or fuor defendants named in them. It is believed that the number of persons indicted will not fall short of fifty, and it may exceed that number.

The indictments returned this afternoon are all in the dynamiting cases and in the conspiracy cases, a number of persons are involved, and it is also certain that some of the defendants are named in more than one indictment, as evidence has been produced showing that some of the persons who will be arrested, not only conspired to transport explosives, unlawfully, but personally assisted in the unlawful transportation.

CHARGES OF MINOR NATURE

As a result of the grand jury investigation, it is said, grounds for only two charges in connectio wth the dynamite cases were established. One of these is for violating the statute, which provides that it shall be unlawful to transport dynamite or other explosives on a passenger train engaged in interstate commerce, and the other is the violation of the conspiracy statute. The unlawful transportation statute has a penalty of not more than 18 months' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine for each offence, the penalty attached to the conspiracy statute is two years' imprisonment.

Implicated by the evidence which the Government has spent months in examining, are believed to be many men active in the Iron Workers' local unions in numerous cities, who, although well known among members of their own craft, aren ot widely known in the country. The list of men who will be obliged to stand trial here, however, is thought to include several prominent officials or ex-officials of the Iron Workers, who are widely known in labour circles.

MANY CITIES INTERESTED

Just when the arrests will be made is said to be unknown even to Federal officials, although the latter have a pretty well-de ned idea as to the time. here remains considerable work to be done in getting certified copies of the indictments, whch the law requires shall be sent to the districts in which defendants are arrested.

Time will be required also in getting cppies into the hands of the United States marshals and Government agents in the different districts. Milwaukee, Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Peoria, San Francisco, Kansas City, Omaha, Pittsburg, New Orleans, Buffalo, Detroit, Philadelphia, Indianapolis and St. Louis are among the cities in which arrests are expected, although the Government has been making a special effort to keep secret the names of the men involved.

Grand Opening Of 13th Parliament

TORONTO, FEB. 7.—The echoing presence of royalty in Ottawa, the opening of the thirteenth legislature of Ontario at 3 o'clock this afternoon, was more than usually military and formal. His Honour Lieutenant Governor Sir John Gibson, was surrounded by a galaxy of fellow colonels and other officers, military guard of honour, which was larger than usual, and salutes were fired by the Ninth Field Battery.

Narrow Escape

ESTELLE FRANKLIN GRAY AT THE CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

To lovers of classical music the annual concert of the George Street Church choir, held last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall, was an event of unusual attractiveness.

Miss Estelle Gray justified her reputation as a prominent New York violinist. She exercises a complete mastery of the instrument, and her execution is crisp and finished. Those who heard her last evening must surely have been impressed by her style. In "Hyre Kati," an old Gypsy melody arranged by the Norwegian composer, Hubarg, she displayed marvellous tone colour in changing from the soul-haunting melody of the opening movement to the wild, passionate dance of the gypsies with which the piece terminates. She was equally at home with the florid style of music as in Mozart's "Rebel Rien." In this her fingering was superb, and though in this there are so many notes in rapid succession, every one was true and complete.

Miss Florence Crawford, as a pianist, is no less distinguished. Her rendering of Chopin's Polonaise in F flat major was truly magnificent. After all, a musical programme would not be complete without a selection from the immortal Chopin. The power of good interpretation which alone can do justice to the works of this composer was hers, and in the rapid succession of notes in this particular selection she displayed great skill. Newland's Valse Caprice was another very acceptable item.

The contribution of Margaret Gray, elocutionist, proved a very desirable diversion. Her rendering of the Irish dialect story, "Mary Ellen Studies Elocution," was very amusing and was received with loud applause. In "The Ride to the Fort," a story of the redskins, she displayed her dramatic powers and in all her selections her articulation was beyond reproach.

The hall was well filled, and the evening was pronounced a decided success.

TO REPEAL NAVAL ACT

Albert Sevigny's Resolution Filed To-day Says it is a Scheme Hastily and Illadvisedly Prepared

WILL NOT BE DEBATED

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, ONT., FEB. 7. — Albert Sevigny, the Nationalist member for Dorchester, has this morning filed the text of his resolution, calling for the repeal of the naval law. The resolution says that the Naval Act establishes a policy of which the importance and consequences are far reaching. That the said policy was not discussed before the people prior to its adoption and that it bears all the appearances of a 'scheme' hastily and ill advisedly prepared. That our duty to the Empire cannot be suitably discharged by the enforcement of this measure. That the plan involves the creation of a naval force which will be utterly useless in time of war. There is little chance of Mr. Sevigny's resolution being debated this session however, as a private member's resolution it will go on the foot of the list of resolutions.

ROBBERS GET AWAY WITH $24,000

Special to The Examiner.

MEMPHIS, TENN., FEB. 7. — A band of robbers held up a west-bound Rock Island train near here, blew open the safes in the express and mail cars and got away with some twenty-four thousand dollars' cash and many valuable securities. They didn't bother the passengers, most of whom were asleep in the Pullmans. Mounted police are on the trail.

GATHERING OF DIGNITARIES

Examiner Special:

MONTREAL, QUE., FEB. 7.—It was a formidable array of Roman Catholic dignitaries which gathered at Archbishop Bruchesis' monastic looking palace this morning to discuss, it is understood the attitude of their church on the "Ne Temere" decree, bilingual schools, Separate schools and other questions which have loomed large in religion and politics of all Canada in the last few weeks. They included Monsignors Bruchesi of Montreal, Begin of Quebec, Gauthier of Ottawa, Stagni, Papal Delegate, Spratt of Kingston, Langevin of Manitoba. It was absolutely secret and the coterie of newspaper men who gathered round got nothing for their pains.

GOOD SEED, GOOD FRUIT.

When the Children's Aid Society placed one of the little girls rescued by its work from a life of neglect and possible vice, in a virtuous foster home, in one of the neighbouring townships, it little thought, perhaps that one of the fruits of the good action would come yesterday, in concrete and material form, in the shape of four Dominion dollar bills, into the hands of Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent of the Society. Ten years ago, the Society placed a little girl, one of its wards, in a foster home. She has grown a big girl, and a good girl. She is Treasurer of a Sunday School and yesterday she sent to Mr. Cochrane, $4.00, raised by the Sunday School for the funds of the Children's Aid Societ. We can never realize what a train of benefaction we put into motion when we do a good action, like the one recited. We sow the good seed and we gather the good fruit, if not in the form of dollar bills, then in some, perhaps, higher and nobler form.

ISN'T IT AWFUL?

The end draws near, and the day of decay of British connection is dawning. We have Mr. Foster, a member of the British-born government, actually crawling to the Yankee railway commission to carry Canadian wheat—to divert western Canadian traffic to north and south lines, instead of east and west. We have the Duke of Connaught actually visiting the United States and being friendly—hale fellow, well met — with our southern neighbours. Now, we have the Duke going wrong again. He is going fishing for salmon next summer in New Brunswick, and will be the guest of the Tobique Salmon Club, whose president and other officials are New York Yankees. Was it for this that the "British-Born" were herded and "hustled" to the polls, last September, to bring about non-intercourse with our neighbours to the south, in the interests of the salvation of the flag and the integrity of British connection?

BAD CONDITIONS.

The reason given by the Renfrew Journal for the agreement between Conservatives and Liberals of South Renfrew, to allow the Provincial and Dominion members to be elected by acclamation is not very flattering to our national sense of honour. The Journal states that the agreement was entered into "with the one end in view—of doing something to minimize the electoral corruption in the riding that all can realize too well". When it comes to this that political parties agree to "saw off" election contests to prevent wholesale corruption, it seems to be a hint to the parsons to dig a little deeper into the national moral malady than surface treatment, through protest against Sunday tobogganing. Sliding down hill is hardly as dangerous a moral lapse as selling and buying votes—a blow at the very root and foundation of representative institutions. Subduing Sunday sliding is only making clean the outside of the cup and platter, compared with severe lacing alone of the evil that lies at the bottom of electoral rottenness.

THE NEW WELLAND.

The Niagara Peninsula is rejoicing over the decision of the government to push work on the enlargement or rebuilding of the Welland Canal. But not only the Niagara district, but the whole of Canada, has reason to rejoice over the benefits that will come from the enlargement of the canal. In remote corners of the west, in Alberta and Saskatchewan, the news will bring joy and hope. The farmer who sees the fruit of his summer work, his wheat crop, rotting in heaps from lack of transportation, can take heart of grace and renewed hope for the better days are swifty coming. For many years to come the Welland canal will be the chief highway of western wheat, seaward bound. Transportation is the key of Canadian progress. The money we spend in this direction is money well spent. Its expenditure is local, but its benefits are national. The Trent canal must not be forgotten or overshadowed by the larger and infinitely costlier enterprise. It can, of course, never hope to carry as much grain freight as the Welland, but it can be a mighty important auxiliary avenue of access of western grain to ocean ports. Keep it moving is the cry.

CHARLES DICKENS.

A hundred years ago to-day, the man who, in adult life, made millions laugh, and stirred millions of tender, human hearts to tears, first saw the light. Charles Dickens is easily the greatest, the most human, the most appealing writer of fiction that ever appeared in this, or any other age. It is, perhaps, a misnomer to call him a writer of fiction, for no man ever made human nature, its foibles, its virtues; its weakness, its strength; its nobleness, its meanness, more real, more living, than Charles Dickens. In him is realized the lines of Hamlet:

"To hold * * the mirror up to nature; to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time, his form and pressure."

Dickens was—and is; one cannot speak of an immortal as of the past—no prose when Shakspere is to poetry. Both painted nature so truly that the pictures hang, imperishable, upon memory's walls. But with this difference: Shakspere appeals to the mind; Dickens, to the heart. In that, Dickens is the nobler workman of the two. He has touched more hearts, and, through them, has inspired more amelioration of human suffering; more redress of human wrong; set more minds rightly thinking; set more hearts beating with the true pulse of human sympathy, and done more real, enduring good than the golden millions of philanthorpists. His purpose was always high, and his way to his purpose was high, also. His writings were pure, and in all his works there is not one sentence that can bring a blush to the most sensitively modest cheek. In all things his heart was as sound as his head. The man, or woman, that cannot read and admire Dickens is to be pitied; for Dickens was, above all, the prose poet of humanity; and to be out of sympathy with the appeal to our humanity is the utter sadness of isolation. Dickens is dead, as to the body, but he lives forever in his works and in the heavenly home of good men; and if he can look down, on the world of man, he would join Tiny Tim, in the prayer that holds the motive of his life and works, "God bless us all".

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Bourassac acid taken in large quantities—2g to 70—has a tendency to thin the blood and induce cold feet.

The sudden subsidence of the breeze raised over the threats of violence and blood-shed, to prevent Winston Churchill and John Redmond from discussing Home Rule in Belfast, illustrates the truth of the proverb, "threatened men live long."

WILL THIS BRING AN ANSWER?

(Montreal Herald.)

There has been some curiosity expressed, from time to time during the past few months, as to how long the Borden Government would be allowed to forget its conflicting obligations in respect to the navy. Most of the inquiries have originated with the Liberals, and so have been passed over as merely annoying when not wholly irrelevant. The latest inquiry comes from Mr. Bourassa, and may or may not get more attention.

Mr. Bourassa has been reading the despatches from London, in particular those which send on Lord Charles Beresford's statements about the inefficiency of the navy. He reminds Mr. Borden that it is to the direction of the navy board which Lord Charles condemns as ignorant and incapable that the Canadian navy would be automatically turned over in a time of crisis. Canadians, he argues, have no means of finding out for themselves, no right to demand the information, whether Lord Beresford is right or not. "Only the electors of the United Kingdom, our brothers and equals in theory, our masters in reality, have this right and this power." Therefore, as we are not ready to enter blind-folded into an organization pronounced to be 'absolutely defective' by a principal naval officer, Mr. Borden is called upon to clear the ground by repealing the Laurier naval law. "Why," Mr. Bourassa wants to know, "do the Cabinet and its majority hesitate to vote the repeal of this law? On the admission of the Prime Minister himself, the vote of September 21 condemned the navy act equally with the reciprocity treaty."

As to the merits of the issue, the time for debate will only come when the new Cabinet has something of its own to propose. For the present, it is clearly immoral and unconstitutional for a Government to go on as if there never was such a thing as the navy discussion, when its very existence depends upon the constant support of men who were elected to procure the repeal of the navy act; especially, as would appear, the section of the party which is for still more aggressive measures than the act contemplates are going on with their plans as if nothing had happened. Mr. Borden might very well be content to forget all about the subject, and to argue that what was good to talk about before the elections is excellent to be silent about now. Perhaps it may occur to him, in view of Harbour Commission, to try what the happy ending of the bolt over the would come of inviting Mr. Bourassa to dinner. One suspects, however, that Mr. Bourassa is less susceptible to the charm of the trencher than the interesting statesmen whose election he did so much to bring about. If Mr. Bourassa really wants to know what they are going to do about the navy business, and when they are going to do it, Mr. Borden might just as well send for Hon. Sam Hughes and the Hon. Bob. Rogers and find out. Mr. Bourassa is very pertinacious, and will exact an answer in one way if it is not furnished him in another.

Manitoba School Question Still Bothers Hon. Mr. Borden

OTTAWA, FEB. 6.—The presence of Archbishop Langevin of Manitoba here to-day and the fact that Mr. Armand Lavergne is coming to-morrow in connection with the terms for the Manitoba boundaries, in so far as they affect separate schools, is indicative of the fact that the fight of the Nationalists and the hierarchy for a clause in the boundary extension bill preserving the rights of the Roman Catholic Church to separate schools in the territory to be annexed, is waxing warmer. Archbishop Langevin had a long interview with Archbishop Bruchesi in Montreal yesterday, and came here this morning to interview his former political ally, Hon. Robt. Rogers, on the situation and to protest against the present proposal of the Government to leave out of the bill any clause specifying that separate schools shall be continued in the territory to be added to Manitoba.

Mr. Armand Lavergne, Mr. Bourassa's first lieutenant and the man whom Premier Borden consulted as to the Nationalists' demands in the formation of his Cabinet, is coming to-morrow to enter a similar protest and to support the other Quebec supporters of the Government in their demands for the fulfillment of the pledges they gave their constituents during the last election campaign. Mr. Borden's Quebec contingent emphatically declare that they will not submit to the passing of any bill which does not safeguard the rights of the Roman Catholic minority in Manitoba, and if the measure comes down to the House without the required clause they will move to have it inserted, thus precipitating a serious split to the party ranks.

The whole question was debated at length at Saturday's Cabinet council meeting, without any solution being reached which will avert the threatened split. So far as can be learned the Government has not yet decided which horn of its dilemma to grasp, and the feeling is growing among the more experienced politicians in the Province that under all the circumstances the only safe course is to temporise and shelve the whole matter for the session.

In regard to the dispute between Ontario and Manitoba respecting the division of new territory, the Borden Administration is of opinion that the Manitoba Government is doomed in any case and that it is politically more expedient to grant the demand of Ontario for a larger slice of territory than was originally intended, including the granting to Ontario of Port Nelson which is to be the terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway.

It is understood that the Manitoba representatives are now pressing for compensation in the shape of a slice of Ontario's present territory. They point out that a very large section of the residents of the Rainy River district have already petitioned the Federal Government for annexation to Manitoba, owing to dissatisfaction with the lack of regard shown to their interests by the Whitney Government. A proposal has been made that this district should be added to Manitoba and the new boundary line on the east of Manitoba should be a line running almost straight south from Fort Nelson to the American border. It is hardly likely, however, that Ontario will agree to any such proposition.

Protestant Propogandists Of Home Rule For Ireland

The noise at Belfast may delude many Protestants into the notion that the home rule agitation is Roman Catholic in its inspiration and its aims, with the Vatican pulling the strings. So far from this being the truth, Protestants should be proud of the glorious part their co-religionists have played in the cause of Irish freedom. On the roll of Irish patriots, there are no more shining names than those of Protestants.

Robert Emmet (1778-1803), whose uninscribed tombstone will yet be cut with his fitting epitaph—the accomplishment of home rule—was Protestant; he died like a felon on a scaffold after having given practically his whole life to the cause of the freedom denied his country. The desultory rebellion he led brought about his capture and execution. No Roman Catholic has given more for the cause of national emancipation than the man whose last oration was kindled by the flame of approaching martyrdom.

Lord Edward Fitzgerald, the famous Irish insurgent, was a Protestant and a patriot. He sacrificed a career in the army and a life of aristocratic pleasure to the cause of his beloved country. His bold denunciation of the lord-lieutenant and the House majority as "the worst subjects the King has," led to his dismissal from the army. He plotted for the overthrow of the Government, and a reward of £1,000 caused his betrayal. He was wounded by one of his captors, and died as a result of the wound.

The inventor of the phrase, "home rule," Isaac Butt, was another of the Protestant leaders in the home rule movement. He was the son of a Protestant clergyman, and his devotion to the cause of Ireland shortened his life. He was the predecessor of Parnell in the leadership of the Irish parliamentary party.

Henry Grattan's insistent cry for Irish liberty caused his name to be struck from the privy council roll. He served in the councils of the great leaders of the movement and struck effective blows at the traditional arguments against self-government. He is also to be numbered with those other fearless Protestants, who offered their lives, if need be, that every creed and class in Ireland might be free.

The proximity of Charles Stewart Parnell to the present gives him the distinction of being the greatest Protestant home rule exponent the country ever had. He made a world issue of home rule, banding together the Celts of all countries, and forcing the home rule cause as it had never been forced before into practical politics. A Protestant himself, he sounded the knell of landlord despotism, and the sentence was for Catholic and Protestant alike.

The struggle for home rule has not been a clash of creeds, as is charged to-day. History holds a noble band of Protestants who have fought for Irish liberties because they were Irish and liberty-loving. The pride of race is behind the home rule movement now as always. The religious issue has nothing essentially to do with it, and is dragged in by cunning politicians, who play on the fears and prejudices of a minority in Ireland, which is not of Irish descent.—London Advertiser.

THE BEAR CATS GO INTO THE SEMI-FINALS BEAT TRENTON ON THE ROUND BY 6 GOALS

Although the Blue and White Juniors were Beaten by One Goal Last Night in Great Game They Easily Won Round.

A FINE EXHIBITION

The Bear Cats are ready for the next team the O. H. A. may choose to send them against. Last night they lost a fast and exciting battle at Trenton by 2 goals to 1, but captured the round handily by six goals the total score being 13 to 7. The result on the round was never in doubt, but the issue, as far as the game was concerned, was a matter that was not settled until the last gong sounded. It was a slam-bang, nip and tuck exhibition; full of brilliant hockey, neat combination, spectacular individual efforts and great work by both goal-keepers. At half-time Trenton was in front 2 to 1, and the figures remained unchanged until the finish.

Although beaten by the odd goal in three, the Bear Cats had a shade the better of the play. Had they had any luck in shooting they would undoubtedly been reversed the result but they could not locate the nets, and when they did shoot straight, Young picked off their heaves. They deserved to win because they bored in better than did the black-suited seven, and beat the defence much more frequently than did Lawson Whitehead's protoges. The latter had as many shots, perhaps, but they were from outside, on nearly every occasion. Denison and Milloy aided by the great back-checking of the forward line, holding them out in splendid style. The big ice only bothered the Bear Cats in one particular: i.e., in shooting. They could not seem to get a line on the nets, and time after time, when they had beaten Armstrong and Labey, by clever passing combination work, the shot would miss by inches, or else go straight at Young's pads.

They had Trenton beaten, as far as team work was concerned their passing being good all through. Both teams checked back, fiercely, the forwards being of great assistance to the defence, and more than once shots on both sides were spoiled by the opposing line coming back in time to head off the attack. It was a grand exhibition. The fast ice and the big rink was thoroughly conducive to brilliant hockey, and that's what it was all through. Fifteen hundred people, including some twenty-five from Peterborough, saw the game, and were delighted with the struggle which certainly lacked none of the features that make up a first-class demonstration of Canada's national winter game. Play never lagged for an instant. First one goal then the other, was threatened. First, one forward line would go down, then an opposing defence man would shoot down in a spectacular individual rush, and so it went all through the chapter. It was seen early in the game that unless the Bear Cats blew up altogether, the Trenton boys had no chance on the round, and that they would have their work cut out, even to win the game. The Bear Cats, as usual, showed no stage fright away from home. They got their bearings on the big ice surface quickly, and went right to work. They had the edge on Trenton, but could not score, that sums up the game exactly. It was a clean, friendly struggle, with no inclination on the part of any to mix it up, and Referee Allan Kinder, of Preston, had an easy task. Kinder, who, by the way, is to referee the game in Cobourg to-night, was fair, and impartial, and gave every satisfaction.

Joe Dwyer played a splendid game in the nets for the Petes. He was beaten by a very easy shot for the first Trenton score, but he made up for it by a score of pretty stops later on, his work in the second half being classy. To say the least, Milloy was as effective as usual in his checking methods, and his rushes were always useful. Denison was the best man on the ice. The big boy has struck his stride now, and the way he went down that arena, eluding check after check in spectacular fashion, made the spectators sit up and take notice. "He's a great hockey player" was the tribute Lawson Whitehead paid him. His checking was splendid and his rushes one of the outstanding features. Several times he went from end to end and a score seemed certain, but Young nailed the shot. All the forwards played grand hockey; Clancy, especially, took kindly to the big rink and his dashes down the side were pretty to watch. He had bad luck with his shots, three times hitting the side of the net from a close angle and other heaves missed by inches. Hall was on the job all the way, being the pivot for most of the combination rushes that were pulled off. Weir's great speed was, as usual, strongly in evidence, the youngster tearing off some pretty rushes, and back-checking all the way. Kennedy was in the limelight all the time, his checking being of decided assistance. On one occasion he flashed back and stole the puck off Armstrong's stick, as the Trenton cove was poised in front of the nets for a shot—about as pretty a piece of back-checking as was seen all night. For Trenton, one would be inclined to give Young (the goal-keeper) credit for playing the star game. Either he is a classy goal-keeper, or he has horseshoes all over him. Anyway his work last night was gilt-edged. He nailed shots at all ranges coolly and accurately, and several times sailed out of his nets after his defence had been beaten, and picked off the shots. Armstrong was prominent at all stages, but the Petes forward line looked after him, in grand style, and he wasn't given many opportunities to slip down unhampered by interference from behind. He did fine work on the defence, his long "poke" check fooling the Peterborough forwards. Labey did some nice rushing in the first half. On the forward line the two wing men, Sprintall and McGorman were, perhaps, the most effective, although all four had lots of speed.

The teams lined up identically the same as in Peterborough, as follows:

The pace was fast from the start, and both goal-keepers were called on often and early. Clancy and Hall combined, but the former's shot went over the net. Then Armstrong came through with a rush, his shot going high. The battle waged up and down, with nothing doing until Sprintall sent a weak shot from the side, which slid along the ice and sneaked between Dwyer's skates, for a fluky goal.

Tripp was penalized for tripping, but there was nothing doing while he was on the boards. Then Weir was chased for the same offence, and while he was away Clancy went up the side and shot. Young blocked the shot, but Clancy followed in and shoved the rubber past Trenton goalie, tying the score.

Weir got back on the ice but was sent away again for tripping Labey. Then Tripp took his second trip to the fence for a trip. A few minutes before half-time, Armstrong came down alone, and, boring in, beat Dwyer with one of his bullet-like shots. Dwyer got his hands on the rubber, but it slipped through for the last goal of the game.

There was no scoring in the second half, although both sides had some glorious chances. Half a dozen times the Peterborough forward line broke clean through, but failed to score. Hall missed the net by an inch just before time was called, the rubber just clearing the bar. McGorman, Kennedy, Tripp, Clancy, Sprintall, and Milloy all served penalties, the latter getting two sentences.

Summary—
1—Trenton, Sprintall, 7 mins.
2—Peterborough, Clancy, 8 mins.
3—Trenton, Armstrong, 6 mins.

EXCURSION TO COBOURG TO-NIGHT WILL BE WELL PATRONIZED BY THE FANS

There will be no change in the Peterborough line-up for the Intermediate game at Cobourg to-night, the seven being the same which won the district without a defeat. A big crowd of fans are going down on the special (G.T.R.) train leaving here at 7 o'clock. The game looks to be one of the most interesting seen in this district, and naturally local people welcome an opportunity to see the battle. Allan Kinder of Preston, who refereed the Peterborough-Trenton junior game last night, will handle the ball in Cobourg. The round-trip fare is $1.25 for adults, and 65c for children.

Oshawa May Be Bear Cats' Next Opponents Well Balanced Bunch

The Toronto News says:

Piling up a seven-goal lead in the first game of the home and home series against T.A.A.C. juniors, the crack Oshawa septette practically made certain of going into the semi-finals against Peterborough. They defeated the Crimson team 13 to 6 before a large crowd at Excelsior Rink last night, all round superiority giving them the game on the play, although the heavy penalties earned by the T.A.A.C. helped the visitors in accumulating a big lead in the first half.

LIGHT TEAM TOO SPEEDY

It was figured out by the dopesters that the heavier T.A.A.C. squad would be able to hold their own, and possibly beat the Oshawa team on the small ice surface at Excelsior. This dope, however, went sadly astray, the lighter team outplaying their bulkier opponents at all stages. It was Oshawa's game all the way, though the second half was productive of better hockey. In this period the T.A.A.C. men kept on the ice, and their team-mates did not have to play against odds, as was the case for practically the whole of the first half. The teams crossed over with the score 9 to 1, this being a fair indication of the rush with which the Oshawa forwards started scoring.

WINNERS' SPLENDID SHOWING

Oshawa made a much better impression than the first time they played before a Toronto audience, and their chances against Peterborough look very bright. They have team play down to a science, and display a brand of hockey that is remarkable for such youngsters. They have not yet tasted defeat, and their clear-cut win over the T.A.A.C. team last night leaves very little doubt as to the result of the game in Oshawa on Wednesday. The team should just about eat up that T.A.A.C. aggregation upon the home ice. It was pretty to watch the manner in which the winners combined for several very nice goals, while at all times were the forwards in the right place. From goal out they played the game every minute. Their back passing from the corners was of the best. Ability to go the route is also a prominent factor in the team's success.

A TEAM OF STARS

It would be hard to pick out a star on the visitors' line-up, every man on the team showing up well. The defence was again air-tight, while the forward soon skated their checks into the ground. Reardon and Frechette made a grand skating defence, both figuring in the goal getting. Weller at left wing was the pick of the line, his snap shooting being of the best. Farr was a close second. Hall and Jacobi also performing up to the standard of the others. This club is a splendid, game lot of boys, who go right after their opponents from the drop of the hat. Peterborough may beat them, but not until after a great struggle.

BEAR CATS GIVEN A BYE WILL BE IN LAST FOUR

The Bear Cats have been given a bye in the third round of the junior O. H. A., and will therefore go into the semi-finals. The draw as announced to-day. While the other six remaining teams are pairing off the Petes will have a rest and will probably not be called upon to play until a week from to-night, when they and three other teams will be all that will be left in the running. This means that if the Bear Cats win their next round they will be in the finals. The locals are determined to annex another victory when they are called upon. The third round draw is announced as follows:

Intermediate.

Friday, Feb. 9—St. Marys at Paris.
Monday, Feb. 12.—Paris at St. Marys.
Friday, Feb. 9.—Winner Preston-Elmira at winner St. Catharines-Niagara Falls.
Monday, Feb. 12—Winner St. Catharines-Niagara falls or winner Preston-Elmira.
Midland-Markham, Peterborough-Cobourg, Argonaute-Mount Forest, not yet drawn.

Junior.

Friday, Feb. 9—Winner Berlin-Seaforth at Woodstock.
Monday, Feb. 12—Woodstock at winner Berlin-Seaforth.
Friday, Feb. 9.—University of Toronto at Orillia.
Monday, Feb. 12—Orillia v. University of Toronto.
Friday, Feb. 9—Winner Toronto Canoe Club-Dundalk at winner Oshawa-T. A. A. C.
Monday, Feb. 12.—Winner Oshawa-T. A. A. C. at winner Toronto Canoe Club-Dundalk.
Peterborough, a bye.

Both Peterborough Teams Considered As Contenders

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., FEB. 7.—The race for O.H.A. championships, senior, intermediate and junior, has narrowed down to the best clubs, says the Toronto Star to-day. In the senior series Kingston Frontenacs and Eatons will likely play for the J. Ross Robertson senior cup. Parkdale has an outside chance to tie the big store team in their group, but it looks like a forlorn hope to accomplish this. Parkdale must win in Stratford to-morrow night, which is quite possible and T.A.A.C. must defeat Eatons at the Excelsior rink on Saturday night, which is possible, but not probable.

A week from to-night the intermediate series will be down to the semi-finals and the ultimate winner will be in view. Paris, Preston and Midland are picked by the fans as sure contenders in the semi-finals, while others claim that Peterborough will surprise them all. In the junior series Woodstock looks like the best in the west, but either Berlin or Seaforth will give them a merry argument. Orillia and Varsity will have a great contest, as will Toronto Canoe Club and Oshawa. The fans expect to see Woodstock and Peterborough reach the semi-finals, which will begin a week from to-night.

LAZY LIVER BILIOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE, COATED TONGUE OR SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Electric Power "Shipped" From Peterborough To Belleville

Many citizens may not be aware of the big construction operations that have been quietly but effectively ben going on for some time in connection with development of electric power at Auburn by the Seymour Power Company. Though the full generating machinery has not been installed, two generating units are at work developing about 1,000 horse power. For some little time the Company has been supplying electric power to Cobourg and Belleville.

What An Ad. Club Can Do In Peterborough

What can an Ad. Club do in this here town?

The question is being asked, and it is deserving of an answer.

Our local merchants and others in Peterborough spend annually for advertising, sums of money—good hard cash—varying from a few dollars up to hundreds and thousands of dollars.

It is one thing to spend this money to purchase white space in the local newspapers. It is quite another thing to make this expenditure as profitable as it can be made. It is easier for an advertiser to purchase the space than to collect and arrange the proper matter to be in this space, so that it will be seen by the people and cause the people to come and spend their money, and afterwards be satisfied with their purchases, think favourably of that advertiser, and come back to his store again and again, in which case, and only in this case, can the largest profits result ultimately to the advertiser.

Advertisers are Busy Men.

Most of the purchasers of advertising space are exceedingly busy men. They often have not time, or think they have not time to afford the proper attention to preparing their advertising "copy". These men often do not know what constitutes a good advertisement. They do not know how to put one together. Few, of course, care to admit these facts, insofar as they themselves are concerned. They go ahead. They buy their space. Then, if results are not satisfactory, they place a ban on advertising, which, in reality, is the greatest known aid in the world to-day, in assisting distribution and placing the best goods within our reach at a reasonable price.

Expenditures for Advertising.

It is estimated that 600 millions of dollars were expended last year in advertising. The merchants of Peterborough, probably spent a sum varying from $20,000 to $30,000, or more.

With these facts before one it is easy to understand why most buyers of advertising space are anxious to learn more about the science and practice of advertising that they may get the most profitable results from this advertising. This is why it is that such a deep interest has developed in the Ad. Club movement, which has spread throughout the cities in the United States, and now is making remarkable advances here in Ontario.

Going Ideas of Value.

Any man of progressive ideas and business ability will reach out and accept ideas worth good hard cash to him. Many such ideas are going in the properly conducted Ad. Club. Therefore, it is anticipated that no difficulty whatever will be experienced in organizing a going Ad. Club next Tuesday night, when the local men interested in advertising and in writing advertisements, will meet in Hooper's Palm Parlour at 6.15 p.m., to partake of dinner, and to benefit from ideas that will be going, as thrown out by the prominent member of the Toronto Ad Club who will be present, and others, local men, who will take part in the discussions.

KEENE LOST TO TORONTO GRANITES YESTERDAY

In an exciting curling match in Toronto yesterday morning Granites defeated Keene in a two-rink contest, by seven shots, in the District Cup series. The game was curled on the Queen City rink. The semi-final for the cup will be played this afternoon between Granites and Forest.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Dominion Express Co. big six wheelers accept the challenge of the Canadian Express Co. 'Hustlers' for any other game of hockey to be played at Brock street rink. We should think by the decided defeat they got Saturday night they would be satisfied, but if Wriggler Pigeon will make the necessary arrangements to get the rink for some night this week it will be satisfactory to Manager Sandy Sanderson of the Dominion team, but after the tenth this challenge will not hold good, as some of our members are leaving town for Vancouver. The Dominion team will be the same line-up as before. We wish to thank Mr. A. G. Carruthers for the interest he took in the match and for the splendid supper he provided after the game. Also Referee Kennalley for his good work.—Com.

In a good game of hockey between six and seven last night, the Central school team won from the Separates by a score of 7 to 4, leading at half time by 4 to nil. The stars for the winners were Cavanagh, Routley and Shark, and for the losers, Wolff, Galvin and Grady. Cavanagh and Routley could not play their usual game as the heavy body checks of Clancy took a lot of ginger out of them. But despite that fact the Centrals won a game which they well deserved.—Com.

There is a new name for the Peterborough defence now. Down at Trenton last night, somebody presented Denison and Milloy, with the title of Mutt and Jeff. The name will probably stick.

There was the best of feeling between the Trenton and Peterborough teams, last night, and after it was all over the Trenton team entertained the victors at a banquet at Robinson's restaurant. Lawson Whitehead and his team all wished Peterborough every success in their championship aspirations.

Some twenty-five Peterborough fans accompanied the Bear Cats to Trenton last night, and then went over to Cobourg for the Intermediate game to-night.

CURLING

The lady curlers played a friendly game, yesterday, with the men, with the following results:

Mrs. T. F. Matthews won from Mrs. Coulthard this morning by 3 points, in the second game of the competition for the prize offered by Mr. Cameron. Two more games will decide the winning rink.

Two Campbellford rinks invaded the precincts of the Charlotte Street Curling Rink last night, and took away with them the bitter pill of defeat. Skips Owen and Smith skipped the Campbellford rinks, and Skips Giroux and Moore performed a similar function, as regards the local rinks. The local quartettes won by 8 points in eight end game.

Following are the results of scheduled games played last night:

A number of local rinks will attend the Cobourg Bonspiel on Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 13 and 14, and also the Bobcaygeon, which will be held on the same date.

TORONTO AD. CLUB

Responsibility for men, women, children and the home, and how to advertise them was the interesting subject of Mr. C. E. Stone's address at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Toronto Ad. Club yesterday, at the Club's headquarters, 172 Yonge St. Pretty nearly everything good to eat or wear was covered, and the talk measured up to the subject in interest to advertising men.

PORTION OF ARMOUR ESTATE TO BE EXPROPRIATED FOR EAST WARD SCHOOL SITE

School Board Met in Regular Monthly Session Last Night --Mr. T.F. Matthews Appointed as Arbitrator in Expropriation Proceedings--Communications Received.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held last night in the secretary's office. Those present were: Messrs John Crane (chairman), V. Eastwood, B. F. Ackerman, T. H. Adams, Dr. Morrison, Messrs W. H. Hill, R. Fair and Dr. Burnham.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED.

From Captain E. Clarke, of Kingston, asking for information as to the number of physical instructors required for the training of public school teachers for the coming year. The department propose to conduct classes commencing after April 15th.

The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee.

From W. G. Morrow, thanking the board for the honour conferred upon him for their appointing him the board's representative to the Public Library Board for a term of five years. Received.

From H. R. H. Kenner, to the effect that Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, librarian, had donated to the Collegiate library an illustrated history of England in two volumes.

It was moved that the secretary be instructed to write Mr. Dela Fosse, thanking him for the donation, on behalf of the board.

From Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, thanking the board for the use of the Collegiate Assembly Hall for her choral class.

From Mr. W. H. Colquhoun, Deputy-Minister of Education, stating that the inspector had carefully looked into conditions affecting the gymnasium, and recommending that a new gymnasium be built in order to meet with the requirements of the Department of Education.

Moved by Mr. Eastwood, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, that a committee consisting of members of the Supervision Committee wait upon the Minister with a view to securing permission to withhold the building of a new gymnasium for this year at least.

From the Deputy-Minister of Education, giving a detailed report of the condition of the Peterborough public schools.

The report, which was a lengthy one, indicated a very satisfactory showing as regards the equipment and efficiency of the public schools of the city.

REPORTS RECEIVED.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:

Davis-Thompson Co.	$ 20.00

All of which is respectfully submitted.

T. H. ADAMS, Chairman.

Moved by Mr. Adams, seconded by Mr. Fair, that report be adopted.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—Your committee beg to report and recommend that the agreement between the board and Mr. Frederick Bartlett be adopted, and that the chairman and secretary be authorised to sign the same.

Your committee also recommend that Mr. T. F. Matthews be appointed arbitrator in connection with the expropriation of a portion of the Armour Estate property for a site for the East Ward School.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. W. MORRISON, Chairman.

Mr. V. Eastwood was not in favour of the Armour Estate property as a site for the new East Ward School. He was of the opinion that the site of the old school would be more central and better adapted.

"The exposed position of the site and the cost of arbitration proceedings necessary to expropriate the six acres of land required, were also worthy of further consideration by the Board," said Mr. Eastwood in explaining his views to the Board. As he was not present at the last meeting, when the matter was taken up, he therefore had not the opportunity of expressing his opinion iin the matter.

He also took exception to the action of the Building committee in recommending Mr. Bartlett's engagement as architect for the new schools about to be constructed. His objection was based on the grounds that Mr. Bartlett had no previous experience in the construction of school buildings, and probably better and more efficient service would be secured by placing the work in the hands of an outsider with previous experience in the designing and construction of school buildings. He had no desire to disparage Mr. Bartlett's reputation, but he took exception to his engagement for this work on the grounds mentioned above.

Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Building Committee, favoured the Armour property, as it could be secured at less expense, and was a better location in many respects than the present one.

Moved by V. Eastwood, seconded by B. F. Ackerman, that the payment of the following accounts be confirmed:

Y.M.C.A., use of Gymnasium for December	$100.00
R. Nicholls, account per order	6.00

Annual Meeting Of Lock Company

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company took place at the office of the Company on Monday. The annual statement was presented and adopted. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Hon. J. R. Stratton.
Vice-President—Mr. W. G. Morrow.
Directors—Messrs. H. Rush, Wm. Irwin, and E. H. Hewson, the latter of whom is also Secretary-Treasurer of the Company. The report showed that the Company had expended in the past two years, on new buildings, remodelling, and new plant, over $40,000.00.

Surgeon-Colonel Worthington Dead

Special to The Examiner.

SHERBROOKE, QUE., FEB. 7. — Surgeon Col. Arthur Norrey Worthington, ex-M.P. for Sherbrooke, died this morning after a long illness. He was a veteran of the Northwest rebellion and South African war, being mentioned in despatches at both campaigns. He was fifty years of age and leaves a widow.

Mutual Life Had Prosperous Year

The Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada had a very prosperous year in 1911. Its 42nd annual statement shows that the surplus earned during the year amounted to $734,084.83, which is a very gratifying result of the year's operations. The insurance in force is now upwards of $71,000,000, the assets over $18,000,000, the income, $3,729,541, so that this Company has become one of the Dominion's big financial institutions. The combined effect of a good interest income and a favourable death rate seems to be indicated by the fact that the interest income would have been sufficient to pay the death claims more than twice over. The bulk of the Company's assets are invested in mortgages, debentures and bonds and loans on policies ,all of which have proven themselves in the past to be safe and consistent with the investment requirements of an insurance compay. The new assurances for 1911 were $10,027,374.

BATTLE FOR CHIVALRY

Fracas in Which Pistols and Coffee Would Have Been Very Appropriate

DAN CUPID'S NEW ROLE

A youth whose daily occupation consists of riding upon the stormdeck of an express waggon; formed the central figure in a fracas on Hunter street, near Bell's grocery store, last night. A girl, who resides on Park street, in close proximity to the West Ward School, and her escort, the latter purporting to be a stranger in the city, also took an active part in the hostilities, which were the outcome of some insulting remarks, passed by the express driver, and directed towards the couple who were later destined to become combatants in the fray which followed. With the girl acting as referee, and the two male members of the trio fighting, presumably for honour, the affair was of sufficient interest to attract a handful of spectators. Just before one of the combatants went down for the count the girl took advantage of the pre-eminent position as referee, and waded into the mix-up, herself, landing the express driver a "biff on the jaw" that savoured of the sleep-producing variety. By reason of the slippery condition of the sidewalk and the apparent reluctance of the rivals to continue the encounter, one of the men fell, and was immediately rendered hors de combat, by his opponent. The scene of operations was next transferred to the centre of the road, where, after a few more skirmishes, augmented by a quota of verbal fireworks, interspersed by some choice expressions, that would not survive the scrutiny of the proof-reader, the rivals dispersed, with honours equally divided.

LOUIE MENDEL, Singing "Way Down in Georgia," Belmont Minstrels.

Mr. W. A. Bailey As Lord Chesterton

Sir,—I quite agree with most of the remarks about the dogs on the streets to-night, but manners are bad on the street anyway and there are rules and regulations governing such matters, without resorting to slander and vulgarity. W. A. B.

P.S.—The arguments over the milk question are not fair to dealers or consumers.

AN EXPLOSION

Consternation prevailed at the Charlotte Street crossing for a few moments this morning, when a barrel of oil exploded.

Several of the G. T. R. employees were working on the semaphore. One of the men had ignited a fire for the purpose of thawing out a barrel of oil, which was to have been used in connection with their work on the semaphore, when suddenly a loud report was heard, and simultaneously a lurid flash was seen. Recovering from the shock those nearby looked round almost expecting to see some one either killed or dangerously injured, but, curiously enough, not a person was touched, though several men were standing close to the fire. In fact, one man actually stood beside the barrel at the time of the explosion, but he was uninjured. The end of the barrel was afterwards discovered lodged on the roof of Messrs. Perkins, Ince and Company's grocery warehouse.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c. Also sold at Payne's drug store.

LEAGUE CONVENTION AT BELLEVILLE

Miss Pearl Hardill is representing the George Street Church Epworth League as delegate to the tenth biennial convention of the Epworth Leagues, which is being held in Belleville to-day. The convention will be held in Bridge Street Church, and a number of prominent League workers will take part in the programme. Between two and three hundred delegates will be in attendance.

TORONTO "HOGS" EVEN ORANGE OFFICIALS

KINCARDINE, FEB. 5.—Members of the West Bruce County Orange Lodge are warmly discussing among themselves the predominating influence of Toronto in the Provincial Grand Lodge and in the counsels of the association generally. They are reported as alleging that Tory Toronto is responsible for too many compromising actions on the part of the association. The County Lodge of Toronto comprises over sixty subordinate lodges. It is probably the largest county in Canada. In Western Ontario the county lodges average 15 subordinate lodges each.

"You might as well call it the Grand Lodge of Toronto as call it the Grand Lodge of Ontario West," one Orangeman declared to your correspondent. The complaint of the Orangemen here is that Toronto's delegation in Grand Lodge not only controls the proceedings, but elects the officers.

The Grand Master, F. Lovelock, is from Toronto; the Deputy Grand Master, Fred Dane, is from Toronto; the Grand Secretary, W. Fitzgerald, is from Toronto; the office of Grand Treasurer, now vacant, is also claimed by Toronto; the Grand Chaplain, Rev. John Coburn, is from Toronto; the Grand Director of Ceremonies, C. A. B. Jennings, is from Toronto.

The connection of many of the Grand Lodge officers with the Government is alleged to be a source of embarrassment to the order. The Grand Master is Assistant King's Printer, the Deputy is a member of the T. and N. O. Commission, the Assistant Deputy is head of the Provincial Asylum at Woodstock for Epileptics; the County Master of Toronto, Wm. Crawford, is an official of the Public Works Department. With the Grand Lodge, headed by officials in such positions, it is felt here that such a condition may prejudice the position of the order in the settlement of the bilingual school question by Sir James Whitney.

IRISH UNIONISTS WILL NOT LIKELY INTERFERE WITH HOME RULE MEETING

BELFAST, FEB. 5.—The council of the Unionist party met here to-day and passed a resolution authorizing the issuance of a manifesto appealing to the Irish Unionists not to interfere with the Home Rule meeting which is to be held at Celtic Park on Thursday next, and at which Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, will speak. It was also decided to ask the members of the party to carefully refrain from doing anything that would react to the injury of the Unionist cause in Ireland.

The Grand Orange Lodge also adopted a resolution to-day not to interfere in any way with Mr. Churchill.

The Unionists profess to be satisfied at having forced Mr. Churchill to speak in a Nationalist quarter and in a ring fenced by bayonets. The Liberal Association to-day proposed to the Unionist Council that both should cancel their engagements at Ulster Hall for February 7 and 8.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlains' Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was for-suppressed to send a testimonial of what it has done for us, hoping others may profit as we have done by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Many Calls For Charity

The demands made upon the charity department of the city have been unusually large this year. Commencing with a few stray calls in December, the number have steadily increased until they are now of daily occurrence. When followed up, some of these cases disclose pathetic circumstances, especially in cases where the bread winner of a family of six or seven children is incapacitated from work. One such case was investigated by Relief Officer Miller this afternoon. The husband was confined to his bed, a victim of tuberculosis, with a wife, and six children dependent upon him. Wood and groceries are the principal commodities furnished by the department and in many cases help has to be engaged to cut the wood supplied.

A call for help is always followed by a rigid investigation on the part of Relief Officer Miller, who deals with all cases in a manner that will accrue the best possible results.

JOHN C. WALDIE IS NEW COUNTY MASTER

Of County Orange Lodge—Annual Meeting Was Held Last Night

West Peterborough County Orange Lodge held their annual meeting last evening. A large and enthusiastic gathering of members was present, and a considerable amount of business was transacted. Plans for the celebration of the coming 12th of July, in this city, were also discussed. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Co. Master—Bro. John C. Waldie, No. 321.
Dep. Co. M.—Bro. E. F. Reid, No. 50.
Co. Chap.—Bro. J. A. Armstrong, No. 457.

TO BE GUEST

BERLIN, GERMANY, FEB. 7.—Lord Chas. Beresford, who arrived here last night is to be a guest of Kaiser William this afternoon for a luncheon. Strange, too, it will be immediately after his Majesty gives a speech to the new Reichstag advising of greater additions to the German navy owing to increases in British navy, largely fostered by Beresford.

To Speak At St. James' Church This Evening

The Evangelical services being held at St. James' Methodist church are being continued throughout this week. The attendance has been encouraging and definite results have marked the work. Rev. A. C. Huffman, of Worsaw, will be the preacher for this week. He will speak tonight on the subject: "What is costs not to be a Christian".

JUDGE HUYCKE WILL LEAD BIBLE CLASS

In the absence of Rev. Mr. Henderson, His Honour Judge Huycke will take the leadership of the Charlotte Street Methodist church to-night, at 9 o'clock.

MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

The country roads are likely to cause trouble to the farmers if the wind should become strong, now that the fields are deep with snow. The highways are already heavy, but several farmers stated to-day that if the wind becomes strong the roads will be filled with the loose snow that has fallen of late. The weather man has been exceedingly generous with the "beautiful" of late and if the wind is let loose one of these nights, there should be drifts that will remind old residents of the winters of years ago.

KNOX CHURCH NOTICES.

Wednesday evening district services will be held in the following places:

Mr. S. Stinson's, 564 Chamberlain street; Mr. F. Drake's, 667 Boliver street; Mr. Geo. Bartley's, 136 Rubidge street; Mrs. Reid's, 310 Maitland street; Mr. E. Carr's, 333 Reid street; Mr. Feir's, 84 Aylmer; Mr. J. Trussler's, 256 Wescott street.

Thursday, 3 p.m.—Ladies' Aid Society will meet in the Ladies' Parlours.

Friday evening—Boys' Club Rally: address by Mr. Roy Smyth. Choir practice at 8 p.m.

Ambitious Men who realize their latent ability and seek success in life, are invited to a careful consideration of the famous food,

Grape-Nuts

Brain Nourishment is essential to Brain Activity.

A sluggish brain is a handicap---a hindrance in the path of promotion.

Grape-Nuts food, made of whole wheat and barley, contains the tissue-building "albumins" and the energy-making starches (changed into dextrin and grape sugar in making Grape-Nuts.) It also contains the phosphate of potash[grown in the grains]—the cell-forming, mineral element Nature uses in building brain and nerve cells.

Grape-Nuts, regularly for breakfast, will help anyone.

"There's a Reason"

NO TROUBLE
Promotions are Easy When Your Brains Work.

A young man who earned a fine position tells how food helped him:

"I was engaged as a bookkeeper for a large publishing house in New York city, where the work was trying and hours so long I gradually broke down under the strain.

"My brain seemed thick and I lost the good health that I once claimed. I was compelled to resign my position, feeling that a good rest was needed.

"After three weeks' recreation I accepted a position as assistant cashier with one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the United States, feeling that the work would not be so hard mentally, and that the change would be for the best.

"It took just two days to convince me I had undertaken a task beyond the power of my overworked and underfed brain, and I decided to again resign, disgusted with myself and the world in general. That day I met a friend whose counsel I asked before taking the step. After I had related my troubles to him he said, 'Eat Grape-Nuts my boy.'

"I looked on his remark as a joke at the time, but by the time I reached home I had thought it over and determined to give Grape-Nuts food a trial, and the next day it was on my table. The food seemed to give me new life from the start and gradually a great power for work became evident. It increased from day to day, my brain became active and my capacity for mental work unlimited. My duties at the office, that at first seemed beyond my capability, are now accomplished with precision, accuracy and pleasure.

"Last month I was promoted to the position of cashier amid the congratulations of my friends. I attribute my success to those wonderful little grains of food—Grape-Nuts, and to all I repeat a motto that is worthy of thought 'Eat Grape-Nuts my boy.'" Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

MERCHANTS IN THE WEST CARRYING MORE CREDIT THAN USUAL, IS REPORT

WINNIPEG, FEB. 8.—The shortage of cars is causing considerable trouble to the farmers and elevator men, and some cases, actual losses. A Quill Lake despatch to the Free Press, says there was a larger acreage sown last year in that district than in 1910, but owing to the lesser yield the total crop will be about the same for the two years, or 3600,000 bushels. Of this 150,000 bushels only have been shipped, shipments having taken place chiefly at the beginning of the season, since when the grain has only left in driblets. There are thus 450,000 bushels still to be shipped, and unless cars are furnished at a very different rate from that hitherto prevailing, the grain will simply be left on the farmers' hands and in some cases, at any rate, will represent a dead loss to its owners. Opinions differ as to the amount of grain still to be threshed, estimates varying from 50,000 to 100,000 bushels. It is principally among the smaller farmers in the district north of the town that the grain is still in stook and stack. But even along the main line one sees quite a number of fields still in stook.

Quill Lake storekeepers state without exception that they are carrying customers who never before asked for credit. A leading storekeeper said he had $2,000 more on his books than he had ever had before. This man has also a farm near town and his position is aggravated by the fact that he cannot get a car to ship his grain. He put his name down for a car on Nov. 17 last and his name is still tenth on the list.

In a normal season the local bank would probably be able to cope with all the necessities of the situation, but as it is, it is unable, or at any rate, failing to do so. Statements that the bank is closing down on credit are general. Collections are undoubtedly at a standstill and at present there are no prospects of them improving. Farmers in almost every case are asking for a renewal of their notes. They are failing to pay school taxes and the bank is hesitating to loan to school districts.

There is plenty of cordwood around here and coal, which rules $13.75 a ton in price, is not scarce.

BYERSVILLE PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED WITH MR. BYERS

Byersville Post Office, Feb. 7, 1912
To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned residents of Byersville, beg to say that the dismissal of Mr. W. J. Byers, as Post Master of Byersville Post Office is against the wishes of a large majority of the residents of Byersville.

We deny that the charge in the Review, of a few nights ago, is true, that there is dissatisfaction on the part of the residents of Byersville, by reason of the handling of the affairs in the Post Office. Mr. Byers is popular, highly respected, and a first-class, efficient Post Master, and his office is in the most central part and most convenient part of Byersville.

We have been unable to learn that he has been in any way partisan in any of the elections and he has treated all persons dealing at his store and getting mail at his Post Office with uniform courtesy, and attention.

There are 81 families obtaining mail at this Post Office, and a petition of Byersville residents was yesterday sent to the Post Master General, asking that Mr. Byers be not removed. On that petition all the heads of the families in the neighbourhood placed their names with the exception of possibly a dozen. The petition contained 86 names of residents in that neighbourhood, who obtain mail at the above Post Office.

We would respectfully urge Mr. Burnham, the Dominion member, to reconsider any recommendation which has been made, for the dismissal of Mr. Byers, and particularly when the choice, we understand, will be Mr. Saunders.

We, the undersigned, took the petition around the neighbourhood for signatures of the petitioners and challenge any person to contradict the accuracy of the above statements. We are,

Yours truly.
Robert Cohan,
James Wm. Box,
John Scott.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Rosenburger, 16 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: 'Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years.'

CAREY'S GROCERY SALE

Now is a good time for housekeepers and others to buy groceries at about wholesale prices. That's what Mr. R. P. Carey offers during his sale of groceries and that is what you will receive. He is retiring from business and must sell his stock quickly. The saving chances this sale offers should not be missed.

LOCAL MERCHANTS REPORT FALLING OFF IN BUSINESS

January Quiet Was More Pronounced Than Usual—Outlook is Hopeful.

WHAT THE MERCHANTS SAY

The proverbial January quiet has come and gone. Its passing has occasioned very few regrets among the trades people, who are the principal sufferers by reason of the general depression which exists in many lines of business. The concensus of opinion among the merchants is that this condition will predominate throughout the greater portion of the present month of February. As far as can be learned the holiday business turned out satisfactory. The advent of it, in many quarters, helped materially towards the last of the season. Following the stock-taking season, which applies to both the retail and wholesale trade, a general tone of inertness commenced to assert itself. This, augmented by severe weather conditions, had a desultory effect on business in general. In many cases, business was helped along to some extent by easing prices a little, but even this failed in many cases to stimulate a business which had reached a lukewarm stage, and was carried almost beyond the brink of resuscitation.

How is Business?

In reply to this query the answer invariably follows: "It is no good" or "it's very dull."

"How do you find business?" queried the Examiner of a Hunter street fruit merchant.

"Well," he replied, "there's no use lieing about it; it's no good."

The next party who this query was directed at was a prominent George street grocer. "Business hasn't been so quiet in years," he declared. There are too many engaged in the same line," he added. "The margin of profit is small and the competition is keen. Our business is cut up to an alarming degree by reason of the fact that other tradespeople who are not engaged in the grocery business at all, handle many o four lines."

It's the same old story up and down the line. Business overlapping and very little buying or selling. The report of failures for 1911 show satisfactory signs of diminishing as compared with that of 1910 and is a marked contrast to its three predecessors.

EXCITEMENT IN BELFAST CHURCHILL SPOKE TO-DAY

Unionists Well Out in Force Armed With Sticks and Many Heads Were Cracked by the Police---Six Thousand People Cheered the First Lord of the Admiralty's Remarks

Special to The Examiner.

BELFAST, FEB. 8.—With five thousand troops scattered throughout the city, in readiness for a sudden call, with a large force of police and escort, which frequently had to charge on the mobs, and with his own native courage to give him strength, Right Hon. Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, entered the veritable centre of Home Rule antagonism to-day, and announced to six thousand cheering supporters, the terms of the proposed ad much talked of Home Rule Bill to be submitted to the House of Commons this session.

Churchill's progress through the rain-soaked streets of Belfast, from the station and the hotel, to the football grounds, where the meeting was held, was far from being a triumphal march. Evidence of determined opposition started from the moment his train rolled into the station. Even he company of his wife and mother did not protect him from personal insults. Before, after, and as near as they could get to Churchill's automobile, crowds of Unionists walked, carrying burning effigies of Churchill, and singing of "No Home Rule" and various Orange songs. Matters looked very serious for Mr. and Mrs. Churchill. When they started to the football grounds, with John Redmond and other prominent Nationalists, an angry mob, armed with sticks, tried to impede the path and only the force of detectives prevented personal violence to Churchill. The police charged repeatedly, and cracked many heads. Then crowds of oppositionists contented themselves with jeering and calling. The meeting was held in a huge marque, while rain poured steadily. Churchill promised legislation in the Home Rule Bill that would do away with accursed machinery that had manufactured distrest in the past. He said the Irish Parliament and Senate would fairly represent the minority, as well as the majority in Ireland. Their legislation could be vetoed by the Privy Council or by the Crown. The military would remain under the control of the Imperial Parliament. Religious freedom would be assured to all. The Irish Parliament to control its own finances, subject to Imperial policy. The Imperial Parliament to continue land purchase and pension scheme. Churchill's announcement received great cheering by the audience inside the tent, punctuated by counter jeers from Unionists parading on the streets.

SIXTY-FIVE MINERS ARE IMPRISONED WHEN TIMBERS COLLAPSE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

JACKSON, CAL., FEB. 8.— A hundred miners are to-day striving frantically to reach sixty-five comrades buried hundreds of feet deep in the Bunker Hill mine, following the collapse of rotten timbers. It is believed that all were alive last night and air is being pumped down through artesian well pipes, hastily bored through. The excitement and anxiety is intense.

BIG WINNIPEG BONSPIEL WAS OPENED TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, MAN., FEB 8. —One thousand visitors from the east and west, nearly all enthusiastic curlers, are here to-day to open the twenty-fourth annual bonspiel, which is always the sporting event of winter here. There is an added interest this year in the presence of the visiting Scottish curlers, who got badly trimmed in Ontario and are expecting the same treatment here owing to their unfamiliarity with keen Canadian ice. There are several strong rinks here from Ontario.

TRUSTEES OF NEW SEPARATE SCHOOL IN OTONABEE ELECTED

Michael O'Toole, Patrick Sullivan, and John Hefferman were elected trustees of the new Separate School in S. S. No. 8, Otonabee, at a public meeting of the Separate School supporters of that section, held at the residence of Mr. S. F. Redmond, this morning. Notices had been posted in the section announcing this meeting for the inauguration of the new board and all the other requirements of the School Act had been complied with. Two eight ratepayers were present and Mr. John Casey was appointed chairman of the meeting. The preliminary work has thus been completed and there remains the sending of the application to the Department.

Getting After Potato Diseases

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., FEB. 8.—Because they say that Canada is about to prohibit the importation of United States potatoes, owing to the prevalence of black wart among them, the United States growers are asking the department here to get legislation to prevent the growth of diseases in potatoes and the importation of imperfect plants.

Parents Should Know

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of school children than usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some dull at school because of eye strain, some did not require glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate timely attention saves your child much misery, and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

A CUSTOMER HAS TOLD ME

Something I did not fully realize before about the effect of my advertising:—

My agent:

"Some months ago I noticed in your advertisement in the 'Examiner' that you were selling a finger manicure, very satisfactory, have used same, for myself. I called and made a purchase of a pair.

"Believing I was attracted by your service. I felt I got a real good deal and I'd like to go back there again."

This customer told a friend of his about my service. This friend made an appointment, and now he is a satisfied customer of mine.

So much for advertising backed by good service.

It will ever be my aim to satisfy my customers, sell the the very best at Toronto prices or lower.

DOMINION PERMANENT LOAN COMPANY.

On Friday last the Dominion Permanent Loan Co. held its twenty-first annual meeting at the Company's office, 12 King street, West Toronto, a report of which appeared in Saturday's Examiner. The report showed another prosperous business year. The net earnings amounting to $217,519.16, showed an increase over the previous year of $34,886. After dividends had been paid during the year amounting to $70,857.84, there was added to the reserve fund $30,000, and $21,598.41 was placed to the credit of profit and loss. An increase of $46,808.61 in surplus assets brings the total of this up to $1,625,309.52. The total of deposits and debentures was increased during the year by the addition of $64,202.26, making the total $2,130,780.40. The total assets of the company now reach the sum of $3,756,540.54.

The report which, as a whole, shows satisfactory improvement and healthy condition of all the interests of the Company, with indications of continued prosperity, was unanimously adopted.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was re-elected president, and Mr. D. W. Karn vice-president.

NEVER-ENDING TROUBLE.

If the Conservatives were so minded, they might with some show of justice, charge the present wheat situation in the west to the Liberal government. The developed production of the soil, that renders railway facilities inadequate, to the moving of the crop, is due to the immigration and development policy inaugurated by the Laurier government. It found the west a waste, given over to the gopher and the birds of the air. It inaugurated a live immigration policy, which poured population into the west and made Canada known and appreciated as it never had been. This policy brought about a flow of population and a crop production which taxed, and still taxes, and will continue to tax, transportation facilities, to the farthest point. To meet this demand, to obviate the difficulty of transportation, the Laurier government conceived and constructed the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway as an ally with the C.P.R. in providing an outlet for the Canadian west wheat hopper, and it has aided the Canadian Northern to the same end. These two new lines are not yet in full operation, but when they are so, a satisfactory—at least temporarily—solution of the transportation problem will be provided. If the grain moving situation is bad now, what would it be but for the provision of the Laurier government — if the country were only just now beginning railway construction?

We shall always, or for years at least, have the transportation shortage to harass us. The policy and practice of building railways to move grain will have a reacting power to continue the trouble. The more facilities we provide for sending out wheat, the more means we provide for bringing in people to grow more wheat, the more we provide for opening new areas to cultivation, through facility of access. We must, and will meet the emergencies as they arise. They will continuously arise. Western Canada is like the many-headed Hydra of classic myth—one head no sooner cut off than replaced by another. We no sooner provide transportation adequate for to-day, than to-morrow brings on bigger wheat crop and new needs for transportation.

They are seeing robins in Toronto. Behind Peterborough, as usual. We have a man in town that has seen snakes several times, this winter.

Power Of The People To Deal With Danger Of Level Railway Crossings

Mr. Peter MacArthur in a letter to the Toronto Globe of recent date, says "there need not be a dangerous level crossing in all of Canada," and in response to a request for information on the subject of protection for level crossings Mr. Duncan C. Ross, member for West Elgin, gives a complete statement of what has been done to remedy this appalling evil. This statement is so surprising and so important at the present time, when there are so many accidents happening and so many lives being lost at level crossings, that people everywhere should be made acquainted with it.

Three years ago the Dominion government voted the sum of $1,000,000 to be spent at the rate of $200,000 a year for the purpose of doing away with dangerous level crossings, and the railways and municipalities are compelled to spend at least $4,000,000 additional for the same purpose. That amount would more than pay for installing at least an automatic electric signal-bell at every level crossing in Canada. All that anyone who wishes to have a dangerous crossing protected needs to do is to write a letter to the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, and give the reasons for considering the crossing dangerous. The Board will then investigate, and if the complaint is justified will issue an order dividing the expense of the protection afforded between the railway, the municipality and the government. Any person can make the complaint, and that is all he will have to do.

Of this amount voted by the government the commission can pay 20 per cent. up to $5,000 of the cost of protecting any crossing and can compel the railway and municipality to pay the remainder. The weak spot in this otherwise excellent law is that the commission is not instructed to go ahead and order the protection of crossings without having received a complaint. The government has placed on the people the responsibility of making the first move.

It is a fact that very few people in Brantford or Brant County know either of the remedy at hand, or of the responsibility that rests on them. We seem to have had the idea that the only law for protecting crossings was that which compelled engineers to whistle when approaching them, which is more often neglected than obeyed. During the three years this law has been in force only 120 crossings have been protected, and during that time every application to the Board for protection to a crossing has been attended to, which is evidence that it is worth while to ask for protection. It seems almost incredible that so few applications have been made when we note the fact that during the same three years there have been 174 persons killed on level crossings and 218 injured.

We are so thoroughly accustomed to having all matters of public interest attended to by public officials that we find it a little hard to realise that in this case the responsibility rests with ourselves. It is not necessary to have the officers of the municipality act. This is an excellent feature of the law. Reeves and councillors have to be very careful how they incur expenses, and for that reason they are afraid to ask for protection that may lead to the municipality being assessed for part of the cost. Fortunately, they need not be considered in this matter. Any citizen who has a touch of public spirit or human feeling can have a dangerous crossing abolished without consulting anyone. Moreover the man who lodges a complaint need not be a resident of the municipality which has the dangerous crossing. This makes it possible for the farmer who is endangered by the crossing in the town or village in which he does business to have the danger removed. As a majority of the level crossing victims are country people they should take advantage of the law without hesitation, not only by having village crossings protected but dangerous country crossings, as well. But this need not keep the people of the towns and villages from acting. The responsibility rests on them just as much as on anyone.

The city of Brantford and county of Brant are not free from dangerous crossings and there have been many deaths and more narrow escapes. It is the duty of everyone who reads this to make known to others what the law is, and on whom the responsibility lies. It is a great matter to save a human life; it is only a small matter to take the necessary step but it is a very important one. All that is required of anyone to do is to address the Railway Commissioners at Ottawa, giving the location of the alleged dangerous crossing and why you consider it such. The time to act is now.

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

Here is a little incident that is not without significance in relation to local conditions:

Rev. S. W. Hughes of Birmingham, England, in a speech to men at a Coventry theatre, said: "If you had met the average young man in Birmingham streets last night, and you had said, 'How has it gone?' he would have answered, in almost nine cases out of ten, 'Villa 3—1.' I am not here to criticise that. I was there, and saw the goals got. But what I object to is this absorption in lower things to such an extent that these young men unconsciously are making themselves the footballs of the future. They are going to be kicked about anywhere".

This raises the question as to whether we are not running to sport a little more strongly than is wholesome, from the mental moral, and even physical point of view. Manly sports are noble things in themselves, bracing, tonic, developing the bodily powers, and tending to companionship, good fellowship and good citizenship. But their value depends upon the mode of use. Sports are to be an incident, not an exclusive object in life, except for the professional "sport," who, as a matter of fact, is no sport at all. But when sport sets aside serious things—is permitted to interfere with, instead of cooperate with our life work, or preparation for life work, it becomes an evil. Intemperance in sport, or pleasure in any form, is, in principle, as wrong as interference in any other thing.

The evil extent to which intemperance in sport goes in the old land, is shown in the above quotation. And it is to be feared that excessive pursuit, of sport; excessive interest in sport, to the displacing, if not exclusion, of necessary and more important matters are affecting this country. In Peterborough, hockey is the rage of the hour. The extent to which it absorbs attention, especially the young, of the pupils of our schools, may be illustrated by an incident, like, in spirit and meaning and warning, to that printed above. One pupil, a boy, of the Collegiate Institute, who probably should have been at the time devoting himself to his studies, won a dollar in a pool on a game of hockey, and on the same, won another dollar in a straight wager with a fellow pupil.

Apart from the question of the evils of gambling, in which these two school lads made a very promising beginning, the question of lack of interest in school studies comes into play. Hockey is a splendid sport, but not a good occupation. It is natural that school boys and girls should join with the citizens, generally, in rejoicing over the splendid record made this season by the two hockey teams. That is all right in itself, but when interest in hockey threatens to supersede interest in the work of preparing our boys and girls for life, the matter becomes serious. We spend large sums of money upon education in Peterborough and apart altogether from the benefit of our children, we should, as a mere sordid matter of mere business, get adequate value for our money. This is an age of rush and hurry, and there are many distractions that tend to draw away the minds of pupils from their work in schools. Excess in sport, excess in social enjoyments that withdraw the minds of pupils from their studies are wrong; at least they are not right. Youth is the period of preparation for the serious duties of adult life. If seed time is wasted a scant harvest will be reaped.

It should be the aim of teachers and parents should cooperate with them, to give children and boys and girls a proper balance, a rightsense of proportion as to the relations of study and play, and thus obviate a very mischevious modern tendency to give undue prominence and importance to sports and pleasures, social and other, at the expense of school studies. Study and play should be blend in proper proportion. It is not good for the growing boy or girl that either one should be unduly fostered at the expense of the other. A line from sage old Horatius, is commended to teachers, to be commended to their pupils—in medio ibo tutissimus.

Two to won that Ulster won't take off its ulster to-day.

Our City Council power committee seems to be at the Beck of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The pace already struck by the Liberal opposition in the Ontario Legislature indicates that the Whitney government will occasionally be disturbed in its sleep during the coming session.

The works of Charles Dickens, have a larger sale to-day, than at any period of the three-quarters of a century, during which they have been sold by millions.

"Important legislation dealing with bilingual schools will be submitted to your consideration." This sentence was not in the Speech from the Throne, put into the mouth of the Lieutenant Governor, forecasting the legislation of the session. Yet we heard a little whisper about bilingual schools in the lodges and on the hustings during the late provincial elections.

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto.—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicines. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas.

After receiving your directions, I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way.

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—Mrs. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Another Woman Cured

Maple Creek, Sask.—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now in perfect health. I was troubled with pains every month. I know other women who suffer as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—Mrs. F. E. COOK, Maple Creek, Sask.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ills, don't hesitate to try Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"Shall we go?" he whispered.

She rose and gathered her cloak about her. He drew her cold, unyielding hand through his arm, led her along the passage down into the turmoil of the street below. Hailing a passing hansom, he helped her—almost lifted—her in, gave the name of the hotel, and took his place beside her.

Rowena sat upright, a beautiful statue of frozen snow encased in a stony crust of impenetrable sensibility, the wind blowing rudely in her face, a lurid gleam in her hazel eyes. Hare was in mortal dread of he knew not what. The drive was agony to him; an intense ordeal. The horse, impatient for a headlong rush, took them swiftly; but short, sharp, and soon over as it was, the memory of the silent journey was indelibly printed on his brain, and stayed with him for all time.

CHAPTER XXV.
ROWENA'S TREACHERY.

"Who are you?" she demanded, with quiet dignity, the privacy of their room reached and the door secured against obsequious waiters.

He laid his hat upon an octagonal table and opened his coat as if oppressed by its weight.

"My name is Hare," he said, speaking in his natural voice, which was lower and more pleasantly toned; "Austin Hare. My history lies in a nutshell. My father, an artist, died young; my grandfather, a clergyman, died poor. I commenced life as a lawyer's clerk, and, despite difficulties and adverse circumstances, I have been journalist, actor, editor, since and until I met you was combining all three with the additional amusement of a private detective agency."

"And you have dared to marry me?"

"No; that is exactly what I have not dared, but I desire to do so."

"I am neither Paul Farley's wife—nor yours?"

"No; but I can easily make you mine, Rowena. Will you go to church with me again?"

She sank back into the fauteuil, where she had lain in her exulting beauty a few hours previously. Pale and grave she certainly was, with something of a stunned expression in her eyes. Nevertheless, he felt surprised at her lack of wrath, at her calm temper of mind, which shut out from him the real working of her feelings and the trend of her manifold nature. He crossed the room and knelt down at her side.

"Rowena," he said, his hand on hers, "I love you and you know it's true, because these last few days you have let down your plummet-line and fathomed the depths of my heart. You know it's true, because with one wife and another you have experienced the whole crescendo of my passion for you. I can satisfy that untamed heart of yours; I swear I can make you happy. The past four days go to prove I am not speaking without substantial reason; without reliable, though stolen, knowledge. Honestly, Rowena, few men could live up to such high pressure. Paul Farley could not, for one. But my nature, like yours, is complex; my temperament high-pitched and abnormally strung. Dear heart! forget the pain, the resentment, and—smile!"

She smiled, sat up, and drew away her hand.

"Mr. Hare, I refuse to—complete—to go through the ceremony again with you."

"Why?" he asked, with a beating heart.

"Because you are not the man I intended to marry, you are not the man I love."

"But I am the man who loves you. Come, Rowena, be rational! don't throw away the substance for the shadow. Farley no more cares for you than I for the drab now passing in the street below. To appease you, in order not to unnecessarily distress you, I will continue this farce, this personality of Farley, as long as you wish I will keep as I am. It blinded you, Rowena, and now, for Heaven's sake, shut your eyes to this evening's mischief, and be blind again."

"I was not blinded, at least not wholly duped," she burst forth; "I felt the difference, the coarser contact, a little while, and I should have pierced the sham. I was trustfully unobservant, totally unsuspicious. I never dreamed of fraud; but now, having held up the mirror to the real thing I see the baser metal. I can hear the artificial ring of the false. Your voice, Mr.—Hare," her blazing eyes fastened on his face, and slid gradually down his person, "your nose, the curve of your chin, your shoulders, your nails——"

She flung herself back, and laughed peal after peal of what would have been contagious laughter had Hare been in the mood for merriment.

Warden's Gown Worn 50 Years

OMEMEE, FEB. 8.—Warden Steele of Victoria county, is to have a new gown. The present warden's gown has been worn for fifty years. It was presented in 1861 to Wm. Cottingham of Omemee, the first warden of Victoria county. It cost $50.25 originally and thus the robing of the county official has averaged $1 a year. The old gown will be kept as a relic to commemorate the beginning of the wardenship of Victoria county.

A Marvel Of Healing

Salt Rheum of Ten Year's Standing Healed as if by Magic

Hands Cracked so Could Not Work —Cures Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It does not take long for Dr. Chase's Ointment to prove its magic healing power. A single night is often sufficient to produce the most startling results.

Internal treatment for skin diseases is nearly always disappointing. By applying Dr. Chase's Ointment to the diseased parts relief is obtained almost immediately, and gradually the sores heal up and disappear. Here are two letters which will interest you:—

Mrs. Chas. Gilbert, Haystack, Placentia Bay, Nfld., writes:—"I was a sufferer from Salt Rheum for ten years, and had about despaired of ever being cured, so many treatments had failed. Reading of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment, I commenced using it, and was entirely cured by eight boxes. I want to express my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to recommend it to all sufferers."

Mr. Stanley Merrill, Delaware, Ont., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my hands cracking, often becoming so sore that I could hardly do any work. I got some of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and happily find that one or two applications of same to the affected parts make them well. I have had no trouble since using the ointment for sore hands."

The Milk Question In Toronto

The question of purifying milk was discussed at the Ayrshire Breeders' Association in Toronto yesterday and John McKee of Norwich suggested that all milk brought into the city should be inspected under government supervision, and the price settled on the result of the analysis.

He advised that the Government be approached on the subject, and it is probable that a delegation will wait on the Premier and the Minister of Agriculture with this object in view during the present sitting of the Legislature.

Toronto is having certain troubles with the milk question, the chief complaint being the addition of water. The Chief Dairy Inspector says in a report that some of the Scarboro farmers have sent in any kind of milk they chose, knowing that if one dairyman refused it, another would accept, and in view of such they have up to the present, shown no intention of chasing fraudulent practices.

Seve farmers from Scarboro have been summoned to appear for selling watered milk. One has been fined $20 and costs for watering the milk".

100,000 BUSHELS OF "SPUDS" FROM BRITAIN

BOSTON, FEB. 8.—The largest shipment of "spuds" ever landed here, has been unloaded. There were 100,000 bushels of Irish, Scotch and English potatoes aboard the Devonian. The duty was $8,000.

ROMANCE BEGAN WITH AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

NEW YORK, FEB. 7.—A romance, beginning with an auto collision, culminated with the announcement of the engagement of Miss Gertrude Heap, of Irvington, N.J., and Herbert Wrilling of Carlstadt, N.J., at a recent reception, given at the young lady's home recently.

About three months ago Wulling, who is a paying teller of the Carlstadt National Bank, was out taking a spin in his automobile. As he approached Nutley, N.J., a long stretch of road tempted him to put on full speed. Suddenly another car shot in from a cross-road, scarcely fifty feet in front of Wulling's flying auto. There was a crash. Several persons scrambled out of the wreck. Charles Heap, whose car Wulling had wrecked, accused him of speeding, while Wulling advised Mr. Heap to "look out where he was going." Miss Gertrude, who happened to be in the car, begged her father not to have the stranger arrested.

Mr Heap and Mr. Wulling thereupon "made up" and the latter was invited later on to call. Miss Heap and he soon became interested in each other.

J. B. Larose Is No More

OTTAWA, FEB. 6.—J. B. La Rose, once part owner of La Rose mine, and the blacksmith who originally discovered the silver mines of Cobalt, died yesterday in Hull.

While he has been wealthy since the famous stroke of luck that brought him and Ontario fortune, he had lost much in litigation proceedings and the usual story of wealth drifting into other hands will be shown in his estate.

There's a story possibly mythical, that the discovery of Cobalt was due to La Rose throwing a hammer which disclosed the silver wealth underneath. La Rose himself had this to say:

"So when I came up to Cobalt I go out whenever I have spare time and prospect. I was sharpening steel and shoeing the horses and mending the skips when they broke. There was not much spare time. It was all bush all bush then, and there is a fine house where my little shack was. One evening I found a 'float,' a piece as big as my hand, very heavy, and with little sharp points all over it. I say nothing but come back, and the next night I take a pick and look for the vein. The second evening I found it; you can see it on the side of the hill now. Then I go to the boss, Duncan McMartin, and I say, 'Boss, I have a good thing; come with me,' I say. 'You give me good show.' He says, 'Pull a gun on me if I don't.' Then I show him the vein and we stake out two claims, one in his name, the other in mine. We had half share in each. I used to work away at the vein in my spare time.

"When I had a hole down I would put in a shot and the cobalt bloom and silver would fly. Then Professor Miller he came and said it was silver. I sold my half claims for $25,000. Henry Timmins, he hear of the find at Mattawa and he come to me one night in Hull and we make the deal. I came back to camp and work on the La Rose Extension prospecting. Then I go back to Hull."

SHOEMAKER'S STOMACH WAS LINED WITH TACKS

BURLINGTON, N.J., FEB. 7.—Abraham Leconey, a shoemaker at Delanco, was taken to a Philadelphia hospital yesterday for an operation, through which physicians hope to save his life. For nearly a year Leconey has been suffering from pains in the stomach. All the old remedies failed to relieve him, and the puzzled doctors finally proposed an X-ray examination.

The spotlight revealed about a hundred brass tacks sticking in the walls of the shoemaker's stomach. He admitted that for several years he had used his mouth for a temporary tackbox while at work at his bench, and said he remembered swallowing a few brads at various times in the last ten years. Surgeons say one section of Leconey's stomach has more tacks in it than the sole of a boot.

TWO BIGAMISTS ARE SENTENCED

ST. CATHARINES, FEB. 7.—Police Magistrate Campbell yesterday disposed of two self-confessed bigamists, Edward Terry and Daniel Sayers, the former going to the penitentiary for three years and the latter to the Central Prison for nine months.

Terry deserted his wife and family in Toronto last summer and came to this city, where he married Minnie Freeman last November. His son traced him here and while he was in the lockup wife number two brought him his breakfast and revealed the fact that she was married to him. That saved Terry from a trip back to Toronto on a charge of wife desertion, but it secured him his three year term in Kingston.

Sayers is a man 65 years of age. He and his wife separated in Welland, the latter going to Sault Ste. Marie. Sayers then engaged a housekeeper and some time ago he brought her to this city where they were married by Rev. Dr. Smith.

MEN'S SUITS WILL BE MADE SLENDER THIS YEAR

BUFFALO, N.Y., FEB. 7.—Fashions decree governing men's dress during 1912 again offers small comfort to the fat man. The dictum of the Custom Cutters' Association of America, now in session here, is as follows: "The slender man is to be the model for 1912. To be considered well dressed and well groomed a man must give the impression of slenderness. If he is not naturally slender his tailor must adopt measures to make him appear so. The effect seems all tend to produce slenderness".

Conservatism will be the watchword, according to Chairman H. P. Walker. There will be no padded shoulders and tighter fits will be the order of the day. Either plain or striped effects will be correct.

BURGLAR CHOSE EGGS

BALTIMORE, M.D., FEB. 7.—Eggs looked bigger and more valuable to James Frisby, a negro, than silver and jewels when he entered the home of John Brown, North Stricker street, early this morning. A patrolman seeing a broken window at the Brown home made an investigation and found the negro with a quantity of eggs.

He drew a revolver and arrested the burglar. Justice Beach sent the negro to jail. The man said he was not so sure about the silverware or other articles, but he knew that eggs at 50 cents a dozen were worth stealing.

HOW THE CHATHAM COUNCIL IS DEALING WITH MILK PROBLEM

Figures Presented May be of Interest to Those Who Have Followed Recent Discussions in Regard to the Local Situation.

HERDS ARE INSPECTED

A milk by-law has just been passed in Chatham and some of the information in connection with it may be of interest to those who are following the local situation:

Ald. Dunn read a number of letters from cities in Ontario containing information with regard to the price charged in the places by the farmer and vendor and the butter fat requirement. In St. Thomas the price of milk is 6 cents per quart. No requirement is made for butter fat, and no action is taken as yet. In Windsor, the price is 6 cents from the local dealers and the percentage of butter fat is 3. In Belleville, the dairymen charge 7 cents per quart, and they pay the farmers from 3 and a half to 4 cents. The price in Guelph is 6 and 7 cents a quart. In the Forest City milk sells for 6 cents. A milk by-law is in force providing for 13 per cent. of solids and 3 3-4 per cent. butter fat. It is drawn up under the Provincial regulations of 1908 No milk containing less than 7 1-2 per cent. of of solids and 3 -12 per cent. of butter fat is allowed to be sold. The price is 7 cents, and an inspection of the herds is made twice a year, no dealer being allowed to sell the produce unless the cows are inspected. In the summer the price is not more than 6 cents. No requirements are in force in Goderich with regard to the butter fat. The vendors pay the farmers 4 cents a quart for the milk and sell it for 7 and 8. Kingston has regulations in force calling for 12 per cent. of solids and 3 per cent. butter fat. The requirement in Sarnia is 3 per cent. butter fat. The vendors receive 6 cents for milk and pay the producer 3 1-2. In Strathroy the price is 6 cents in winter and 5 in summer, the farmers receiving 3 1-2 to 4 cents. No provision is made for a percentage of butter fat. The price is 8 cents in Hamilton, the farmers being paid 18 cents per gallon. The percentage of butter fat is 3.25. Seven cents is paid for milk in St. Catharines and 4 1-2 by the consumer. The requirement for solids and butter fat is 13 and 3 3-4.

Average Percentage 3.74.

A letter was read from Prof. Dean of the O. A. C. at Guelph, in which considerable information on the subject was given. Personally, the professor did not believe that 3 1-2 per cent. butter fat was too high. He, however, believed that the dairymen should be given a little latitude as the condition of the cows during the year varies. At the test of milk at the mid-winter fair in Ottawa, the average percentage of butter fat was 3.74.

Alderman Dunn has had a test made of milk from eight dairies in the immediate vicinity of Chatham, and found that the produce averaged 3.65, including one sample of 3 per cent., which was tested on two occasions. This test is almost identical with the one at Ottawa, so that the plea of the dairymen that it was high in the Capital on account of the cows being thoroughbred, does not hold good. This is the first time that a public test of the milk has been made in Chatham.

"According to this information" said Alderman Dunn, "it does not appear that the percentage of butter fat is too high. If we let the by-law go through as it is at the present time we would be heaping no hardships on anyone, and I move it be given the third reading."

Some Additional Information.

Alderman Lister is a Government inspector and tested the milk previously referred to by Alderman Dunn. He said that a number of the dairymen complained that they could not live up to the requirements all the year round. The cows have not the power to increase the percentage of butter fat as they have the quantity.

"Do you think it possible for them to keep up to the standard the year round " asked an alderman.

"Yes, I think so," replied Mr. Lister.

Alderman Lister presented additional information showing that the test of milk from about 100 cows from this vicinity shows a percentage of butter fat in January of 3.85 and in July of 3.4. These tests were taken by him in conducting his own business. "Even in the summer time the standard is very near what you ask for" he significantly remarked.

Tests made the year around from a herd of about 200 cows show an average of butter fat of about 3.66.

Danderine

Grows hair and we can prove it

Hair Becomes Soft, Fluffy, Lustrous and Beautiful Immediately After a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair—No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it, if you will just try a little Danderine. Real surprise awaits you.

YOUNG MOTHER OF 17 SAID TO BE BIGAMIST

Girl Has Six-Months-Old Child and Police Accuse Her of Having Two Husbands

TORONTO, JAN. 7.— With a six months-old baby on her arms and aged but seventeen, Mrs. Thos. Rancone appeared before Magistrate Denison yesterday charged that on November 20, 1911, she had committed bigamy by going through a form of marriage with George Joy, formerly of Acton. Joy was also charged with going through a form of marriage with the woman, knowing her husband to be still living.

Thomas Rancone says he was married to the girl in May of 1910 by Rev. Father Lemarche. The second marriage is supposed to have been performed by Rev. J. C. Wilson at Acton.

"Our Personal Advice To All Skin Sufferers"

McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Druggists.

We have been in business in this town for some time, and we are looking to build up trade by always advising our patrons right.

So when we tell you that we have found the effective eczema remedy, you can depend upon it that we give our advice ,not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this. If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D.D.D. Prescription.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash, applied to the skin, takes away the itch instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D. D. D. Prescription made by the D .D. D. Laboratories of Toronto is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel soothed and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment you apply this D.D.D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to a skin sufferer here and there and we want you to try it now.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"OH, well, I don't pity her," I heard a woman say the other day. "All her troubles are nobody's fault but her own. She's made her bed and now she can lie in it."

I quote the lady because it seems to me that her way of looking at people's troubles is just about as common as it is illogical.

Her troubles are nobody's fault but her own, and, therefore, she deserves none of our pity. Why, dear madame, don't you see that you are stating the very reason why the unfortunate one is the most pitiable creature possible?

Turn the tables. Put yourself in her place. Suppose yourself, a woman brought up in middle class luxury, never having been obliged before your marriage even to do a daughter's share of the family housework, and now trying to support two babies by going out in other people's homes and doing all kinds of work, as an accommodator—suppose you have to trust those precious babies to a cheap day nursery. Imagine that you have come home at night, absolutely exhausted, and put the little ones to bed, get your supper and do your own housework. Suppose you have had to sell most of the pretty furniture, with which your bridal home was garnished, and take two rooms in a cheap house in an ugly street.

Now, do you think it would make all this any easier to bear, to remember that these troubles had come upon you because you would persist, despite the advice and protests of everyone, in marrying a man in whose veins flowed the drunkard's blood — in other words, because all your troubles are nobody's fault but your own?

Does it make a trouble weigh lighter or heavier to have remorse and self accusation added to it?

Isn't it really a genuine comfort to know that you did the best thing you could have done, and whatever misfortunes have befallen you, have come entirely without blame on your part?

Many people say of Richeson, the Boston minister who went from one sin to another, until he ended by murdering the young girl who had trusted him with the most refined and machiavelian brutality — "I don't pity him at all. He had every chance and he threw them all away."

I pity him. I can't imagine any more terrible suffering than he must endure when he looks back on his career ,and realizes just that. It seems to me that Silas Phelps, for instance, a fellow prisoner of Richeson's, for whom the Governor's clemency has been invoked on the ground that "he never had a chance" is far less to be pitied.

"She made her own bed and now she can lie in it. I don't pity her" is a cheerful way of disposing of such cases. But if pity is to have a reasonable foundation on pitiableness, is it a logical attitude?

FACTS REGARDING THE GARBAGE BY-LAW OF THE 1907 COUNCIL

A Copy of Letter Ald. Elliott of That Year Prepared Dealing With the Question Which Was Defeated at the Polls Later.

MAY BE OF INTEREST NOW

Now that the question of a garbage by-law has been revived, it may be of some interest to recall something in relation to the fate of a garbage by-law proposal which was defeated in 1907. The Council of that year had taken the matter seriously, and Alderman Elliott took an active interest in promoting the undertaking. He made as thorough investigation as the circumstances permitted, and gave the result of his labours and embodied his conclusions in a letter sent to the press. The following letter, which appeared in the Examiner of June 24th, 1907, assumes an interest and importance in connection with the present proposed garbage by-law proposal, that justifies its republication:

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Before any further action is taken on the Garbage By-law, I think the general public should be thoroughly informed regarding the two propositions that were submitted to the Council by the committee who had the by-law in charge, for raising the necessary funds to carry out the system. I believe that every citizen of Peterborough wishes to see the city kept in a cleanly and sanitary condition at the smallest possible cost. The idea of the committee was to remove the garbage, ashes, and in fact, refuse of all kinds, from the premises of the citizens once a week (from private houses and business places oftener) regularly systematically, not to cost the ratepayer any more than he is paying at present with our once-a-year cleaning-up process. We found, by communicating with other places that have a system, what this would cost our city with a population of 15,000. The next thing done was to find how many private houses, business houses, hotels, factories, and, in fact, every kind of place that required the services of a scavenger there were. Then we tried to levy a rate that we thought would be equitable to all parties.

The first proposition was to charge each householder 15 cents per month for a once-a-week service, which is $1.80 per year to everybody. Business or other places, requiring services two or three times a week were to be charged in the same proportion per visit. These fees will raise the amount necessary to carry out the system successfully, but is it equitable to all?

The other proposition is to place 7-10 of a mill on the assessment, which works out this way: For instance, there are hundreds of small houses in Peterborough whose assessed value is from $500 to $1,000. Now, a house valued at $500 and assessed in this way for this purpose, would pay 35 cents per year. A house at $700 would pay 49 cents; a $1,000 house, 70 cents; a $1500 house, $1.05; a $2,000 house, would pay $1.40, and so on all the way up. I submit, Mr. Editor, that it would not be just and equitable that these hundreds of small houses should be charged the same price for services of scavengers as the scores of handsome residences, whose assessed value is from $3,000 to $5,000, and who burn from ten to twenty tons of coal each year. These fine residences would be taxed from $2 to $3.50 per year for the purpose, and it is certainly worth it. This plan will raise the necessary funds to carry out the system, and I may add that the Sanitary Inspector's salary is included in both these propositions, as part of the expense in connection therewith. So far as I am concerned, and I believe that the majority of the Council hold the same opinion, the only and proper course is to submit the by-law to the people for their approval or otherwise. Also, an expression of opinion as to which of these systems of payment is the more desirable.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for valuable space, I remain,

Yours truly,
GEO. E. ELLIOTT,

Peterborough, June 24, 1907.

WHY THIS DREAD OF GROWING OLDER?

ASK FRITZI SCHEFF

Never try to hide your age, says Fritzi Scheff, the charming prima donna, famous for her charm and beauty, who is playing in 'Night Birds' at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto, this week. I never understand why women seem to imagine that they would lose something if others really knew how many years have passed over their heads. Why pretend to be younger than you are? How can you be affected in any way by the fact that others think you are older or younger than is the case? Are you ashamed of the years that have passed, or why do you often pretend they have not existed?

If you are thirty, admit it and be proud of it. If you are forty do so, too. Have people say of you: "She is a woman of forty, she says, but she looks thirty," rather to have them say: "She is forty, but she says she is thirty and imagines that others believe her."

But why this fear of growing older? Why this trying to put away the inevitable? Why not make every age beautiful? The glorious enthusiasm of extreme youth cannot last forever of course, but the maturity of the coming years is not less beautiful on that account. Because we gain in years we need not lose our youth, indeed, quite the contrary.

For if we know how to go about it, every year that passes means so much more in our development. It makes us more capable of appreciating life and of getting as much has possible out of it. It makes us younger.

A woman does not lose her charm as the years pass, quite the contrary. She mellows down and acquires the fascination which only years can bring. Every age is equally beautiful if we but make the most of it—for the spring is as necessary as hot summer and contemplative fall as snow-capped winter.

To make the most of her life, so as to enjoy each day that passes and to be thankful for it, a woman must have some purpose, whether it be advancement in studies or work, or whether it be in the more complicated duties of home and the bringing up of children. But in any case have a purpose and make each day bring you nearer to that purpose. Yesterday must be continued to to-day, and to-day must glide over into to-morrow. In that way you will merely see the results of what you have worked for. And you will be glad for each day that goes, for each day will bring you its blessing. And at the end of the twelfth month it will be with a sigh of satisfaction that you will say to yourself: "Another year has passed!"

SUGAR ADVANCES 10 CTS. PER CWT.

Wholesale prices of sugar, which have been on the decline for several weeks past, aggregating a reduction of fifty cents per hundred within the last two months, received an abrupt check to-day, when the price of this commodity advanced ten cents per hundred weight.

No. 1 granulated is now worth $5.58 per cwt., and No. 1, yellow, $5.48.

Heavy Roads Stopped Heavy Loads

Reports around the marget this morning were to the effect that the roads north of the city had become so heavy that they were impassable to heavy loads. A number of cattle dealers had started out yesterday with loads of hogs, but were forced to turn back as the teams were unable to make any headway against the drifts. This morning, there were a few loads of wood and hay, on the market, but they had come a long distance.

The seats are now on sale for "The Stampede" which comes to "The Grand" next Saturday, Feb. 10th. A truly great performance by an exceptionally fine cast. Book your seats early. id-33

MANVERS FARMERS HAVE TO BUY CATTLE FEED

A Manvers farmer stated to the Examiner this morning that farmers in the vicinity of his district have been compelled to borrow money to tide them over until Spring. The near failure of the crops last summer cut down the supply of fodder to such an extent that many of the country residents are buying feed for their cattle, in many cases, for the first time. The shortage of potatoes in that section is as marked as in other sections already mentioned, and the question now being asked is where the supply for seed is going to come from.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating a Symptom That Should Not Be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest, and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Peterborough who suffer from any stomach derangement, indigestion, or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefitted by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c. box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you, if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

REV. L. J. LONG'S ADDRESS

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $3. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for Whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Important Questions Absent in Speech From the Throne

LEGISLATURE DULY OPENED

Toronto, Feb. 8.—The legislative machinery of the province is once again in motion. Yesterday afternoon, with the customary formalities, the thirteenth Parliament of Ontario was opened by His Honor Sir John Morrison Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of the province. The wild blizzard which blew most of the day prevented a very large crowd of sightseers from congregating around the entrance, where a guard of honor from the 48th Highlanders were stationed to receive the gubernatorial party. In spite of the weather drawbacks, however, several hundred people had assembled, as the booming of cannon announced the arrival of the King's representative.

A few minutes before three o'clock the doors opened and Sir James Whitney entered with Lady Gibson. The Premier then left the legislative chamber, and went down to the front entrance of the building, where he received the Lieutenant-Governor and escorted him up to the throne, Major Shanley and Major Fellowes acting as aides-de-camp to his honor.

The formal ceremony of appointing the Speaker was then proceeded with, the honor falling on W. H. Hoyle, the member for North Ontario.

The Lieutenant-Governor then read the speech from the throne. It was, in part, as follows:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It affords me pleasure to welcome you to the performance of your duties at this, the first session of the thirteenth Legislature of this province.

In November last the official career of Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada came to a close, and he took with him on his departure the abiding respect, esteem and affection of the Canadian people.

For the first time in the history of Canada a prince of the blood royal, one of the illustrious family to whom we owe willing allegiance, becomes our Governor-General. The people of Canada appreciate highly the fact that he is the son of the ever-to-be-revered and august lady, Queen Victoria, and the brother of his late Majesty King Edward the Peacemaker, who held the confidence and affection of all his subjects and the respect and admiration of the civilized world.

Since the last meeting of the Legislature the coronation of Their Most Gracious Majesties King George V. and His Royal Consort Queen Mary has been celebrated in solemn and imposing ceremony.

Manifestations of the steadily increasing enterprise and desirable activities of our people are to be seen everywhere and are subjects of congratulation. By way of illustration—the net earnings of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway for the year ending Dec. 31, 1911, amounted to $583,000, as against $420,000 for the previous year. The branch of the railway to Porcupine has been completed, while another branch line is being located from the main line to Elk Lake.

An agreement has been entered into between the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission and the Grand Trunk Company of Canada granting the latter running rights over the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, in consideration of which the company, in addition to assuming an equitable share of the cost of the general maintenance of the road, agrees to pay the sum of $300,000 per annum as rental for such running rights.

The erection of the new Central Prison building at Guelph has been commenced. A large part of the work is being done by the prisoners, and the result fully justifies the experiment of treating the prisoners as not unworthy of trust. The board of parole instituted by my Government has proved to be an unqualified success.

The great scheme for the utilization of Hydro-electric power in the public interest has, after many vicissitudes, been accomplished and is now in full and successful operation in the western part of the province, and steps are now being taken by my Government to extend the operations of the commission to central, northern and eastern Ontario.

The output of our silver mines has continued to increase during the past year, until now Ontario stands third in point of production among the silver-producing communities of the world.

The very important work of practical demonstrations carried out on live stock, dairying, fruit-growing and the growing of field crops, by the district representatives of the Department of Agriculture, has been continued and increased, and the demand for further extension of this work still continues.

The succession duties for the past year have amounted to over a million dollars.

During the year 1911 upwards of eight thousand immigrants were brought into the province by the Department of Colonization and located, and it is believed that the figures for the year 1911 will show a still larger number. Conferences have been held between the Minister of the Interior at Ottawa and the Minister of Agriculture of the province, with a view to co-operation with regard to this matter in the future, which it is believed will bring about desirable results.

The commissioner appointed to collect information regarding legislation affecting compensation for injuries to workmen has made good progress, and a report may be expected at an early day.

The question of the further development of new or Northern Ontario is obviously of great importance, and, with the financial aid expected from the Parliament of Canada, and the great extent of railway construction, my Ministers intend to take immediate steps towards a more rapidly progressive development.

The public accounts will be laid before you for your consideration at the earliest moment, and the supplementary estimates for the current year will also be submitted without delay.

I am convinced that the welfare and best interests of this great province will be well served by your deliberations.

Sir James moved the customary appointments of standing committees of the House, and the Legislature stood adjourned till 2.30 this afternoon.

RUSSO-CHINESE SITUATION.

Difficulties Continue to Arise Over Mongolian Question.

Pekin, Feb. 8.—Diplomatic difficulties, as well as occasional military incidents between the Russians and the Chinese, continue and are being watched closely by the foreign representatives here.

The Imperial Foreign Board recently sent a note to the Russian legation in which the Russian troops were charged with aiding the Mongolians in their attack on the Chinese garrison at the railroad station of the city of Manchuria. The Foreign Board requested the Russian legation to see that the Russian troops observed neutrality.

The Russian legation in its reply says that the Mongols after their attack on the Chinese garrison, retreated into the railway zone where the Russian troops arrested them. The troops of the Chinese garrison followed into the railway zone and attacked both the Mongols and the Russians, in the course of the fight, killing a Russian officer and a Russian soldier, as well as a number of Mongolians.

The conditions in Manchuria are evidently becoming worse. Reports from Russian sources say that the Mongols have carried the warfare to the Amur River, while brigand bands numbering hundreds have gone so far as to attack and capture several towns.

The authority in the Kutuktu, the head of the Mongolian Lama sect, who is now the Mongolian grand khan, has secured recognition from Khailar in the north of Mongolia down to the Turkestan border.

In Turkestan itself a three-cornered conflict is in progress between the Imperialist garrisons, the Republican rebels who have taken the present opportunity to revolt. A number of Russian subjects have lost their lives in the fighting that has occurred between the three rival parties.

The Imperial Foreign Board has not made any reply to the recent proposal to mediate with the Mongolians, and in diplomatic circles no surprise would be felt if a Russian intervention in Manchuria occurred sooner or later.

NASAL CATARRH

Responsible for Much Deafness, Hoarseness, Bronchitis and Stomach Trouble.

Medicated Air Will Cure

These are common diseases, but not less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE.

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that air will carry into the minutest air cells, into the tiniest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS.

Doctors say only "Catarrhozone" can cure—you inhale it along with the air you breath—it goes where the living disease germs are gnawing into your system—it kills these germs—it heals, soothes. It CURES.

CATARRHOZONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhozone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhozone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhozone works in bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills, no person can afford to do without Catarrhozone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself. 25c, 50c, $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

A HIGH TARIFF RUSE

Hugh Guthrie Describes the Proposed Board

MINISTERS DENY CHARGE

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—"The creating of a tariff commission does not in the slightest degree minimize Ministerial responsibility in regard to the tariff," declared Hon. W. T. White yesterday afternoon in moving the second reading of the bill to create such a commission, and the Premier expressed the same idea in different words later in the debate when he declared, "This tariff commission will bring in no tariff. The Government of this country will bring in the tariff."

"The tariff," said Mr. White, "cannot be taken out of politics. It is and probably always will be the chief topic of political discussion."

The tariff, he further declared, was not a stereotyped thing, but should change with changing conditions, but all changes should be based on accurate information and this was the duty of the board to gather. Canada could not get too much information, too much data.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie handled the proposed bill without gloves and gave the members of the Government a bad half hour. His speech was the beginning of what promises to be a determined stand against the measure. It was only a buffer, said Mr. Guthrie, between the Government and the people who put them in power.

He further declared that there had been no public demand for it. It had not been discussed before the people.

He saw in it the "quid pro quo" to the C. M. A. for "their generous and lavish support in the election of September 21. Its real object was to fasten a higher protective system than ever on the country," he said.

To these charges, Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden gave a direct and unqualified denial. He himself had spoken in favor of the creation of a tariff board on at least forty or fifty platforms east and west and the people were fully prepared to support such a policy. The Government had made no promises to the C. M. A. and had been asked for none.

"It is not the intention of the Government," said Hon. W. T. White, in moving the second reading of the bill, "to delegate its function of making tariff rates to any outside party."

The suggestion had been made that the tariff could be taken out of politics by the creation of a commission akin to the Railway Commission. This, the Minister of Finance thought, utopian and impracticable. There was no question in the realm of political science about which men differed more earnestly or widely than that of the tariff.

The tariff, he declared, was not a stereotyped thing. It should change with changed conditions, but such change should only come on the basis of accurate information. This would be gathered by the commission from the reports and statistical information of other countries, by investigations and by hearing those who desire to be heard.

Confidential information gathered from business men would not be disclosed, as credits might by injured.

Hugh Guthrie (South Wellington) thought the obtaining of information and facts was all right, but disagreed with the proposed method of seeking it. The form of the bill, he declared, was objectionable, and, if persisted in, would be disastrous to the great body of the citizens of Canada.

It was a strange thing, he added, that the first act of consequence of magnitude of the Minister of Finance had been to introduce a bill for the establishment of a permanent tariff commission—a bill both in form and substance borrowed from the highest protectionist country in the world, the United States.

"The real object and purport of this measure," declared Mr. Guthrie, "is to perpetuate and sustain, not the present system of protection, but to fasten a higher protection on this country."

The functions of this board, he insinuated, were much wider than appeared on the surface. It was "nothing more or less than a cheap Yankee device of the Finance Minister" for a high protective tariff brought in by an irresponsible commission.

In conclusion, he moved the six months hoist, seconded by F. F. Pardee (W. Lambton).

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden began by reproaching Mr. Guthrie for the gloomy tone of his speech, and recalled the fact that he had voted time after time to force reciprocity through without an appeal to the people, though that was not a measure for merely gathering information, but was calculated to affect for all time the destiny, not only of this country, but of the whole Empire.

"The purport of the present bill," declared the Premier, "was that information should not be gathered, as in the past, in a desultory, but in a scientific and systematic manner."

"As to Mr. Guthrie's insinuations about the C.M.A., he should not take too much for granted. No man connected with the Manufacturers' Association had spoken to him about the board, except one, and he was opposed to it."

A. K. MacLean of Halifax, in opposing the bill, argued that, in a country such as Canada, where politics obtained, such a thing as scientific tariff-making was an impossibility, inasmuch as the Government of the day were bound to be influenced by precedent and local considerations.

H. R. Ames (Montreal) supported the bill. G. W. Kyte (Richmond) opposed it, and Mr. Middlebro moved the adournment at 10.45 p.m.

CONTRACTED HEAVY COLD

Was In Bed Two Months.

DOCTORS DID NOT SEEM TO DO HER ANY GOOD.

A cold, however slight, should never be neglected, for if it is not treated in time it will, in all possibility, lead to bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or some other serious throat or lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains the lung healing virtues of the Norway Pine tree, which, combined with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines, makes it without a doubt the best remedy for all coughs and colds.

Miss N. McCumber, St. Martin's N.B., writes:—"In January last I contracted a heavy cold which kept me in bed nearly two months, and the doctors didn't seem to be able to do me any good. I tried several proprietary medicines, but all in vain. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and when I had taken three bottles I was completely cured, and I feel as well to-day as I ever did, and I am sure my lungs are once more sound, thanks to that wonderful remedy."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 35 cents.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Kills the Dandruff Germ and Makes the Hair Grow

Restores Gray Hair to Natural Color

FEW people are aware of the number of Dandruff Germs that infest the human hair and scalp. The germs which locate themselves in the follicle or sack which envelopes the root of the hair, spend a lazy existence in sucking up the juices which should go to keep life and strength in the hair. These germs cannot be seen by the naked eye, but with a magnifying glass of from 300 to 400 diameters the spores of this hair destroyer may be seen in masses, clinging to the hair.

DANDRUFF, ITCHING OF THE SCALP AND FALLING HAIR ARE A SURE SIGN OF DESTRUCTIVE GERMS.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy not only kills the dandruff germs and prevents baldness, but it also restores faded and gray hair to natural color.

INTERMEDIATES HAVE FIRST LOSS OF SEASON COBOURG HAVE LEAD OF TWO GOALS

Blue and White Striped Team Were Defeated by 8 to 6 in a Ragged Exhibition in Lake Shore Town Last Night.

PLAY HERE TO-MORROW

The Peterborough intermediates ran into an unexpected snag at Cobourg last night in the first of home and home games in the second round of the intermediate O.H.A. series, the Corktown aggregation coming out of the affray with a two goal lead to bring with them to Peterborough tomorrow night. The score when it was all over was 8 to 6 in favour of Cobourg ;half way through the episode it was 4 to 3, the odd goal advantage being on the side of the Petes. It was a hard fought contest marked by close checking and on the play there was little to choose between the two teams. Cobourg earned their victory by their steady plugging along and as the Petes never seemed to hit their stride, they may be considered fortunate that the lead against them is not bigger than two. They are determined to overcome the lead here tomorrow night, and it should be one of the best games of the season, any way you look at it.

Even the Cobourg fans expected Peterborough to win last night and this general feeling seemed to have affected the Petes disastrously. Over confidence and a tendency to be careless about checking back had a great deal to do with the ultimate result.

Cobourg scored the first goal, but this only seemed a flash in the pan, especially as the Petes followed it up with a trio of counters in jig-time before Cobourg found the nets again. They added one before half time and at the rest period it looked like Peterborough on the bit.

Cobourg came back, however, with lots in reserve and speedily took the lead at 5 to 4. The Petes tied it up again and all looked merry until the homesters took another brace and slammed three in a row past Derocher. Three goals behind, the Petes spurted to try and pull the game out of the fire, but the time was too short. Kelly slammed one past Patten, but that was all that was doing before the final bell sounded.

It was not the best game of hockey in this district this season by any means. At times the play lagged, both teams seeming to be tired. The ice was very sticky, making it a difficult matter to carry the rubber and the small ice surface was responsible for considerable bunching around centre ice. A big crowd of fans saw the battle and the Cobourg rooters were decidedly happy at the conclusion of the argument, while the two hundred Peterborough supporters who went down on the special train, came back at them with "Wait until we get you in Peterborough."

Cobourg showed a fast, well balanced team. They are workers clean through, the forwards check back consistently and they were working down with an effective two man combination that was dangerous. Their defence checked nicely and were effectively backed up by the attacking division when the Petes were dangerous. The Corktown bunch have speed enough to make to-morrow night's game here a very interesting argument. Cunningham, who played for the Cobourg juniors against the Bear Cats was the pick of the forward line. The youngster never let up for a minute, showing lots of speed and good stick-handling, while he had a nice shot from the side that kept Derocher on the jump all the way, several of his heaves leaking through. Doheny was fast and clever and Payne and Levis gave a good account of themselves. Guy and Hand were an effective defence pair and both rushed well. Goalkeeper Patten was strongly in the limelight, especially in the second half when he came through with some sensational stops of close range shots. The Petes were off colour—there is no getting away from that fact. They lacked ginger and failed to work together. Individually, Kelly and Park did some fine work on the attacking division, their rushing and shooting being all that could be desired. Coughlin was good while he was on, but only played about half the game. He was off for a while in the first half on account of an injury to his arm and in the second period was dropped when Guy was accidentally hurt. The defence worked hard all through. Bearss in spite of the fact that he was hardly fit, through illness, to play, did a lot of useful rushing. Derocher's work between the posts was good as usual. Nearly all the shots that beat him were from close in and he had a number of good stops to his credit.

Allan Kinder of Preston, was an impartial referee. The teams:

The game had hardly opened than Bearss was chased to the side for tripping. While he was off, Payne shoved one past Derocher from a scrimmage and the crowd went wild. Coughlin drew three minutes, for slashing, but there was nothing doing while he was off. Then Park rushed nicely and bored one at Patten who stopped the shot ,but Coughlin hammered in the rebound and the score was tied. Thirty seconds after the face-off, Kelly came tearing down the side and beat Patten with a beautiful waist high shot from the boards, putting the Petes in the lead. It began to look easy, especially when Park, a few minutes later, banged in another from a face-off in front of the Cobourg nets. Cobourg came back again and Lavis scored following a face-off near the Peterborough nets. Hand was benched for mixing it, and while he was off Coughlin beat Patten with a neat shot, leaving the score 4 to 2. Giroux drew a penalty for slashing and Lavis followed for tripping Coughlin. The latter slid into the boards and hurt his arm, retiring until half time, the Cobourg team dropping Levis after he had served his penalty. Just before half time Doheny scored on a combination rush with Payne.

Cobourg tied up the game early in the second half, when Cunningham stole the puck from Coughlin when the latter brought it out in front of his own net, and scored easily. Bearss was penalized for tripping and while he was off Payne scored on a combination rush, putting the Cobourg team in the lead. Hand dumped Giroux and was given a three minute sentence. Park, by some nice stick-handling, worked his way in and scored easily, tieing up the game again. Giroux was given the hook for slashing. Guy, the Cobourg cover, was accidentally out in the eye by colliding with Payne and had to retire for the rest of the game, Coughlin being dropped to even up.

Cunningham put Cobourg ahead with a neat shot from the side, and in less than thirty seconds after the resulting face-off, he tore up the wing and repeated the feat, scoring on a pretty shot. Payne made it 8 to 5 a minute later on a pass from behind the nets and the Corktown bunch were three goals to the good. Peterborough got one of them back before the game ended when Kelly scored on a pass from Park, leaving the final figure 8 to 6. There was no further scoring Bond, Doheny and Giroux all served sentences before the game came to an end. The summary:—

1 Cobourg, Payne 1 min.
2 Peterborough, Coughlin 5 mins.
3 Peterborough, Kelly 30 secs.
4 Peterborough, Park 4 mins.
5 Cobourg, Levis 3 mins.
6 Peterborough, Coughlin 5 mins.
7 Cobourg, Doheny 6 mins.
Half Time—
8 Cobourg, Cunningham, 3 mins.
9 Cobourg, Payne 3 mins.
10 Peterborough, Park 4 mins.
11 Cobourg, Cunningham 3 mins.
12 Cobourg, Cunningham 30 secs.
13 Cobourg, Payne 2.30 mins.
14 Peterborough, Kelly 5 mins.

A Record Crowd For To-morrow's Night's Game

The biggest crowd of the hockey season will be at Brock street rink tomorrow night when the Cobourg intermediates play the return game with Peterborough. The game settles the fate of the intermediates one way or the other and will undoubtedly be exciting from start to finish. The Petes have to overcome a lead of two goals and Capt. Park and his men are confident that they will be able to accomplish that feat satisfactorily. The players are determined to win the game and the round and it will be a battle royal all the way through. The game is the sole topic of conversation amon gthe sporting fraternity to-day and the accommodation at Brock street rink will be taxed as never before this season. The game is called for 8.15. It is likely that Fred Denison will play cover for the Petes as Whitty Bearss is too ill to figure on the line-up. He had a bad attack of la grippe yesterday and was hardly fit to play last night. After the game, his condition grew worse and he will not be able to play morrow.

PETERBOROUGH LOST TO BOBCAYGEON

The first round in the competition for the Fitzgerald-Bottum shield was played at Charlotte street rink last night and resulted in a win for the Bobcaygeon aggregation by 14 shots. The round, which was played on four sheets of excellent ice, was close and exciting and displayed the calibre of the contesting rinks to advantage.

The summary of the evening was as follows:

Bobcaygeon	Peterborough

EVEN THE PRESS KNOCKS THE N.H.A.

The N. H. A. are beginning to sicken the public with their pitiful attempts to run a hockey league as it should be run. The big trouble with the N. H. A. is that they have men who are directing their policy who know nothing of the game which they are attempting to run, and this is the reason for the burlesque now being enacted at every meeting of the league. No wonder that the Toronto papers treat the league as a joke, for it is a joke; and a mighty poor joke at that. The league has passed from its old idea of sport and now thinks of nothing but the money. This would not be so bad were the men in charge of some of the teams able to confine both the hockey and the money-making end, but they do not appear to be able to do this. One club in particular does all the directing of how the league should act, and it is no credit, either to that team or to the Ottawas, that they are allowed to run things. The best thing for the Ottawas to do would be to drop this joke league and get in with some other organization who have the faculty of knowing what's what in hockey and would not judge everything from the dollars and cents standpoint.—Ottawa Journal.

TYRONE POWER IN "THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE"

Tyrone Power, an actor whose rise in the past 10 or 15 years has been such as to indicate clearly that he is destined to take the position of the leadership on the American stage, will appear at the Grand next Wednesday, Feb. 14th, in the remarkable drama, "The Servant in the House," by Charles Rann Kennedy, playing the impressive part of Drain-Man, the most conspicuous dramatic figure in the piece for which he was selected and appeared in the original metropolitan production. Mr. Power's personality is one that dominates the play notwithstanding the fact that there are other important roles in competent hands, and his acting was one of the features which made this drama the great success it has been from the very start.

This original production is now appearing in this city for the first time, and as Mr. Power is supported by persons who have been identified with their roles for a long period, the engagement promises to attract much attention from all classes of theatre-goers.

Mr. Power has been called a tremendous figure as the Drain-Man. He is a symbol for the poor, neglected by the church, oppressed and despised by the rich, made wretched by every possible form of injustice. The play develops through a series of dramatic incidents, which with the several characters have been declared by many who have seen the play, to be symbolic and to teach the lesson that true happiness comes only through love and service from ones fellowmen. Although written and acted in a way which is essentially modern, up-to-date drama with sustained interest and a delightful blend of seriousness and humour, a style of the highest literary merit and two speeches of lyric beauty, the construction follows the Greek form of simplicity, having but one scene for the several acts.

"The Servant in the House" tells us of three brothers who drift far apart on the sea of life and years afterwards unexpectedly meet again in England. One has become a vicar in the Church of England, a second is a victim of drink and has turned scavenger, while the third, lost in India when a mere youth, has become the famous Bishop of Benares.

Mr. Power has the original production and company with him and the engagement at the Grand promises to be one of the most pretentious of the season. In the company are Preston Kendell, David Glassford, Amy Veness, Elizabeth Bacon, Argyle Campbell and Wilfrid Roger.

BELMONT MINSTRELS

Mr. Shepard is giving special attention to details this season, for that reason the Big Show will be a finished production from the rise until the fall of the curtain. There will not be any long waits, but something going on every minute to amuse. Please, and make you laugh. The foot-work of the end men, the catchy coon songs, the pretty ballads, will be whistled long after the Minstrels are a thing of history. The show, this year, is snappy and full of ginger. No long drawn out acts or songs. If you miss the big show this season you miss it, that's all.

PAUL TREBILCOCK, Manager, Belmont Minstrels.

ADVERTIZE IN THE EXAMINER.

ROASTS SIR JAMES

Mr. Rowell Starts Something on Very First Day

WANTS VIGOROUS POLICY

Toronto, Feb. 9.—The preliminary skirmish of the debate upon the speech from the throne—a usually mild set-to that prepares the way for the more serious business of the Legislature — developed yesterday into a serious engagement. The new leader of the Opposition, Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., turned his guns upon the Government to such effect that at the hour of adjournment Sir James Whitney was still protesting and the debate instead of being wound up on the first day, as the Prime Minister had hoped, goes on this afternoon.

Mr. Rowell got a good reception on rising. "However much we may differ in policy," said he, "we all agree that Canada must work out her destiny as an inseparable part of the British Empire. The ties that bind Canada to the Motherland are growing stronger every year."

Mr. Rowell directed his sharpest criticism of the Government on the proposal to switch the Hydro-electric out of the control of the commission and give it over to the charge of a Cabinet Minister.

Mr. Rowell maintained that this proposed Hydro-electric policy of Sir James Whitney's had been a gigantic blunder.

"It has been a characteristic," said he, "of the present Government, under the present leader, when they do jump, to jump too far for the public interest."

Mr. Rowell then turned to the bilingual school question, and after remarking that Sir James Whitney had said in his campaign speeches that there were no bilingual schools, quoted from a newspaper report which he held in his hand, a statement on bilingualism attributed to the Attorney-General.

"Perhaps never in the history of the Government has there been such an instance of division of the Cabinet as this," he continued, "with three members of the Government expressing different views on an important matter."

"This speech from the throne is remarkable for what it did not say. Isn't it strange that no mention was made of tax reform? Many of the Conservative members are in favor of it, and even a number of the Conservative newspapers advocate it. Why isn't this reform granted? Because Sir James Whitney has made up his mind that he doesn't want it."

Mr. Rowell then criticised the immigration policy of the Government, and intimated that Sir James Whitney regarded settlers to new Ontario as liabilities to the province, while he (Mr. Rowell) and the Liberal party looked on the settlers as provincial assets.

Woman suffrage, social and moral reform, and the liquor traffic, were also commented on as being important matters neglected by the present Government.

Sir James Whitney was received with Government applause on rising to reply to Mr. Rowell. After paying his respects to the new leader and the ex-leader, Hon. A. G. MacKay, Sir James jumped right into the discussion.

"My hon. friend opposite," said Sir James, "has been talking during the past five minutes on the liquor question and yet he has declared that he cannot find a remedy for all the ills of the liquor traffic, for four years anyway."

"The hon. gentleman also talks about minutest reforms, and now I tried to evade this question during my campaign.

"In five minutes, said Sir James, "I have made more definite statements about bilingual schools than the hon. gentleman opposite has done in his whole life.

"In all his political campaign he kept repeating that English should be the state language, but that the French pupils should not forget their mother tongue.

"That's as far as he dared to go," declared Sir James, "and I challenge him to say otherwise."

"Dr. Merchant is investigating to determine whether any discrepancies have crept into the teaching system of the province.

"If he reports that such have occurred, they will be dealt with.

"Tax reform! Why should anything be mentioned about that matter if it wasn't a part of our platform?"

But Sir James assured the House that assessment reform would be adequately dealt with.

With regard to the future course of the Hydro-electric, Sir James said the Cabinet was not a unit on the question of giving it over to a Department of the Government or retaining the commission in its present state, but the present policy would be continued till completion.

Dr. Jamieson moved the adoption of the speech from the throne and Chas. McCrea of Sudbury seconded it.

PROPOSAL ADOPTED

Conservatives Force Tariff Commission Through

TO INCREASE PROTECTION

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Canada's avowed protectionist Government carried in the Commons last night its proposal for the appointment of a tariff commission, thus blazing the trail for what the Opposition members contend is a move by the protected interests of Canada for a still further increase in tariff taxation at the expense of the consuming public. The debate was continued most of the day.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 104 to 82.

W. S. Middlebro (North Grey), who renewed the debate, assailed the arguments of Mr. Guthrie (South Wellington). The latter had refuted the objections of the Opposition to the proposed tariff board in his own speech. For some years back Mr. Guthrie had declared he had felt the lack of accurate statistical information. The Opposition talked of taking the tariff out of politics, but the way Mr. Guthrie proposed to do this was by taking officials out of the Department, men who were directly under the eye of the Minister, to make these investigations.

In the late reciprocity negotiations, the Canadians had no satisfactory information, while every move of the Americans was based on official definite information.

Hon. Frank Oliver charged that the object of the Government in the appointment of a tariff commission, was to find positions at fat salaries for their friends. The business of the commission was to find excuses for increases in the tariff. The public was being humbugged into the belief that information was being gathered in the public interest, whereas it was really being gathered in special interests at the public expense.

The commission, he said, would lay the wires through which the power would be turned on a little later to "deliver the goods" to the "interests to which the Government owed its existence."

If the Government had a mandate from the people to change the tariff, let them change it, seeking their information as best they could, but not by means of "miscalled commissions to enable them to shirk the responsibility of their policy and its results."

Arthur Meighen (Portage la Prairie) branded Mr. Oliver's effort as a series of "carefully prepared sophisms." He was pretty hard put to for an argument, and this was all he could find.

The Opposition claimed that there was no mandate for the bill, but they had nowhere assumed that no purpose was to be served by it and that that purpose was not a good one.

There was no difference in principle, though there was in the facility with which the work could be done, between gathering information by a commission divorced to a certain extent from the influence of the Minister and gathering it by Departmental officials directly under the eye of the Minister.

A. S. Goodeve (Kootenay) declared that the Opposition paid a high compliment to the Minister of Finance in that they had found no fault with his bill itself, but only founded their opposition on "certain sinister motives which they seemed to have feared would in some occult way be driven into this bill and the reports of its commissioners."

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) described the manufacturers' association as "the originators of the scheme," the dictators of the scope and method of investigation of the tariff commission. The president of the C. M. A. had said that that association could view with equanimity the appointment of a tariff commission."

J. A. M. Aikens (Brandon) compared the Opposition to Don Quixote, who "mount upon their dislocated steeds, and brandishing their paper shields," rush upon the phantom windmills of their imagination.

In refutation of Mr. Carvell, he declared that the capitalization of a company will be considered a factor in determining the cost of production. If combines had arisen it was because there had not been a scientific adjustment of the tariff.

W. M. Martin (Regina), Alfred Thompson (Yukon), and Thomas MacNutt (Saltcoats) also spoke.

May Block Queen's Bill.

Kingston, Feb. 9.—According to a report, when the Queen's University bill comes before the private bills committee at Ottawa it is likely to be laid aside. The claim is made that the Dominion Government has no right to deal with educational matters and that the bill will have to go before the Ontario Legislature, it being held that provinces alone can deal with education.

Baby Shows Needed.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—The efficiency of baby shows at fall fairs as an antidote to race suicide will be thoroughly tested throughout Ontario next September if the directors of the local fair societies accept the suggestion of Louis Smith of Cornwall at yesterday's session of the twelfth annual convention of the Provincial Association of Fairs and Exhibitions.

"Population failed to increase in Cornwall," said Mr. Smith, "and last fall the census report occasioned so much merriment that when the directors of our fair association got together they decided that a baby show in conjunction with the fair would arouse interest among the people along this neglected line. Some forty mothers entered with their offspring and the rivalry for the prizes was keen. It also boomed the attendance at the fair, for where you have the babies there also will be the women, and where there are women you will always find men."

Mr. Smith's suggestion was hailed with enthusiasm by the delegates, who will carry the idea to every town and hamlet in the province where next fall it will be put into practical operation.

Bargain Bad For France.

Paris, Feb. 9.—M. Pichon, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, during the course of a discussion of the Franco-German agreement in the Senate yesterday, delivered a trenchant criticism of the treaty, the ratification of which he declared he would not vote for. He described it as a bad bargain for France, which, in exchange for the gravest sacrifices, had got Morocco, but so heavily mortgaged as to be of little use. He took the gloomiest view of the future, and feared that the protectorate in Morocco would prove more costly in men and money than calculated upon at present.

No Hope For "Flying Post."

Woodstock, Feb. 9.—Secretary H. Sykes of the Woodstock Board of Trade has received a letter from Hon. L. P. Pelletier, the Postmaster-General, in which he says that the Government's decision to discontinue the flying post train from Toronto to London is final and irrevocable. Its continuance would mean a disturbance of the economy of the Postoffice Department.

The Government, he says, cannot continue special privileges to one section of the community without extending them to all. It would be disastrous to the Department.

Brakeman Injured.

Barrie, Feb. 9.—An accident occurred yesterday at South River as a result of which William Cornish, a man about 25 years of age and unmarried, is lying in the Royal Victoria Hospital in a critical condition.

The young man was employed as a brakeman on the Grand Trunk Railway and while working around the chutes was caught between the engine and a post and his head was badly crushed. A caboose was attached to an engine and the injured man was rushed here, where he was taken to the hospital. He is a resident of Barrie.

Lighthouse Men Want More Pay.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, and Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, were yesterday waited upon by a delegation representing the lighthouse keepers of the Dominion. They asked for an increase of 33 per cent. in the salaries paid, and a restoration of the pension system, which was abolished some years ago. The Ministers promised serious consideration.

Money Trust To Be Probed.

Washington, Feb. 9.—An investigation of the "money trust" was ordered by the Democrats of the House in caucus Wednesday night after a plan for a special committee had been defeated, 115 to 66. The caucus then instructed the standing committee of the House on banking and currency, judiciary, interstate commerce and elections, to proceed with the enquiry.

Sharp criticism of William J. Bryan for his imputations that the banking and currency committee of the House leaned toward the financial interests culminated in a resolution expressing confidence in the committee.

Giroux Holds Seat.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—The Citizens' Reform Association met with another disappointment yesterday, a judicial recount of the ballots cast in the recent municipal contest in St. James' ward giving ex-Ald. Nap Giroux, against all their efforts had been directed, yet another vote. His majority over Ald. Brodeur, the Reform candidate, is now ten.

Doomed to Live In Cemetery.

Brantford, Feb. 9—The House of Refuge board has refused the request of the city to allow Thomas Griffin, suffering from an infectious disease, to be housed in a separate dwelling at that institute. Griffin still remains in a shack, unattended, in Mount Hope Cemetery, and his predicament is a pitiable one.

URGE GOOD ROADS.

Deputation Asks Federal Government For Assistance In Scheme.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—A deputation that waited on the Government yesterday to urge co-operation in the development of good roads, was cordially received and departed well satisfied.

Premier Borden said that the establishment of good roads was primarily a matter of provincial jurisdiction. Therefore, it was obvious that the Government had a genuine interest in the subject in proposing, as it did to make grants for the purpose. The condition of roads in Canada was not what should be expected. The civilization of a people was often indicated in its highways.

The supplementary estimates would provide grants to the various provinces for the purpose, but he intimated plainly that the money would be for construction, and not for maintenance. In doing the former, the Government would exceed the B.N.A. Act, but doing nothing more than its duty.

Details of method of outlay had not yet been determined, but it would be by co-operation with the provinces.

There were some 300 delegates and they represented various organizations in Ontario and Quebec interested in the improvement of Canadian highways.

Among the organizations represented were the Ontario Good Roads Association, the Quebec and Miami Highways Association, the International Highways Association, Toronto, Ottawa and other Boards of Trade.

Main Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Motor League, presented the views of that organization.

"This is no time," he said for half way measures of paltry appropriations. A great change is coming in the whole system of transportation. The importance of roads compared with railways will increase as the automobile continues on its rapid development. Canada has been lamentably backward in her ordinary highways."

Hope Powers Will Concur.

Berlin, Feb. 9.—It is hoped and confidently believed here that the German-American notes setting forth the views of the two Governments regarding conditions in China will lead to formal declarations by all the interested powers on the same lines.

Germany from the beginning of the disorders in China has taken the same stand as the United States and has expressed her accord with the suggestion for a common policy in China which Secretary of State Knox has submitted several times to the powers. The latest steps were taken on German initiative, but the credit belongs equally to the Washington State Department. Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, acted in full accord with Secretary of State Knox in submitting the original German note which elicited the American reply.

The newspapers here made a feature of the notes yesterday. The Kreus Zeitung sees in them a warning that certain powers which are seeking special advantages in China must count on joint German-American opposition to their plans.

Senator Proposes Cure.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The ratification of the pending arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France, though "lame and impertant as an obligation to peacefully settle disputes," was urged before the Senate yesterday by Senator Works of California. He declared that if the representatives of the three great powers had intended to exclude from the terms of the agreement very dispute that a nation was likely to go to war about, it could not have done it more effectively.

Senator Works advocated an alliance between the great powers to ostracise commercially and otherwise any nation that went to war and to bind themselves not to increase their armaments.

Port Maitland as Canal Entrance.

Dunnville, Feb. 9.—The Dunnville Board of Trade has appointed a committee to prepare sketches, plans and estimates for the purpose of urging on the Government the advisability of selecting Port Maitland as the entrance for an enlarged Welland Canal. When the data has been secured it is the intention to lay it before Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, and urge that a survey be made to corroborate the view so strongly held here, that the Port Maitland entrance should be selected as the best and cheapest, and one that will involve not only least cost for maintenance during the entire life of the canal.

Freights In Collision.

Guelph, Feb. 9.—Two Grand Trunk freight trains collided yesterday morning early at Drayton. A caboose was smashed to splinters, and considerable damage was done to rolling stock. The train was running in two sections. The first got stalled in the snow, and the second ran into it. The firemen, engineer and other trainmen jumped and escaped.

Still Patrolling River.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 9.—With only the faintest hope of recovering the bodies of Mrs. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton, of Toronto, and Burrell Hecock, Cleveland, who lost their lives in Sunday's ice bridge fatality, men in the employ of Stantons' relatives are still patrolling the river, nothing having been seen of the bodies since they went to their doom.

Make Outside Pupils Pay.

Brantford, Feb. 9.—The Collegiate Institute Board will memoralize the Ontario Government to increase the percentage of the cost of tuition from 80 to 100 per cent., which must be paid by the county and outside pupils attending the institute, on the ground that rural municipalities do not contribute to the cost of building or equipment.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"Rowena," he said penitently, winding his arms around her, "punish me, give me a sound rating, give me a good trouncing abuse me to your heart's content; I think I deserve it, although the temptation was great; but take me back, dear; forgive me and marry me."

"I am not going to upbraid you, Mr. Hare. I simply want to understand the tragedy of my present situation. Who suggested, who arranged this diabolical stratagem?"

"Mr. Fleming," he said, keeping his hand on her shoulder, "as I have already more than inferred, Rowena. Farley dislikes you, and he appealed to Fleming for advice, for assistance to combat you. They approached Graham on the subject of a substitute for Farley, and he recommended me. I made up—the artifice was clever, come now, wasn't it, sweet? and returned with Fleming to East Weyberne. I saw you on the platform; you know the rest. It was your fault, you witch; you took me by storm; you asked me to marry you, and I—well, I would have risked a great deal rather than comply."

She shrank back in her chair, and looked up at him in a forlorn, childish way that went to his heart. He was very penitent regarding his misdeeds, and as far as Farley was concerned, very jealous. He stooped and lifted her from the chair as if she were the child she would have him believe, and spoke to her in a loving, argumentative tone.

"Come, Rowena, darling," he said, tilting her chin, "there's been some collusion, a little trickery about the barter, and you've been cheated out of the genuine article; still the substitute is not so spurious that you need look too closely at the chicanery of the transaction. For my own part, I think you have escaped an intolerable fate. A woman of your fervid temperament, your unrestrained passions, tied to a prosaic, cold-blooded fellow like Farley, would have been nothing less than a tragedy; it would have been the devil's own cunning, the finishing stroke to that gentleman's whirligig in his demoniacal festive sport. Come, sweetheart, give your beauteous self to me; give me the right to worship you, give me the chance, the time, and I swear I will oust Farley completely from your heart."

He looked down at the puerile expression on her face and kissed her roughly. His heart beat to suffocation; every pulse throbbed. He felt he was going forward, gaining ground. He told himself he was surely, if slowly, making his way with long, advancing strides.

"I am tired," she said, plaintively, letting her head droop to his shoulder.

"I am sure you are, sweetheart," he returned tenderly; "tell me you will marry me, and then you shall go to bed."

"Yes, I think I will marry you," she said, thoughtfully, drilling his buttonhole with her finger.

"As soon as I can make the necessary arrangements?"

"Whenever you come for me I shall be ready."

"Come for you." He paused. "Dearest, I'll stay down here if you like; but it's too late, I can't find another hotel to-night."

She put her arms round his neck, drew his head down, and kissed him voluntarily. He returned the unsolicited embrace with interest, wrapped her in the ermine cloak, and opened the door for her to pass from the room.

"Poor little woman!" he muttered, sinking into the fauteuil Rowena had just vacated. "By Jove, it was a sudden beastly blow. She will get over it, though; she's already riding in that direction. Upon my soul, I believe the puss was more than half inclined to forgive me from the first."

He lighted a cigar, put his feet on an opposite chair, and laid back in quiet, ruminative enjoyment.

"Upon my word," he mused, "she has behaved well. She was a little bowled over and scared at first, and no wonder; but there were no hysterics, no scene, no public demonstration of domestic infelicity. Fleming can say what he likes, but Rowena has plenty of good common-sense, and I should certainly say a perfectly refined conception of the proprieties in general. The first feeling of stunned horror having worn off, she seemed to realise the auction of fate under the current of social life, together with the desirability of keeping to me. Of course, she could have gone back to Farley had she chosen, but she didnt choose, which goes to prove I have established some sort of irresistible heart control.

"Bless the dear woman. I love her maddening beauty; I love the high tension of her nervous system. Her wild vivacity freshens me; it suits me. It makes me feel like a healthy young boy out on the moor, the wind creeping over the hills straight from the sea, longing to rough it, braced to meet extremes, whether it be the scorch of the sun or the chill of the frost. Fleming was wrong, prejudicially wrong; I can stem the torrent of that undammed stream; I have partially altered its course; presently—" He looked at the glowing end of his cigar and smiled. "Beautiful Rowena, beguiling woman, darling wife; your soul is sufficiently sensitive; you answer to my touch, sweetheart; you remind me of Mimosa!"

Thus, smoking innumerable cigars, and pouring himself out as to another self, the night was far spent before he could tear himself from the fascination of his misty philosophy and take note of the time.

"Half-past two! What a vigil! And no beauty sleep! I'll put a lump of coal on the fire, and then see if I can get a few hours' sleep!"

He stretched himself on the well-padded couch, slipped a couple of cushions under his head, and shut his eyes with the determination of obtaining the refreshing, much-needed repose. He wooed the coquettish jade long and patiently, and when at last she consented to grant him a little peace, it was but a poor kind of fitful, feverish sleep. Over fatigue and excitement lends an unenviable activity to the brain, as Hare found to his cost. He dozed and dreamed, and dreamed and dozed, partially awake, yet troubled the while by a nauseating nightmare. When gradually the doze glided into a slight drowse he beame conscious of a curious sound, which rather appalled him. In his sleepy state he set himself to work to discover its origin, and was amused after an appreciable waste of energy to find it proceeded from himself—he was snoring.

The funny little incident had entirely roused him. He was wide awake now, and gazing beneath his eyelashes at a stream of light across the carpet, shed by a powerful limelight from outside the window, and idly watching, he beheld a black line creep slowly over the broad, white band. His detective instincts instantly became alert; he was curious, interested, and shifting his furtive eyes, he saw the phenomenon had been engendered by the opening of the room door. Ere many heartbeats had escaped him a figure, the figure of a woman in a trailing garment, crossed the white belt and crept stealthily towards his couch. She bent her head over him and listened. He dared not raise his lowered lids, but he knew her; he knew the impetuous breathing, the subtle perfume she exhaled, and waited uneasily for the solution of her solicitude.

Something cold, hard and bright passed between the thumb and fingers of his right hand, and Rowena stepped back for perspective to regard the adjustment, the feasibility, the result of her coup, her master stroke. Apparently satisfied, she drew a second gleaming object from the bosom of her gown, gazed on it, looked across at Hare as if measuring the distance, and raised her arm.

The next moment flashed her intention through his brain. There was no further space for thought or action; he had waited too long, and mechanically he resorted to the only means of escape he had at hand. A parting of the lips, a slight movement in his throat, an invisible contraction of the glottis, and a voice—a commanding baritone, replete with stern authority—came from the darkness behind Rowena and breathed its vibrating harshness over her shoulder: "Woman! What are you doing here?"

She started, dropped her arm, and turned to confront the intruder, who had surprised her. It was Hare's opportunity, and he took it. He sprang from the couch, wrenched the pistol from her, and stood quivering, looking down with sickening pain at the beautiful upturned wondering face.

"Rowena!" he panted. "Rowena!"

She stared at him in childish amazement.

"What is it?" she asked innocently. "Oh, I know. I came here in my sleep; I startled you; I am sorry, so sorry!"

"You came here awake—wide awake. You came here to deliberately, wantonly, foully murder me!"

"Murder you? What, you, Austin; you whom I'm going to marry?"

She shot a glance of venomed hatred at him before she allowed her glorious eyes to fill with great swimming tears.

"Marry you! Good heavens, Rowena! Do you think I would marry you now? If I had not possessed that one providential gift I should at this moment be lying on that couch dead! Go, leave me; don't ever let me see your face again!"

She turned and fled. He followed her, closed and locked the door upon her ere she passed the portals, and stood staring round the room, dazed by the woman's heartless treachery. A candle lamp stood on the mantelpiece, he found his wax matches, set a light to it, an dexamined the pair of pistols.

They matched, as he expected, in every detail. A bullet was missing from the weapon she had placed in his hands, extracted to convey the simulation and assurance of suicide, and the shot—had she succeeded—found buried in him, would have fitted with exactitude the vacant chamber of the pistol in his dead hand. He shuddered at the woman's evil cunning, at her reckless courage. He thanked heaven; he told himself it was a mercy, a blessing, he had not married the woman; and yet, oh, the beauty, the angelic loveliness, the Satanic temptingness that masked the cruel fiend! Fleming was right, and he was wrong. He had attempted an impossibility; he had strained to reach at things too high for him, and had all but lost his life in the supreme, gigantic effort. He buried his head in the soft cushions, and lay hour after hour without movement until the November dawn came through the hotel window and grudgingly lighted the room.

Making a pretence of breakfast in the coffee-room merely for the sake of appearances, he afterwards ascended to his chamber floor and knocked at the familiar door. A reverberation came from the emptiness within, and, hesitatingly turning the handle, he walked in and looked around the deserted apartents. Rowena was gone and everything appertaining to her—not even a glove; not a vestige—only a sweet faint perfume remained. He packed his portmanteau hurriedly, carried it downstairs himself, and settled the four days' bill. Passing an idle hansom on the stand, he pitched his luggage on to the roof, jumped in, and giving his desired destination through the trap door, he went soberly back to his old lodgings in a turning off Russel Square.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The King of Terrors.

Paul rose late on the morning following "La Tosca." His feelings had been ruthlessly harrowed, and as an inevitable sequence, in his state of nervous debility, an indifferent night's rest had supervened. He was the last visitor to put in an appearance at the Pendennis breakfast-table, and, consequently, found the coffee somewhat lukewarm, the viands unpalatable, and the room deserted. There were no letters, no telegrams, no despatches whatever from Weyberne, and this circumstance alone was sufficient to make him feel tired, utterly good for nothing, and hopelessly depressed. Evidently, with all due deference to Dr. Hunter's professional opinion, the evening's dissipation had not agreed with him nearly so well as the musty dry-as-dust books at the museum.

Assuring himself, in his wave of pessimism, that this, indeed, was the case, and having nothing more particular or important to engage and distract him, he lighted a cigarette, mounted an omnibus, and a while later descended and alighted opposite the British Museum. The day's study and research was more conducive to enjoyment, more suited to his natural trend and taste than theatre-going or any other form of amusement could possibly prove, and, accordingly, towards seven o'clock he began to feel as if he possessed an appetite, and thought he should relish a modest meal, perhaps a boiled egg and a cup of tea.

The morning had been muggy, but presumably a change had taken place during his day of voluntary incarceration. Issuing directly from the warmed building and atmosphere of erudite absorption into the street, the wind struck him as piercingly cold. He buttoned his coat across his chest, rolled up his collar, and looked with surprise at the brightness of the stars, at the clear white aspect of the roads and pavements. Possessing himself of an evening paper, he entered an aerated bread depot, and ordered the coveted repast. An hour later, having furnished himself with the necessary items of news, cut the top from the new-laid egg, and swallowed a mouthful of the buttered roll, he rose, remembered the likelihood of letters by the evening post, and sauntered off in the direction of home.

Passing a flower-shop the faint fragrance from a bowl of pale rose-buds came to his nostrils, bringing with it the memory of the old Manor parlour, a dull, inscrutable pain. He looked at the window, finally entered, and purchased a delicate autumn rose, paid a shilling for it, and fastened the frail bloom in his buttonhole. It was well on the way towards ten when he reached the "Pendennis," and hung up his hat and coat in the hall. He entered the coffee-room in a lagging, spiritless way with a curious indefinable sensation, scarcely pain, at his heart, to find a telegram on the chimney-piece, sticking out from behind the clock, and addressed to himself.

Ah! Felix had not been able to write, but he had wired; it was something better than absolutely nothing at all, when his heart was starving for news. He tore open the envelope, a smile of relief lighting his weary face and read: "Felix worse, dying. Come at once.—Agnes."

He broke out into a cold sweat from head to foot, and the pink missive fluttered to the ground. The three electric jets were turned on, the room was a glare of light, nevertheless he put out both hands and groped his way feebly and blindly among the chairs lining his route to the bell. He touched it, and the strength having gone from his legs, he sank on to a chair by the table, and stretched his arms across it with a low, scarcely human, cry.

"Yes, sir; do you want anything, sir?"

There was no answer. However, Johnson instantly arriving at the conclusion that Paul's attitude was prelusive of disaster, came around and stood in front of his chair. Paul raised his chalk white face with the grey hue around his mouth and tried to articulate.

"Good heavens, sir! Are you ill?" He saw the telegraph form on the floor, and seizing the carafe from the table, poured out a glass of water, and held it to his lips.

Paul moistened his stiff lips.

"It is bad news," he said, pointing to a "Bradshaw" on the sideboard. "Look me out a train for East Weyberne; I—I can't see."

"There's one at 10.45—the mail."

"Can I catch it?"

"If you start now, this instant. Shall I whistle a cab?"

He nodded and picked up the fatal massage.

"When did this come?" he asked.

"An hour after you went out, sir." He groaned.

Oh, the incalculable preciousness of the hours he had wasted! The inestimable grace of the day that was dead!

He heard the cab rattle up to the entrance, and went into the hall. The waiter handed him his hat, helped him on with his coat, and held open the cab door.

"Your bag, sir? Will you leave your portmanteau here?"

"Yes. I daresay I shall come back, I don't know; it doesn't matter."

Nothing mattered, not even the whole creation. Nothing was ever likely to matter or affect him again. He stepped into the vehicle, put half a sovereign into the man's hand and said, "Make him understand—I must get this train."

"You must make sure of this last train, sixty-five," Johnson said, looking up at the cabman. "You must land the gentleman in time, you know, even if your old gee-gee gives up the ghost afterwards; it's—" he lowered his voice—"it's a matter of life and death, sixty-five!"

Paul was scarcely conscious of the run to King's Cross, but the sudden stoppage at the station, and the need for action, quick nimble action, roused him. He took his ticket, entered a first-class carriage of the waiting train and let down the window. There was hardly a soul about, he fancied he must be the only or thereabouts the only passenger. Mewed up and panting for air, he paced the narrow limits of the compartment until himself down on the cushions and the train was in motion, then threw stared out at the moonlit night.

When "Work" Becomes "Labor"

There's Something Wrong. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Will Right It.

Thousands of Women Feel Just Like This.

When it seems as if you simply could not bear up any longer it is high time to look for the cause of the trouble—and the remedy. In an astonishingly large number of cases the real cause of woman's misery is found to be constipation, and the remedy that always cures is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Neglect of the daily movement of the bowels, so necessary to health, soon poisons the whole system from the impurities retained in the body. Headaches, indigestion, biliousness and lassitude follow, and often more serious female disorders are brought on or aggravated.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only regulate the bowels, but they stimulate kidneys and skin as well to throw off waste matter and purify the blood. The result is quickly apparent in the disappearance of the headaches and biliousness, and the return of health and vigor. Thousands of women all over the world owe their present good health to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Fearful Headaches

Stomach Bad, No Appetite, Was Losing Weight and Strength

Wonderful Change When Health Was Restored by

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Headache is a symptom and not a disease in itself. It acts as a danger signal to warn you of serious trouble.

By reading Mr. Donneral's letter you wil be satisfied that there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a means of building up the system and removing the cause of headaches, sleeplessness and indigestion.

Mr. Charles Donneral, Kleinburg, Ont., writes: "I wish to communicate to you the great cure which I received from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food For over two years I suffered from fearful headaches, my appetite was always poor, and the stomach bad. I took medicines from physicians, but the headaches persisted, and I was rarely free from them.

"Reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I began using it, with little idea that I would be benefitted. I had become thin and weak, but the very first box helped me, and with continued treatment I have been cured and feel like a new man. The headaches have disappeared, y appetite is good and digestion excellent. I write this letter in hope that other sufferers from headache may use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and be cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are the Best Remedy In The World FOR BACKACHE.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

You overtax the kidneys—give them more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

Backache is simply kidneyache and the best remedy in the world for backache and all kidney troubles is Doan's Kidney Pills.

We have thousands of testimonials from all quarters of the globe to prove this. Here is one from a party who used them in England, but who is now a resident of Canada.

Mr. P. R. Glanville, Wycliffe, B.C., writes:—"When living in the 'Old Country,' three years ago, I suffered severely from pains in the back, and had to give up work. The pain was so bad that when I stooped down to pick anything up, I felt my back must break. I tried all sorts of remedies and saw several doctors, but all to no purpose. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and thought I might as well try them, and to my surprise, before I was half through one box the backache had entirely disappeared, and it has not caused me any trouble since. I always keep "Doan's" in the house and shall always recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

LAURIER'S NAVAL POLICY HAS BEEN APPROVED BY ADMIRALTY

Special to The Examiner

OTTAWA, FEB. 7.—The insistent demands of Premier Borden's Nationalist supporters in the Commons for the fulfilment of their pre-election pledges that the late Government's naval law would be promptly repealed if the Liberals were turned out of office are not likely to be granted this year. The new Government has found, after informal consultation with the Admiralty, that the "hasty and ill-considered legislation" of the Laurier Government is a well-considered part of a general Imperial plan, and that for Canada now summarily to back out of the agreement to which Australia, New Zealand and the Imperial Government are all parties would be short-sighted so far as Canada is concerned and embarrassing to the Admiralty.

It is understood that some weeks ago a communication was sent to the Admiralty asking for suggestions as to the best way in which Canada could co-operate in Imperial defence. Coast defence works and also a direct money contribution were tentatively suggested for the consideration of the Admiralty. It is stated on good authority that the proposal for a direct contribution is not viewed favourably by the men at the head of the naval services in Britain. They feel that if Canada should make Britain a gift of ten million dollars to be used for the purchase of a Dreadnought the British Government would cut down its naval appropriation by just that amount, and the Admiralty would have gained no addition to the fighting strength at its disposal.

When asked for an alternative suggestion the British Naval authorities have pointed out that the question of Colonial aid for Imperial defence was thoroughly discussed between the authorities of the mother country, Canada and Australia, and a plan of action was agreed upon which appeared to be the best at that time, and which still appears to the Admiralty as the best. This is in effect the plan which the Laurier Government gave effect to. It contemplates the creation of fleet units by Canada and Australia. Australia has gone ahead and will have its fleet unit in commission by the end of 1913. If it had not been for the change in Government the contract for the construction of the beginning of the Canadian fleet unit would have been already awarded and necessary shipbuilding yards would be well under way at St. John.

The suggestions as to coast defence also do not, in the opinion of the Admiralty, fulfill all the requirements of the situation, and, moreover, are as yet too vaguely outlined to warrant any very definite opinion thereon.

Thus the situation is that if the naval law were to be repealed this session the Government would find itself without any substitute to offer. Under the circumstances it has been decided to leave the whole matter over for consideration next summer. Meanwhile the present naval law will be left as it is.

LAST SUMMER'S HOT SPELL COST THE WORLD MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

If it were possible to secure the figures, it would be shown that the prolonged and intense heat of last summer cost the country a vast amount of money. That period between June and July, when citizens were sighing for a touch of January and the fields were withering under a blazing sun, is not forgotten now, and it may be understood that not only did it cause temporary annoyance, but the after effects, if they could be reduced to dollars and cents, would be simply astounding.

The potato crop was struck a deadly blow and the householder is paying about a dollar a bag more than he should for this common vegetable. And this condition is by no means local. The heat was widespread on this continent, and the shortage of potatoes for the United States is as bad as in Canada. Thus the potato bill alone, resulting from the drouth, runs into large figures.

Again, the root crop suffered heavily, as did the various crops which the farmers secure their winter feed for their cattle. Just now the farmers are actually buying feed, not every farmer, of course, but the greater number have been forced to this extreme.

Sugar Suffered, Too.

Last fall the sugar consumers of the world paid a heavy toll to the Weather Man as the result of the heat wave that rolled over the country. The beet sugar crop in the Central European states was all but destroyed by the hot and dry weather, for it must not be forgotten that Europe was treated to the same brand of heat that seared this country. It reached England and the continent just a short time after passing over Canada and the United States. The anticipated heavy reduction in the sugar crop immediately sent prices up, and during preserving time here, consumers were paying practically a record price. This is another item of the bill.

The drouth effected prices of canned vegetables, fruits, jams, etc., for the heat was felt just when strawberries were reaching a full crop, and when the other berries were beginning to ripen. Jars, with the short crops and with sugar, used in preserving, higher, it was but to be expected that the price of these goods would be raised. And they were.

The tomato crop suffered, and the price of canned tomatoes went higher than might have been expected, with a full crop. Peas and beans, used for boiling purposes, were also included in the casualty list.

It requires but a light stretch of the imagination to estimate the damage done by that "spell" of intense heat, and figures that might be put forward would surely be too conservative.

Thus, when the citizen is called upon to pay a high price for this or that article, potatoes just for an example, he has only to hearken back to last summer, if he desires to know the real reason, or the principal one, for the high prices he is called upon to pay.

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. J. Boyne, Lepreau, N.B., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the good Burdock Blood Bitters has done me and also tell you how thankful I am.

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and tried different doctors and proprietary medicines, but could get no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Literary Treats At The Y.W.C.A.

Those who have accepted the invitations from the Educational Committee of the Y. W. C. A. to enjoy the Tuesday literary evenings with them, have been more than delighted with their weekly programmes. The address on Tuesday evening was given by Rev. F. J. Sawers, Rector of St. Luke's church. The subject chosen by the gifted speaker was John Greenleaf Whittier, one of New England's immortal poets. Mr. Sawers gave a short sketch of Mr. Whittier's life, with personal reminiscences from Mrs. Claflin's Memoirs, also from Hawthorne.

(Many choice poems, emphasizing the wide and varied interests of the poet were read, including selections from Snow Bound, from his Indian poems, his Folk Lore and religious poems, including his hymns, two of which were beautifully sung by Miss Florence Scott. Next Tuesday evening Miss McRae of the Normal School staff, gives a stereoptican lecture—"Pictures That Have Lived."

Last Of The Lions

Every man's hand is against the lion. His destruction is encouraged by all the Governments of Africa; and the occupation of most parts of the continent by the white race is likely, before a great many years, to close his history except in a few regions.

This is just what happened in western Asia and in India, where centuries ago there were many lions. The prevalent notion that the genuine lion in his natural condition is now found only in Africa is not quite correct, as Dr. M. C. Engell has shown in his admirable study of the present distribution of this animal. He still haunts the region of the Zagros Mountains in Persia, to the northeast of the head of the Persian Gulf; and he has also small refugees in remote parts of the Punjab, northwest India. Time was when this unappreciated animal had far wider distribution; his fossil remains have even been found in England and Germany, but his residence in north Europe is an incident of prehistoric times.

The lion's hunting grounds in Africa have been greatly diminished since the days around the dawn of the Christian era, when Roman emperors imported large numbers of these animals from north Africa for the amusement of the populace. Pliny wrote that eight hundred lions were brought from the Atlas Mountains in half a century to give keener zest to the circus performances at the capital. This beats the record of all the animal catchers of modern times. Today they do not hunt for lions in the Atlas Mountains, for there are few remaining in that region. In eleven years, ending in 1884, only 202 lions were killed in the three departments of Algeria, of which 173 were slaughtered in Constantine, twenty-nine in Algiers and none in Oran. A few are still found in Constantine and Tunis, but the days of this animal are numbered in North Africa. The only place in the Sahara where he is found is among the mountains of the Air oases, not far from the southern border of the desert. The leopard also lives among these same mountains.

The natives of Africa fear the leopard almost as much as they do the lion. Once in a while some traveller tells of tigers in Africa. No tigers are there, but careless writers thus misname the leopard, which has terrors of its own and is scarcely less formidable than the monarch of the Bengalee animal kingdom.

There are very unpleasant and extensive regions in Africa where the lion is never seen. He is found in none of the great equatorial forests like those in west Africa and in the northeast. Congo, where Stanley nearly perished before he reached the Nile. In these wonderful forests the towering canopy of foliage almost excludes the day. In this perpetual darkness or shadow no food can grow that is relished by the antelopes, zebras, giraffes and other animals that are the favourite prey of the lion. He prefers the rolling savannas covered with high grass and clumps of timber and swarming with game.

Anyone who landed on long stretches of the west African coast thirty years ago was likely to stir up lions within sight of the sea. But the noble brute has no fondness for the white enterprises that now dot the shores. The zone along the coasts where the lion is never seen is constantly widening. He has retired to the interior, and a long excursion island is now a part of the price paid for the privilege of hunting lions. Old men in the port of Berbs say that when they were boys they always listened a while in their beds to the bark of the lions before they fell asleep. Their grandchildren are not thus lulled to slumber. There are many lions in that same Somali Land, but they give the sea edge a wide berth.

As our civilization acquires the mastery, the lion retires before the foreign invasion. Fifty years ago he was widely dispersed over Cape Colony, but it is now known that not a lion survives in that large region. Little or nothing of him is now seen in South Africa, to the south of Bulawayo, the capital of southern Rhodesia, excepting in Portuguese East Africa. His northern limit is practically fixed by the northern edge of summer tropical rains near the Sahara; his southern limit by the extension of white enterprise towards the Zambesi. In the last ten years he has not lost very much ground, and in nearly every part of Africa where there is plenty of his game there is no lack of lions. But everywhere it is getting more and more difficult for Leo to escape the attention of the hunters who are going to Africa in constantly increasing numbers, especially to meet him. All the Governments are offering liberal bounties for his destruction, large centres like the mining regions of Katanga and Bauchi are developing which will make wide areas unhealthful for him and every sign points to the certainty that in the remaining years of his tenancy in Africa he will have a hard time of it.

NOT SALTS; OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious — Cascarets Make You Feel Great

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foulgases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

Discount Rate Is Decreased

LONDON, ENG., FEB. 8.—Owing to the easy monetary conditions in Europe and America, the Bank of England this morning decreased its discount rate from four to three and a half per cent. for the first time in six months.

Promotions In Local Regiment

Members of the local troops, horse, foot and artillery, will be glad to learn that the Canada Gazette announces a general change in the pay and allowances of officers and men in the militia of the country. The pay of the men of the non-permanent forces has been increased from 50 cents a day to 75 cents a day. The schedule of efficiency pay has been done away with and the schedule now is a flat rate of 75 cents a day and 85 cents a day for those serving two years in succession, with an efficiency allowance of 15 cents a day. The increase of non-commissioned officers is on the same relative basis.

The Militia Gazette gives notice of the following 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers—To be Captain, Lieutenant A. G. Carruthers; Vice J. Mills, promoted. To be provisional Lieutenants—Sergeants Andrew Ferguson Hagerman and John Armstrong Brighaman.

MAKES HAIR GROW

McDermid and Jury, druggists, have an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by McDermid and Jury under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle. Also sold at Payne's drug store.

CLEANING AN OCEAN LINER

Not many people are aware that during the few hours a great ocean liner remains in dock she is cleaned thoroughly inside and out. The hull is repainted, the funnels scraped and cleaned, and every piece of exposed metal polished.

Meanwhile all carpets are taken up adenab s.thatout wacTe swagon' hm and beaten, the floors scrubbed and re-painted, and tables re-polished, chairs re-gilded and stained in every part of the ship. On the great boats there are more than 30,000 pieces of linen to be counted, sorted, prepared, and laundered. Then there are 15,000 pieces of silverware, 25,000 pieces of glassware, some 60,000 dishes, plates, cups, saucers etc. As soon as a piece shows signs of wear it is discarded and replaced and all this work has to be done in a few hours.

FOUNDATION SACRIFICE OF ANCIENTS STILL PREVAILS

Remarkable Analogy Between Rite of Human Sacrifices at the Laying of Foundations and the Modern Accident

JIM, the iron worker, talks:—

"The boodoo's off this buildin'. We killed our first man yesterday. I'm sorry for the Italian they crushed, but all the same, I feel better.

There's got to be some good red human blood in the makin' of every buildin' or the thing's a boodoo. But it keeps you nervous until you hear that some other fellow's blood is spilled. Then you think maybe yours ain't needed this time. Every man gets his call some day. Somethin', somewhere, is keeping the time card. When the right minute comes one o' them big iron toothpicks swings round when you're not lookin'—and over you go. More foundation stuff—that's all.

"Never heard of human sacrifices in this buildin' business, eh? Well, look it up, young man. And take it from me, we ain't got past laying fine young humans alive in the foundations of the big things we build. Not by a good deal. They did it a thousand years ago. We're doin' it now, all right, only we don't call it by the same name. And there's hell to pay if a man gets caught talking about it.

"Look it up. Ye'll find it mighty interestin'. And leave me out of it, understand? I don't want 'em to lay me off for bein' gabby.

"Hey, Corrigan, swing that block over and give 'm two whistles."

It is a startling fact that almost every custom of the ancients, whether exquisitely beautiful and inspiring or brutally horrible and debasing, finds counterpart or analogy in some custom of this time. Does history repeat itself? Or is it nearer the truth to say that every generation has to pass through the same experiences, differing merely in name or outward form? Is mankind building a road to the stars or just plodding over the same moving but unmoved treadmill its ancestors trod? Is it making headway against the Stream of Time or is its desperate labor only keeping the frail craft even with the Shore? To every reader of this story his own answer.

For thousands of years, so far back that legend and record lie buried under impenetrable dust, it has been a rite or custom among men to offer living human beings as sacrifices when the foundations of buildings were laid. The custom was limited to no race, or time, or geographical boundary. Careful research reveals evidence of the custom among all ancient peoples, with the possible exception of the Egyptians. Several references in the book of Joshua are accepted among historians as indicating that the inspired writers of Holy Writ knew of the custom. It seems to have been religiously observed wherever man disturbed the soil for the erection of human habitation or public structure.

To-day, in the New World, in the twentieth century, living human beings are sacrificed in laying the foundations of every great structure man purposes to erect. Never in the heyday of its widest popularity, perhaps a thousand years ago, did this weird rite enjoy larger measure of observance than it has at this moment in the United States. Save only these important—or unimportant—differences, however:—That we do not call them sacrifices; that, whereas the ancients generally used but one sacrificial victim to a building we use many; that all religious ceremony has been abolished, and that the event, instead of honoring the victim, is an annoying thing, to be promptly forgotten.

The facts are so remarkable that they have already attracted the attention of several foreign governments interested in the welfare of their citizens here. Progressive legislators, broad minded employers, government statisticians, labor leaders and social betterment workers are giving the subject very careful study. The analogy of the ancient custom to the records of to-day is so dramatic that students of history and folk lore find it fascinating in the extreme. But, unlike most research having to do with vital statistics, it is difficult to get facts. The ancients are dead and cannot talk, while the men of to-day who have the facts do not wish to talk.

The Rite in Modern Alaska

It is curious that our own Alaska should furnish proof that the ancient rite still lives among primitive peoples. When the United States took over Alaska from Russia, in 1867, this rite was credibly known to exist there. It was even mentioned in laws made by the United States for the government of the Territory. Observant travellers believe it is secretly practised to-day in remote sections, such as the headwaters of the Yukon. Ample evidence is at hand to show that this rite, or custom, was a common occurrence within the boundaries of "the most enlightened land on the globe" less than fifty years ago, and probably a little search would locate many men who have seen its observance in very recent years. Given this one tangible fact of the actual existence of the custom in this day, and all the mass of stories, legends, folk lore and . . . s from Ireland, England and all the northern part of Europe are vitalized into material of tremendous interest to the careful investigator.

Description of the rite is given by W. H. Chase, an Alaska authority. A square pit is cleared for the house and a spot selected for the fireplace—here, as every where, the family altar. Four holes are dug for the fireplace corner posts. Then a slave, man or woman, a captive, or even a descendant of a captive, is blindfolded and compelled to lie down in the place selected for the fireplace.

A fresh young sapling is cut and laid across the throat of the victim, and at a signal the two nearest relatives of the host seated themselves on the ends of the sapling, thus choking the victim to death. Four slaves are blindfolded and stood near the posts, and each is struck a blow on the forehead with a club bearing the emblem or arms of the host.

Ancient Rome Practised This Rite.

This custom prevails to this day except that, owing to the laws of the United States, animals have been substituted for human beings.

It is a far cry from modern Alaska to ancient Rome, but the distance seems not to change the echo. Proud, cultured Rome at the zenith of her glory practised this rite. Indeed, she was compelled to its observance by the oracles from her temple gods. Gilman's Story of Rome tells the interesting tale of the building, about 264 B. C., of the famous Roman market or Forum Boarium. The foundations of this structure were the tomb of four living human beings, two Greeks and two Gauls, a man and a woman of each. They were immured in the walls in accordance with an utterance from the Sibylline laws, the sacred book of the Romans which they had adopted from the Greeks.

The Appian Way, which the Romans built about this same time, connecting Rome with Brindisi, nearly four hundred miles away, and probably to this day the most remarkable specimen of road building in the world, is bordered with the tombs of heroes and great men, for sacrifices of living young men were offered frequently that the foundations might be secure. Few American globe trotters speeding over this road in high powered motor cars know that human bodies helped to cement together the very stones beneath them.

Algiers Has Cast of Victim.

When the walls of Algiers were being built, in the sixteenth century, trouble with the foundations caused the living entombment of a Christian captive named Geronimo. He was immured in a cement block and the ramparts of the wall were built over and about him. Since the French occupation of Algiers a subsidence in the wall led to an examination being made and the perfect cast of a human being was found, the body having become dust. The block containing the cast is now in the Cathedral of Algiers.

Nor does this remarkable find lack company. Staid England furnishes a companion story vouched for by a well known curate and contributed by himself to the pages of the conservative Cornhill Magazine. In 1885, the Church of Holsworthy, in North Devon, was restored and rebuilt. When the old south wall was pulled down a cavity was found in the centre of the wall and human remains in the cavity, which crumbled to dust on exposure. No sign existed anywhere to indicate that any interment had taken place and the location of the body refuted any suggestion of ordinary burial. The body had clearly been laid in the wall embedded in the stones and mortar to give the sacred edifice security and permanence.

Under the walls of the only two round towers of the ancient Irish which have so far been examined casts of human bodies have been discovered in such position that there can be no reasonable doubt they represent observance of the rite of foundation sacrifice.

Legends Worldwide.

Legends and stories on the subject take the student all over the world. The traveller who knows his Europe hardly need be reminded of the story associated with the building of the famous Cologne Cathedral, and the pact which the architect made with the devil by which the architect sold himself to the devil for the plan. As a result, so the story says, the architect forfeited his life while the building was in progress of construction. A much more plausible explanation of the story, in view of the facts of foundation sacrifices, is that the architect voluntarily gave himself as a human sacrifice to insure stability to the enormous edifice and thus preserve his own fame. His body lies buried under the choir.

A Scotch legend tells that St. Columba could not build a cathedral on Iona Island until he had made the foundations firm by sacrificing a young man in them. Old English churches almost invariably have some association of murder mixed into the stories of their building. The "white ladies" and "radiant boys" that haunt so many old cathedrals of Europe are almost certainly the reminiscences of victims buried under the foundations. Grimm's German stories are full of references to the entombment of living human beings in foundations, from the building of the famous Castle of the Reichenfels, sacred to every traveller along the Rhine, down to the well authenticated fact that in 1843, when a bridge was about to be built near Halle, the people insistently demanded that a living child should be placed in the foundations.

Copenhagen's Child Victim.

But the most interesting, as it is the most pathetic, legend is told by the Danish historian, Thiele, of the building of the ramparts around Copenhagen. The walls persistently sank in a certain place. After all other methods failed a little girl was purchased from her mother to be sacrificed in the foundations. The blocks were so arranged as to leave a small open space, and here the little girl, surrounded by her playthings and sweetmeats, was placed. At a signal from the master builder, twelve masons walled her in. As the walls rose she called to her mother, "Mother, I can see you," then "Mother, I can see you still" and finally, "Mother, it is dark, I cannot see you." She had been built into the solid wall! After which, says the legend, there was no further trouble with the foundations.

When Detinos, on the Danube, was being built by the Sclaves, there was constant sinking of the foundations, until the workmen took a young boy, the first one they met in the morning, and buried him alive in the foundation. The name of the town, Dijsio, means in Sclavonic, a boy.

Such are a few random bits from the folklore of a half dozen peoples. Every land has them. The songs of Heine are full of them. While the sacrificing of human beings at the laying of foundations and cornerstones was the primitive rite, it has been superseded, perhaps through the increasing value placed on human life, by the offering of animals instead. Thus to-day among the Copts of Egypt a sheep or goat is slain and its blood spilled on the cornerstone. In upper Syria a black hen is carried around the house and slaughtered on the threshhold. It is this to which many theologians believe the verses in the sixth chapter of Joshua refer where the rebuilding of the city of Jericho is associated with the death of the firstborn.

It will surprise many well posted Americans to learn that when the foundations of the Turkish building at the Chicago Columbian Exposition were laid living sacrifices were offered. It will also surprise Wall street to hear that when the railroad which is now operating between Joppa and Jerusalem was begun living sacrifices accompanied the ceremony of turning the first spadeful of earth. This road was planned, built and financed by Americans.

These live facts of our own day seem to indicate that there is an abiding instinct among men to offer propitiation when the gods of any place are disturbed in their peaceful occupancy of immemorial heritage. The habit of foundation sacrifice still shackles the mind of man.

Modern Human Sacrifices.

The foundation sacrifice is modern fact as well as ancient legend. Everywhere that men build to-day human beings sprinkle foundations with their blood. No great edifice but has it mixed in the concretone cement. No towering skyscraper, or steel tube worming its way beneath city or river, no tethered Niagara pulling at leash of copper two hundred miles long, no gigantic terminal piling tracks on five levels but seems to be illustrating anew the fact or the fancy that without human sacrifice there can be no structural permanency.

Whether this sacrifice be necessary in these days let others say. Here we have to do with facts, presented without controversial intent. If out of a story written in kindly spirit and containing the latest data available to the careful investigator there comes incentive to helpful action between man and man, unexpected good shall have been accomplished.

Between forty and fifty thousand men are killed annually in the United States while engaged in foundation and construction work. Competent experts believe that every mile of the New York subway cost a human life and that the later work is exceeding that figure. A coroner's jury having censured for carelessness the company constructing a great metropolitan railway terminal which has been seven years in building, the Coroner stated that the death rate there was "a man a day." The death roll in another immense terminal, upon which one hundred millions of dollars is being expended, is said to total more than two hundred men already.

The greatest railroad cut in the world has just been finished over in New Jersey. One of the papers published in the nearest city compiled a list of the dead and wounded a year before the job was finished which filled four columns. It is believed that fifty men lost their lives in this one cut.

It is currently believed among men who know the facts that every skyscraper recently erected in New York cost a man a floor. When the new Municipal Building in New York city had reached the third floor it was publicly announced that the first man had just been killed. Among the workmen on the job there were quiet, knowing smiles. It is estimated that more than a hundred men have already been killed in connection with the construction of New York's new Catskill reservoir and aqueduct. The power plant at Niagara Falls is said to have taken toll of fifty lives so far.

The Brooklyn Bridge, in New York, first of its kind, was a very cemetery. No such record of fatalities is set against any great structure of this nation, which, incidentally, leads the world in these grewsome matters. More than two hundred men are charged to it. The Williamsburg Bridge showed less Shylock spirit and is charged with about fifty deaths. But it should be stated that during the twenty-five years between the erection of these two structures there has come curious change in the freedom with which accidents are admitted. Nowadays nobody admits anything.

Professor Seager, an authority on the subject, says that annually one man out of every fourteen hundred engaged in these trades is killed and one man out of every twenty-five hundred is totaly disabled.

War never brought such carnage as modern construction work. The sunken road of Waterloo is duplicated to-day in the number of its victims who also find graves in sunken places. Every floor of every skyscraper is a modern battlefield onto which rain red hot bolts, wrenches, bits of iron and wood, and across which swing giant beams mowing everything in their path. The riveter's forge spits red flame like the cannon's mouth, and even the tremendous pneumatic hammers striking their half ton blows make appropriate war music. In 1890 Benjamin Harrison, President, said in his message to Congress:—"It is a reproach to our civilization that any class of American workmen should, in the pursuit of a necessary and useful vocation, be subjected to a peril of life and limb as great as that of a soldier in time of war."

Foreign Governments Investigate

Italy, and not the United States, strange to say, is the first country to make a serious business of getting the facts. Every consul in these United States has strict instructions along this line. Extra employes, including lawyers, have been hired, and in time Italy may lend us the facts for our own betterment. But the object in gathering them is in itself a good story. It appeared, from the ease in which Italian workmen after coming to this country and obtaining jobs, either in excavation or railroad work, then utterly disappeared. The home folk in Italy would get a few letters and some money and then Tony would seem to have been swallowed up by the earth. And he had, literally. For he was what the business calls a "wop." He had no identity. He was merely a number. Austria, too, has just introduced resolutions seeking to obtain similar information concerning her citizens here.

Facts Greatly Needed.

Facts are much needed for wise legislation, preventive work and mutual better understanding between employers and employed. But owing to the lax laws of most of our States the records are utterly inadequate. Recently ten States have passed compulsory laws requiring the reporting of all accidents to workmen. But up to this time "unregulated" trades, and in them is included nearly every department of excavating and constructive work, have been free from any necessity of reporting accidents.

Again, certain clauses of the laws, even as they now stand, have favored the evasion of reports of any kind. The phrase "on the premises," for instance, has been so loosely interpreted that while a report might be rendered where a man fell from a ladder leaning against a building, if the ladder were six inches away from the building no report would be rendered. The New York Public Service Commission has ruled that if a man does not die immediately or within three days he may be listed as injured. He then drops out of the records. The hospital doctors have ceased recording anything but the immediate physical aspects of the injured man, since they have been taught that to do otherwise might mean summons to court as witness in a damage case. The Employers' Liability Commission, appointed by Governor Hughes, reported:—"In all the large number of immense skyscrapers erected in New York not an accident of any kind (except to the Coroner in immediately fatal cases) is reported from the time the first shovelful of dirt is thrown out to the laying of the last slate on the roof. Nor can the number of killed or injured in these trades be even approximated."

Safety devices would, of course, greatly lessen the human sacrifice. Responses received from more than ninety per cent of the more than twenty thousand members of the Manufacturers' Association clearly indicate that the manufacturers themselves are in favor of rigorous accident prevention and compensation for unpreventable accidents.

"But," says my horny handed iron worker, Jim, "we don't want all them new fangled tricks to keep a man from doing a fool thing. The boys talked it all over the other night. It'll bring a lot of scared babies and incompetents into the business, and we don't want 'em. It takes a man to do this work now, and we like a bit of spice thrown in. Anyway, young feller, I tell yer no buildin' worth shucks without human blood gets spilled in the makin' of it."

Perhaps Jim is right!

Let Us Laugh and Be Merry.

Celtic Arithmetic.

INTO the general store of a town up in New York State there recently came a big, good-natured Irish woman, who wanted to be weighed. She stepped off the scales. Almost as soon as she had stepped on.

"Shure, these scales is no good!" was her disgusted comment. "They only weigh up to wan hundred, an' I weigh something loike wan hundred and noinety pounds."

"'Tis easily discouraged ye are, Mrs. Casey," said a friend. "Just step on to thim twice, me dear, and let Mickey, here, do the sum for ye."

High Cost of Living.

THERE is a little girl in Washington who has very decided notions with reference to the "high cost of living," whereof we hear so much.

This child has a weekly allowance, which her mother employs, rather ingeniously, as a means of correction. For every little naughtiness the culprit is fined—in other words, her allowance is diminished.

One morning the child was in a peculiarly contrary mood. She did something out of the way and was fined a cent. In a few minutes she erred again, and a second fine was imposed. For the third time the offence was committed.

"Now, Marie," said the mother, "I shall fine you two cents this time, and if you disobey again I shall make it four cents."

"Dear me," sighed Marie, "I think this is a pretty expensive place to live in."

Philosophic.

AN American who spends much of his time in London tells of a philosophic financier in the British capital who, after being at the "top of the heap," saw his wealth swept away. His friends came to condole with him. They found him cheerful.

"I am living along," explained the philosopher, "and disturbing just as few of my habits as possible. I get up at nine o'clock just as I always used, to and ring the bell for my valet!"—

"What!" exclaimed the friends, "are you still able to keep a valet?"

"No," sighed the philosopher, "but I keep the bell!"

The Bishop of Mimosa.

WHEN a bishop of Minnesota was abroad he did a great deal of work in Rome. One day, after holding a service in the English church outside the walls, he overheard one English woman say to another:—

"Who was the bishop who conducted service to-day?"

"The Bishop of Mimosa," was the reply. "He comes from South Africa, you know."

Harry Undismayed.

"MOTHER," said a Washington lad, "I wish you'd get me a double runner sled this winter."

"Why, Harry," said the parent, who is ever fearful lest the lad get into trouble or be injured, "I knew a little boy who had a sled of that kind, and the first time he used it he crushed two of his fingers so that they had to be cut off. How would you like that?"

"Well, mother," said the youngster, "it would be convenient not to have so many finger nails to keep clean!"

Disliked the Flavor.

A KINDERGARTEN teacher in Philadelphia fell in love at first sight with a cherubic youth of four who was brought to her for instruction.

"Oh, what a dear!" exclaimed the young woman. "Have you any brothers like yourself?"

"Yes'm," replied the cherub; "me and Tommy and Dick. I like Dick best."

"And why do you like Dick best?"

"'Cause he did me a great favor. He bit Tommy's leg."

"But, dearie," protested the teacher, "why should you want Dick to bite Tommy's leg?"

"'Cause I hate the taste of Tommy's leg," explained the cherub.

Haste to Reimburse.

WHILE carrying a ladder through the crowded streets of Philadelphia the other day a big Irishman was so unfortunate as to break a plate glass window in a shop. Immediately dropping his ladder, the Celt broke into a run. But he had been seen by the shopkeeper, who dashed after him and caught him by the collar.

"See here!" angrily exclaimed the shopkeeper when he had regained his breath, "you have broken my window!"

"Sure I have," assented the Celt, "and didn't you see me running home to get the money to pay for it?"

An Impolite Question.

WHEN Governor Foss, of Massachusetts, and a number of his staff recently visited Richmond for the purpose of unveiling a monument to the Massachusetts soldiers who fell in Virginia during the civil war a certain Bostonian encountered an old darky, a vender of chicken and pie.

The Bostonian thought that he would sample "Old Dick's" ware. He complimented the chicken and then the pastry, and wound up by asking:—

"Where do you get such nice chickens?"

The old darky, with a twinkle in his eyes and a wink at the other gentlemen standing by, said:—

"Boss, I sho' knows you ain't from de Souf."

"And how do you figure that?"

"'Cause, suh," said old Dick, "no Southern genulman ever comprermises a nigger by askin' him whar he gits his chickens."

"Ah! FRY'S Cocoa Makes One Feel Good All Over"

Sliding, driving, skating, motoring—whizzing through the crisp, chilling, wintry air—no longer "gives the shivers" to those who have learned the splendid warming-up effect of steaming-hot, delicious-tasting FRY'S Cocoa. Coldest days have no terrors for those whose blood has been enriched and whose bodies are nourished by drinking

Fry's — THE Cocoa

Remember! Nothing Will Do But FRY'S

FRY'S Cocoa is the most strengthening, warmth-creating and flesh-building of all beverages. Outdoor folks should warm-up before and after their outings with this delicious warmth-giving drink. Those who for any reason are kept indoors, young or old, sick or well, find FRY'S of especial benefit during cold weather. It supplies a positive need for your cold weather diet.

Be sure that you get FRY'S Cocoa. So highly concentrated is it that very little makes far more and richer cocoa than a great deal of ordinary kinds. That's why FRY'S is so much more economical. Drink it often. Your grocer sells it.

Most good stores also have an assortment of FRY'S Chocolate Dainties—all of them much nicer than ordinary. FRY'S Milk Chocolate, for instance. Also FRY'S Nut Milk Chocolate. Try them.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was quiet and bids generally were ½d lower, but there continues to be a good demand for oats and as the prices bid are in line a fair business was done for May-June shipment to the United Kingdom ports. The local market for oats is strong at the recent advance in prices with a fair trade passing in car lots.

There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour and as some of the bids were in line with millers' views, sales of several thousand sacks were made. A good local trade continues to be done. Bran and shorts continue scarce and in demand.

Butter is fairly active and strong. Demand for eggs is fair and a good trade is reported in provisions.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 75½c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 65½c to 54c; Canadian western, No. 3, 51½c to 52c; extra, No. 1 feed, 52½c to 53c. No. 2 local white, 51c to 51½c. No. 3 local white, 50c to 50½c; No. 4 local white, 49c to 49½c.

Barley—Malting, $1.01 to $1.02.

Winnipeg Grain Market.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8.—With very little demand prices reacted on this market slightly. The opening prices were ⅛c lower for old May, ⅜c lower for new May and ¼c lower for July, with a weak undertone. The closing figures were ⅜c lower for old May, ½c lower for new May and ¼c lower for July. The cash demand is only fair, and prices declined on all grades; feed, rejected seeds and tough being unchanged. Export enquiry is absolutely off and with prices tending downwards buyers are holding back. Oats are keeping steady for May, with firmer tendency, but little or nothing doing in July.
